Scores of boats of as many different lines have entered the local harbor during the past year carrying cargoes as varied as the names that adorned their bow. Almost a continual line of boats in and out since early spring have boosted the total volume of freight handled at the local port to an appreciably high level this year, it is reported by Harbormaster Robert Goudy. Scores of men have been given work during the spring, summer and fall on the loading and unloading of the boats.

This year, records for the amount of shipping done locally might have been broken but for the fact that the apple season this year was a poor one. Fewer barrels of apples meant less freight handled. Last year was a high level in amount of freight of this nature shipped. Cheese this season was one of the mainstay cargoes, closely followed by the cases of canned goods from canneries of the district. And into Belleville in a steady stream came the world's produce from foreign climes. Raisins from the Antipodes and beer from Quebec are only two items of the vast traffic handled. But the biggest import of the year was that of sugar. Thousands of one hundred pound bags were brought in and unloaded week after week. How much volume of freight was handled will not be known until the annual report of the commission is made.

"TOUGH TOWN" IS APPLIED TO CITY

Transients no Longer Able to Get Good "Chuck" at Station

"Belleville is a tough town. Two years ago it had one of the best chuck houses on the line between Toronto and Montreal; this year it hasn't, anything, except a flop in a cold police station and an order to "Get Goin'." next morning. The boys are passing the place up for Oshawa and Brockville and a few other places, where they look after you with a bowl of hot soup and something substantial to eat. People here in Belleville won't even open their doors to a fellow."

So sums up Bert Holling, late of His Majesty's Royal Field Artillery, herbal specialist and soldier of fortune, transtory guest of the city on Saturday evening.

Believe it or not Belleville's reputation of a town for "soft pickin's" made two years ago when a real hostelry was established for its transient guests, has become a "tough town" for those members of the wandering fraternity who in spite of flood, famine, fire and the threat of a long and severe winter, still flood the broad highways and the railroads of the country in their numbers. They are giving Belleville a wide berth in their aimless peregrinations. The city has steeled its formerly soft heart against the pathetic pleas of the seedy appearing guests for hot meals or a thin dime for a 'cuppa cawffee'. Noticeable this year is the lessening of numbers of the wanderers, who in former years had cluttered the down town sections of the city during the Christmas season with their wheedling pleas.

The word has gone around: "Keep away from Belleville——it's a tough spot".

And, according to the latest information of those, who are on the trek they time their hikes and rides on the windswept freight trains to miss this city when possible in favor of some other more pleasant and softer hearted municipality.

MILK AND MAIDS

Comes now the State of New York and declares in its milk advertisements that a person would have to pay more than $44 for the separate chemical ingredients in a 13-cent bottle of milk. That would make a bottle of Grade B in New York rate sixty times as high, chemically, as a pretty dancing partner at M. I. T. We do not quarrel with the State of New York when it asserts that a glass of milk will repay the consumer a hundredfold in health and happiness. But it is not easy to think of a bottle of Grade B containing sixty times as much health and happiness as a girl at a prom.

As for the exhaustive list of milk ingredients which the Commonwealth of New York prints down one side of its ad, it is to be hoped that all the minerals and amino-acids and fattay acids won't bewilder the public, which reads so many different advertisements in the course of a day.

Who can really tell, without looking, whether hydroxyproline is the thing that makes milk so nourishing, or the thing that works down to the roots of the hair and makes shaving a delight, or the thing that mixes with gasoline to keep the motor sweet in the coldest weather? About vitamins in the milk there is no ambiguity, but isoleucine or phenylalanine might be equally good for babies or carpets.—New York Times.

COMPULSORY MOTOR INSURANCE

Certain objections to the plan (compulsory motor insurance) are self-evident; the fact that it would increase the cost of motor operation; that conceivably the number of licences issued in Quebec might decrease should this Province alone institute a system of compulsory insurance; that the knowledge of financial security might still further increase reckless driving and finally, that insurance companies might take advantage of the plan to increase rates. One thing at least can be said with fair certainty; compulsory insurance, involving as it would extra cost of operation and as it certainly should some system of inspection of the car to be insured, would result in taking off the streets and roads many vehicles which at present are simply sources of public danger.

Doubtless, we shall hear a great deal more about compulsory car insurance as time goes by. It is by no means a simple problem, and it would be a good thing if there were more public discussion upon it.—Montreal Star.

SEA MONSTER A BASKING SHARK

There may be more things in heaven and earth than Horatio ever dreamed of in his philosophy, and believers in sea serpents and ogopogos may be justified in refusing to join the army of doubters of the extraordinary, nevertheless the creature that has been exciting the interest of the people of British Columbia, recently, has been definitely identified as a basking or wax-nosed shark. Identification of the remains found on a rocky island near Prince Rupert by Hugo Sundstrom, a hardy fisherman, has been made by Dr. W. A. Clemens, director of the biological station at Nanaimo, B.C., who knows his sharks and big mammals generally. Basking sharks, says the biologist measure up to thirty feet in length and have a diameter of about four feet. The skull is so soft that it loses its shape when out of water, and when the creature is on the surface it has the appearance of a sluggish log. They are often sighted along the coast of British Columbia, and sometimes they move about in bands. It is easy to conceive of a fisherman or other observer mistaking these basking sharks for some unknown sea monster, especially if the mere human has been fortifying himself against the cold and wet with strong waters. In such circumstances the imagination is given free rein and the eye and brain are apt to magnify the spectacle. So in the description afterwards the sprat may become a whale, so to speak.—Montreal Gazette.

THE POPULATION OF BRITAIN

It is of real importance, as Sir Josiah Stamp says, that we should have the statistics which the census provides at intervals of five years, for though it is possible to make pretty good guesses at population aggregates for intercensal years, there are other matters of even greater moment, such as distribution by areas, occupation and age, whose changes defy accurate estimation. There is, moreover, a special reason for taking a census in 1936. We are now on the eve of what Sir Josiah tems "the greatest event in the population history of this country." In two or three years we shall reach our peak figure of populaion, with a gradual decline to follow. The changes in age and occupational distribution which that will involve must have a close bearing on national policy in regard to social services, business and industry. And, in Sir Josiah Stamp's words "whether we have to get a planned society or not, the dividend of exact social knowledge and hard cash in avoiding mistakes will yield a handsome return upon the cost" of a census in 1936.—New Statesman and Nation (London).

THE EARLY BUYER

Buyers have this week and next and a solitary day on the following week to make all their preparations for the Christmas celebration.

Fortunately it would look as if there will be more early buying than in the past, yet with the signs of improvement which business has shown, there will be a great total of buying with the result that even heavier demands will be made on the merchants and their staffs.

This week should see much purchasing by the buyer who wants time to choose, who wants to look over the larger assortments, and who needs more attention from hardworking staffs. This type of person is going to miss the last-minute riot and frenzy which characterize the slothful, eleven-o'clock-at-night buyer.

WHILE ABROAD

Those who travel abroad should not endeavour to show off their information by witty remarks, or by sly observations on conditions as they see them, made by references to the governments of countries through which they are travelling if they would avoid going to jail under suspicion of being spies.

Europe is in a mood to see a spy in almost every strange person and the person who says or does the injudicious thing in the Continental countries where the national nerves are tense, may lead citizens and police to suspect them wrongly, but still nevertheless to suspect them of espionage.

Woodstock Sentinel-Review has not much sympathy for the individuals who go from this continent and become involved in espionage plots, pointing out that "every intelligent Canadian and American knows that in Europe it is regarded as a serious offence to evince any curiosity about their military organization, and defences of their cities, the disposition of personnel in forts, or the plans of their warships. No one on this continent exhibits much concern about these matters, but in Europe they are subjects of vital interest, and only the authorized officials are supposed to have the information concerning them."

The tourist abroad is warned against striking up company with strangers, who might possibly involve him in a tangle which might mean a period in jail on suspicion.

The foreigner going into some countries surely knows that not even the inhabitants of those lands are supposed to know and to discuss certain matters and should realize that it is, if nothing else, the part of caution to avoid seeking to learn what may attract suspicion or to speaking of things which are practically forbidden discussion. At any rate, courtesy should prompt the visitor to avoid the things the people of the country avoid.

NEW CALENDAR NEARER

Calendar reform may be much easier than all but a very few realize. Indeed very few have occasion to think of the movement for calendar reform which has been gaining its way. Business would vote for a changed calendar which will overcome many of the points in the present calendar which leaves months of various lengths, leap years, and so on, a constant puzzle to a good many and a real difficulty in the world of commerce. The church it might naturally be expected would move more slowly because of the attachment to the present system through moving dates of Christian feasts. Easter is the feast over which there is the greatest issue for most of the religious feasts of the Christian church are regulated by this date.

A good many of the great branches of the Christian church have voted in favor of the reform, but there is some opposition of a few small Protestant sects. The League of Nations will probably go ahead with the preparation of the new calendar.

If the new calendar is achieved, it will indicate harmony on essentials on the part of the various branches of the church. This will be a sign of progress towards that agreement in religion which has been so much talked of as necessary for the progress of the world.

DR. DAFOE IN NEW YORK

Dr. A. R. Dafoe of Northern and Dionne fame is now in the hub of the New World, the city of New York, where he is the guest of the great in medicine.

Leaving for New York he expressed anxiety at his reaction to the big city after his experience in the north. But from press accounts Dr. Dafoe is able to take care of himself even in the city of millions. Here he is honored by the continent's greatest medical men.

From the clear performance of his medical duties as medical practitioner in a far-away place, he has jumped into fame and has been carried by fame across the ether waves away from his own continent, to Europe and to the Orient. So much for sudden greatness in a modern scientific world.

But all the wonders of a great city and a great world cannot spoil the man who knows himself first of all. He is the captain of his soul and the acclaim of men in New York cannot "phase" him from what he is.

There is this paradox in pride—it makes some men ridiculous but prevents others from becoming so.—Colton.

If fame is only to come after death, I am in no hurry for it.—Martial.

SIDELIGHTS

Grave and Gay

DOWN IN DALLAS, TEXAS, where straw hats and linen suits are comfortable raiment for the Christmas season, our correspondent sends greetings to all readers of this column, also a picture of a boy sitting on a pile of pumpkins with a background of about a million turkeys, more or less. The picture is headed TURKEYS PLENTIFUL AND EVERYBODY THANKFUL (apropos of the Yankee Thanksgiving Day just past.) While the turkeys look plentiful they certainly do not look thankful on the eve of Thanksgiving Day when the picture was taken, with Christmas in the offing. Incidentally the Dallas correspondent tells us that turkeys are bringing 22 cents per pound there. Here are some news items of general interest sent on by the Dallas correspondent for the benefit of the Sidelight Family:

x x

East Texas oil field has now 15,100 wells, with an hourly potential of 11,209,454 barrels, and daily, allowable, production of 410,363. Oil production in the United States is curtailed by mandate of the government in order to maintain the equilibrium of fair prices. Looks as tho' there'd be no shortage of gasoline for some time to come, so the old bus will not have to be remodelled for wood or coal consumption.

x x

Growth is so fast in Texas a Sherman father took his two weeks' old son to the barber shop to have his hair cut as it was getting in his porridge and interfering with his eyes.

x x

A pet black bear attacked his owner, W. Tom Brown, garage owner of San Angelo, inflicting fatal injuries. The 400-pound bear slipped its chain and took refuge under a bridge. The owner tried to coax the bear out when the animal became enraged and sprang upon him. All goes to show that little bears may be cute for pets but big bears just ain't built that way.

x x

Dallas boy, roller skating, laid down behind the drug store for a nap. When he awoke his skates were gone—some light-fingered artist had relieved him of the skates without waking him—proving that even in Dallas acquisitiveness is one of the human failings.

Here's a hunting story for the lads who gather round the cracker barrel and cheese free lunch in the corner grocery o'nights: John H. Garner was out for deer, the sun was obscured by clouds and finally he became aware that he was lost. He climbed a tree to get his bearings, clumb out on a limb which refused to bear his weight and fell plumb down to the ground startling a fine buck deer which was resting near by. Mr. Garner picked up his rifle and brought down the deer. A sprained knee and various scratches from the fall proved unimportant in view of the good fortune to land a deer. Mr. Garner happens to be Vice-President of the United States, hence it would be treason to doubt his veracity.

x x

Another Texas hunting story—A woman hunter with a .22 rifle bags the biggest buck of the hunt against six male companions, all reeking with lore of big game hunting and many years' experience, to hear them talk, and high-powered rifles. Mrs. J. L. Goforth, accompanied her husband, Dr. Goforth and party on a hunting expedition. Six mighty male hunters and one lone woman without hunting experience to talk about. She was allowed a .22 rifle to amuse herself with small game and gain experience, but when the big buck came along she just made the little .22 do the job by putting the bullet where it would do the most good to her hunting experience and the most harm to existence of the buck. She had been left at the camp to wash the dishes and clean up while the lordly males went forth into the wilderness to kill the biggest game therein from red deer to grizzly bear. When she finished the camp work she took the little .22 rifle and hit the trail in the opposite direction to which the male nimrods had gone. She sighted a likely position, crouched behind a cactus and waited. Sure enough Mr. Deer came along, a lorldly buck with eight-point antlers. She waited until he came within range then placed a bullet straight in the brain. With the aid of a ranchman she got the buck back to camp and hung up to await the return of the men hunters—and were they surprised and as Jimmy Dunante would say MORTIFIED?

x x

So now, Family, you know that they do things differently down in Dallas, but not so differently after all, we all being sisters and brothers under the skin, the Colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady. And down in Texas and in almost every other place under the sun there are folks from Hastings and Prince Edward Counties improving their surroundings and helping to plant that good old Bay of Quinte good fellowship and common sense seed in alien soil for the benefit of all concerned.

Soldiers—Then and Now

—by—

Theodore Goodridge Roberts

In the matter of being popular with the troops, I believe that the chaplains were in the best position and the sergeant-majors in the worst. I speak as an observer only, never having served in either capacity; but it stands to reason, I think. It was difficult for a capable and conscientious sergeant-major to be anything but unpopular with the non-commissioned officers and privates of his outfit, for his was the unpleasant job of continually and everlastingly keeping them up to the mark in the matters of behavior and appearance—to a mark set by his superiors in rank and authority. He was the unpleasant personal touch of authority upon the unit—the constant nagging, snapping, caustic touch that had to be but did not make for love and understanding; but whenever something pleasant was to be handed out, such as thanks and congratulations from the brigadier or even higher up, it was "the Old Man's"—the colonel's—turn. Put more of sergeant-majors later!

The chaplain, on the other hand, was all set for personal popularity in the very nature of things. His job makes for it just as surely as the sergeant-major's job did not. Discipline was not his concern. He stood for pleasant and kindly relations only—if we forget church parades back in camps and such places. His duties were with men's hearts and souls, not with their military efficiency. His advantages in this connection (personal popularity with other ranks) were not only over the sergeant-major but over all combative officers. The O.C., the adjutant, commanders of all kinds and degrees, had to consider discipline, drive or lead to unpleasant and dangerous duties and hand out punishment. But not so the padre. To warn a man concerning the state of his soul is one thing, to menace his pay-book and blacken his crime-sheet are quite distinctly other things. But even so, the wise padre did not harp too long on the state of a man's soul.

The padre who worked in the line and was on hand at hot times in difficult situations, was of two-fold significance there and then. He was an officer; and that was some thing when the whole world seemed to be in a state of crash and confusion. And he was a minister of one kind or another. He had, or was supposed to have, double authority for being there—His Majesty's and God Almighty's. He stood for things suggesting authority, responsibility, security and sanity. It was a comfort to have him there, not here, not there, slithering along tilted duckboards and grinning as if it were a Sunday School treat; yes, a comfort, even if one did not feel in the mood for prayer. His presence was reassuring. It suggested better times and conditions somewhere, sometime—in this world or the next. Just such a comfort in time of trouble was the Rev. E. E. Graham, D.S.O., M.C. Padre Graham was recommended for the Victoria Cross. Of his extraordinary acts of valor a certain commanding officer is reported to have said, "I have never seen any man, drunk or sober, do the like!"

Padre W. H. Davies M.C., one of our many padres of the right sort. He was killed at Le Quesnel. Robert Thompson and Arthur McGreer were two more of the right sort. It is said that Thompson refused promotion because he felt that the additional rank would weaken his touch with his men.

HER FIANCE SUED

LADY FORBES

Shortly after the engagement was announced in Paris of Lady Moira Forbes, ABOVE a niece of Oden L. Mills, U.S. financier to Count Louis de Brantes, son of a French marquis, rincess Aadejda Scherbatov, Russian noblewoman, filed a sensational damage suit against the Count. Demanding one million francs ($66,000) and an allowance of $330 a month, the Princess insisted the court acknowledge the paternity of her three-year-old daughter.

STIRLING

L.O.B.A. INSTAL YEAR'S OFFICERS

St. Paul's W. A. Holds December Meeting

Stirling.—Stirling streets have once again put on their Christmas dress and Saturday saw the streets lighted with strings of coloured lights in Christmas lines while attached to each pole, is a small Christmas tree. The large Community Christmas tree will not be erected it is expected until next week. On the whole, through the courtesy of the Hydro Electric System the town presents a colourful and gala appearance.

The annual meeting of L.O.L. 110 scheduled to be held on Thursday evening was inadvertently postponed due to the fact that after the convocation, no one would accept the office of Grand Master. The matter of the election of officers has been laid over until the New Year.

High School students are now in the throes of their regulation Christmas examinations, the examinations commencing the fourth of December and concluding December 21st, the last school day.

Dr. Harry Carleton of Norwood was a Friday evening guest of his brother, Dr. E. A. Carleton.

Dr. B. F. Butler of Campbellford is spending a few days with his son, Mr. J. G. Butler.

After the real freeze-up of the season, the local youth were enjoying a fine outing on the local pond. Shortly after four o'clock on Friday afternoon, a gay bevy of school children were blithely indulging in the ice sport while the older citizens looked on in dismay fearing that the cold had not been intense enough to ensure the safety of the children.

To enable them to give more prompt and better service to their patrons, Baker's Garage, of which Mr. Clifford Baker is the proprietor, is undergoing a thorough renovation. To provide greater floor space for the accommodaton of a greater number of cars in the garage proper, the old office is being torn down and a new and thoroughly up-to-date one is being constructed on the west side of the building. This addition is a fine-looking office with a frontage directly on the sidewalk, all the frontage being display windows, while at the eastern extremity, a door gives access from the street. The office which is a stucco finish both in the interior and exterior has a Spanish tile roof. Everything in it is most modern and up-to-date while a ladies' rest room has also been provided.

Mr. Baker also contemplates remodelling the entire front of his garage building and installing double doors.

Scout Executive Meets

At an executive meeting of the First Stirling Troop of the Boy Scouts held for the purpose of reorganizing the society, Travelling Scout Master Jones of Toronto, was present. The meeting which was held on Thursday evening was fortunate in once more securing the services of Tom Ward as Scout Master. It is hoped that the local citizens will patronize the Scout affairs and give them that support which so worthy an organization deserves.

Adams—In Stirling on Sunday, December 2nd, 1934, to Mr. and Mrs. William Leslie Adams, a daughter.

Dunkley—Born in Stirling on Monday, December 3rd, 1934, to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dunkley, a son.

Deline—In Stirling on Thursday, December 6th, 1934, to Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Deline, the gift of a daughter.

Heasman—At the General Hospital, Belleville, on Wednesday, December 5th, 1934, to Mr. and Mrs. George Heasman, a daughter.

Dr. E. A. Carleton and Mr. William Dermedy were in Belleville on Friday where the latter underwent an X-ray at the Belleville General Hospital.

Dr. J. S. Demorest and Mr. Thos. Heard were in Belleville on Friday where Mr. Heard underwent an X-ray treatment.

The December meeting of the Women's Association of St. Paul's United Church was held in the Church parlours on Tuesday afternoon with a splendid attendance of members. The President opened the meeting with a hymn and Mrs. A. Gordanier led in prayer. Mr. Matheson read the Scripture lesson from St. Luke after which the roll call was taken and the Secretary's report was submitted and duly approved. Correspondence was satisfactorily dealt with. A most interesting communication was read by the Secretary from Mrs. Albert Shaw of Durban, Manitoba. When residing here, Mrs. Shaw was an active worker in this society and greetings from her are always welcome. Treasurer's report was fully given and approved by Mrs. E. G. Bailey and Mrs. Charles Thompson. Group Treasurers gave their reports as well. Discussion then followed concerning remembrance by the ladies of the shutins at Christmas. Hymn 133 was then sung after which Mrs. Gordanier pronounced the Mizpah Benediction.

Mission Band

The Maple Leaf Mission Band of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met in the Sunday School rooms on Saturday afternoon for the last meeting of the year. Marguerite Rosebush, president, occupied the chair and opened the meeting with a hymn, after which Helen Murduff read the Scripture Lesson from St. Mark. Dorothy Montgomery led in prayer after which Dorothy Gay gave a piano solo and Margaret Wilson, a recitation. A duet by Dorothy and Marie Gay, "This Old Man Came Rolling Home" was given after which Shirley Montgomery gave a solo, "Learning to Play the Fiddle." Helen Fitchett gave a humorous recitation, "Almost Beyond Endurance" and Gena Spry related the story to the children, "Christmas Knocks At Your Door". Helen Murduff gave a reading, "Dum-da-dee" after which a play, "The Missionary W's" was given by Doris Jaundrew, Mary Tulloch, Lillian Matthews, Dorothy Montgomery, Helen Fitchett, Jean Dafoe, Shirley Ormiston and Helen Murduff. A chorus, "Missionary Bells" by Dorothy Montgomery, Doris Jaundrew, Lillian Matthews, Jean Dafoe, Mary Tulloch, Helen Fitchett, Helen Murduff, Dorothy and Marie Gay, Shirley Ormiston preceded a boys' chorus, "Every Day" which was given by Glen Whitehead, Donald Murduff, Earl Dafoe, Glen Eggleton and Frank Rodgers. Helen Fitchett favoured next with a recitation, "Miss Careless" and at this juncture, Glen Eggleton and Frank Rodgers took up the collection. The minutes were read and approved, Gena Spry next giving the treasurer's report. Mrs. Albert Hammond moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Harper Rollins for her efforts in making the Mission Band the splendid success it is. A trio, "Saviour Teach Me" was sweetly rendered by Mary Tulloch, Shirley Ormiston and Doris Jaundrew after which the concluding hymn, "If I Come to Jesus" was sung by all the members. After repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, the meeting disrupted and a dainty lunch was served.

Officers Installed

On Tuesday evening, the L. O. B. A., held their regular meeting. The installation of officers took place, the following being the list of newly-elected officials:

Past Worthy Mistress—Sister Jennie Burkitt.

Worthy Mistress—Sister Pearl McGee.

A collision between the milk wagon belonging to Mr. Thos. Cranston and a trailer attached to a car driven by Mr. Alex McCreary occurred in front of the Harlowe property on Mill Street east about 6.40 o'clock on Monday morning. The wagon was badly damaged and about forty quarts of milk were scattered about the roadway. Fortunately, the driver was not in the wagon at the time, otherwise he might have come to harm. Mr. McCreary, who was proceeding westward on Mill St., failed to see the milk wagon until almost upon it, and in the attempt to avoid striking it, swerved his car sharply to the left, but the trailer swung inward and crashed into the wagon. The trailer was badly damaged.

Personal Notes

Mr. Thomas Cranston has disposed of his milk route subsequently to Mr. A. R. Wannamaker. The deal was closed on Monday and Mr. Wannamaker assumed control at once.

COMMITTEES NAMED FOR WELFARE CLUB

46 New Members Added and Plans Laid to Further Work

At a meeting of the Quinte Welfare Club of Belleville held in the Y.M.C.A. last Friday evening, Mr. Webb Knox presided. The secretary, Mr. Fred H. Henry, reported that in addition to the 52 members who had previously signed applications for membership and had been balloted upon and passed upon by the executive, now 46 others whose names were read as having done the same. These were also approved by the rank and file members. Besides the six honorary memberships hitherto announced that of Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P. of Tweed, representing South Hastings, was likewise passed upon with pleasure.

Following the adoption of the recent constitution further organization was effected in the adoption of committees defined in character, thus:

Finance, to assist the treasurer in securing funds by special drives or appeals, or tag days, and for directing any investments.

Employment, to act in conjunction with government agencies, and by independent endeavour towards seeking a job for every member, suitable to individual capabilities.

Entertainment and Social, for such as community get-to-gethers, sing-songs, games, contests, music and such life, refreshments, etc.

Athletic, to work along with regular organizations of this nature, and to promote recreation for all participating instead of just merely looking on or being entertained by others.

Educational, for holding public meetings, debates, open forums, question bureaus under prominent patronage.

Ladies' Auxiliary, in developing sewing circles, rummage sales and Dorcas Society efforts.

Chairmen for the foregoing committees were appointed and a selection of members to act was authorized under a Nominating Board covering each ward of the city as far as possible.

GENERAL MOTORS PRODUCTS

MONTHS ago we began sending you motorists of the Dominion the new third edition of "The Proving Ground of Public Opinion" —asking what you want in next year's cars. Through Canada's largest automobile dealer organization we are cocking another sensitive ear to "listen in". We do this because we believe that in building cars for the public, we should be guided by the public.

And by the thousands you are replying to our questionnaires, telling us the things you want in even better General Motors cars for 1935.

What will these cars be like? Let us answer that by asking another question. What are the outstanding features of 1934 motor cars that everywhere have swept the country?

Are not the first three: Knee-Action Wheels, No-Draft Ventilation and the streamlined, Fisher-body beauty of General Motors cars?

Just as these were outstanding triumphs in 1934, so you can count on it—General Motors will have something decidedly interesting to say in 1935.

And just as we produced Canada's sales-leading automobiles in this year—certain it is that our cars will win you again in the next.

For the reason that General Motors always works with an eye to the future and an ear to the ground—aware of your wishes well in advance and ably fitted to meet them.

Doctors and Hospital Matrons Inspect Bovril Factory

Recently, upon the invitation of Bovril, 6,000 doctors and 1,000 hospital matrons inspected their London (England) factory. The receptions occupied three days and doctors and matrons from every part of the country attended.

The whole processes of manufacture were shown to the visitors, from the large pans each holding the concentrated juices of 300 Oxen to the familiar bottles, jars and tins which leave the factory.

Hygiene is the keynote of the factory. While fine cattle are being tended on up-to-date ranches in Australia and Argentine, and hundreds of employees are turning them into concentrated nourishment, white-coated chemists are constantly testing and analysing in laboratories behind the scenes.

The matrons were welcomed by the Duchess of Atholl, and the Doctors by the Duke of Atholl. The Duke emphasized the modern, scientific methods by which Bovril is manufactured, and said that he had been most impressed during his recent visit to the firm's ranches and factory in the Argentine.

An interesting display of recent Medical films formed part of the programme.

ROSE-PINK FINGER NAILS INDICATE GOOD HEALTH

Just below the hard surface of your nails, the blood flows through tiny capillaries in the soft flesh. This is what gives colour to the transparent nails.

Now, the redness of the blood is due to the presence of millions of microscopic cells called red corpuscles. So when the finger nails are tinted a nice rosy pink it just means that the blood has plenty of red corpuscles. And when the blood has plenty of red corpuscles the person is generally in excellent health.

Quite often the nails are pale. This is a warning that all is not well, for the blood then lacks redness and this will bring on undesirable complaints which can become serious.

Not very long ago, there was formed a clinic or study class of forty persons whose blood was pale. They were, of course, more or less run down in health. So for thirty days all were given treatment with a blood-building remedy. Results were splendid! The patients looked better and felt better. They had more vigour . . . were brighter and stronger. Blood tests made by a competent authority before and after taking the remedy showed that the redness of the blood had been well increased by the thirty days' treatment.

Fortunately this remedy can be obtained at any drug store. It is quite well known for it was originated by a Canadian authority and called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. All who suspect that their blood is pale . . . all who feel run-down or lacking in vitality, should follow the example set by the clinic. Get on to the high road of health by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Full size box 50c.

BENNETT OPENS PIER AT HALIFAX

short review of the port's history, pointing out the construction of the ocean terminals had been undertaken first by Sir Robert L. Borden's government in 1913.

Tour of Terminals

Halifax, Dec. 10—(CP)— Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, accompanied by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, and Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, arose early today and at 9.30 began a tour of inspection of the Halifax ocean terminals. At noon they attended the formal opening of the 1,250-foot pier B., newest addition to the port facilities and described as the finest pier of its type on this side of the Atlantic.

Tonight the Prime Minister and his cabinet colleagues will address a public meeting presided over by Hon. G. S. Harrington, Opposition leader in the Nova Scotia Legislature and former Premier.

In the large gathering which welcomed the three distinguished visitors upon their arrival from Ottawa last night were newspapermen who seemed to believe the Prime Minister would deliver his key-note campaign speech here. Their suggestions that he would have something "very important" to say brought a smile and a quick reply:

"All my utterances are important. As newspapermen you know that."

Halifax Port Expansion

Completion of the new pier at Halifax marks the first expansion of large proportions in port equipment under the harbor commission form of port administration. The new pier increases the accommodation for ocean vessels from 17 to 21 berths, and is expected to prevent in the immediate future the inconvenience and delay in berthing of ships that have been experienced in the past few winters when diversion of shipping from Montreal to Halifax has followed the annual freeze-up of the St. Lawrence.

In stressing the national character of the port of Halifax, president Hetherington points out the fact that the new pier belongs to the people of Canada. Construction of the pier is not a Halifax achievement, he suggests.

"It is most appropriate," Mr. Hetherington observes, "to say to the people of Canada at this time, as I have said to Canadian visitors to this port: 'This is not our port, but your own.' That truth can not be too strongly emphasized. My fellow commissioners, O. P. Goucher and F. P. Merchant, join me in repeating that view of the port of Halifax in connection with the prospective opening of this new pier. It is not ours. It has been built by the government of Canada, for the use of the people of Canada in developing and maintaining Canada's commerce with the world. The value of this pier and all other equipment of the port lies entirely in the use that is made of the port in promoting the welfare and prosperity of the Dominion."

Future Assured

"We are merely servants of the people of Canada," Mr. Hetherington says further. "We consider it a great privilege to serve the nation in administering such a great national utility as the port of Halifax is. We believe it will be greater. We want to help as much as we can in making it greater. It is gratifying to have such a fine new pier to use to that end. But it is not ours. It belongs entirely to the people of Canada, as a whole, to be used always and solely in the national interest. We hope and trust that every Canadian will come to understand and appreciate fully the fact that the port of Halifax is their port. When they do, the mere administration of the port will be a simple and relatively easy task."

The new Halifax port unit has been named Pier "B". It is 1250 feet long. Extending into the harbor at right angles to the shore, it affords berthing accommodation for four ships, the water varying in depth from a minimum of 35 feet at low water at the two inner berths to 70 feet or more at the outer end of the pier.

Description of Pier

The pier is 300 feet wide. The two main one-storey transit sheds which parallel the docks are each 1100 feet long and 94.5 feet wide. The uncovered dockside working area consists of a strip of the pier 19 feet wide and the entire length of each of the main transit sheds. Single line railway tracks run the length of both strips, permitting transfer of freight directly from ship to railway cars and from cars to vessels. At the deepwater end of the pier is another one-storey transit shed, with a floor area of 73 feet by 80 feet, connecting the two main sheds. The open dockside working area of this shed is 25 feet wide.

Halfway down the main sheds are brick fireproof walls with wide doors to accommodate vehicular traffic which may move freely through the sheds.

Transit Shed

The transit shed construction is steel framework with galvanized iron sheathing for walls, in which a total of 168 lift doors are set, allowing free passage of freight to and from the sheds the entire length of all walls. The roof is of wood planking, covered with 5-ply roofing paper, tarred and gravelled. Close under the roof is installed the most modern type of automatic sprinkler system, through the 35,000 feet of piping of which a centrifugal pump forces sea water to 3349 nozzles.

Electric lighting supplies 157,000 candle-power of illumination for night work which can be carried on within the sheds and along the docks as conveniently as in daylight. In the 40,000 feet of wire conduits there are 90,000 feet of wiring.

With headroom of 15 feet, the transit sheds, containing a floor area of 229.120 square feet, provide storage capacity of 2,000,000 cubic feet. Flooring of all sheds is concrete 6 inches thick, gently sloping towards docks to provide drainage when required.

Telephone communication is provided for all transit sheds and for ships at berth.

Two Pairs of Tracks

An open area, 73 feet wide by 1,000 feet long, has been laid out between the two main transit sheds for railway and trucking services. In this area two lines of railway tracks with crossover tracks run alongside each of the sheds, while a concrete roadway has been laid half the length of the area from the land-end of the pier, entering each shed halfway down by means of a ramp.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 10.—A lot of holders were getting out of Distillers Seagrams today, alarmed, apparently by street rumors, but there were others ready to accumulate the stock and this afternoon the price was holding at a loss for the day of only one-eighth of a point.

The bulk of today's trading was in Distillers. Walkers common and Industrial Alcohol each recorded a small advance. The market's general tone was firm to strong. Loblaw "A" sold higher and pre changes in the Bank, Utility and Steel groups were on the up side.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Dec. 10.—Noranda was the outstanding strong spot in the morning list today, advancing $1.40 to $33.00 on quite active trading. Other Base Metal shares were slow and unchanged up till early afternoon and there was also little action in the senior gold group.

Some of the cheaper golds had narrow recessions during the morning but erased them this afternoon as the buying improved. Half a dozen penny shares also did better. Bagamac was taken up 3¾ cents to 9¾ cents where it turned back to 8½ cents. Brownlee, Gunnar and Paymaster sold at higher prices.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Dec. 10. — The stock market acted a little tired today and leading issues were inclined to move cautiously. At the same time few shares were subjected to undue pressure and scattered specialties again exemplified the selectivity of operations by pushing into higher ground. Trading was dull in the early hours. Bonds were narrow and quiet.

Narrow price changes prevailed in the Canadian section of the list. International Nickel was a trifle lower while Dome, McIntyre, Dominion Stores and Canadian Pacific were about even. On the curb. Lake Shore eased. Dominion funds held unchanged at 102 1-16 cents.

Shares of American Can, Briggs, International Business Machines and Wilson and Co. Preferred got up major fractions to more than a point to new year's tops. Homestake Mining gained 10 on a single transfer. The Utilities were slightly higher. A loss of some two points was suffered by Radio Preferred B.

BOARD ROOM GOSSIP

British American Oil

Declaration of 20c per share on common for final 1934 quarter bring total for year up to regular 80 cents per share. It is interesting to note that the year 1934 is the fifth consecutive year in which regular has been paid the present shares having been at this rate when split in 1930. In the interval from 1930 to 1934 no bonus disbursements have been made. However the company's record over the longer term is one of marked dividend tsability and in fact this has been particularly so during the past few years of difficult business conditions. Going back prior to 1930 and still expressing the situation in terms of present shares total payment in 1929 was 75 a share. In 1928, 62½ cents a share and in 1927 50 cents a share. In each of these three years and back as far as 1921 bonuses had been disbursed.

Gunnar Gold

Gunnar Gold's highest grade ore on 500 foot level now being proved. Former drifting was off the main vein. Sinking of a new shaft on No. 3 vein will be completed in February with the deepening of the main shaft starting January and two new levels will be opened. The property should be ready for production plans early next summer.

N.Y. GIANTS ARE FOOTBALL CHAMPS

Defeat Chicago Bears 30-13 in Last Quarter of Contest

New York, Dec. 10. — The New York Giants today ruled United States professional football, conquerors of the Chicago Bears in one of the most amazing recoveries ever made in the history of the gridiron to win the National League championship. The score was 30 to 13.

Completely out of the ball game with the exception of three points contributed by Ken Strong's 38-yard placement field goal, trailing by 10 to 3 the Giants came out for the second half shod in rubber-soled, canvas-topped basketball shoes.

These shoes were obtained at the suggestion of End Ray Flaherty, the Giants' captain, while the New Yorkers were being pushed around in the first half on the frozen polo grounds turf before 42 000 spectators.

Flaherty, who formerly coached Gonzaga, had previous experience with frozen turf, and the change from leather cleats to rubber soles altered the complexion of the battle quickly.

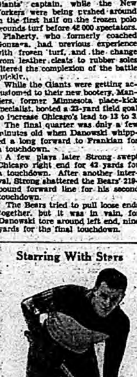
While the Giants were getting accustomed to their new bootery, Manders, former Minnesota place-kick specialist, booted a 23-yard field goal to increase Chicago's lead to 13 to 3.

The final quarter was only a few minutes old when Danowski whipped a long forward to Frankian for a touchdown.

A few plays later Strong swept Chicago right end for 42 yards for a touchdown. After another interval, Strong shattered the Bears' 219-pound forward line for his second touchdown.

The Bears tried to pull loose ends together, but it was in vain, for Danowski tore around left end, nine yards for the final touchdown.

Starring With Stars



ART CHAPMAN

After several seasons, toiling with Boston's burly Bruins, Art Chapman, veteran centre, was traded to New York Americans prior to the start of the 1934 National Hockey League grind. The tall pivot has turned in some sparkling work with Joe Simpson's amazing Amerks and has been a material factor in putting the starry-sweatered crew where they are in the league race.

Rangers Knock Off Leafs in Toronto Saturday but Lose To Black Hawks on Sunday

Maroons Push Way up in Standing Over The Weekend

EAGLES LOSE TWICE

Amerks And Canadiens Tie For First One This Season

By A. E. FULFORD

Tail-end teams in the National League were wondering today what they could do about schedules that force them to play two hockey games on successive nights and sandwich in long train rides as well. They found the stunt too tough over the week-end when three of them tried it and collected only three points in six games.

New York Rangers got a majority of them Saturday night as the Cook brothers and Frank Boucher flashed a bit of their old form and Lester Patrick's team beat Toronto Leafs 5-2. Canadiens took the rest when they played New York Americans 70 minutes to a 2-2 tie, the first in the 45 league games this season.

The game at Toronto and the long jump softened Rangers for Chicago Black Hawks and they were shutout 4-0 last night. Canadiens had been beaten by the same score Saturday night in Boston. St. Louis Eagles played Maroons in Montreal Saturday and took on Red Wings in Detroit. All they got for their efforts were back slaps for their improved showings. Maroons beat them 1-0 and Detroit took them 2-1 in overtime.

Prediction May Come True

Hooley Smith's prediction that the Maroons would overhaul Toronto by Christmas seemed far less fantastic today than it did a couple of weeks ago. Their win and Leafs' loss left Tommy Gorman's team just four points behind Toronto and they have two games in hand.

Earl Robinson's second period goal with Lionel Conacher assisting gave Maroons all they needed. A stout defense and close backchecking held off a determined Eagle offensive in the last period.

Leafs' defeat at Rangers' hands was only their second in 11 games this season and robbed them of the distinction of beating every team in the league in the first meetings of the season. The New Yorkers were greatly improved over their previous showings this season while Leafs lacked their usual well co-ordinated play.

Bun Cook matched Ken Doraty's first period goal with one in the second and Cecil Dillon evened up Bill Thoms' counter with one of his own. Then the Ranger veterans really got going and even, Ching Johnson who seldom scores more than twice a season, got a goal. Bill Cook made it 3-2 half way through the last period, Johnson increased the margin and Frank Boucher made it a perfect evening for the old line with the New Yorkers' fifth counter.

Thompson Ahead in Shutouts

Tiny Thompson got his fourth shutout of the season when Bruins beat Canadiens and he took over the league leadership in that regard. A driving attack and powerful defense won for the Bostonians. They were held scoreless until well into the second period when Charlie Sands started them off and three goals came in the third period, two from Marty Barry's stick and the other from Jack Shill's.

Howie Morenz scored his first goal of the season when Hawks beat Rangers. All the world champions' tallies came in the last period when Morenz, Johnny Gottselig, Doc Romnes and Bill Kendall all beat Andy Aitkenhead.

St. Louis held Detroit scoreless until the third period and when Ebbie Goodfellow got the first goal of the game Joe Lamb came back with the tying counter while Larry Aurie was off for tripping. Tommy Anderson scored from a face-off near the St. Louis nets after five minutes of overtime and then Herb Lewis poked in Goodfellow's rebound for the extra tally.

Two aging veterans, Harry Oliver and Rabbit McVeigh started Amerks off on the right foot, the former tallying on McVeigh's pass after two minutes of play. Joe Simpson's team held the Habitants off until late in the second when another veteran, Aurel Joliat, tied it up. Canadiens got the first goal in overtime, Jack Riley scoring on Desse Roch's pass and Eddie Burke evened it up again with less than a minute to play.

MAJOR LEAGUE MOGULS MEET

Considerable Business to be Discussed at Annual Parley

(By Herbert W. Barker)

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—Seeking batters, who can hit .340 and pitchers good for 20 victories, club owners and managers of the National and American Leagues were gathering today to buy, sell and trade and, incidentally to attend the annual Major League meetings.

There's not a club in either league that won't trade but the Chicago Cubs, Boston Red Sox, St. Louis Browns, and possibly the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants seem most likely to be active.

On the purely executive side of the meetings, the National League will install Ford Frick into the presidency vacated by John Arnold Heydler and then will decide whether or not Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston club, shall be permitted to operate a dog-racing plant in Braves field.

Will Harridge, President of the American League, has suggested that the majors clamp down on all post-season barnstorming tours because of the danger of injury to valuable players and something may be done about it. Jimmie Foxx suffered a concussion of the brain, when he was struck by a thrown ball in an exhibition game at Winnipeg shortly after the Major League season closed. The National League may elect to take some of the "rabbit" out of the ball, that circuit used last summer. It was alleged the 1934 pellet was so lively it was a menace to infielders' life and limbs.

There is a possibility, too, that the magnates will rule against "bonus" clauses in player's contracts. George Earnshaw of the Chicago White Sox had one of these last season, receiving a bonus of $500 for every game over 10 he won for the Pale Hose. The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds may plead for night baseball but probably won't get it.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

At regular intervals over the week end the Belleville arena attendants flooded the playing surface at the arena with the result an excellent foundation was established. Continued cold weather this week will assure skating within a week. Up at the curling rink the caretaker, having the jump on the arena icemakers, procured a solid ice-bed. Yesterday the bay was dotted with skaters who glided gracefully over the ice in the cove east of the government dock. The odd game of shinny was indulged in by the more mature lads with the result that the skating and hockey season was duly ushered in by the residents of Foster Ward, as is the custom each and every year. Even as early as Saturday afternoon a few venturesome youths tested the ice with caution. At any rate King Winter reigned supreme over the week-end with the result that winter sports were inaugurated for the season in Belleville.

Tomorrow evening the various managers of the clubs composing the Belleville City League will be handed their league certificates and then, dear sport fan, watch the mad rush for the door. Naturally it will be a case of "first come first served" with the team managers all scrambling to be first on the ground and grab off the better players. Before the managers are turned loose President Harry Rollins has a few words to say to the club skippers, 'tis rumored. Each club will be afforded twenty league certificates, but only twelve players will be carried by each team during championship play. This procedure means that there will be something like 48 players turned loose when the teams start down the stretch, as naturally each manager will sign the full quota of 20, later releasing the 8 found wanting. It has been suggested that these players to be cut loose be placed in a leave pool from which the less fortunate clubs and tail-enders may draft players as the season progresses. The idea is merely to protect the weaker teams. The draft system will be operated in a similar manner to that in vogue in major baseball, the last place club having first choice of the players in the pool, etc.

The 24 medical students who were deprived of their students' privileges at Queen's University some time ago for being connected with outside fraternities have been reinstated, following an unanimous vote of the Alma Mater Society executive at Queen's. The ban was lifted when conclusive proof was established that the erstwhile members had severel all connections with the barred organization. Earl McDonald, local student, was one to suffer, but will now be able to take his place on Queen's hockey team.

All afternoon Promoter Clem Allen and his assistants were preparing the ring at the "Y" for tonight's boxing bouts. Everything is in readiness and a gala night's sport is assured. The appearance of four Peterboro boxers on the card marks the first appearance of the Lift Lock boxers in Belleville in over two years. Each bout has been well matched. Eight bouts in all are included.

The latest word from Cobourg is to the effect that the Cobourgites have re-organized for the season and have consented to play in Group No. 1 of Intermediate "A" section along with Lindsay, Peterboro, Port Hope, Campbellford and Belleville. All around the circuit there seems to be an air of optimism, each club of the opinion that the proposed six-teamed loop is the best move ever made towards the rejuvenation of hockey in Central Ontario. The trouble in Cobourg proved to be a slight eruption within the inner circle of last year's club, the matter was ironed out and everything is rosy now. Even Lindsay, the club having the longest jaunts in the group, is looking forward to a banner year. They have a new municipal arena there and it will soon see its inaugural opening. Manager Eddie Thomas expects a call to Port Hope any day now when the schedule will be tendered by Convener Wm. Lowe of that town.

MISCELLANEOUS . . . The Peterboro sport scribe recently suggested a sports writers' association for eastern Ontario. He goes on to say that there is to be such an organization in western Ontario, but be eventually had to come out and admit the truth, "where's the jack" coming from? "You see, it is no secret that sport scribes never (and when we say NEVER we mean NEVER) have any money. The idea was an excellent one, but the where-with-all would prove its downfall. "You're welcome, palsie." . . . It is understood that the Ki-Y League will hold sway at the old curling rink this season. . . . Should make an ideal hockey rink for the kids, that is if they can control their shots and not break all the windows in the building. . . . Normie Jennings, erstwhile star outfielder and infielder for the old Toronto Bell Telephone ball club, was in town over the week-end. . . . Normie would like nothing better than to cavort about in a Belleville uniform, he says. . . . So what? . . .

LONDON TECS TIE BULLDOGS

Buffalo Has Chance to Reach Second Place in Standing

With the Syracuse Stars idle, the Buffalo Bisons have their chance to clinch second place in the International Hockey League tonight when they meet the Cleveland Falcons at Buffalo.

Buffalo and Syracuse are now tied for the second position with ten points each. On Saturday night Buffalo beat Syracuse 2-1 but the Stars maintained the tie last night by taking Cleveland into camp 10-4. On this record the Bisons might be picked to beat Cleveland tonight but anything can happen in hockey. Cleveland is only two points behind Buffalo in the league standing so that a victory for the Falcons will tighten the race considerably.

The Stars' "old fire brigade line" of Earl Miller, Jack Markle and Al Huggins which led the league in scoring last season poked in four of the ten goals which the Syracuse squad notched against Cleveland at Syracuse last night. Won by the Stars 10-4, the game set a league record for the number of goals scored. A fist fight enlivened the bitterly contested struggle with Reg Hamilton of Syracuse and Bud Cook of Cleveland both drawing major penalties for their aggressiveness.

It was another hard fought battle Saturday night at Fort Erie where Buffalo clung to second place by taking Syracuse 2-1. Goaler Phil Stein stopped a real drubbing for Syracuse by his brilliant net-minding. The Stars were awarded the first penalty shot on Fort Erie ice but failed to score on it.

In a game featured by its total lack of penalties, Cleveland defeated the Detroit Olympics 2-1 Saturday night. In the last minute of the game, Referee Mickey Ion, heeding a Cleveland protest, took what would have been a tieing goal from Buffalo. The Falcons claimed that Buffalo players lifted the net and shoved the puck underneath.

The third Saturday night game saw a 1-1 draw at London between the London Tecumsehs and the Windsor Bulldogs. One overtime period was played but neither side was able to add to its single marker. The teams fought desperately with Harold Starr, the husky Ottawan who was formerly with Montreal Maroons, beat the London defence several times and though he did not score, was the star for Windsor.

IS EXAMINED

IRVINE "ACE" BAILEY

centre ice star of Toronto Maple Leafs, until he crashed to the ice of the Boston Gardens after a collision with Defenceman Eddie Shore, in a game last winter. "Ace" accompanied the Leafs to Boston for an examination by Dr. Donald Munro, who brought him from the shadow of death by two delicate brain operations. Bailey, it is reported, has been suffering from the effects of the injury again since striking his head this winter and the Maple Leaf club insisted that he undergo the examination. Dr. Munro intimated that Bailey will never resume his hockey career. He is now employed as a salesman in Toronto and coaches the West Toronto junior amateurs.

Spite Wife

by Ann Forester

She caught her breath and turned from the window. Stan was fishing in a suitcase for cigarettes. Even through her forlornness Judy found herself noticing that narrow good looking head. The thick black hair ending in a clean cut line at his tanned neck. Something about the beauty of Stan's head that made her artistic fingers itch to draw it. Tall and slim and darkly handsome—and he was here—he was her own husband. Tremulous tenderness welling in her heart. Oh, she loved him so! Dear God, let him love her as much. Let them always be happy!

She was nervously alert to do the right thing; not to make a break and have Stan think she was crude, Stan, who had come from a wealthier family, Stan who had travelled and instinctively knew what was correct. Judy felt she would die of shame if Stan thought she was provincial.

She had spent the night on a Pullman before. There was that time of the State Convention of Librarians when Judy had gone up to the capital with Miss Briggs. But how different that had been! An upper berth. They had not gone into the diner but had eaten the sandwiches Miss Briggs had brought along in a shoe box and washed them down with gingerale bought from the train boy. They had not been able to get seats on the observation platform and all of the long hot afternoon, Judy had sat by a sunny window, hemmed in by the inert form of Miss Briggs who snored delicately under an initialed white lawn handkerchief.

But Mrs. Stanley Carter had a drawingroom. She had to stifle her delight in the extra couch, the small table, the enclosed washstand because Stan took it so as a matter of course.

Where Judy Denning had packed her own suitcase, now an obsequious redcap disposed of Mrs. Carter's grip before pocketing the tip Stan gave him. From beneath her lashes Judy tried to see the exact amount. She must know what to do in a similar case. Not for worlds would she ask Stan.

Before they went into the diner for dinner, she arranged her hair before the mirror. Her face was flushed, her eyes like stars. She knew she had never looked so pretty—knew she had never wanted to be so pretty.

"I feel like an eloper! Are you sure we didn't dream all that this afternoon, Stan? The wedding service and all."

"Oh, we're married right enough!" Curious emphasis in his words. "You're my wife!" Stan pulled her to him, holding her lips hard against his own for a moment, a strange, deliberate kiss.

After dinner they sat on the observation platform, watching the country reel back to the accompanying click of the rails. The fields drowsed in late sunlight. The shadows of the fleeing telegraph poles were long on the stubble.

Stan was restless as twilight closed down about the train. He had met a man back in the smoking car. Did Judy mind if he went back and chatted with him for a few minutes?

Her permission was nervously gay Of course not, darling! Go ahead—I'll go on back to the drawing room when I'm tired."

The train, rushing along into the unknown blackness, carrying her with it. Carrying her into a strange new life at breakneck speed. She was suddenly tremulous—morbid.

"Oh, thunder!" Judy scolded herself. "I'm acting like a silly convent girl. I won't be sentimental and ridiculous."

She went back through the lighted swaying aisles of the train to her own apartment. She undressed in a frenzy of haste, hoping Stan would not come in until she was in her berth. When she was under the covers she tried to read a magazine, nervously alert to the unfamiliar noises, an alertness which was gradually dulled by weariness. She snapped out the light and lay in rocking darkness until she fell asleep.

She woke with a jump, and knew she had been asleep for several hours. Cautiously she snapped on the berth light and looked at her wrist watch. Two thirty. And the berth above her was smooth and untouched. Stan had not come back.

BRIDAL NIGHT

CHAPTER THREE

Moments clicking off by the rails while Judy sat tense on the edge of her berth.

Clickety-click-click . . . Clickety click click. . .

All part of the strange nightmare.

Something had happened to Stan! But what could happen on the train? If he were suddenly ill they would notify her, wouldn't they? Or bring him in here? Be sensible! Of course he wasn't ill! He couldn't fall off the moving train—the vestibule doors between cars were kept locked, weren't they And there were always people on the observation platform. Oh, ridiculous! Why in the world would Stan want to jump off the train?

Why in the world would he want to stay away from his bride on his wedding night? asked a derisive voice deep within her.

Back and forth the argument raged in Judy's heart like excited voices. Anxiety, fear, anger shook her in turn.

She snatched up a negligee and started out of the drawing room, catching herself as her hand was on the knob. That was a stupid thing to do—running through the train like a wild woman looking for her husband. The truant bridegroom......People would howl about it. Stan would never forgive her.

Stan forgive her! Her pride caught that up. She would never forgive him! Frightening her like this! So this was being married! She'd prefer to stay single, thank you! Anger gripped her again, and Judy was glad. It was more bearable to be angry than to be frightened.

She started to ring for the porter but her hand fell away from the bell. She would look too absurd.

She rummaged in Stan's pigskin grip until she found a package of cigarettes. She lit one and was scornfully interested to see how her fingers trembled. Somehow the action comforted her. Made her feel poised and sophisticated. A woman of the world able to cope with unexpected situations, not a fluttery bride who could not locate her groom. She had smoked before, now and then, at parties sitting on the porch between dances, or going home in Ken Baker's car. She had never expected to be sitting here smoking furiously by herself while the train hurled her on into the night.

Something in Judy grew up that night. She was never quite so young again.

In the long panel of mirror she saw her own tense figure, strangely familiar in the new things she had bought for her trousseau. A slim girl with ruffled brown head and frightened grey-blue eyes. Mrs. Stanley Carter— in peach silk pajamas and a jade green silk negligee. Lavender wisps of smoke curling about her head. Stan's overcoat swaying on the hook behind her.

Ashes falling on the knee of the peach pajamas roused her. She crushed out the cigarette in the washstand. With sudden resolution she got into her berth and snapped off the light.

With the passing of the light her false poise slipped away from her. The new dignity born of her married name, the peach pajamas and the sophisticated cigarette deserted her. She was only a scared girl, lying there in the dark, being born to an unknown fate.

Clickety-click-click .. . clickety-click-click. . . .

Was this really Judy Denning rushing through the night like this, with wide eyes and heavy heart? Frightened and forlorn. Would she wake to find it all a dream? Wake to find herself in the narrow white bed in the Denning house and the sound of the rails only the drip of rain from the leaves of the old pear tree? Wake to the slow safe life of Summerfield?

But forlorn though she felt, Judy knew that she did not wish this. That old safe life was life without Stan. Even through her frightened anger, burned the wild new love for Stan.

Different already from the romantic infatuation she had known in this short month. From the first moment of meeting, Stan had swept her like a devastating fire. Phil Davis had introduced them —in memory now she saw Stan's tall figure arise, walk along the verande to meet her. She had lifted her eyes to his intent dark gaze and something wild and sweet had leaped in her heart. Life had grown suddenly vivid, filled with a deep throbbing meaning. She had laughed and talked gaily; too gaily, trying to drown the new tumultuous joy within her. Stan, dark and handsome and possessing the dangerous charm of novelty.

There had been a party at Rosamond Curley's. A party filled with a new and heady ecstasy for Judy. She had danced with Stan. He danced with her more than with any of the other girls. The others had teased her about him and she had loved it. Ken Baker had grown jealous and Judy had been cruelly glad—it made Stan's preference more marked. She had gone home with Stan instead of Ken. A night of stars and flowers. They had stood under the pear tree its blossoms falling about them in the faint night wind.

Lying here now in the berth, Judy relived that night of magic. She had lifted her head to say goodnight and found Stan watching her, eyes deep and compelling in the darkness.

"Going to be my girl, Judy? Going to be my girl while I'm in town?" His voice, stirring her with the laughing thrilling note it held.

She had been his girl. After that she had been coupled with him as a matter of course. She had quarrelled with Ken—almost quarreled with Rosamond, for Rosamond was jealous. Nothing mattered but Stan. Days at the library were merely intervals to dream through to reach the night. Evening brought Stan his dark vivid face, his charming smile. He utterly possessed her: there was but a single will between them and that was Stan's will.

"A mighty spoiled young man, Judy I'm here to tell you!" Aunt Hetty had said after the first not entirely amiable —meeting. And Rosamond Curley had added the spiteful truth "He acts as though he owns the earth! He's so handsome he's conceited. Believe me I wouldn't stand his high and mighty ways!"

From the depths of her joyful heart Judy had laughed at them. Laughed at caution. Nothing mattered—old friends—old standards, nothing but Stan.

There had been a glowing afternoon. She did not have to go to the library that day and . she and Stan had gone canoeing on the river. They were up at the old dam where the stream widened to a shallow pond. It was sunset. Willows, weeping willows dangling long frail branches over the water to meet their still reflections, so that the canoe seemed to float in a still rich, golden evening, a perfect moment caught and held from eternity.

Judy had been laughing and trailing her hand in the water. Stan's stillness had dawned upon her and she raised her head to encounter his dark eyes fastened on her gaze so deep so intent that the smile had frozen on her lips and her heart had seemed to swell with a sweet unbearable ecstasy.

He had told her that he had loved her that night. He had asked her to marry him—marry him immediately and go back home with him.

If she didn't say yes, he was going away. She would never see him again. Summerfield would be tame and dull. Life would be meaningless. A moment of tremulous decision and Judy unhesitatingly had flung over everything. Her old life—all the safe and quiet things went in the discard. Two days later she had married him.

Stan, whose dark gaze could possess her so utterly; Stan, charming and spoiled demanding noisy gaiety or sinking inexplicably into black moods—what did she know about him after all?

"A MAN IN HELL"

CHAPTER FOUR

—What did she know about Stan after all? The question seemed blazing at Judy in letters of fire out of the rocking blackness of the train drawing room.

After all, how much did she know about this handsome stranger whom she had married?

Phil Davis, alone of all Summerfield, had met Stan Carter before. Phil had known Stan at college. Phil said they had nicknamed Stan "The Duke' at the university, because of his lofty ways.

Judy's mind skimmed back over the meager information she possessed. Stan was the youngest son of a wealthy Californian family. He had told her a little about his relatives—but very little. His father was dead, she knew. Stan lived with his widowed mother and two sisters. There was an old grandmother—his father's mother. There was a half-brother too, the son of Stan's father by a former marriage. Stan spoke of him as "Nick" and from the way he spoke, Judy knew that Stan did not like him. They lived together in a big house in Lockwood, a suburb of San Francisco.

Tarzan caught a few words spoken in native dialect. "Those Waziri fought like devils," said one fellow, "but we killed them all. When we were through, our captain killed the woman. Then he laughed."

Tarzan, grim and terrible, crouched in the shadows. Presently the soldier who had spoken got up and strolled away. Tarzan followed, and in the shadows of some bushes overtook his quarry.

There was no sound as the man-beast sprang upon the back of his prey. Tarzan dragged his victim into the bushes' concealment. "Make no sound," he cautioned in the man's own tribal dialect.

"What is the name of the officer who killed the woman at the bungalow where you fought with the Waziri?" demanded Tarzan, fiercely. "Karzenoff—Ivan Karzenoff," gasped the half-strangled black.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was around at the firehouse tawking to Mr. Riley the hooken ladder driver, and I said, Do you always have to anser every alarm whether you feel like it or not and no matter how little the fire is, Mr. Riley?

I'm glad you asked me that, because it just reminds me of the alarms that used to come in on account of fires in old man MacAndrew's back yard, Mr. Riley said. Old MacAndrew was the stingest man in town and it was a peculiar thing but these fires was never in his house but always in his back yard, just a buntch of old newspapers or straw berning in the back yard, It would of been good practice for us and we wouldn't of minded ,but these alarms always came in early on very cold mornings before we'd got up or while we were having a nice cosy game of pennuckle around the stove, Mr. Riley said.

And you had to go anyways? I said, and he said, Sure that's the point, a fireman's ferst duty is to anser an alarm irregardless of where, how or whatever, so we were just like putty in old MacAndrew's hands. One cold Sunday morning we extinguished some berning rubbish in MacAndrew's back yard as usual, and as luck would have it another alarm took us passed his house that same afternoon, and low and behold there was MacAndrew's 5 kids ice skating on the frozen water that we'd sprayed there that morning. So that's how we found out about his little game, Mr. Riley said.

And did he send in any more alarms after that? I said, and Mr. Riley said, One more, but we were reddy for him. We had a special gadget fixed up on the end of our hoses so the water would have to pass through a keg of salt. In other werds it terned into salt waters and of course wouldn't freeze, and not ony that but when it dried it left a lot of messy salt in MacAndrew's yard, and we never heard from him again. Well, come and see me agein some time, Mr. Riley said.

Meening the end of the subjeck.

LEVEL CROSSINGS CLAIM TWO LIVES OVER WEEKEND

One Drowned, While Looking For Work Near Hamilton Bay

BURNED WITH ACID

Worker in Factory is Showered With Tannic Acid

Road mishaps, level crossing crashes and other accidents claimed six lives in Ontario during the weekend. Two lives were lost in the level crossing tragedies.

N. J. Grosse, 57, of Toronto, a salesman, was killed when his auto collided with another in Forest Hill, Toronto suburb. An inquest will be held Dec. 19. Fred McMillan, 51, of Stamford township was killed when he fell from a railway car in Stamford. His body was found under the car and it was believed he had been dead for about sixteen hours before his body was discovered.

When the truck in which he was riding was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway train at a crossing near Belmont station, Ernest Jenkins, 43, hardware merchant of Belmont was fatally injured. He died three hours after the accident. Norman Lucks, 32, and William Stephenson, 43, also of Belmont, were injured, Lucks believed to have received a fractured skull and Stephenson injuries to his chest and spine. An inquest into Jenkins' death will be held Tuesday evening.

J. K. Booth, 34, of Windsor, was the other level crossing victim. He was killed when the auto he was riding in was struck by a Canadian National Railways gas-electric car near Goderich. A. W. Grieves of London, also in the car, was critically injured.

Drowning claimed the life of Robert Miller, 50, of Hamilton. His body was found in Hamilton bay and he is believed to have fallen into the water while seeking work unloading boats. Two youths said they had heard cries for help and dragging operations recovered Miller's body.

Sixth victim was Norval G. Peavoy, 40, who died at London from tannic acid burns. He was an employe of a tannery and was burned when a container, used in tanning, overturned, showering him with acid. An inquest will be held.

Early Gifts by Members-elect

St. Thomas, Dec. 10—Wilson H. Mills, member-elect for the Federal riding of Elgin, believes in mailing his Christmas gifts early. He has announced that he had mailed a hamper of choice McIntosh red apples to Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Premier of Canada. Mr. Mills has learned that it costs only 67 cents to send a bushel of apples to Ottawa, so he is planning to have some on hand continually while the House of Commons is in session.

YUGOSLAVIA MAY "ACT ON HER OWN"

Possibility of Settlement Being Taken From Genevas Hand

(By Joseph E. Sharkey)

Geneva, Dec. 10 (AP)—Hungarian sources claimed today that Yugoslavia, backed by her fellow-members of the Little Entente, has threatened to "act on her own" in the crisis with Hungary.

Unless Belgrade obtains satisfaction here, these sources said, the Yugoslavs intend to take the matter from Geneva's hands.

Before the League is Yugoslavia's charge that Hungary is responsible for the assassination of King Alexander at Marseille two months ago because she harbored Terrorists.

This claim is supported by Rumania and Czechoslovakia, the other members of the Entente, which is traditionally backed by France. Italy has sided with Hungary in the incident.

Major European powers belonging to the League of Nations, principally Great Britain, France and Italy, worked feverishly for a peaceful solution and early this morning announced a compromise formula had been agreed upon.

This proposal was to be presented to Hungary and the Little Entente by Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy Seal. Should they approve it another threat to European peace will have been averted.

Acts as "Go-Betweens"

Acting as "go-betweens" for Yugoslavia were Pierre Laval, French Foreign Minister, and Eduard Benes, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, while Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian delegate to the League, represented Hungary.

These diplomats conferred for many hours last night in an effort to reach a solution of the delicate Central European crisis.

A session of the Council of the League, because of the tension, was postponed from this morning until the afternoon.

A Little Entente spokesman decried threats, which Hungarian sources said had been made but admitted public opinion in Yugoslavia was aroused and asserted this might force the government to act unless the council's action was satisfactory.

Hungary has filed a formal answer with the League, denying all of Yugoslavia's charges.

GREAT INTEREST IN COMING SPEECH

Believe Premier at Halifax Will Disclose Plan of Government

Ottawa, Dec. 10 (CP)—Great interest attaches to the speech Premier R. B. Bennett is to make at Halifax today. With the final session of Parliament rapidly approaching and the general election to follow every utterance of the Prime Minister and other political leaders is closely scanned by the politically-minded.

While it is unlikely the government will disclose anything like the full import of its appeal to the electors for some months yet Mr. Bennett's speech at Brockville last week was taken as an indication the Empire trade agreements would be a strong Conservative talking-point.

As Mr. Bennett's Halifax visit comes right on the heels of the announcement of the report of the Nova Scotia Royal Commission on economic conditions in the province as affected by Federal Government policies it is possible he may elaborate on some of the steps his Government has taken which he considers beneficial to the Maritime Provinces.

The commission found the present Federal Government subsidy to Nova Scotia "seriously inadequate" and another Royal Commission is now studying the whole question of Maritime Province subsidies. On the subsidy question the announcement of Minister of National Defence Grote Stirling in Vancouver that British Columbia's subsidy would be increased may encourage the provinces of New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia to look for early action on their claims.

Good Tidings Effects Cure For Aged Man

St. Thomas, Ont., Dec. 10.—How a 75-year-old man, paralysed down his right side, leaped from his sick-bed to dance with joy at the cabled announcement of his son's homecoming after a thirty year absence was related today in a letter received here from far-off Beirut, Syria.

Abosada Cayzis, father of Isaac and Nicholas Cassis, wholesale and retail fruit merchants here, is the man on whom the joyful news that he would see his son again is said to have worked this marvellous cure. Cassis, according to the letter, had been in bed six months, paralysed as a result of a blow on the head inflicted by rbobers.

The cablegram was sent by the son, Isaac, who with his wife left here several weeks ago on a long deferred visit home. In a letter from Beirut, Isaac's sister said that the septuagenarian invalid sat up in bed, read the cable twice, then jumped up and danced. The cure was apparently complete for, according to the letter, Cassis was able to go to the station and welcome his son and daughter-in-law.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"

Makes Great Film Featuring Pauline Lord in Debut

With Pauline Lord, one of America's foremost stage actresses, in the title role and W. C. Fields and ZaSu Pitts in the other principal featured roles, Paramount's delightful picturization of the immortal "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch", came to the Belle Theatre, Saturday. It brings to the lovers of both the story and the play an extraordinary convincing and moving filmization of the tale, through the medium of competent acting by a host of talented players and the excellent direction of Norman Taurog.

After having resisted the lures of the motion picture for years, Miss Lord finally capitulated for the opportunity of playing "Mrs. Wiggs" and plays the quaint, motherly and whimsical character with such charm and deftness that we venture to predict that she will soon be in the forefront of Hollywood's star character players.

Fields Scores Triumph

W. C. Fields, fresh from his recent starring triumphs, is teamed with ZaSu Pitts. These two, as the maiden lady and the mail-order answer to her prayer for a husband provide the film with its uproarious comedy.

But that is not the end of good things. There are five of Hollywood's juvenile stars cast in the roles of "Mrs. Wiggs" numerous progeny, including Jimmie Butler and George Breakston, and little Girginia Weidler as the unforgetable child who threatens to hold her breath until she gets black in the face.

The story is too well known to everyone to demand even a brief synopsis here, but let us warn you to prepare for side-splitting laughter when the Wiggses dress up to go to the theatre, and for genuine tears at the moving scene of Jimmy's death.

Romantic Interest

Evelyn Venable as "Miss Lucy" and Kent Taylor as "Mister Bob" contribute youthful charm and romance to the picture, while Charles Middleton and Donald Meek are excellent in subordinated roles.

The production settings, particularly the views of "The Cabbage Patch" are an amazingly faithful reproduction of the Western United States shanty settlements, and credit for the excellent photographical detail and movement is due Charles Lang.

Director Norman Taurog who has become famous for his work on pictures featuring children and for his recent musical drama, exposes another phase of his unusually versatile talents, by his sure, capable and effective direction of this charming folk drama.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in their funniest comedy, "Them Thar Hills", a very interesting Belle News of the World and a novel Screen Oddity precede the feature attraction.

"Chained" Perfect Film

The co-starring appearance of Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in a photoplay is always an occasion of great delight for all film fans. The countless admirers of this magnetic duo will not be let down in their latest picture. "Chained", coming to the Belle Wednesday for the picture is by far the best in which either the vivid Miss Crawford or Gable has appeared and furnishes sparkling entertainment from its opening reel to its final fade-out.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE AGE OF INNOCENCE"

Accredited by Critics an Outstanding Production of the Year

With Irene Dunne and John Boles in the leading roles Edith Wharton's famous novel "The Age of Innocence" come to the screen as an emotional romance which is said to be one of extraordinary poignance and beauty.

Acclaimed as one of the real classics of literature the story treats of the convention-ridden Mid-Victorian era and has as its central characters members of blue-blooded society. A best seller, the novel was awarded the Pulitzer Prize and received a storm of critical applause. It was later adapted for the stage and enjoyed a brilliant run on Broadway.

As produced by RKO-Radio Pictures, the film is said to capture the spirit and beauty of the book authentically, and to bring out in powerful fashion those qualities which have made the story one of the most widely discussed of the generation.

Considered by cinema circles as a boon to the dramatic and artistic qualities of the story is the fact that Philip Moeller, production director of the New York Theatre Guild, directed it. Included in the strong cast supporting Miss Dunne and Boles are five noted players from the Guild—Helen Westley, a founder member and managing director of the organization; Lionel Atwill, Laura Hope Crews, Herbert Yost and Edith Van Cleve.

Blonde Julie Haydon is seen as the third member of the triangle around which the romantic complications of the picture revolve. She is said to have an intriguing role as a typical sweet clinging vine product "The Age of Innocence".

The whole theme is said to be handled sympathetically; and against the superficial propriety of the era, the fine ideals and unswerving loyalties which also thrived in the period are extolled.

In settings and costumes, the film is said to be one of striking color and glamor. New York of the period is faithfully pictured in background, manners and wardrobe. Months of research were involved in the planning of the settings and costumes and in the assembling of properties. Especially interesting is said to be the set reproduction of the Metropolitan Museum of Art when, as a young institution, its trustees were daringly predicting that same day it "would becomes a most important agent in developing a taste and knowledge of art in this community."

In faithfully presenting a period and phase of American life as colorful as that shown in "Little Women" and in bringing to life on the screen a fiction classic replete with romance and drama, "The Age of Innocence" is accredited by critics as one of the outstanding productions of the year.

"The Age of Innocence" is a spirited masterpiece of romance enacted by a cast of great repute. It's a story you'll love and enjoy. On the same bill and at each performance there will be shown a Vitaphone Broadway comedy in Technicolour "Not Tonight Josephine" as well as a beautiful British Miniature entitled "Engardine Memories".

"Du Barry" Dinnerware tonight and Tuesday. Teacups will be given this week. Complete shows at 2.30 7.15, and 9.10.

NEED POPULATION IN THE NORTH

Looks at Skyline

The first thing he did, after reaching his hotel, was to take a Staten Island ferryboat and have a look at New York's skyline from the water. The second was to ride in the subway, clinging to a strap politely for the benefit of the photographers even though the seat in front of him was empty.

Later, to more than 50 newspaper questioners, Dr. Dafoe said the quintuplets are "doing very well, though it's pretty cold up there.

"They're well babies and happy babies," he said. "Pretty too. They're really handsome.

"They have increased their total weight from nine pounds and 12 ounces a week after birth to 58 or 59 pounds. They are about normal weight now. They can raise themselves and wiggle around now, they have quite a lot of hair, and their eyes are beginning to turn from grey to brown.

"Under present conditions, they have a good chance for a long life."

He admitted, however, that the "tumorous condition" of the smallest baby, Marie, is not yet cured.

Climate Healthy

Dr. Dafoe disclosed that it costs about $500 a month to maintain the quintuplets, and "we have to have money." The Red Cross and the Ontario Government have been bearing the expense thus far, but the doctor admitted "we're trying to get them on a self-sustaining basis" by selling picture rights and endorsements of articles they really use.

"Were you surprised to find five children?" Dr. Dafoe was asked.

"I thought I had a bad dream or something," he answered with a twinkle. "It seemed unreal. I'd delivered another baby that night and had just gotten home when I was called up there."

Mrs. Dionne, he said, was unconscious when the quintuplets were born but exclaimed "Holy Mary!" when told the news.

Dr. Dafoe described the rigorous Canadian climate as "the healthiest in the world—very cold but very steady." He praised the French-Canadians as "good, strong stock—the most virile people on the American continent."

"What do you think of birth control?" he was asked.

The doctor snorted gently.

No Night Clubs in North

"Nothing to say on that."

A woman questioner asked: "Do you think modern mothers spend too much time in night clubs?".

"Don't know anything about it," he answered smiling. "We don't have them up north. All we do is have big families."

While the doctor was having his ferry ride, the mate, Edward Bourne, rushed up.

"I have 10 children of my own," he exclaimed, "and how glad they will be to hear I met you."

The doctor beamed at the newsmen and women shadowing him. "I find New York people very kind" he said.

When a clamor went up for his opinion of the much-talked-of skyline, he offered:

"Wonderful. Just what I thought it would be."

Of the subway: "I think it's very convenient."

He was always very quiet, never ruffled, even by the shrieking sirens of the two motorcycle policemen who carved a way for his big sedan when he was travelling by auto.

South Hastings Liberals Elect Officers and Adopt Constitution at Rally

Spirited Address is Delivered by Wm. A. Fraser, M.P.

AT LEAST 2 IN FIELD

Convention to Select a Candidate to be Held Soon

In direct contrast to the stormy scenes in the Liberal club rooms but a few moments before was the meeting in the auditorium of the city hall on Monday afternoon where hundreds of Liberals of this city and throughout the riding of South Hastings gathered after an adjournment had been made above, to complete the reorganization of the ranks and prepare for a nomination to select a federal representative for the coming election.

Officers were here named to direct affairs of the riding for the coming year, a date was tentatively set for nomination day and the annual meeting of the organization and the statement of two well known residents of the riding that they would contest the nomination were given for the first time. Mayor George O. Tice of this city and Mayor Harry Cory of Trenton announced definitely at the meeting they were in the field. Mr. Charles Cameron of this city, a third candidate prominently mentioned as well as Mr. P. C. MacLaurin have not yet announced their intention of accepting the nomination. It is expected that nomination day will be held in this city within the next five weeks.

Elect Officers

Election of officers which immediately followed the opening of the meeting, with Mr. Peter MacLaren in the chair resulted in the following being named to guide the destinies of the Liberals of South Hastings for the coming year.

President—Edward Roach, Deseronto.

Vice-president—Dr. John Farley, Trenton.

Second vice-presidents — Mrs. (Col.) Roscoe Vanderwater, Sidney; Mrs. Stewart Dies, Shannonville.

Secretary-treasurer—A. H. Ketcheson, Belleville.

President Accepts

The new president's remarks were brief following his acceptance of the chair from Mr. MacLaren. "I may not fill the bill as well as my predecessor in office has done, but you have this guarantee that I will do my best and will be working at all times for the good of the party," he told his audience amid cheers and handclapping.

Dr. Jack Farley, vice-president, stated that he was not a politician, but that he was intensely interested in the Liberal cause and gave them assurance that everything he could do to assist the nominated candi-

Meeting at Liberal Club Rooms is Adjourned Early

GO TO CITY HALL

Speakers Appeal For Unified Support of All Liberals

One of the stormiest meetings in the records of the riding of South Hastings, marked by the bitterness and clashing of opposing factions which flared in acrimonious verbal battle and assumed for a time the threat of personal fistic encounters between shouting individuals who thronged the rooms and corridors, broke up in disorder at the Belleville Liberal club rooms on Front Street late yesterday afternoon shortly after it had opened and was resumed by the majority in the city hall auditorium, where, at one of the most orderly meetings yet held a complete reorganization of the Liberal forces of South Hastings was made.

The meeting held in the Belleville Liberal rooms had previously been advertised as the "South Hastings Liberal Association Annual Meeting and Convention." Speakers advertised to attend were the Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, M.P.P.; W. A. Fraser, M.P., and J. J. Duffus, president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association.

A second body of Liberals of the city and riding, who had charged previously on an open platform that the meeting was to be held solely for the purpose of "pushing through a hand-picked candidate of their own choosing without consulting the wishes of the majority" were on hand to see and request that the convention and meeting be held in the city hall or some other place "where all could see what was going on, and have a hand in the matter." It was charged, also, that the meeting was entirely "unofficial."

Speakers Hardly Heard

The forced adjournment was not made, however, until a dozen or more speakers for both sides had roared themselves hoarse trying to make themselves heard above the din outside and within the hall and the pages of the note book belonging to a reporter on the Ontario Intelligencer had been ripped from a pad in front of him, torn into shreds and flung into a corner by the fiery leader, W. A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland, who mounted the platform time and again to urge the meeting to adjourn and "meet in the open."

Scores thronged the walks outside along Front Street and scores more fought to gain admittance through the door which was closely guarded by a hefty guard. The

League Council Meets on Jan. 11

Geneva, Dec. 11 (AP)— The League of Nations Council today advanced the date for the opening of its January session to enable it to be ready to function before and during the Saar plebiscite.

After setting Jan. 12 as the date the secret session would open, the council members changed their minds and decided to assemble Jan. 11.

The plebiscite will be held Jan. 12. Plans progressed for dispatch of the international force to patrol the Saar territory in connection with the voting. An army of 3,300 men was contemplated to be composed of 1,500 British Tommies — two battalions at peace-time strength—1,300 Italian Carabinieri, 200 Dutch Marines and 250 Swedish Royal Guardsmen.

MOTORIST RESCUED

Chatham, Ont., Dec. 11.—(CP)—Pinned beneath the wreckage of a car which skidded into the ditch five miles west of Chatham last night George Wing of this city was extricated from his perilous position just as the wreckage took fire.

Bert Mann and Joe Keys of Raleigh effected the rescue and took Wing to St. Joseph's hospital, where he was treated for bruises and lacerations.

Wing was a passenger in a coupe driven by Frank Brur of Walkerville, who, while attempting to pass another car skidded his machine into the ditch where it rolled over, Brur escaped injury.

BLUE, BLUE GREEN RAYS BEND PLANTS

Discovery of Two Light Rays Announced by Institute

(By F. B. Colton)
(Associated Press Science Writer)

Washington Dec. 11.—(AP) — The discovery of two new rays from the sun which make plants bend toward the light was announced today by the Smithsonian Institution.

These light rays one blue and the other blue-green have the mysterious power of rendering inactive the growth-stimulating substance of plants sometimes known as "Auxin". By stopping growth on one side of a plant's stem these rays and some others cause the plant to bend.

If certain conditions should change it is conceivable that the rays might make life on earth impossible by stopping all plant growth."

The discovery says the Smithsonian is "of extreme importance in the whole scheme of things since the life of the animal world, (including man) depends upon plant growth".

It is the work of Dr. Earl S. Johnston of the Institution's division of radiation and organisms.

The rays probably stunt growth by breaking up the atoms of the growth-stimulating substance, Dr. Johnston believes.

VISITS NIGHT CLUB

"Having Swell Time" Message Sent Back to Friends in Callander

By KEN CLARK

New York, Dec. 11.—"I haven't anything to say to the people of Callander except that I'm having a swell time," said Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe after seeing the undressed ladies at the Club Paradise last night.

The doctor who delivered the Dionne quintuplets and thus leaped to world fame described his impressions of the great wicked city.

Meantime Walter Winchell, the well known columnist, was holding court in a corner of the club. He said, "I think Dr. Dafoe is the most wonderful man I have ever seen."

Dr. Dafoe, who admitted that, when the quintuplets arrived he was totally unaware of the situation and had felt that it was like "a bad dream", was too interested in his surroundings to be aware of Winchell's sentiments.

He was, like a good doctor, about to go home, which in this case was the Ritz Carlton Hotel, at 1:30 in the morning. He was having "a swell" time.

Earlier in the evening Dr. Dafoe under a glaring white light, had made his speech, the first bit of exhibitionism which he had done in

WOULD DISMISS MEN USING INFLUENCE

Civil Servants Press Amendment In Regulations

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (CP)—Immediate dismissal of any member of the Government Service who seeks advancement through influence has been urged upon Prime Minister R. B. Bennett by the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada. Fred Knowles, National General Secretary of the organization has written to Mr. Bennett asking that a clause in Civil Service Regulations making employees who seek advancement through influence liable to dismissal, be enforced.

In his reply to this communication the Prime Minister expressed the view that permanent employees apparently are not subject to such dismissal. He made the following comment:

"The private firm can always release the incompetent or unwilling servant, whereas the Crown is apparently bound to continue the services of their employees, whether they are unsatisfactory or not, after they have become permanent."

HORRORS RELATED IN SEIZED NOTES

Mystery of Barren Isle Deaths Said to Be Solved

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 11 (AP)—A story of horror, perhaps removing the final mystery from the strange death of three men on barren Marchena Island off the coast of Ecuador, is in the hands of the United States Government today.

The story is told in letters found near two bodies on the Island, Nov. 17, by the American Tuna Clipper Santa Amaro. They were seized by United States Customs guards, presumably acting on behalf of the Government of Ecuador, to which Marchena and the other Galapagos Islands belong.

Captain William Borthen of the Santa Amaro said he had been ordered not to discuss the letters.

"But let me tell you," he exclaimed, "things happened on Charles Island that are too horrible for us to imagine."

And Manuel Rodriguez, weather-beaten fishing captain of the tuna clipper, added:

Can't Sleep For Horrors

"Man, I've lain awake nights dreaming of the horrors told in those letters and what must have gone on down there.

Charles, one of the Galapagos Group is the island from which Rudolph Lorenz and Trygve Nuggrud were reported to have been banished without food or water by Baroness Eloise Bosquet Von Wagner Wehborn, the "mad empress of the Galapagos", who now is missing.

The bodies found on barren Marchena Island were identified as those of Lorenz and Nuggrud by Capt. G. Allan Hancock, Los Angeles patron of science who wirelessed the story of the banishment after his recent arrival in the islands. The body of a negro boy who left Charles Island with the pair has not been found.

Captain Hancock also hinted of a horrible tragedy on Charles Island.

The Premier proved to be a slightly better trundler, winning over the Conservative leader by a score of 117-92 Only one string was bowled.

40-YEAR-OLDS ONLY SOLDIERS

Dr. Levinstein Says Economy Should Keep Youth on Home Front

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(CP)—A special London cable to the New York Herald Tribune today reports that Dr. Herbert Levinstein, a distinguished scientist and the President of the Institution of Chemical engineers, believes only men over 40 should be sent to war.

"I think the loss of our finest young men in battle is biologically more serious than would be the loss of a equal number of middle-aged or elderly civilians of either sex," Dr. Levinstein declared in the course of an address delivered at Bristol, England.

"If the employment of young men in war were prohibited, as the employment of young people in various dangerous occupations already is prohibited we should be acting with race-conscious logic" the speaker continued.

"In war youth should take control of the home front and their elders should take the danger posts. A middle-aged man can drive a tank as well as anybody. The oldest classes would drive the fastest mechanized units. Graybeards would constitute the storm troops."

THE WEATHER

NEW LEGISLATION

Promises Unemployment Insurance Will be Part of Program

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, December 11 (CCP)—A whole-hearted defence of his Government's record and a promise of future Progressive policies were on the record today as Prime Minister R. B. Bennett's answer to the critics who claim the Conservative Party has failed to measure up to the standard it set for itself in the election campaign of four years ago.

They stood as the Prime Minister's challenge to the Liberal Opposition for the election battle, that will come next year. In that fight, he indicated unmistakeably in an address last night, the record of trade expansion, which his Government claims to have achieved through the Ottawa Empire Trade agreements will play an important part.

And by the time voting day rolls around, he declared before a public theatre meeting, his Government will have added unemployment insurance to its Legislative record and will have introduced "necessary" legislation. Based on the findings of the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying.

On the basis of these and other "forward-looking" measures. Mr. Bennett asked the support of the

SNOW IS NEEDED TO PERFECT SOIL

Only snow is needed to make the fall a perfect one for farmers throughout the district, it was reported at the office of Mr. Wm. Michael, Dominion Seed Inspector, this morning.

The seed already planted is well bedded and the land has been well saturated by the recent rains. A good covering of snow is all that is needed," stated Mr. Michael.

According to the office, ninety-five per cent of the fall plowing throughout the central district has been completed.

Gospel Hymn Quelled Riot Principal Howard Tells Rotary

Head of Albert College Tells of Religion as World Force

GRADUATES ABROAD

International Service stressing peace on earth and good fellowship among men, was the keynote of the Rotary meeting Monday with Rev. Bert Howard as guest speaker. This gentleman is the new principal of Albert College, succeeding Rev. Chas. Bishop, and his first appearance before an audience of Rotarians created a very favorable impression. He has a pleasing personality and his life experience would seem to fit him admirably for the important position he has assumed. Born in Glasgow, a Scot of the Scots, he rose to man's estate to enter the Imperial Army serving six years in this great school of experience. Coming to Canada he took a course at the Ontario Agricultural College before going West to take up farming. Mission work attracted him in the West and he did valuable work in the newly settled districts, afterwards taking a theological course at Winnipeg and being ordained a minister of the gospel. During the war his services were utilised training recruits for overseas.

Taking for his subject international goodwill, in keeping with the Rotary calendar, Rev. Mr. Howard told of the greatest force for international peace and good will in the world today, illustrating his remarks by a story of his own experiences in the early days of the war. He had undertaken mission work among the construction camps and was sent to spy out the land for mission headquarters. He donned overalls and took a position as laborer at a dollar a day and "found." He was sent to a camp in the Rocky Mountains where he was the only English speaking man in a camp of 140 or more, Russians, Germans, and other nationalities. The war had been progressing a month and a half when the first word of it reached the camp in belated newspapers and letters. Immediately there was a stir in the camp, a new note, a low growl increasing into a roar of human hate, crescendoing into a lively riot where shovels, picks and clubs were wielded vigorously and casualties began to accumulate. The battle waged furiously until the arrival of a sergeant of the Northwest Mounted Police and a young man, representative of the church of Christ.

After the Battle

A truce was declared, and the mimic war halted temporarily while wounds were patched and first aid given the wounded who could not care for themselves. Knowing that he couldn't hold them alone the Mountie left the situation in the hands of the young missionary and raced away on a gasoline car to seek reinforcements in Calgary and a doctor. With the departure of the Mountie the war hate flamed anew and the riot was about to start in worse than ever when the young missionary started a hymn tune going and soon all joined in, each in his own language, but all singing the same tune. The one language which is universal in hymns of praise, thanksgiving and peace. The strains of Nearer My God to Thee succeeded the curses which had filled the forest aisles shortly before and the sound of strife and tumult was succeeded by the sound of hymns sung in many languages, but one tune, and a great peace filled the air.

The Mountie arrived back with reinforcements and a doctor and walked into a scene which surprised him. "My God, what a let down," said he. "I came to quell a riot, not to attend a church service."

Hymn Quells Riot

And so the riot which promised bloodshed, injury and death ended in a hymn of praise to the Universal Father looking down upon a strange new Brotherhood of Man.

Pursuing his theme that the greatest force for peace and good will in the world today is real religion, the speaker pointed out the power for good that Albert College had achieved in the world. Graduates have gone to all parts of the world, India, Africa, Japan and the Isles of the sea, all with the message of good will and good fellowship and everywhere they had been a power for good, for international good will and fellowship.

Being close to something which is really big tends to obscure its bigness, intimated the speaker, who said that Belleville folk probably looked with pride on the great universities of the cities and failed to grasp just what a wonderful power an institution in their own city has been in the past and will increasingly be in the future. Graduates of Albert College had rendered distinguished service for God and humanity in various parts of the world and many benefitted had thanked God for such an institution away off there in Belleville kept going by the loyalty of citizens of Belleville and the generosity of friends of Albert far and near.

Good Will Ambassadors

Emissaries of good will graduates of Albert had gone to all corners of the world carrying a message of peace and good fellowship with them and Belleville citizens could well be proud of such an institution where young men who had missed out on their first start toward an education could begin again and attain the knowledge to make them more useful members of society.

Rev. Mr. Howard was introduced by Harry Ackerman, and Rotary appreciation was voiced by Joe Shortt and President Jamieson Bone.

Preceding the main address a three minute talk was given by Col. David Barragar on the saga of Canadian wheat, a thrilling story of how Canada came to supply the wheat kings of the world as the result of a Scot's zeal and determination aided by hardy Scotch wheat imported for the purpose, also another wheat importation from India—all the result of an idea germinated on a farm near Peterboro and blossoming into the world famous Marquis, Garnet and other hardy species of wheat which have made the Canadian Northwest famous.

IMPERIALS JOIN UNITED VETERANS

Will Meet in Memorial Hall After New Year's

War-scarred and weather-beaten ex-members of His Majesty's Imperial Forces, representing almost every unit of the King's Army converged in the Sergeants' Mess at the Armouries last evening where the first of their regular monthly meetings since the formation of the Imperial Veterans' Club some time ago was held. Represented were the Royal Air Force, His Majesty's Navy, the Royal Field Artillery, the Royal Lancashires, the Royal West Kents, the King's Own Wiltshires, the Machine Gun Corps, the Norfolks, Seaforths, Dragoon Guards, Durhams, Yorkshires, The Army Service Corps, The Queen's, Argyles and many other branches of the army.

It was decided by the members of the newly formed club to join in with the United Veterans of Belleville and to work in conjunction with the older branch in varied activities for the welfare of members and the city.

Dr. R. W. Tennent was named Honorary President of the new club at the meeting.

During the evening, President James Shepherd occupied the chair and conducted the routine business which was followed by a social evening with refreshments served. Fred Rawson at the piano contributed many old time marching songs and favorites, accompanied by the lusty chorus of the "old salts" who grouped around. Individual efforts were delivered by Comrades T. Pritchard, G. Lancaster, W. Edwards, J. Ritchens, Dr. Guthridge and S. Pointer.

The next meeting of the Imperial Veterans' Club has been tentatively decided for the fourth Thursday in January at which time they will gather in Memorial Hall.

'CANDID CAMERA' AND OWNER 'JAY' INTRIGUE CLUB

Romance of Photography is Unfolded at Canadian Club

"Jay" of Saturday Night and his "Candid Camera" visited the city last evening to the delight of an interested audience at an open meeting of the Women's Canadian Club. For over two hours the adventures of this famous cameraman, the stories behind his pictures and the pictures themselves fascinated all present. In addition, "Jay" was most generous in his suggestions to the amateur cameraman and many valuable hints were given for the making of this hobby a lucrative as well as an interesting pastime.

The "quality" of the picture determines its value and the capturing of the spirit of the subject portrayed makes the result a picture rather than a photographic record only. "Jay" stressed the fact that the camera in the hands of an amateur should be no longer regarded as a toy but as capable of expression far above the knowledge of the average user. For this reason the camera can be made self supporting and with a little care, the user can make his camera pay.

"Jay" himself, two years ago, knew little more of photography than the average person in the audience. Today he is known from one end of Canada to the other and throughout the Empire, particularly for his work. — Toronto Saturday Night.

Tiny Camera

"Every picture of mine taken with this camera is the size of two postage stamps," he said, showing the tiny instrument which has reproduced pictures of remarkable beauty, and originality, as well as amusing, candid portrait studies, taken unawares. "This is the camera of today...and of tomorrow". The camera is of the type first made for Admiral Byrd and since commercialized.

"Jay" discussed in an interesting manner the development of photography which has influenced for good every form of art and is now recognized even in the most conservative circles as one of the arts. Moreover, photography is not a decorative art, it is a practical art, serving useful purposes for science medicine, industry, aerial surveys and many other fields. One of photography's greatest contributions is the recording for posterity the world news events of the photographic industry, still photoplay of today and tomorrow is interlocked with the motion picture industry.

"Jay" then flashed on the screen, slides of pictures he had taken with his miniature camera. The first of these were his pictures of photomurals at the Chicago Fair, enlargements eighteen feet high by four feet wide of negatives eight inches by ten inches, an amazing and recent development in the art of photography. He showed a series of pictures in industry, referring to the work of Miss Margaret Burke White of New York, the world's foremost photographer of this type of picture.

The fidelity of the modern camera in reproducing every detail of an intricate machine, a construction operation, or of a scene from the air was of incomparable value to science. But the dramatic quality of pictures was their most important consideration in art.

For his pictures, "Jay" uses pancromatic film which captures elusive effects without use of filters or any other devices. Some of the pictures shown on the screen had been taken in a downpour of rain, or through the windshield of a motor car and yet had all the elements of a beautiful picture.

New Trend Camera

Newer trends in the use of photography were the use of pictures in reviewing plays, two splendid examples being chosen from Jay's collection, and the introduction of the journalist cameraman, whose pictures with only a line of caption tell a whole news story.

With his pictures and his stories about them, "Jay" took his hearers to the Gaspe, to the Isle of Orleans for a visit with its fine simple folk, to the West Indies where native craftsmen produce beautiful hand wrought articles to delightful country lanes and paths and to the villages of the world at the Chicago Fair. "Jay" also showed some pictures of his which will be exhibited at the National Gallery.

"You do not have to go outside Belleville to get wonderful pictures" said "Jay" who concluded his address with many helpful hints for the amateur. He warned against trying to get too much in a picture, when part is enough to show the whole spirit of the subject. Standing back and including a frame results in a more beautiful picture and in taking passing ships when on board a boat it is well to include a little of the framework of one's own boat. Finally the hours spent photographing in the country close to nature in all her moods and sympathies will be hours of real value.

Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, president of the Club who introduced the speaker, expressed a vote of thanks at the conclusion of his lecture.

CAR IN REVERSE DRAGS CRANKER

Pant Leg Caught by Crank, Trip Ends in Mill Pond

After this a well-known resident of the district of Chisholm's Mills is going to be a little bit careful in the matter of cranking stalled automobiles.

On Saturday the car stalled near the old mill. The resident, with a sigh dismounted, twisted the crank and heard the motor start with a roar that was pleasant to the ears. But with the roar, it moved backwards with incredible speed. So did the owner of the machine. Caught by the crank handle which tucked itself into the folds of his pant leg, the screaming motorist, whose shouts were drowned in the roar of the motor car left in reverse gear when he had cranked it, disappeared with the machine over the brow of the small hill into the cold mill pond.

Attendants at the mill who assisted in the rescue of the dripping car cranker, did not learn his name.

SPIRITUAL RETREAT

On Saturday, December 8th, the executive of the Young People's Union of Belleville Presbytery held a Spiritual Retreat in John Street United Church.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Rev. C. H. Ferguson, who asked Rev. Robert Hall to open the meeting with prayer. Miss Frances Harris, Madoc, was welcomed to the executive. The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. A letter from the Conference President, Mr. S. G. Saywell, of Oshawa, was read who sent his regrets at not being able to meet with us.

The guest speaker of the Retreat was Rev. Bert Howard. Following the business session he gave an interesting address. He pointed out the responsibilities of Christian leaders in Young People's Work.

Supper was served in the church. At seven o'clock the meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. C. H. Ferguson.

Reports were given by the conveners present. Following the business session in the evening, Rev. Howard closed the Retreat with an inspiring and challenging address of "What do we expect of Jesus?" and prayer.

NATIONAL GROCERS HEAD TESTIFIES BEFORE INQUIRY

Place of Wholesale And Retail Grocer Emphasized

WOOLWORTH WAGES

Conditions in U. S. And Wages in Canada Discussed

OTTAWA, Dec. 11 (CP)—The wholesale grocer never will disappear from the merchandising field as long as the small, independent retailer exists, the Parliamentary Mass Buying Commission was advised today by Archie Foster, president of National Grocers, the largest wholesale house in Canada.

National Grocers was established in 1925 by merging 37 wholesale houses in Ontario. Last year the sales volume was $21,000,000 with 20 or 25 per cent. going to the 706 Red and White Stores and Leader Stores, voluntary chains serviced by National Grocers.

The National Grocer president said he was convinced that if voluntary chains, such as Red and White, had not been established, not half the present independents could have survived the competition of the corporate chains.

The company originated in 1925, being the consolidation of 37 wholesale firms doing business in Ontario. It also has a manufacturing branch and chain store outlets, Red and White Stores numbering 706 and Leader Stores.

National Grocers, Foster said had a sales volume of $21,000,000 last year with 20 or 25 per cent. going to the voluntary chain organizations. Although National Grocers had the right to remove the sign from any Red and White Store that did not buy all dry groceries from them, this was not a hard and fast rule.

Independent merchants could buy as cheaply from National Grocers as the Red and White Stores, Foster said, although they could not enter the joint advertising schemes.

A committee of Red and White and Leader merchants met with officials of National Grocers and selected a number of special lines to be advertised that week.

Woolworth's Pages

L. J. Harrington Canadian manager for the F. W. Woolworth Stores was interrogated on the wage policies of his organization. Auditors' reports showed that 1,370 Woolworth women clerks averaged $10.80 a week although the Canadian Company was making about 20 per cent. profits, the majority of which went to New York.

In 1932, Woolworth's put into effect a 10 per cent. wage reduction, Harrington admitted on the instructions of the New York office. Profits that year were 20.52 per cent. although sales had dropped.

In 1933, sales increased and profits went up to 21.95 per cent. yet Woolworth's did not restore the wage reduction although Harrington admitted "we probably should have".

U. S. Conditions Wage Cuts

Chairman W. W. Kennedy and other commissioners suggested it was against national interests for an American-owned company, taking big profits out of the country, to pay such low wages and then cut them when conditions in United States became bad.

"Why should conditions in the United States result in wage cuts in Canada while handsome profits are being made here?" Norman Sommerville, Commission Counsel asked.

"Probably they should not."

In the Woolworth organization, 154 men, executives and managers were paid one half as much as 3,000 clerks. Sommerville asked Harrington to justify this "distribution of the wage load" but the Woolworth manager said it was obvious executives of successful business must be paid more than regular employees.

The Woolworth executive promised to appear before His Board of Directors in New York and make representations concerning wage levels in Canada.

NORTHLAND DR. LOOKS AT MUSEUM

Whales and Dinosaur Eggs Make Him Scratch His Head

By HOMER McCOY

New York, Dec. 11 (AP)—The backwoods doctor of Dionne fame, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, and Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, eminent scientist, talked shop today.

It turned out to be an obstetrical conversation of huge proportions.

Dr. Dafoe thought he could insert a 15 minutes' tour of the American Museum of Natural History into his crowded schedule.

"What are you most interested in?" asked Dr. Andrews when the Callendar, Ont., physician arrived at the museum.

"Whales," said Dr. Dafoe. "Whales and their reproduction."

He was immediately taken to view the foetus of a whale on exhibition. Dr. Dafoe made no comment, but he uttered clucking noises of amazement.

Dr. Andrews then told his distinguished guest what he has learned about whales and their young. He mentioned finding an unborn whale that weighed eight tons and was 22 feet long.

"That happened in Canada, too, doctor," said Dr. Andrews.

"My goodness!" Dr. Dafoe exclaimed, then lapsed into a brief interlude of contemplation during which his lips moved and he scratched his head.

"You could see," said Dr. Andrews later, "that he was inwardly making comparisons."

Dr. Andrews and Dr. George H. Sherwood, director of the Museum, showed their guest through the place. Dr. Dafoe said little. He asked a few questions, but made observations rarely.

"How's this for a metatarsal?" Dr. Andrews asked him, indicating a bone of bachluchi therium, the largest mammal that ever existed. It looked like a log.

Again Dr. Dafoe made a clucking noise with his tongue. He was shown dinosaur eggs 95,000,000 years old and the fossil of a mastodon that had become extinct about 3,000,000 years ago.

"That was only yesterday, wasn't it?" Dr. Dafoe said.

Dr. Dafoe stayed at the museum 45 minutes, much longer than he should have. "It's the most interesting place I've ever been in," he said.

When he left he was shaking his head and moving his lips again.

"Still making comparisons," said Dr. Andrews.

FARM CHAOS SEEN IF ACT IS ISSUE

Pres. Amos of U. F. O. Paints Picture of Anti-Social Traits

Toronto, Dec. 11—(CP)— President W. A. Amos of the United Farmers Co-operative Company limited, today told the annual convention of the United Farmers of Ontario he foresaw a "continued state of agricultural chaos and ultimate collapse" if the Dominion government's Agricultural Marketing Act is made a political issue."

In his presidential speech as head of the Co-operative Company Mr. Amos declared he saw "daily evidences of increasing patronage in business."

Competitors, he declared, fearful that the co-operative movement was making inroads into their trade connections "devise schemes and set up barriers to prevent us securing our supplies.

"Civilization in its present straits," he added, "cannot register much improvement until these anti-social traits have been transferred into a spirit of mutual helpfulness."

H. H. Clemes of Toronto, General Manager in his report declared the company's operations for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1934 showed a net profit of $39,620 leaving a surplus for shareholders of $22,004 after taking care of last year's deficit of $12,940 and the Dominion government income tax of $4,675.

"Over and above that amount, we have set aside our usual reserves for general depreciation of $31,400 and also the suoe of $12,300 for bad debts, or a total of $43,700," Mr. Clemes Continued.

The general manager reported a decrease in operating expenses over the preceding year of $20,984.

SIGNS WEATHER WILL MODERATE

Cold Wave is General Except in West And Northwest

By The Canadian Press

Numerous Ontario points today reported thermometers at their lowest levels this season as a wave of cold air moved eastward from Ontario toward the Atlantic seaboard.

Coldest spot in Ontario was Moosonee, near the James Bay shore, with a minimum temperature of 10 below zero. London was next with a reading of four below while Sault Ste. Marie's low point was minus two. Thermometers reached zero at Toronto, Ottawa and Kingston and one-half degree below at Hamilton.

Two Feet of Snow

Snow covered the ground in Toronto after a long fall yesterday. St. Catharines reported several inches of snow and a minimum temperature of eight above while away to the westward of the province Sarnia dug itself out of the leavings of a blizzard. Snow two feet deep was reported from parts of the city. Automobiles resembled igloos as the white blanket covered them. The snow was cleared easily as it was fluffy and light.

Weather was cold in the northern central part of Ontario. Peterborough reported its low temperature for the night at five below and said the thermometer was rising very slowly.

Prairies Mild

Meanwhile weather on the prairies became milder while temperatures in Quebec and the Maritime sank. Churchill on the western shore of Hudson Bay reported its lowest temperature last night at eight above. Aklavik on the Mackenzie River delta basked in a temperature of 26 above.

Quebec City's low was four below, Moncton's one below, Fredericton's four below, Saint John, at the head of the Bay of Fundy, reported a minimum of two above.

Windsor reported strong northerly winds that whipped accompanying snow flurries into blizzard-like proportions and sent the mercury flirting with the zero mark.

Temperature Rising

Relief was promised in a report from the Detroit Weather Bureau forecasting rising temperatures late tonight and tomorrow.

The sub-zero mark was reached for the first time this season at Kitchener early today when the mercury went to the three below mark after flirting with zero for some days. The mercury's descent was accompanied by a moderate snowfall.

One Passes as Woman, Another as Gangster and Third as Chemist

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 11.—(CP) —Three mounties one disguised as a woman, a second as a "big shot" gangster from Detroit, and the third pretending to be a chemist who would take any kind of a job, placed under arrest three men last night on vagrancy charges and seized 221 ounces of gold nuggets.

Police stated today that charges of high grading will be laid against the trio, who are Theodore Rajak, Hamilton, Louis Gord, Toronto, and John Vaklich formerly of Timmins.

The value of the gold is estimated at close to $6,000.

Sergeant Frank Sampson, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police squad played the role of the big shot Detroit gunman. His lady friend was Constable Ivan Barr and Constable Harry Kirkpatrick was down at the heels chemist.

Police claim to have met the man in a garage on a lane between Avondale and Gage avenues and for a large sum in cash purchased the gold nuggets. At the completion of the deal the officers revealed their identity and arrested the three accused.

TAX COLLECTION

Oshawa tax collector has published a notice that a list of those whose taxes are in arrears after December 15th., will be published in that city. The Oshawa Times remarks that there are many persons who say quite frankly that they would like to see such a list appear in print, not to embarrass those who are genuinely unable to meet their tax obligations, but rather to shed some light on those who are able to pay but have neglected to do so.

The view of the Times is that this would produce some worthwhile results in securing payment of tax arrears by applying pressure on those who have withheld payment, not because of necessity, but simply because the paying of taxes is distasteful to them and they like to defer the evil day of payment as long as possible.

The Times also faces the other side—that of those who out of employment are genuinely unable to pay anything. "Many of them would be glad to meet their obligations if they could do so, and it is going to be rather hard on them to have their plight advertised to the city. They will have to suffer that embarrassment, however, in order that pressure can be put on those who can quite easily afford to meet those obligations, and with the city in a critical financial position, the end would seem to justify the means."

Most cities however have not gone to that step, for it seems tragic to announce to the public at large many who have been independent as far as they are concerned as taxpayers until out of work they have not been able to make their way. No doubt there are taxpayers who hold back when they can pay but there are no doubt more who are the victims of circumstances and pay as soon as they can. Some municipalities are even accepting monthly payments.

Belleville taxpayers fortunately for the city appear to be doing well in payments and no drastic action such as publication of lists will likely be required.

PEACE PRIZE AWARDS

The Right Honorable Arthur Henderson had his reward of years of peace effort on Monday when he was presented with the Nobel Peace prize for 1934.

Such a prize is not an empty one, especially to Henderson who has in all seasons been an advocate of international agreements to render impossible appeal to arms and the killing of men and destruction of property as a means of settlement of a dispute, which arises from fear of real or imaginary aggression.

Henderson has fought for the right as he knows it and it must be some encouragement to him to know that the Nobel Prize authorities have picked him out as the chief figure in peace interests. He has fought for the principle when times looked dark and he has not given up hope. He sees beyond all international difficulties and factors which keep nations apart the ties that are drawing them together. The Premier of Norway stated, that to Henderson is owing the fact that the disarmament efforts still persist.

The peoples should be behind the man who is making such efforts. Most of the outstanding men of the age are supporting him, but every man, woman and child ought to be assisting wherever possible this effort to remove from the face of the world forever such a condition as will about war.

Sir Norman Angell who won the award for 1933 has been known for many years as a peace advocate and is the man who most of all has shown that war does not benefit.

Both men are struggling for the ideal which they and every other person know is right—that there should be no war. And they have confidence that in the end, whenever it be, war will be outlawed and never resorted to. There can be no higher international ideal than this.

PEACE PACT IN EUROPE

The present friction and flare-up between Yugoslavia and Hungary has resulted in a pact settling the differences. The Yuogslav government charged the Hungarian government had winked at the issue of forged passports for Slav agitators and murderers. A little later Yuogslavia made its complaint on this score before the League of Nations. But a nation that has thus appealed to Caesar, to Caesar must go. "Pending a decision at Geneva, it was most unbecoming for the Yugoslav government to act as if the verdict had already gone in its favor and to proceed with measures directed against Hungary that are very near the verge of hostility," says the New York Times. "If all Hungarians in Yugoslavia are to be deported, with the probable result that Hungary will expel all Yugoslavs within her borders, we shall see scenes of hardship and misery which will seem to the world uncalled for. The spectacle of hundreds of sick and crippled struggling across the Yugoslav frontier seems too much like a suddenly precipitated decree of a too cruel nature."

The diplomacy of the great Powers, and the efforts of the League at Geneva, have been directed strongly toward finding a peaceful solution. One difficulty in the way is the seeming intention of the members of the Little Entente to stand together in this crisis. Dr. Benes of Czechoslovakia, gave a warning that blow at one nation of the Little Entente is a blow at all of them. He added that his own country has now a treaty with Soviet Russia, agreeing to take common action against an aggressor. But it is hard to see what nation could possibly think of aggressing. There may be, it is true, a united demonstration of sentiment against the inhumanities which may follow the quarrel between Hungary and Yugoslavia, but that would not in the least mean anything approaching intervention. Peaceful representation upon such an occasion is the privilege of every nation belonging to the League and cannot be taken as an offensive move whether in spirit or in word. With so many nations ready with good offices to help compose the sharp dispute, it is incredible that another war should be brought on by seizing upon a shallow excuse for it, or refusing to accept arbitration or any other peaceful means of avoiding an appeal to arms. Public opinion all over the world has now become so sensitive and alert on that subject that it would be an act of folly for any nation openly to defy or outrage it.

NEWSPAPER ACCURACY

Speaking the other day at William and Mary College, Frank R. Kent of The Baltimore Sun made a shrewd defense of the accuracy of most newspapers. He was not so foolish as to contend that even the best newspaper did not fall into error; indeed, he admitted the possibility that every newspaper makes mistakes every day. But "in no business and in no profession, save that of the pure scientist, is the premium on accuracy so high, the penalty for inaccuracy so prompt, and the proportion of accuracy so great." This sounds sweeping, but Mr. Kent defends it on the ground not that newspaper men are congenitally more accurate than other men, but that newspaper mistakes never go unnoticed. When mistakes are made in some other business or profession they are often covered up and are rarely known to more than a few, but the newspaper man makes his mistakes right out in the open, and they are spread before the keen eyes of many thousands of people:

There isn't a newspaper man anywhere who does not know that, trivial though his error may be, some one will catch it. Even when it escapes the watchful editorial gaze, even when no one in the office picks it up, even when he, himself, is unaware of it, there are still the old subscribers—thousands of them—vigilant, alert, aggressive, resentful, eager to put their finger on the brake, communicate with the editor and "show up" the writer and the paper. These old subscribers, in my judgment, are by far the most valuable asset a newspaper can have. Their militant, microscopic scrutiny is the finest possible corrective influence.

It is seldom that the error-pointer-out gets such generous praise, all of it, of course, deserved. Incidentally, Mr. Kent's remarks direct attention to a service performed by the critic of mistakes that is often overlooked. Lord Halifax used to say that men were not hanged for stealing horses but that horses might not be stolen. On the same principle, the subscriber who calls attention to an error does not merely help to get that particular error corrected; he helps to keep alive on the newspaper that eternal vigilance which is the price of accuracy as well as of liberty.—New York Times.

RAILWAYMEN PAY TRIBUTE TO MR. D. C. COLEMAN

The railway men of Toronto and district, irrespective of their affiliations, on Saturday evening did themselves honor when, under the auspices of the Railway Club, they paid tribute to the recently appointed first vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Mr. D'Alton Curry Coleman. Although Mr. Coleman came to Montreal from Winnipeg, where he had been not only the efficient vicepresident in charge of the western lines of his railway, but also prominently identified with higher education and various civic enterprises, he is an Ontario boy. A native of Carleton Place, his ability and personality rapidly won for him a commanding position in the field of transportation. He is a well-known collector of Canadiana. In early life he was a newspaperman (at Belleville), his training in the fourth estate, no doubt, being a factor in his rapid promotion in the field of endeavour in which he has spent the major portion of his life. The seven hundred or more railwaymen, representing both of the great transportation systems, attending Saturday night's function and the enthusiastic goodwill they manifested, were a fitting tribute to the guest of honor. The Mail and Empire joins with his confreres in offering congratulations to this former scribe who has attained eminence in the service of one of our great Canadian travel systems.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

A WOMAN WALKING

A woman walking down a sun-drenched road,
A little child clasped closely to her breast;
She marches by, unheedful of her load,
With splendid strength that needs no pause, no rest.
I see a woman walking there, and more . .
I see a mother, pressing on to meet
Whatever future days may hold in store,
One poised for victory or for defeat!

No footfall hesitant, no backward glance,
But with her brow as shining as the dawn.
I watch her tireless tread, her swift advance,
Almost as though her burden bore her on!
Eternal mother, marching without fears
And offering her first-born to the years!

MONDAY RETURNS, regularly. Sunday has been a day of rest and relaxation—so much so that Monday sorta finds us at loose ends, with the week staring us in the face, a whole lot to do, but where best to start? As the business weeks proceeds the human batteries become charged stronger with vigor and before the week ends business men are going great guns. And so, these are the thoughts that face an empty sheet of copy paper and the necessity of filling that certain column, which yawns widely every day, with something which will be entertaining or educational or both, as expected by the Sidelights Family of readers, which we can say in all modesty is not small. Let's begin on a lighter note and give some samples of what are called "Schoolboy Howlers," compiled by some unknown from devious sources, authentic and otherwise, and passed on to the family by means of the scissors route. Here they are—they amused us, perhaps they will amuse you:

A manor house is where they teach people manners. They don't build them now.

It must have been awful for people in the time of Pericles to have known nothing about God and America.

Business is a man's game and you've got to know that from the start. I intend to be a business magnate. I shall probably employ others until I reach the top. After working up you look down. It is quite easy when you know the way.

A DAILY COURSE IN NEWSPAPER READING is suggested for Canadian collegiates—say half an hour each morning to famliiarize the students with the names of Canadian public men, positions, politics, etc. This would seem to be necessary if recent articles published in the Canadian press purporting to be answers of pupils to questionnaires as to "Who's Who" in Canadian public life, were actually given. Better to know the name and history of the Premier of Canada than who killed Caesar and why. And so, a short daily course in newspaper reading is suggested with explanatory notes by the teacher as a valuable contribution to modern education.

THE COW THAT JUMPED over the moon is now recognized as fiction—but it is said to have given the idea for Vanishing Cream, which is not fiction but produces the skin you love to touch. Contrariwise, the cow that kicked over the lantern in Chicago some years ago contributed to a vanishing Chicago which has been replaced by a much better city.

Soldiers—Then and Now

—by—

Theodore Goodridge Roberts

Every outfit had its "characters". We all had friends, or acquaintances whose military careers were remarkable rather than heroic. Isn't it the truth? And some of our best war stories must be told without the use of the real names. Isn't it a fact? Some of the best fellows in the world are the most amazing—well, they develop the most extraordinary powers of imagination when they deal with their experiences in the Great War, 1914-1918. And it has always been so, with other good fellows and other wars.

I have a friend (and as I hope to keep him, I must watch my step) whose stories of personal military experiences would make a remarkable, extraordinary and highly entertaining book if he would write them as he tells them. But he has told them so often and brazenly as fact that he hesitates to write them as acknowledged fiction; and only as fiction could they face the world.

Cuddlecob

I shall call him Cuddlecob because I hope that no such name is to be found in any army list.

I first got to know Cuddlecob in 1914. Even then he dramatized himself at every turn and was the willing victim of big ideas. He was very young then and full of harmless swank and equally harmless politics. The intervening years have knocked most of the swank and politics out of him, I believe— but his ideas still exceed his realizations. In those far away days, Cuddlecob made a point of keeping in with the colonel and of trying, at the same time, to keep in with everyone else. In those days we all wanted to know what was going to happen—how the wind was blowing; and Cuddlecob gave ear to the blowing of the colonel and other seniors, made his own deductions and passed them on to us. He made many wild deductions, but came very close to the truth every now and then.

His Third Pip

Being on the regimental staff, he indulged himself in a pair of field-officers' boots and a pair of spurs to match. The boots blistered his heels; so he went to bed and wrote home that he had broken down from overwork; and thus he was the home town's first hero of that war. And still he kept in with the colonel, with other important seniors and with his friends. And he got his third pip. The O.C. put it through or over—but not quite all the way through or over, to judge by later developments.

Nobody felt offended by Cuddlecob's buzzing around the colonel, for he did it artistically; but we had others who tried the same game and made themselves damned offensive at it to everybody, the O. C included; and he could stand a lot of that sort of thing. There was a castaway Englishman whom I shall call Badger for one. Badger's people had cast him away in despair.

Badger's Cigarettes

Lieutenant Badger's methods of trying to get in warm with the O. C. were extremely crude. For instance, he kept one side of his large cigarette case full of a brand of costly smokes to which the colonel was very partial and the other side full of woodbines or whatnots; and when the great man had helped himself, Badger would then clamp his thumb across the good ones and offer the whatnots to whoever else happened to be in the group.

Cuddlecob never pulled any boners like that.

Scientist for Canada

Dr. Edmond Bruet, celebrated French scientist, arrives on the Champlain in charge of a special mission from the National Museum of Natural Sciences in Paris. He will visit Canada for research work in geology, mineralogy and ethnography. His particular destination is Abitibi, Ontario, where among other things he will advise on the boring of 2,000 acres of auriferous land owned by a French Canadian mining syndicate.

STIRLING BRANCH OF ROYAL BANK IS WITHDRAWN

Bank of Montreal to Take Over Business of Branch

Stirling. — Official notification has been received at the local Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada by the manager, Mr. A. S. Murduff, of the withdrawal of the Branch on the fifteenth day of December, 1934. In accordance with the scheme which is being worked out throughout the Dominion, the local Branch of the Bank of Montreal of which Mr. R. T. Dunlop is the present manager, is taking over the business of the Royal Bank while in another town in Western Ontario, the Royal Bank is taking over a Bank of Montreal Branch. The announcement of the Branch withdrawal came as a complete surprise to the citizens of Stirling, the interior of the Bank having been completely redecorated only two weeks ago. As regards the employees, Mr. Murduff will be in Stirling, it is expected for some little time. Meanwhile the staff await notification of their new posts.

A partial solution to Stirling's relief problem has been provided by construction work on Highway No. 33, just one mile south of Stirling. The system is that one gang of labourers work one week out of every three, so by putting this into effect, fifteen Stirling men are given relief work, five on each gang of men. This has helped in some measure to alleviate the stress on relief funds.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sine and family of Peterboro, are paying an extended visit to the former's mother, Mrs. M. W. Sine.

Miss Mabel McCarthy of Marmora is spending the week-end the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Josephine Lagrow.

Mr. A. S. Murduff was in Bowmanville on Friday on business.

All construction work on the adjacent highways was temporarily suspended due to the intensely cold weather on Saturday, the mercury falling to 8 degrees below zero on Friday night.

The December meeting of the Women's Institute and the final gathering of the year was held on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William C. West with a splendid showing of members present. The meeting which was presided over by the President, Mrs. Louis Rodgers, followed the established custom for opening such an affair, after which hearty community singing was enjoyed. The secretary next read the minutes of the last meeting which were duly approved.

Mr. Roy Eggleton, local contractor, was present to discuss with the ladies the probable cost of installing a ventilator in the local Community Hall. The matter after being duly considered, was left over until the January meeting. The idea is that the women felt that some material assistance would be necessary from the local council in such a project and, to interview the council now concerning such a step would be fruitless as the Municipal officials may not be returned for another term of office. Hence the decision to leave the matter until the New Year.

A sum of money was further voted for the awarding of certain prizes for the Fall Fair, a committee being appointed to see to the determining of what the prizes should be donated for. Acting on a suggestion which was expressed by Mr. G. H. Holton, of the Ontario School for the Deaf of Belleville in his illuminating address delivered at the November meeting of the Stirling Community Welfare Club, that various organizations might make it a point to clothe and keep in the incidental spending money, one child in attendance at that institution, the Women's Institute appointed a committee to see to it that a certain child is returned to that Institution and kept properly clothed at the expense of the local branch of the Women's Institute. Final items of business were the ordering that several outstanding accounts be paid and the appointment of canvassers.

The programme which was in charge of Mrs. Wm. C. West and Miss Gena Spry opened with the reading of a paper on Canadian Industries, prepared by Mrs. R. A. Patterson and presented by Mrs. Thos. Donnan. In this, the writer dealt in a skilful manner with not only the natural industries of the Dominion but the manufacturing industry as well. Mrs. Perry Bronson, the official delegate of the Stirling Women's Institute to the District Convention which was held in Belleville in October, submitted her report which proved most interesting and instructive. As the concluding number on a delightful programme, Miss Gena Spry staged a Christmas contest. Activities for the year were brought to a happy conclusion with the serving of a dainty lunch, Mrs. Carleton Wright tendering a hearty vote of thanks to the gracious hostess and Mrs. Lawrence Munro endorsing it. It is of interest to note that the meeting also took the form of a Christmas shower for the children in the Children's Shelter, Belleville.

Mrs. Bentley Simonds was a guest of relatives at Havelock and Norwood during the past week.

On Monday night Massassaga Church was well filled with interested listeners for the debate between Rednersville Young People's Society and Massassaga Young People's Club on the subject: "Resolved that women should be ordained to the ministry of the United Church." The affirmative was upheld by Miss Janet Adams and Mr. Jack Taylor of Rednersville while Mrs. E. Brummel and Mr. Raymond Thompson of Massassaga spoke for the negative. The judges were Miss Beatrice Jones for Rednersville, Mrs. A. Hillman for Massassaga and Miss Florence Wallbridge, neutral judge. Many splendid arguments were advanced by each side and at the close the decision was given in favor of Rednersville. A short program was also given. Hymn and prayer were led by Rev. Mr. Campbell; a playlette, "Better Than a Doctor" by Massassaga talent; musical selections from Rednersville; a reading by Miss Mary Jane Babcock; another playlette by Massassaga talent. The offering was taken, followed by devotional period. Lunch of cake, sandwiches and coffee was served at the close of the program.

Miss Margaret Wallbridge is ill at her home with scarlet fever.

Much sympathy is extended to Mrs. John A. Weese on the loss of a brother who passed away on Wednesday at Chatham.

NO BOXING DAY FOR ONTARIO

TORONTO, Dec. 10.— (CP)— Ontario will not likely follow the action of Manitoba in proclaiming Dec. 26, Boxing Day, as a public holiday, it was believed at the Legislative Buildings here today.

Hon. H. C. Nixon, Acting Premier, knew of no agitation in the province for following the old English custom and naming the day following Christmas as a holiday.

DISCUSSES FOOD FOR CHILDREN OF SCHOOL AGE

Miss Laura E. Pepper Addresses Home-School Club

PICTON—Mr. and Mrs. Roblin Dulmage left on Thursday for Tweed where Mrs. Dulmage will take over the management of the Tweed Hospital.

Mr. Jimmy Miller is the owner of a new Chevrolet, which he drove down from Oshawa on Friday.

At nine o'clock on Saturday morning, at St. Gregory's Church, the funeral of the late Dave Shannon of Wayside Island, was attended by many neighbours and members of the congregation. Mr. Shannon, a life-long resident of Waupoos Island, suffered a stroke two weeks ago, and was brought to P.E.C. Hospital, where he passed away on Friday. Surviving is one sister, Miss Mary Shannon and a niece, Miss Myrtle Shannon. Two brothers, Will and Alex died some years ago.

Miss Mary Shannon will spend the winter with Mrs. Gertrude Lambert, Chapel street.

The Canadian Community Campaign got off to a good start on Saturday morning, Dec. 8th. Twelve Picton merchants are sponsoring the campaign which closes January 12th. Votes and surprise gifts for "oddities" such as "the largest egg", "the oldest model electric iron", "the youngest grandfather", etc., are causing interest. Mrs. Clarence Rutter is stenographer in the campaign office, with Mr. C. A. Brown, campaign manager—in the Maher Block, Main street.

Miss Laura E. Pepper of the Dairy Branch of the Dominion Government, was the guest speaker at the Home and School Club, on Thursday afternoon. Her subject was "Food for School-Age Children". Provincial Government reports for Saskatchewan show that 14 per cent of the children drink no milk— that rural children drink more than urban children and that many girls between the ages of 12 and 16 are milk drinkers. In Ontario the situation is even worse. 20 per cent of Ontario children drink no milk, while 50 per cent, of children of as low as the third grade in school drink tea or coffee for breakfast. Milk is a food that has no substitute and is a necessary food for everyone but most especially for children. Children's meals must supply energy—keep them well and supply material for growth. The child needs the protein foods meats, eggs, cheese, fish, vegetables and poultry, said Miss Pepper and the protective foods, milk, fruits, vegetables, eggs and Cod Liver oil.

Community singing and a solo by Miss Mary Burley completed the programme.

BIRTHDAY TEA WELL ATTENDED

St. Paul's W. A. Plans Most Successful Event

Stirling, Dec. 11—The "Birthday Tea" sponsored by Mrs. Beatty's group of the Women's Association of St. Paul's United Church which was held in the church parlours on Thursday afternoon from three to six o'clock was a gala affair which was well patronized by the village folk. The spirit of the approaching Christmas-tide was manifest everywhere and on entering the tastefully decorated parlours, the red and green hues which bespeak the Christmas and Yule-tide season met the eye at every turn. Receiving at the entrance to the tea room were Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. Cecil Macklin who extended a hospitable welcome to the guests.

The novel scheme of arranging twelve tables representative of the twelve months of the year was carried out, each guest being seated at the table which represented his birth month. Each was attractively centred with a cleverly arranged table decoration bespeaking the month of the year for which the table stood. In the centre of the parlours, directly in front of the glowing grate of the fireplace banked with fir boughs and surmounted with Christmas tapers, stood the serving table with its handsome silver appointments. The tea table attractively centred with crimson poinsettias and tall lighted tapers in silver holders was presided over by Mesdames George Luery, C. P. Walt, George Rosebush and George Richardson who acted as tea hostesses

The twelve smaller tables at which the guests were served were no less attractive. January's table with its centre appointment an arrangement of bells ringing out the gladsome tidings of the New Year and bearing the scroll "Ring out the old, Ring in the New," was under the supervision of Mrs. Geo. Luery. Mrs. William Wallace presided over the tea table which bore the representation of St. Valentine's Day bespeaking February days. The jardiniere of green shamrocks savouring of the Emerald Isle and "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning" was more than adequate testimony of March's month, Mrs. Alex Martin having charge of this table. Mrs. Claude Tucker with a colorful arrangement of umbrellas and tiny puppets portrayed humorously rainy April while balmy May over which table Mrs. Murphy presided, was depicted with centrepiece of the traditional May-pole.

June, the month of the bride and groom was portrayed by just such a miniature couple, Mrs. Perry Bronson having charge of the table, patriotically centred with flags unfolding the tale of Dominion Day and its significance to Canadians was presided over by Mrs. Clarence Clarke. Sheaves of yellow grain and crimson poppies fittingly depicted the golden sunshine of August weather, Mrs. Will Fox looking after the guests at this table. Leaves in all the varied hues of Autumn depicted in a riot of color September days, Mrs. William Fitchett being hostess at this table. Mrs. Nora Wescott's table representative of October with its Hallowe'en centrepiece created the proper spooky atmosphere for this season of the year. A beautiful miniature cenotaph crowning a park of shaven green and bearing at its base tiny wreaths of poppy and laurel tied with mourning ribbons in purple tones, bespoke the solemnity of Armistice Day and the chill of November weather. Mrs. Harold Martin presided at this table as hostess. The last table, that of December told of Christmas and jolly old Saint Nicholas, a portly but petit representation of that well loved Saint crowning the board, Mrs. Nina Morton supervised this table and its appointments.

During the course of the tea a varied programme of splendid musical talent was presented, Mrs. H. C. Martin and Mrs. Perry Bronson supervising its presentation. The stage beautiful with Christmas bells and the fireplace with glowing grate flanked with fir boughs formed an appropriate setting for the afternoon's programme. Between numbers, Mrs. Percy Hubble delighted with an arrangement of instrumentals. Various numbers on the programme included a banjo solo by Mr. Maurice Bell accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. W. Rowland; a recitation by little Miss Irene Bronson; a vocal duet by Misses Ruth Martin and Laura Mason; a piano duet by Mrs. E. W. Rowland and Mrs. Arthur Pyear; a vocal solo by Mr. Gerald Clute; a humorous monologue by Mrs. Hattie Hubble; and the singing of Christmas carols with Rev. E. W. Rowland as song leader.

An added feature was the Christmas pudding in charge of Mrs. W. Fox which revealed some remarkable ingredients in its composition. A supper of a slightly heavier nature than the tea in the afternoon was served at 6 o'clock to the men. This interesting and skilfully arranged event was successful in every way and is ranked among the most charming of pre-Christmas events.

Mrs. Cecil McKeel of Campbellford is the guest this week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace.

Once again in accordance with the annual custom of allowing the children free access to the local theatre on the Saturday before Christmas, the children of the district will once again enjoy a free matinee. Manager E. A. Sprentall was furthermore instructed by the council to place a street light above the railway crossing on William Street. Mr. Oakley Gough was engaged at the specified wage of twenty cents per hour to repaint the theatre entrance, the paint to be procured from local hardware dealers.

Manager Frank A. Sprentall of the local Hydro office was further instructed to pay from the theatre funds $40 to Gordon Bailey, $75 to Clarence Clarke and $50 to Thelma Tulloch for services rendered at the local theatre during the year 1934. The final item of business was the authorization of Mr. Lawrence Munro to repair the sidewalk on the street near his residence for the spefied amount of $15. The council then adjourned.

A splendid delegation representative of the local group of Anglican Young People attended the third annual rally of the Hastings and Prince Edward local council of the Anglican Young People's Association held on Wednesday evening in St. Thomas' Parish House, Belleville.

Mr. Gerald C. Craven of the local branch of the Royal Bank and retiring president of the Hastings and Prince Edward local council was among those addressing the gathering while Rev. A. S. McConnell of St. John's Church presided over the rally during the election of officers. Following the business part of the meeting, an enjoyable luncheon was served and dancing indulged in for some time.

The work of weeks was gravely imperilled on Tuesday afternoon when in the construction of a new bridge on Highway No. 3 someone foolishly released the stop logs in the Stirling dam causing the water to raise at least two feet, and before the error could be rectified, the south abutment footing of the new bridge was practically flooded. It was the havoc caused by this unfortunate act which forced the men on the construction job to work late in the night and even early in the morning. An extension from a nearby house provides adequate lighting for the nocturnal work. By working until almost three o'clock Friday morning, the last of the six footings was successfully completed and the men are now proceeding in rapid strides with the work of the wing walls. The working late in the night is necessitated by the time of year, every effort being put forth to have the construction nearing completion before the real severe inter weather sets in.

Nickle of Madoc, Ont., became the bride of Mr. Walter Gerald Dyer of Regina, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Dyer of Indian Head. BOARD ROOM GOSSIP

SIMPSONS LTD.

Fiscal year will end the first week in January and as is evident by action of directors in declaring two dividends of $1.00 apiece on preferred in 1934 and appreciation that has taken place in the company's securities the financial statement for the period should make better reading for stockholders than the two preceding statements. Business in the early months of the year was officially said to have shown improvement and with promise of large Christmas trade and increased sales the company should be able to report improvement for most all of the months of the year.

Livestock

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Cattle trading continued yesterday's slow closing trend at the opening today and prices held about steady on the few opening sales. An unusually large hold-over of 2,000 head cluttered the cattle market. Calves, sheep and lambs opened steady but hogs, as usual, were unsettled.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were:

Butcher cattle ranged from $2.50 to $4.50 while a few choice got up to $4.75. Best butcher cows sold at $2.50 to $2.85. Other grades of cattle were not moving.

The calf division opened steady at $7.00 to $7.50 for choice vealers and at $4.00 for common. A few grassers brought $2.50.

Sheep and lambs were also steady, the former at $3.00 for top light ewes, the latter holding yesterday's 25-cent gain at $7.25 to $7.50 for good ewes and wethers. Three cars of western lambs were offered but not taken up to 11 a.m.

Hogs were unsettled with early bids steady at $7.25 F.O.B. for bacons, $7.60 off truck and $8.00 off car. At these levels the market was up 10 cents for the week.

BORDER MERGER WILL GO THROUGH

Tho' Walkerville Votes 4 to 1 Against, Government is Determined

Toronto, Dec. 11 (CP)—Opposition of Walkerville to amalgamation of four Essex Border municipalities int oa greater Windsor will have no effect on the merger policy announced last week, it was indicated in government circles today. "The government is strongly determined to proceed with the amalgamation," Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary and acting Premier stated today.

The proposal is to merge Windsor, East Windsor, Sandwich and Walkerville into one municipality on July 1, 1935. Arrangements are in the hands of a Royal Commission.

In municipal elections at Walkerville yesterday voting stood four to one against amalgamation.

DISTINCTIVE FLAG WANTED

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 11 (CP)—On more than one occasion he had been humiliated by the lack of a distinctive Canadian flag. Senator Gustave Lacasse told a gathering of the Border Cities Branch of the Native Sons of Canada, when stressing the need for such a flag. He cited the inability of Government officials to fly a Canadian flag at the Ottawa Imperial Conference, which fact he said was pointed out by a delegate from South Africa.

FINANCIAL MARKETS
NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Aside from a rebound in Distillers Seagrams, the industrial section was not particularly definite in its price movements today. In the morning session volume was small except in Distillers and narrow price gains predominated over the board but some of the gains were lost in the early afternoon and trading dwindled sharply.

Distillers advanced slowly to 15 to show a net gain of 1⅛. Industrial Alcohol "A" had a small gain and Walkers Common remained unchanged at 25½. Prices were lower for Ford "A", C.P.R. and Brazilian.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Buying orders were not very plentiful in the mining market today and the turnover at the end of the third hour was around the season's minimum. A few penny shares were traded fairly actively and the group had as many recessions as gains this afternoon.

Noranda had none of its activity of recent sessions but the price stood at $33.00 for a broken lot, showing a small gain. Falconbridge was a little stronger and Hudson Bay unchanged.

Gunnar Gold extracted some cheerfulness from the fact that an enquiry is promised in the recent sharp break in the stock and it advanced 6 cents to 62.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Dec. 11.—Rallying tendencies crept into the stock market today but, after a rather brisk first hour, trading enthusiasm cooled somewhat and the activity dwindled.

Although the news was fairly bright, from a market standpoint, much of it seemed to have been discounted and various operators did not hesitate to take profits in some issues that have recently been running ahead of the list. Bonds followed a narrow range.

Among Canadian stocks, McIntyre and Dominion Stores sold a shade lower each, while Dome and International Nickel ruled fairly steady. Dominion Government 4's were a trifle lower. Dominion funds eased 1-16 of a cent at 102 1-32 cents.

Share gainers of fractions to around two points at new 1934 peaks included Wilson and Co. "A" and Preferred, International Business Machines and Briggs. Advances of about a point were shown by Delaware and Hudson, Northern Pacific and Union Pacific.

An easier tone was displayed by United Aircraft, Sperry, Kennecott, Loew's and Western Union, and Radio Preferred "B" dropped more than two points.

date from the riding would be given in one hundred per cent. manner.

"We appear to have no constitution as yet. How many are in favor of us adopting one and of living up to it one hundred per cent.?" An answering chorus of cheers was the reply.

"Good old Bill!" roared the rear ranks in the crowded auditorium as W. A. Fraser, M.P., took the platform with the typed copies of the constitution in his hand.

"May I premise my remarks to you here today by indicating my regret as a member of the Liberal party over the apparent lack of harmony that existed today, and to state that I am wholeheartedly sorry for the disagreement that has sprung up. It appears that from the sidelines there has been some misunderstanding of some sort among the Liberals of the riding. The only objective any of us have in mind as our share of the work done is the progress of the Liberal party. I have no inclinations toward any one who may wish to contest this nomination and carry the banner of the South Hastings ranks. But what I am most interested in is that when any dissension arrives is to iron it out for the best interests of not only the riding, but of the whole country.

Only Thought a Square Deal

"I don't care whether Mayor Tice or Mayor Cory or Joe Duffus is nominated. I'll fight just the same and give my best support to the people's choice. My only thought is that all should get a fair and square deal and an opportunity to accept the voice of all members of the riding in the matter."

"There has been a tremendous and splendid work done by the executive of West Hastings. Mr. Holton has been an indefatigable worker and with his fellow workers is deserving of the highest praise."

Mr. Fraser referred to the days of 1929 "when the riding was bereft of anyone to carry the banner. Holton and I discussed it. He said: 'If you want to put me up to knock me down, I'm with you'."

"That will always stand to his credit. I shall always remember that. I pay tribute to those staunch Liberals who resulted in ninety per cent. of the votes cast for Dr. Faulkner at the last election. We can meet here and pay homage to those who were responsible for electing Mr. Hepburn and Dr. Faulkner as our representatives. (Hear! Hear!).

"Let us start from this point," exhorted Mr. Fraser. "Let us not harbor any opinion toward any one person. We are after only one goal. On to victory against the Toryism that has been rampant through this country. I raised that plea in the committee room for the united front. On to victory against those who are now in power!"

"You're under the wing of democratic principles now," he emphasized with a pointing finger.

Mr. Fraser congratulated the new president, Mr. Roach. He added his congratulations to his fellow officers named and complimented "not only the citizens of Belleville but of the whole community for their wise choice."

Officers Not Hand Picked

"These are not handpicked officers. They are your choice. If any of you disagree with me or them, let them now speak, or, in the words of the old marriage ceremony, 'let them forever hold their peace.' I've no apologies to make anyone. We're in the open now. We must study and realize, where we are today after five years of bondage the Bennett government has meant. Realize, that we must lead the people of Canada out of the chaotic condition we are now in to the place, where each man and woman of the country has a right to a decent living."

"Let us adopt this constitution and follow it. Every person here should realize, that it carries the autonomy to mark the ballot as he or she sees fit and to elect the man of their own choice."

Mr. Fraser urged also that a lady vice president be appointed. "They carry fifty percent of the vote of this riding, and I, for one, wouldn't want to be without them." (laughter).

Miss Anna Hurley, Mrs. Stewart Dies and Mrs. (Col.) Vanderwater were then named. Miss Hurley did not appear to allow her name to go. The suggestion by Mr. MacLaren, that both ladies be appointed to the office of vice president was then acted upon.

Constitution Read

Mr. Fraser then read carefully the constitution which he held in his hand explaining the various points as he went along.

As Bylaw No. 2 was read, Mr. Thomas Mason advanced a motion that the annual meeting of the organization be set on the 10th as of this year. Mr. A. B. Collins, advanced a second motion that in view of the fact, that this meeting is likely to be attended by a large number of rural residents of the riding, and the weather is not propitious, at a latter date that the date of meeting be advanced until Tuesday, June 3rd. The motion was seconded by Mr. T. W. Bowler. The second Monday in December was advanced by a member of the audience.

Mr. Chas. Cameron gave his opinion: "We are about to enter upon a campaign and it seems undesirable to have a meeting while the campaign is on. I move, that the annual meeting be held some time in November." The motion or amendment of Mr. Cameron's carried when out to vote.

Some discussion arose over another clause in the constitution being read by Mr. Fraser: "How do you want to select or elect your delegates?" he asked.

Byron Lott advanced the suggestion, that the only fair way was to select them under the old system. Col. Vanderwater suggested, that the best way would be to adopt one or two delegates for each ballot box. The suggestion was written in, that two delegates be adopted, on the motion of Chas. Rush, Stoco, and Ed. A. Kellaway, this city.

Constitution Adopted

In the adoption of the constitution as a whole, Mr. Fraser called attention to the fact, that there was need for the appointed officers to call together their executive and then get together and decide upon a date to hold their properly constituted meeting. "When the Tory House meets there may be expected any sort of development," he warned. "Mr. Bennett, unless there is a split in the Tory party, will be leader. They may participate an election before we know where we are. Call your meeting, pick your candidate and then rest assured, that the people of the riding will do their duty. I may have the feeling that Harry Cory of Trenton may be elected. Maybe it will be someone else. That doesn't enter into it. But whoever you do pick I am behind him. But he must win. He must realize that he is the spearhead for the whole riding. He must be sufficient to gather around him all the people of his riding. Getting the convention is only part of it. There will be much work after that," warned Mr. Fraser.

J. J. Duffus Speaks

Mr. J. J. Duffus, president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association, spoke briefly following his introduction. He offered his congratulations to the people for their choice of the elected officers, and to their efforts in electing Mr. Faulkner to his honored post. "We're proud of our leader from this riding and the rest of the country is proud of him, too."

Mr. Duffus pointed out, that in view of the Brockville meeting of Conservatives they now knew, that Mr. Bennett would be the leader at the coming election for the opposition. "This is the man, who went up and down Canada making the most extravagant promises of any man. But he did not carry these out. I make the statement, that he was elected on those very promises, which he failed to live up to. The people were just deceived by him." Mr. Duffus referred to Mr. Bennett as one, who did not legislate for the masses. "When a Prime Minister is elected, he is supposed, however, to look after all the people." The speaker pointed to the need of export markets for this country and stated that the Hon. Mr. Bennett had "antagonized world markets" and had incurred the feelings of Great Britain and of all foreign markets. "One hundred and twenty-five million dollars were lost to Canada in customs alone one year. Through the lack of trading due to loss of export, the railways, claimed the speaker, were losing heavily and the total national debt had mounted up now to something in the neighborhood of six hundred million increase. "These things must be kept uppermost in mind when election day comes around," he charged.

"Go forward with a united front and united action to protect the interests of the people of Ontario. Pick up the torch and lead the way out of the darkness to prosperity."

Mayor Cory Heard

Mayor Harry Cory, Trenton, was introduced by Mr. Fraser who was "first to hold out the hand of friendship." "Mr. Cory is a little late because he was up to the Liberal committee rooms attempting to have the rest of them come down and join the meeting," explained Mr. Fraser.

"I'm just as sorry as anyone else that this friction noticeable in the city took place," said Mayor Cory. "I understood that the meeting which was called was perfectly constitutional. The delegates had been chosen and as far as the delegates from Trenton are concerned they were not hand-picked. We put the motion in the books. I didn't know who were selected until I reached Belleville.

"I've got to confess this—after I left the hall there were about fifty delegates still there (at the Liberal rooms, Front Street.) They were discussing the pros and cons and then after a few moments they decided to adjourn.

"I'm a candidate for South Hastings and I will appear before you and state my record and standpoint of service with the party since back in 1925. I was secretary with Chas. Hanna during his campaign in 1929. In 1926 I was with Col. Roscoe Vanderwater: in 1929 with Harold Holton and in 1934 with Dr. Faulkner. On that record I will appeal to the electors of this riding at the forthcoming elections." Lusty cheers and applause greeted Mayor Cory's remarks.

Mr. Peter MacLaren wished to say a few words and strode to the centre of the platform. "No doubt you have read of the efforts of the Hastings County Council to have the Belleville-Bancroft road operations speeded up by the government. The county council would have been well advised to have sent some of those resolutions in to the Tory government and the work would have been going long ago but the Dominion Government refused to pay their share."

Mr. Cameron Called

"Where's Cameron?" came a shout from the audience following Mr. MacLaren's remarks. "Where's Cameron?"

As Mr. Cameron came forward on the platform a gusty reception greeted him. Obviously gratified and pleased by the attendance in the hall he congratulated residents of the riding in turning out in such large numbers. "As one who has contributed in a small way to the holding of this meeting I am extremely pleased over the manner in which you have responded.

Mr. Cameron referred to the previous meeting of the day, Monday.

"When I went home on Saturday night I believed that I could rest more easily than for the past week or so. We thought that all the friction and trouble had been ironed out. Unfortunately—and Mayor Cory had nothing to do with this—events transpired today to show that we were wrong. We felt among us that a united front was needed. I have had a small part in this campaign, I can assure you that the entire backing of any organization that I am connected with will be given whoever you choose to represent you at the coming election."

Mr. Cameron urged his hearers to pick and choose officers for the organization who would work. "Look forward to the coming year as a successful one which will stand victorious as the people's choice," he urged.

P. C. MacLaurin Heard

Mr. P. C. MacLaurin was also received with considerable applause. He doffed his overcoat as he came upon the stage after having just entered the hall.

"Perhaps I've been expected to say something because it has been suggested by several that I let my name go as a candidate for election. I won't say anything about that now but in connection with all that has transpired within the past three weeks I thought that if there was anything that I could do to unite the opposing factions I would jump into the breach and work as hard as I could. We have a wonderful chance to elect a candidate who will serve under the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King after the next election. It is the best chance we have ever had. There is no room for anything except unity and harmony in the ranks."

Mr. MacLaurin urged his audience to work hard for the candidates who would appear before them soon. Show your true citizenship by your support and faith in them. As part of the British Empire we must do all in our power to observe the freedom and traditions of British justice. Become a united party. Stand four square to all and let the best man win," he exhorted.

Mayor Tice Announces Candidature

Mayor Tice was greeted with the same enthusiasm that his appearances before local audiences during the past few weeks have evoked.

"I just want to tell you this," quietly remarked Mayor Tice, "if any Federal candidate goes through any harder election battle than I went through during the last nine days then I feel sorry for him."

"My hat's in the ring for nomination as your representative of this riding. There isn't much more I can say."

"I've voted Liberal for the past forty years. I've never shirked a vote in my life. I've never had to get up on a platform anywhere and tell the people I wasn't a Liberal. I have told them I was a Liberal, however, whether elections were on or not. I stand for that Liberalism and British principles and fair play. And if I'm elected by the people of this riding I'll demonstrate that I am just as capable of performing their duties as I have been in assisting to manage this city during my past ten years of service for the citizens." (Applause.)

Resolutions Adopted

Mr. A. B. Collins, K.C., who advanced to the platform to move three resolutions, expressed his surprise at the enthusiasm from the crowd which completely filled the large hall and ranged itself about the walls of the room.

An expression of condolence and the most heartfelt and profound expressions of sympathy will be sent Mr. McQuesten from the organization. The resolution was seconded by Mr. W. A. Fraser and was prompted by the loss of Mr. McQuesten's mother this week.

A vote of confidence of the Liberals of South Hastings in the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King will be contained in the second resolution moved by Mr. Collins and seconded by Mr. P. C. MacLaurin.

A third resolution expresses implicit confidence in the brilliant leadership of the Liberal leader, Mr. M. F. Hepburn.

The large crowd adjourned from the hall after the National Anthem with the words of Mr. W. A. Fraser still ringing: "Go home now and start to work."

ADJOURN EARLY TO CITY HALL

halls and corridors of the building were a perspiring mass of men and some women. No interference was offered the press, although credentials were evidently demanded from individuals who sought to enter.

Inside the large hall a small space in which were contained a few chairs had been roped off near the door, presumably for the general public. The remainder of the hall was given over to the delegates who were seated in closely spaced rows. A resolution, the purport of which was lost in the rear of the hall from the babel without had just been read. W. A. Fraser, M.P., who had apparently just entered the room, stood with one hand on the rope on the east wall at the rear of the hall. He watched Chairman Peter MacLaren closely. Mr. MacLaren had accepted the chairmanship during the afternoon in the absence of President Harold Holton, whose resignation from that office had been announced by proxy earlier in the afternoon.

"Will the chairman have that resolution read again?" asked Mr. Fraser as the mover sat down.

Again the resolution was read but its import was lost to those in the rear.

Asked Privilege to Speak

Mr. Fraser vaulted over the rope and strode toward the platform. "Will the chairman allow me to take the platform for just a moment?" he requested. A wave of Mr. MacLaren's hand followed the request. Mr. Fraser was urged on by rolling cheers. With the eloquence for which he is noted, he urged that "this closed convention" be turned into an open one "at which the real Liberals, the masses who make up that party could attend and have a say in the proceedings."

"Let us do it with constitutional authority, in a manner that befits us as true Liberals. What do we want—Liberalism or Toryism?" he thundered.

"Let's go to the city hall," roared a dozen voices.

"There's a hundred people out there on the sidewalk, either let them in and throw this meeting open, or adjourn to the city hall," demanded Byron Lott.

Secretary McQuaid, Capt. Thos. Hyland, and others mounted the platform and had a brief verbal innings. Much of their address was lost in the babel of voices and the recurrent shouts to "adjourn to the city hall."

Col. Bywater arose from the delegate's aisle.

Fraser Asks Question

"Who appointed you delegate?" queried Mr. Fraser. The Colonel's answer was partly smothered by another question from Mr. Fraser: "Didn't Mayor Harry Cory ask you to come down here when you visited his office today?" Cheers and yelling drowned out the answer.

"If we want to lose this riding at the coming election, let us just keep on this way, the way we're doing," interjected Capt. Hyland.

"And as far as Mayor Cory goes," continued Mr. Fraser, "I'll back any candidate that is named by the party, but this is no way to force through any candidate. I say let us open the doors and let the people in, or let's adjourn to the city hall where the thing can de done right under proper constituted authority," he demanded. (Prolonged cheering.)

Mayor Cory pushed his way thru the crowd from the rear part of the hall and attempted to mount the platform. He was halted by Mr. Fraser. Some conversation ensued. Mayor Cory was adamant in his desire to mount the platform and make a speech. The roars outside and inside the hall increased in volume. Some other speaker had the platform and two or three more crowded upon it, all trying to speak at once. Mr. Fraser won his point and Mayor Cory retired to a chair near the rostrum.

Trying to Help

"I'm trying to save you, if you only knew it," Mr. Fraser was overheard say to the Mayor of Trenton as he gave him an easy push toward a chair.

Mr. Fraser mounted to the platform again and in another rousing speech claimed: "The Liberals of South Hastings are not going to be dictated to by any one party or by any individual. This is going to be an open nomination held by the people for the people, at which they will have the say of whom to choose and whom to elect. I for one can trust the public; can trust to their good common sense to pick the man they want to go out and win this election; the man they will be proud to have sit in at Ottawa and work under the next Prime Minister who is going to pull this country out of the mire and put it on its feet again—the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King!"

"The people are now talking. They are the ones who are going to do this work during the coming election; they are the ones who are going to have the say. This is democratic Liberalism. And anyone is all wet who says otherwise. There'll be no split in these ranks. We're out to win this election the same as we won the last one. We're out to elect the Hon. Mackenzie King to his rightful seat where he can guide the destinies of this great country as it should be guided." (Fully three minutes of cheers greeted the speaker's remarks.)

All Liberals Must Have Hand

"As Liberals, believing as we must we must adopt some premises based upon Liberalism. The common man is the one who is going to mark the ballot. Let us adopt the Constitution and go on and carry on under an executive nominated and elected by the people as a whole. I submit we convert this meeting into a properly constituted annual meeting, delegated to select candidates constitutionally and then go on. We're fighting Tories; we haven't time to fight among ourselves. I'm not interested in any one man, or any one project. But I do insist that the principles of true Liberalism be carried on. The properly elected executive of South Hastings Liberals means fifteen thousand people. They are the ones who must be consulted."

"Don't take any of this down," requested Mr. Fraser of the reporters some time previous when he had made his first remarks during the afternoon. One reporter at the press table dropped his pencil and discontinued his note taking. A Daily Ontario Intelligencer reporter continued scribbling industriously. Later Mr. Fraser passed the table. "Don't take any of this down," he asked again. The pencil continued its busy zigzagging. On his third trip in the direction of the press table, Mr. Fraser stood directly behind the reporter. Suddenly he leaned over, wrenched the written pages from the pad and held them aloft. Cheers from the audience greeted his action. "Hey!" yelled the reporter as he attempted to retrieve them.

"I think this is in the best interests of all concerned," he remarked. Then with deliberate motion he moved away, tore the pages in small sections and scattered them in a nearby corner.

"Come on down to the city hall and we'll give you a good story," he promised. "We're all going there."

A motion advanced by some one that the meeting be adjourned was then acted upon. The majority filed from the hall, leaving only about fifty delegates still seated.

BIRTH OF QUINTS TOLD

his life, and for which, according to accounts, he had trembled.

In making his speech to some 3,000 New Yorkers in Carnegie Hall, the man from Callander, Ontario, had not faltered.

Carnegie Hall Jammed

There were no people in the fifth gallery, which was cheap, but up to that section the place was jammed. It was mostly jammed by doctors and nurses and the doctors' wives who were anxious to hear how this man had preserved for the first time in history the lives of five children born at a blow, as it were.

The doctor was not technical. He described how the children were born and what he felt with the most complete aplomb.

Standing to his full five feet two inches under a light which shut him off from the vast yet sympathetic audience the doctor read his speech along in such wise as not only to hold the attention of his hearers but also to cause them to give evidence from time to time of interest by way of tacit applause or bursts of merriment. Dr. Dafoe was a hit.

Later on at the Club Paradise the doctor was surrounded by elegant blondes but he gave no quiver of the moustache and regarded the entire performance with the detachment which becomes a Canadian.

"I have nothing to say, absolutely nothing," said the doctor after observing the visceral development of the ladies in the Club Paradise "to the people of Callander, except, that I am having a swell time."

The doctor is spending another day in New York and thereafter will go to Washington and Baltimore, where he is to be the guest of Dr. Howard Kelly, the radium expert of Johns Hopkins University.

First Week Hardest

In the course of his address Dr. Dafoe said:

The first week the little Dionne sisters were on this surprised world was the hardest. He told of it in these words: ...

The first week was a nightmare with the frequent alarms and innumerable trips sandwiched between my other calls. The babies needed constant supervision and frequent stimulation to arouse them out of their attacks of suffocation. They were typically mature in appearance, dusky blue skin, bulging foreheads, thin faces, enlarged tummies and spiderlike limbs. Inhalations of carbon dioxide and oxygen were used frequently from the first week, and this procedure was carried out, when required, at varying intervals for nearly three months. It certainly was most valuable with these babies.

"In the second week supplies and equipment were pouring in and the first opportunity was given to us to organize and lay out plans for the future.'

He expressed earnest thanks to the various individuals and organizations which helped in the struggle to keep the quints alive, and wound up with:

No Wish to Appear

"As for myself, I have no grandiose ideas about the scientific importance of this event and any desire for a public appearance has never been a wish of mine. The opportunity came to me to look after these babies but the oddess of good fortune has been behind my shoulder ever since. I will always have difficulty in persuading myself. that the story of the Dionne quintuplets is anything but a simple fairy tale."

When Dr. Dafoe leaves tomorrow for Washington it is likely he will travel by aeroplane. His travelling companions attempted to dissuade him but he kept bringing up "how nice it would be to go down by air" and in the end it was just about decided, that mode of travel would be used.

TRADE TREATIES BENEFIT CANADA

electorate in the coming election. He emphasized, however, that he was not seeking votes on the eve of an election, but rather presenting problems to the electors that "might be studied before the time comes to cast your vote."

Keynote Address

Canada's Prime Minister delivered what was generally regarded as a keynote address a few hours after he had opened the Halifax Harbor Commission's Pier B, one of the continent's finest. He was preceded by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, and Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine and Fisheries. They were introduced by Hon. G. S. Harrington, leader of the Opposition in Nova Scotia and former Premier of the Province.

Prime Minister Bennett lost no time in telling his hearers his party was "one of which we are proud." And before going much further into his hour-and-a-quarter address he had recounted how measures inaugurated since 1930 had transferred an adverse trade balance of $100,000,000 into an apparent favorable balance of $200,000,000 for 1934.

This had been accomplished, he said in spite of shrunken revenues, railway and country deficits and increased unemployment—all left behind by the outgoing administration. Today, Canada still stood, alternately, in fifth or sixth place among the leading nations of the world.

It was a position, the Premier said 'to make us proud rather than to warrant carping criticism." The Ottawa agreements had taken a major role in aiding trade. They had, the Prime Minister declared, with force, "saved your country and mine from insolvency."

Trade Agreements Important

"Someone had said," he declared, "that I am trying to make an issue at the next General Election of the Ottawa agreements. Undoubtedly, the Ottawa agreements will be an important matter for you to consider.

They were to terminate in 1937—during the next parliament, he pointed out. It was for the electors to decide, whether the question of their renewal was to be left in the hands of the government, which had negotiated them, or of the opposing Liberal party.

Canada has been forced to grapple with far more difficult problems than those of trade, the Prime Minister declared. Maintaining the country's financial integrity had been a great task after the pound's collapse. "I would like you to know now," he asserted, "that Canada is one of the four or five countries to pay its obligations in the terms of its contracts."

Credit is Kept Up

Thus, Canada's credit had been kept up, and she had been able to float loans and lend money to provinces to help them meet their financial problems.

For itself, he asserted, the federal government had its own financial problems—a weekly transportation deficit of $1,250,000, another $1,000,000 expenditure for pensions, soldiers' re-establishment and similar war recurrences. Vast sums of money were required, and the government had followed a "policy of economy never before pursued."

In the field of social legislation, the Prime Minister said, many problems remained to be dealt with. One of these was unemployment insurances, and his party proposed introducing legislation placing it in effect at the next session of parliament.

Legislation would be brought down also on the basis of the findings of the Royal Commission on price spreads and mass buying. He promised. But he did not elaborate on the subject, declaring he could not well do so until the commission had concluded its work.

Nor did he detail the type of unemployment insurance which his government planned to sponsor—whether non-contributory or otherwise.

Meet Every Problem

As for the other matters confronting the government, every one would be met "within our competence" and "to the limit of our powers." His party had a high sense of its responsibility to the people, and would continue its work "honestly, for the country's best interests."

Its four-year task had been made difficult, the Prime Minister said, by the legacy left behind by the Liberal government in 1930. The highest tariff walls ever erected against Canada had been put up by world nations in the period preceding the 1930 election, and there had been increased debts, unemployment and deficits. But through it all his administration had held Canada's credit high and increased her trade in the face of history's greatest business upheaval.

R. A. R. DAFOE VISITS TWEED

enews Acquaintance With Former Friends

Tweed—Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe of allander, Canada's most famous ctor was a visitor in Tweed for a ort time on Thursday afternoon. had arrived in Madoc on the evious day and came over to eed to renew acquaintances with number who were personal ends of his own, as of his father ho for fifty-one years practised dicine in Madoc, and prior to at time taught school at Chapan's Corners.

The distinguished visitor called Dr. W. M. Mather, an old friend Very Rev. Dean J. P. O'Riordan, who was formerly in charge Sacred Heart Church, Madoc, d a very close friend of the Dafoe family. Father O'Riordon took . IN BED WITH NEURITIS EVERY WINTER

Until Kruschen Brought Relief

"For three years," writes a woman, "I have been sick in bed about three months every winter with neuritis in my hips and legs. Last winter I started taking Kruschen Salts, and got relief from the first dose. This winter I have not been in bed at all."—(Mrs.) D.M.

Neuritis is a result of impurities in the blood. And it is impure blood, circulating all over the system and setting up inflammation in the tissues, that causes those excruciating pains. Kruschen Salts can be safely trusted to set the matter right. Because Kruschen contains just what Nature needs to persuade your internal organs back into a healthy, "normal" condition.

CANADA NEGLIGENT TOWARDS BLIND

Phillip E. Layton Makes Charge, Shows How Slump Hit Blind

The blind man's heritage—sightless eyes, and it is through those eyes that he sees the world—the earth. Vague understandings of the stars, the moon, flowers and trees have made them a miracle to him. He goes through life using only four senses, his imagination must replace for him the sense of sight. Yet, with this affliction the blind occupy a position in Canada that is several niches below that of the criminal.

This was the startling contrast made by Philip E. Layton in his address at the 20th annual meeting of the Association for the Blind in Montreal recently.

In comparing the work that other countries in the British Empire and the world are doing for their blind, Mr. Layton said, "Canada boasts that it is the leading Dominion in the Empire. I am sorry to say that it is far from the leading Dominion in the care of its blind. Canada takes far better care of its criminals than it does of the poor blind. The criminal is given board and lodging and clothing but the blind are left to starve or beg. The way of the blind is particularly hard. Prejudice and ignorance stare them in the face at every turn. When they have received degrees at Universities or diplomas for teaching music or tuning pianos, they find it very difficult to get a position. It is bad enough to be deprived of seeing the wonderful world, but the economic condition of the blind makes it much worse," he said.

Less Help

"The depression has cut great inroads into the earning power of the blind," the speaker continued, "also their friends have not been able to help them as they have done in the past. A few years ago hundreds of blind people got their living teaching music, playing at parties, or tuning pianos, but the radio has taken these occupations largely away."

Mr. Layton spoke of the work that is being carried on towards having the old age pension apply to the blind by Dr. Cotman, M.P., for Renfrew, Ont., who will present that bill at the next session of Parliament. In order that they may be of assistance to Dr. Cotman, the Canadian Federation of the Blind are seeking information about blind people in Ontario. Complete details concerning this request are given in the personal column on today's classified page.

BROKE WAY THROUGH ICE

Hamilton, Ont. Dec. 11.—(CP)—The steamer Simcoelite broke her way through a half mile of three inch ice to reach the Harbor Commission Docks last night. She unloaded a supply of gasoline from Sarnia, and this morning started out into Lake Ontario having to break her way again, the cold during the night freezing up the path she had broken before.

OVERHAUL LAWS IS SMITH'S PLAN

Dominion Stores President Testifies at Buying Probe

OTTAWA, Dec. 11 (CP)—A general overhauling of Federal legislation dealing with weights and measures, was suggested to the Parliamentary Mass Buying Commission today by Morley Smith, president of one of the largest food chains, Dominion Stores, Limited.

Mr. Smith had been president of the company since March, 1933. At its inception he had been legal adviser, later becoming Vice-president-treasurer.

"A very good preliminary training," commented Mark Senn, (Cons. Haldimand.)

"I think my earlier training as a school teacher was better for it," said Mr. Smith.

He agreed that approximately 71 per cent. of the stock was held in the United States. This was due to the fact that the early nucleus of the funds required to start the chain in Canada came from the New England States. Chairman of the board was W. R. Keyes, investment banker of New York. Up to a year and a half ago, when the U.S. premium on Canadian currency was high, the company's dividends were paid in American funds. Its discontinuance coincided with the decline of the U.S. dollar below the Canadian.

Acting under the strict interpretation of the Weights and Measures Act, Smith said "any one can go into the stores of this country and find infractions just as quickly as a motorcycle policeman can find speeders on the highways."

"There ought to be a change in the act?" asked Norman Sommerville, commission counsel.

"Yes."

"To permit you to do that (give short weights)?" asked Sam Factor, Lib. Toronto West-Centre.

"No, so it will admit of the carrying on of business in the light of reasonable customs in business."

Question of Weights

Dominion Stores, Limited, the president said, did their utmost to give full weight, having regard to the perishable nature of goods and the type of scales. Smith said it was impossible to give 16 ounces to the pound all the time.

It was the policy of Dominion Stores, Smith said, not to include in prepackaged goods, a fraction of an ounce to take care of ordinary shrinkage.

"Why should the customer take the shrink and not the store," Sommerville asked.

"The store should take it," agreed the chain store president.

No Short Weight Pressure

Dominion Store managers, Smith said, were instructed to weigh prepackaged goods and if not full weight, to secure a credit allowance from head office. He admitted allowances were not taken often by the managers.

"How can you account for the fact," Sommerville asked, "that in 47 of your stores there were 23 scales balanced against the customers to the extent of one-half ounce or more—that is in 50 per cent of the stores investigated. Can you account for that?"

"I should say that exists because the manager has not been careful enough watching his scale."

"But it is a singular thing," Sommerville noted, "there was not one scale balanced for the customer."

"That is very singular," Smith agreed, "because they are just as apt to be balanced against the customer as for the customer."

"Is there some pressure on managers and clerks," Sam Factor asked, referring to short weights.

"Certainly not," Smith replied. He repeated that one solution lay in amendments to the Weights and Measures Act.

"But changes in the act will not change the proportion of short weight," Sam Factor insisted.

Smith declared there was no deliberate dishonesty on the part of 9 or 99 per cent. of his managers.

Members of the commission asked the chain store president why his company, paying dividends of eight per cent. throughout the depression and rolling up profits of $4,000,000 in ten years, should pay such low wages. The average wage for clerks in the Toronto division was $10.99 a week.

Smith said he was paying all the wages he could although he would like to pay more. His wages, he claimed would compare favorably with other chains and independent stores. When he was told independent wages were higher than his, Smith insisted the commission did not investigate them fully enough to warrant sound judgment.

ELEVEN KILLED SCORE INJURED

manager of the hotel one unidentified man in the St. Lawrence Hospital an unidentified woman about 65 and six bodies as yet unidentified taken from the Grand River which flows at the rear of the hotel.

At least 30 injured were in the Edward W. Sparrow and the St. Lawrence hospitals.

One of these was Rep. Don E. Sias of Midland who is expected to die.

The injured list also included Rep. Charles T. Kimball of Jonesville, Mich., and Rep. Vern Voorhees, of Albion.

The hotel in downtown Lansing was destroyed, but firemen kept the flames from spreading to the adjoining Wentworth Hotel.

Suffer From Cold

Intense cold, only a few degrees above zero added to the suffering of the guests, those who were injured and those who fled in scanty attire.

The fire was discovered about 5.30 a.m., in the second floor of the hotel by Fred Hayhoe, watchman for the Lansing State Journal whose building is nearby. Cause had not been ascertained but early reports were that it started in a guest room.

The Kerns Hotel, of 200 rooms, was a commercial hotel, built in 1908.

Legislators in Hotel

Only yesterday the members of the State Legislature gathered for the special session the purpose of which was to conduct a recount of votes cast at the November election for Secretary of State and Attorney General. The Legislature was to have reconvened this morning after a brief session yesterday afternoon.

The escape of many guests on the upper floors was cut off by the fast spreading flames, and figures could be seen outlined against the flames in the windows. A number jumped those in the rear rooms having to choose between leaping into the icy waters of the Grand River and taking their chances with the flames that had trapped them.

Horrible Sight

While every available vehicle was pressed into service transporting the injured to hospitals, two dead lay on the floor of a restaurant across the street from the hotel. They were beyond all help.

Probate Judge William C. Severance of Antrim County, told of seeing persons jump from the windows or from the roof of the hotel as he descended a fire escape. He described it as "the most horrible thing I have ever seen."

Two of the injured, Reps. Voorhees and Kinball, are members of the joint Legislative Committee on rules which was to have decided regulations for the impending recounts.

The night clerk of the hotel said he had not completed his report when the fire broke out and, since it was believed that the records, including the hotel register, were destroyed, it seemed likely that the full extent of the tragedy would have to await a search of the ruins.

Workmen were to be rushed into the debris as soon as it cooled.

Fled in Night Attire

A horrified eye-witness, Harold Porter, 18, told of seeing one man strike a railing as he jumped from a third or fourth floor window into the Grand River. His body hurtled on into the water.

Many of the survivors fled only in their night clothes. Rep. Green, clad only in pajamas ran two blocks over the snow-covered street to another hotel.

For probably 20 minutes after the fire broke out shrieks could be heard from within the blazing structure. Then they either ceased or were drowned out by the roar of collapsing walls and floors, and the hiss of water on the flames.

Police News

An increase in the number of transients to apply at the local police station for a warm night's lodging has increased largely during the recently local cold spell. Seventeen transients jammed their way into the police cells and slept soundly last night, being told to "move on" early today.

While patrolling his beat early today, P. C. Evans found a bicycle at the rear of McIntosh's store. The "bike" had apparently been abandoned although no report of a missing bicycle had been submitted to the authorities.

Residents of Ridley Avenue complained to the police of a disturbance being raised during the early morning hours by a dog. Upon investigation P. C. Arnott was informed, that the canine would be kept under cover in the future.

A slight motor accident happened in front of the City Hall about 6 p.m. last evening, when a truck, being backed out from the east curb on Front Street, collided with a Collacutt bus. According to the complaint registered by the bus driver, who reported the accident, the bus was being driven westerly on Market Street and had made a left-hand turn onto Front Street the truck backing out after the bus was on Front Street. The impact was slight, as were the damages. The truck driver, it is alleged by police, failed to remain at the scene of the accident.

Three Local Fighters Win Bouts By Knockout Route at Second S.W.A.A.C. Show at the 'Y'

Some Decisions Unpopular With The 500 Fans Present

KIDS APPLAUDED

"Tiger" and "Dynamite" Palmatier Entertain Crowd

Knock outs, technical knock outs, popular decisions and decisions that literally brought the wrath of the 500 fans present upon the heads of the officials were all crowded into the Stewart Warner-Alemite A. C. boxing card presented at the local Y.M.C.A. last evening when three local fighters won their bouts via the K.O. route while three other local mittsters fell victims of defeat and reverse decisions during the six main bouts of the nine bout card presented by Promoter Clem Allen.

The feature of the card was the return to a local ring of Jack 'Beans' Langman who was recently reinstated by the A.A.U. of C. and celebrated his return to the local squared circle in the amateur ranks by quickly registering a K.O. over his Cobourg opponent, Eddie Bruce. Langman was always the aggressor and literally carried the fight before him to win in the well known walk. All local victories proved to be of the K.O. nature when Bill Crawford hung the haymaker on Peter Vitarelli of Peterboro, and Howard Wheeler, the local "little Dempsey" floored Tony Ronco to win with a technical K.O. in the second round of his bout. The main bout of the night saw Len Minicola of Peterboro, although outweighed some 11 pounds, manage to eke out a narrow margin victory over Bobby Vieau of the S.W.A.A.C., while Ken Mayberry of Oshawa easily won a five round decision over Fred Parry of the S.W.A.A.C. in the semi-final with Reg. McMillan of Peterboro taking the 150-pound class on a decision over Tommy McCarthy of the Airport. The novice bouts saw "Rusty" Langman of the S.W.A.A.C. outfight Ted Harris of the Aajmaa Club and win. Langman proved the better infighter and forced the fighting. "Wally" High of the S.E.A.C. outslugged Ernie Nolan of the S.W.A.A.C. to win. The curtain raiser of the night was between two 60-pounders, the Palmatier brothers, age six and seven years respectively. These two kiddies gave a splendid account of their fistic ability and received more applause than any other two boxers to grace the ring. The lads are known as "Tiger" and "Dynamite".

Catchweight Fight

Due to a misunderstanding the main bout of the evening between Len Minicola of Peterboro and Bob Vieau of the S.W.A.A.C. was announced at catchweights, Vieau outweighing the Lift Lock City scrapper over eleven pounds. Despite this disadvantage Minicola forced the fighting, proved the aggressor and won the judges' decision after five rounds. Minicola gamely stepped into the fray and exchanged wallops with the heftier Vieau.

The semi-final bout of the night proved a crowd pleaser when Ken Mayberry of Oshawa won his second consecutive local victory by beating the veteran Freddie Parry of the S.W.A.A.C. Mayberry and Parry entered the ring amid a series of boos and cat-calls that prevented announcer Vic White from attending his duties, the crowd taking exception to the decision handed down by Referee Robinson in the previous bout. Parry opened with a piston-like left that repeatedly found its mark on Mayberry's face in the initial round. Mayberry showed he possessed much better condition and proved a shifty target for the remaining four rounds repeatedly hitting Parry with stinging lefts and over-hand rights to the head and body. Mayberry's continued weaving antics proved the undoing of Parry who failed to locate his mark when trying for the K.O. Mayberry finished strongly and won a popular decision when he repeatedly beat Parry to the punch in the third and fourth rounds. Sensing defeat Parry tried in vain for the much-needed K.O. in the final round.

Wheeler Decision Unpopular

The most exciting bout of the night lasted only one round and a half when Howard Wheeler, S.W.A.A.C., won a rather unpopular decision over Tony Ronco of Peterboro. Outweighed at least eight pounds, Ronco weathered the first round barrage at the hands of Wheeler but the "Dynamite Kid" from the Alemite applied the pressure in the second round flooring Ronco twice with punishing punches much to the dislike of the customers who booed the referee's decision when he awarded Wheeler the bout as Ronco sat on the canvas after being literally pounded into submission with two terrific rabbit punches. Wheeler was declared winner on a technical K.O., Referee Robinson stating that Ronco refused to resume fighting.

Bill Crawford, local lightweight, won a popular decision over Pete Vitarelli of Peterboro. Although the foreign scrapper was outweighed slightly he put up a game fight but fell crashing to the canvas and was counted out after receiving severe body punishment for over three rounds. The count was terminated after 1.07 minutes of fighting in the fourth round. Vittarelli fought back gamely under adverse circumstances only to have Crawford eventually wear him down and measure him for the count. Crawford fought a courageous fight, never leaving the aggressive. His straight left and powerful over-arm right to the jaw repeatedly rocked Vittarelli.

Langman Lacks Condition

Jack "Beans" Langman, hero of many previous local ring battles, celebrated his return to a local amateur ring after recently receiving his reinstatement from the A.A.U. of C., by hanging a K.O. over Eddie Bruce of Cobourg. Despite the fact that Langman showed lack of condition, he plodded along carefully to repeatedly corner the lighter-footed Bruce and soften him for the eventual killing. Langman dropped Bruce for the count of seven in the initial round with a right uppercut and again floored Bruce for the count of eight in the second round, with a series of lefts and rights to the head and body. Langman fought a cagy battle repeatedly trying to corner his opponent. After a minute's fighting in the third round Langman caught Bruce in a neutral corner and dropped him for the final count with a terrific body punch that paralyzed the loser. He failed to rally at the toll of ten.

Reg. McMillan of Peterboro carried the fight and proved the aggressor against Tommy McCarthy of Vancouver to win a decision after five rounds of slugfest. Both lads seemed willing to mix it but the Peterboro youth carried the much-needed extra stamina. This bout proved a crowd pleaser as the fans literally rose to their feet in applause when the boys stepped in and mixed it to a fare-thee-well.

Stan Wilbur who heads local fancy skaters in Belleville informs us that the club members adopted a new club name at their recent annual meeting; the organization is now known as the Belleville Skating Club. Mr. Wilbur assured us that the club and its activities are as much for pleasure skating as fancy skating although the advancement of fancy and figure skating is paramount in the club's sponsorship. To date an excellent foundation of ice has been afforded the skating surface at the old curling rink where the skating club will hold sway this winter, and the club members expect to take to the ice for the initial skate of the season either Wednesday or Thursday.

Bob Redner, manager of the Belleville arena, stated today that he had procured the services of an experienced ice-maker for the season. The new ice-maker at the arena is an old Belleville boy, Harold Duesberry, who has made natural ice in Toronto for the past seventeen years. Mr. Duesberry was the official ice-maker at Varsity Stadium, Old Orchard, Hampdon Park and other well known Queen City open air skating rinks for a number of years, he says. At any rate the employees at the arena have been taking full advantage of the recent cold snap and providing the mercury hovers around the zero mark for 24 hours longer the Belleville arena will open its doors to the general public about Thursday. Due to the fact that the sand was removed from the arena last summer the ice-making was prolonged slightly. In the meantime the local Boy Scouts under Jimmie Varley and Bobbie Brown, are centering their activities on the sale of season skating tickets that are, incidentally, being sold at a ridiculously low figure this year.

Tonight the City Leaguers will convene to draft a schedule and talk over general business. We understand that a delegation from Trenton will be on hand to request that their case be re-opened and that they be admitted back into the fold. Dame Rumor tells us that the failure of any local club not ready to talk "turkey" and pay their entrance fee tonight will undoubtedly mean the admittance of the Trenton franchise. A lot of angles will be discussed before the evening is over, the adoption of playing rules, by-laws, constitution and most everything to bring forth differences of opinion from the various camps. One of the most important questions will naturally be that of referees. It has long been established that officials can either make or break any sporting organization such as baseball, rugby or hockey, wherein the officials' rulings have to be quick and just. One team manager informed us recently that he would move a motion whereby any player starting a fistic encounter would automatically be suspended for one game, he also intends to offer a suggestion whereby any player having two major penalties chalked up against him will also be barred from competition for one game. Both suggestions are excellent ones providing the league executive back the rule to the letter.

A general meeting and election of officers of the Port Hope intermediates is slated to be held this evening which undoubtedly means that the local intermediate group will convene for the purpose of drafting a schedule before the week is out. The Port Hope club is the only one in the group not yet organized so with tonight's meeting at hand, Convener Bill Lowe can call the various clubs together any night now. Incidently Manager Eddie Thomas will have ample time to look over the available material for his O.H.A. team during the city league games that will take place between now and the first of the year. As soon as the arena is opened Skipper Thomas intends calling the initial practice of his juniors, incidentally Manager Redner informs us that the O.H.A. teams will practice every night in the week for one hour, the intermediates and juniors alternating every other night.

In the main bouts of last night's Stewart Warner-Alemite A. C. boxing card local mittsters failed to gain a single decision in the six major bouts, all local fighters having to K.O. their opponents in order to gain the three local victories. The bouts that went to a decision were all voted victories for outside boxers. Even in victory of their knock outs the local contingent failed to impress, as practically every main attraction was rather poorly matched. Whether Promoter Allen was misinformed as to the weights of the visiting boxers or not, we cannot say, but it was quite evident that something was screwy some place as the local fighters always seemed to enjoy a substantial poundage. As a matter of fact the best bout of the evening was between the sixty pounders, the two Palmatier kiddies, at six and seven years of age. These two midgets literally stole the show, they had no previous ring experience, no ring generalship or like of which but they had plenty of willingness and showed future ability.

It has been a long day since a local boxing decision received such an adverse accord as was afforded the Wheeler-Ronco bout. First and foremost the Peterboro lad was outweighed at least eight pounds while Wheeler repeatedly crashed Ronco to the canvas with rabbit punches. Ronco eventually sat down to avert further punishment, he suffering from the continued unorthodox punches of his adversary. Much to the dissatisfaction of the fans Referee Robinson awarded the bout to Wheeler. It is seldom that a decision is received with such a whole-hearted dissension as was accorded the Wheeler decision last evening. As a matter of fact the crowd took such an adverse attitude in the matter that they refused to allow the announcement of the following bout when continued boos and cat-calls ensued long into the next bout. In fairness to Referee Robinson we might say that his decision was based on the attitude of Ronco, who seemingly refused to fight, as Wheeler proved the aggressor throughout. The Crawford and Langman knock outs were clean cut, both lads biding their time and putting over the K. O. punch when it was needed. The Mayberry-Parry bout stood out as one of the best bouts of the evening while the difference in weight in the Minicola-Vieau affair mitigated the go from the outset.

Except for a few mismatches the bouts were clean and exciting. The amateur fight game is regaining the confidence of the sporting public in Belleville and a return bout for the Peterboro mittsters is in order, but the out-of-town fighters should be afforded opponents of their own weight. After all Belleville is not Toronto where a foreign boxer has to beat most everyone present. At least we hope not.

BOSTON RED SOX READY TO DEAL WITH ANYONE

After Burns and Melillo of St. Louis to Bolster Team

MOGULS MEET

Will Institute New President of National Loop

By EDDIE BREITZ

New York, Dec. 11.—The open season for baseball deals got away under full blast today as owners and managers flocked into town for the annual meetings of the American and National Leagues.

Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox, who already has spent almost $2,000,000 trying to get a pennant winner, and Eddie Collins, his astute business manager, were the most sought-after.

Yawkey and Collins held several conferences with Joe Cronin, their new manager, and the word went around that they would like to have Jack Burns, first sacker, and Oscar Melillo, second baseman, from the St. Louis Browns, or Joe Kuhel and Buddy Myer from the Washington Senators—if the price is right.

It is considered more or less certain that Melillo will wind up at second base for the Sox and then Yawkey and his aides will turn their attention toward replacing Eddie Morgan at first.

Behind Closed Doors

So, while the American and National League magnates meet behind closed doors in the first of their formal sessions, the managers will hold forth in the lobby and try to cook up deals.

The principal business before the National League moguls is to institute Ford C. Frick as their new president and decide whether Judge Emil C. Fuchs of the Boston Braves is to be permitted to use his park for dog races next summer. Virtually all the early arrivals among the owners said they were opposed to the idea.

American Leaguers will name the place for the annual all-star game, with Cleveland favored; discuss the future of Babe Ruth; intra-league games during the training season; synthetic double headers and post-season barnstorming tours.

Separate sessions today and tomorrow will be followed by a joint meeting Thursday with Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, presiding.

MAROONS CAN DRAW CLOSER

Defeat For Leafs and Win for Montreal Would Tighten Race

Most improved team in the National League, Tommy Gorman's Montreal Maroons planned to set the stage tonight for an effort to overtake Toronto Maple Leafs, leaders in the Canadian division. All they ask is a little help from New York Rangers.

Maroons meet Canadiens in Montreal tonight and, looking back on a seven-game winning streak which includes a 3-1 victory over the Habitants, feel confident of handing Newsy Lalonde's team their tenth defeat in thirteen games.

Meanwhile Toronto will be playing Rangers, the team that defeated them 5-2 Saturday, in New York. A win for the Maroons at home and a loss by the Leafs would bring Gorman's team within two points of the section leaders and then it would be up to Maroons to close up the gap when they meet Leafs in Montreal Thursday.

Leafs can't see things in the same light as the Montrealers and intend taking Lester Patrick's team over the jumps in their best style tonight to balance Saturday's loss. The Torontonians didn't look so good in that game and are quite convinced the loss was due more to the fact they were off their game than that the Ranger veterans were going at their best.

Manager Conny Smythe is leaving Ken Doraty and Andy Blair at home so he can use the kid line he graduated from junior amateur hockey. It will be the first appearance of Pep Kelly, Nick Metz and Art Jackson as a unit in a National League game.

Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks, tied for the American section championship, both go into action tonight with hopes of breaking the deadlock. Bruins are at home to New York Americans and Black Hawks to Detroit Red Wings. In both cases it is the first time the teams have met this season.

CHARGES AUTOMOBILE MALICIOUSLY DAMAGED

Stratford, Ont., Dec. 11 (CP)—Charges of maliciously damaging a car preferred against George Martin and Aaron Diehl were dismissed by Magistrate J. A. Makins today. The charges arose out of an industrial dispute at the Camore Company plant where the accused were said to have charged a car occupied by men brought from out of town to work at the plant. The dispute was settled some days ago.

RESCUED AT SEA

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Dec. 11 —(CP Cable)—Rescued at sea passengers were brought to Port of Spain today from the Norwegian liner Vestvangen, aground off Matelot Point on the north coast of Trinidad.

The 2,420 ton craft ran ashore in heavy weather yesterday, but her passengers were taken off by a sister ship—the Austvangen —which raced to the stricken vessel's aid in answer to distress messages.

MONEY LINE IN MONTREAL MAROONS' COMEBACK YEAR

ROBINSON BLINCO TROTTIER

The red-sweatered crew carrying the oversized M of Montreal Maroons threaten to make themselves a real menace to any other N.H.L. teams harboring Stanley Cup ambitions in the 1934-35 race. Their early season record of wins is impressive and they have shown plenty of the power that Maroon teams carried into the fray a few seasons back. It looks like a comeback year for the Montreal outfit, and here is the line which promises to be the league sensation. LEFT to RIGHT they are Earl Robinson, Russell Blinco and Dave Trottier. Robinson, former Windsor Bulldog, and Trottier, ex-Olympic star, are the wingers with Blinco showing himself a heady, fast-skating and fine playmaking pivot.

Spite Wife

by Ann Forester

"This much she knew; but what after all, did she know of Stan himself? What thoughts went on in that handsome, narrow head? Over what was he brooding when his dark eyes were so moodily fastened on nothing? For hours he had left her here by herself, frightened lonely. Why would a man leave his bride alone like this, on their wedding night?

Doubts, anger, fear, beating down on her like mighty wings in the dark, smothering her. Her heart leaped and hammered painfully as the door of the compartment opened. A hand switched on the light. Stan closed the door and stood there steadying himself against the swaying of the train.

A tense moment when the wide eyes of the girl fastened fearfully upon him. Stan's face was chalky and his eyes were pools of black ink. There was a little spangle of moisture on his forehead. Judy knew that he was quite drunk.

He stepped to the side of her berth and stood, supporting himself by the curtains.

"Stan! Where have you been! Why did you stay away so long? I was frightened!"

He gave no sign of having heard her. His eyes were fastened on her with the fixed expression of a sleep-walker, and there was a strange faint smile etched about his mouth.

"My wife....my.... wife."

The girl gasped as his hand went out toward her, but he only grasped her chin and shook her head gently to and fro while he spoke softly a bitter little mocking note in his voice.

"My wife. Little Judy. Pretty little Judy."

She had thrust his hand away. She was scrambling from the berth. "Stan! What do you mean! Why are you acting like this!"

"Pretty little Judy...."

She tried to get by him and reach the door. He arm went around her, and to Judy, faint with terror it was like an iron bar, holding her to his tall body.

"Don't try to get away. You're mine. My wife.. Pretty Judy, my wife."

"Stan—Stan dear, let's not stand talking like this." Judy forced herself to speak in a low controlled tone. Stan was drunk. She must not agitate him. He was likely to go into one of his black moods. No telling what he might do. A scene—there mustn't be a scene. Oh, for both their sakes, there mustn't be a scene!

"Lie down, dear. You don't—you don't seem well. Please dear. Please—' coaxing him as though she spoke to a child. Smothering the cold fear and the hot anger in her own heart. No time to unbraid him. Use her head. ..Mustn't be a scene.

Still he held her crushed against him. Their reflected figures showed in the long mirror, close in ironic embrace. Stan's black head bent over her own upstrained face. Stan—looking down with that queer smile.

"You're a sweet wench Judy. A sweet wench to appear to a man in hell."

Silence, filled only with the creaking of the train rushing into the night while this strange drama was being played without an audience.

The girl spoke first. Blue eyes firmly meeting the moody black ones. "A man in hell.... I don't—I don't understand. Why, Stan? Are you in hell? Why?"

Her words seemed to reach him. She sensed that he grew remote. That he was withdrawing into himself. His eyes grew cunning. A small muscle twitching in his cheek as though he set his teeth.

"Why, Stan? Tell me what you meant?"

"Pretty Judy." He put up his free hand and taking her chin shook her gently. "You love me. Don't you? Say it. Tell me you love me."

"Stan—please—"

"Do you know what I'd do if you ever didn't love me, Judy? Do you know what I'd do? I'd twist that pretty head right off, sweetheart. Because you're my wife. I wouldn't let you make of fool out of me. Remember that, Judy, I won't let a woman make a fool out of me! Nobody's going to laugh at me. I'm that way, Judy. I can't stand having people laugh at me. But you wouldn't try to make a fool of me—you love me, don't you, Judy? Tell me. I want to hear you say it."

Judy felt her frightened heart shaking her body. A needle of fear piercing her brain—fear and a sharp dismay. This wasn't real—this unbelievable scene. This was some dreadful scene from which she would wake. This wasn't Stan, the ardent lover who had swept her off her feet with his impetuous lovemaking. Stan for whom she had left all her known world. A moment when she was limp in his arms when only that steel embrace held her upright. Then courage came on a little rush of wholesome anger.

"Stan we mustn't be like this! Of course—of course I love you. But you —you're not like yourself You've been drinking a lot."

"I'm drunk" he agreed promptly. "Phil slipped me a flask at the train. I drank to his health in the smoker. Met a fellow there nice fellow had some liquor too. Drank to his health. Drank to yours. Drank to hell. Lots of good fellows in hell an' one always drinks to good fellows.."

The sudden light had died from his eyes. The muscle in his cheek had stopped twitching. His set mouth had relaxed. He was at once repentant and daring like a child who knows he has disobeyed. He was more like the Stan she had always known.

"Get on your berth dear. Lie down. Rest and you'll feel better." Like a child she coaxed him. But it was the train rounding a curve rather than his own volition which flung him down on the lower berth she had just left.

He made no effort to rise. Only reached blunderingly for her face as she drew the covers over him.

"Sweet Judy...." his voice was drowsy. "Rough on you.... Good little kid. Good kid...."

She turned off the light and climbed to the upper berth. Blackness—oppressive creaking blackness, filled with Stan's heavy breathing. He had fallen asleep as abruptly as a man slips over a precipice. Judy pulled the covers over herself and lay there shaking. New and fearful thoughts torturing her. Her bridal night. .... And that was Stan in that lower berth—Stan, who had appeared like a conquering hero to carry her away with him. She hated him—she loved him—and she was filled with a burning jealousy. What had he meant: a man in hell? Was there some private hell in Stan's own thoughts? Was that the secret of his black moods?

"Rough on you," he said. That was because he was drunk. Some men did that—took too much to drink on their wedding night. It was supposed to be funny. Married only a few hours ago and now lying here in the dark, suffering like this ....Could it only have been this afternoon that a loving romantic girl had stood in the old Denning parlor being married to Stan Carter.

"A man in hell...." But he had wanted to marry her. It couldn't mean that?

Judy, lying tense and wakeful suffering with eyes shut against the darkness as she was rushed through the night...That old safe tranquil life——Summerfield, drowsy and pleasant, behind her now. Ahead of her—what? Judy, crying herself to sleep at last, on her wedding night.

BRIDE AND GROOM

CHAPTER FIVE

Judy woke to find a repentant Stan looking up at her the next morning. Stan, tall and handsome and ashamed wrapped in a brown silk lounging robe.

"Judy, I'm sorry for last night. I'm sorry as the devil!"

Judy tried to look queenly and offended, a difficult thing to do in an upper berth. She felt her disadvantage and snatching up the jade green robe started to climb out. Nor was her dignity repaired by having Stan help her to climb down, steadying her against the rocking of the train.

The glass showed her a slim tousled girl in peach pajamas. Above the hastily flung-on robe, her hair was a tangle of brown. She was pale. She needed rouge. It was unfair that she should feel disheveled and at a disadvantage when Stan, the culprit, was trim and handsome, even to his carefully smoothed black hair.

"Please, darling, won't you forgive me?"

No one could plead so charmingly as Stan. Judy had to harden her heart as she ran a small comb through her hair.

"You were pretty awful, Stan! I think you might have been different —on your wedding night."

"I was a beast," he said humbly. "I don't remember a lot about t. But I now I was pretty well plastered. Fellow I met in the smoker had some Scotch. I had Bourbon myself. The merger wasn't so good!"

He grinned and slanted an eye at her to see how she took it.

Deep eyes, meeting Judy's gaze in the glass. She closed her own wearily and drew a deep breath,

"It wasn't only—that I suppose that's supposed to be funny. I've heard men joke about how—how 'plastered'—they were when they were married. It isn't funny—really I guess no woman thinks it's funny. But that isn't it—" The blue eyes opened, bravely met the black ones watching her in the glass. "It's the other things. Things you said, Stan."

Stan opened his cigarette case. He took out a cigarette and snapped the case shut. He tapped the cigarette on his thumb nail and lit it with his patent lighter. All with great deliberation. But Judy knew, somehow, that Stan was not so cool as he looked. Her words made him tense, apprehensive. The gaze which met her own in the glass, was veiled and watchful.

"What things? What did I say, Judy?"

She turned to face him. Morning light fell across her face. It was pale and the grey-blue eyes were wide and honest as the eyes of a child. In her heelless bedroom slippers, with her hair ruffled like that, she was like a child, a tall slim child, Stan found himself thinking even in the midst of his own wariness.

"Tell me what I said, Judy."

"You—pawed me. And you said I was—I was sweet—"

"You shouldn't be sore at me for that—" He tried to grin.

"You said I was a sweet wench to appear to a man in hell."

Stan took a deep puff of the cigarette. "I said that?"

"Yes. And when I asked you what you meant you wouldn't tell me. You said you wouldn't let any woman make a fool out of you."

"I was awfully plastered, Judy."

The offended dignity was ebbing away from the girl. The bracing anger, the clean-cut emotion of the night before were fading. She felt forlorn and miserable. And Stan seemed so sure of himself—so kingly standing there, trim and poised, smoking and watching her with self-possessed eyes.

"You said if I ever didn't love you you'd twist my head off—"

Stan's teeth were white in the tan of his face. "Can't blame me for that, Judy! If I wasn't jealous of you, you wouldn't believe I loved you."

"It wasn't jealousy—;" Judy felt the tears coming and she was furious with herself. Why couldn't she talk like this without bawling! Girls who cried when they got mad were always at a disadvantage. "It was your own confounded pride! It was rotten of you! A terrible night! You frightened me and you were —dreadful!"

"Poor little Judy! Poor scared miserable bride!" Stan was laughing at her. His arms went around her in spite of her effort to push him away, and even through the laughing tenderness of his voice, even through the careless bantering note, she sensed some deep relief in his mind.

She resented his easy mastery of her. Resented his manner of forcing her lips up for his kiss.

"Why did you say that? It was a funny thing to say, Stan—that you were a man in hell—"

"What else did I say, Judy?"

"That's all. But why.."

"Oh, darling, use your head! I was plastered. I tell you. But I'll never do it again! Next time we're married I'll be as sober as a judge, I swear it!"

"I think you're horrid!"

"And I think you're sweet. Even though you do fight with me before breakfast in the morning! Judy, kiss me—" His voice was the old compelling voice which had always the power to make her heart race. She fought against the nearness of him, fought against the stir of her own blood. A flame kindling within her, unbearably sweet. The quick exulting thought that she had a right to be here in his arms. Stan, impulsive, moody, charming and all her own. Even as she was his own. His wife.. She yielded to his arms, and in her mind flung away doubt and anger, as his mouth pressed down on her own.

Comforting and thrilling to be sitting across the breakfast table from Stan, watching the country slip by outside the train windows. He was his most charming self. Anticipating her wishes. Putting himself out to be entertaining. Thrilling her with deep, understanding looks when the conversation dropped to tenderness or his hand brushed her own across the table.

Her eyes caressed him; for perhaps the thousandth time she noticed—and loved—the clean cut line in which his dark hair grew above his forehead. Loved the clean cut features of him, the proud and wilful line of his mouth.

"I see why Phil and the rest of them named you 'The Duke' at college. You are fearfully high and mightily, darling. But I've discovered it's a trick."

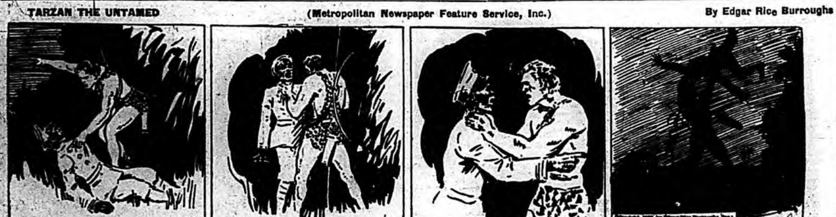
TARZAN THE UNTAMED

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



Tarzan's prisoner told him that Karsenoff, the Red officer, was probably at headquarters. "Lead me there," commanded the ape-man, "and if you betray me, or I am discovered, I will kill you."

"YOU helped to torture and kill Wasimbu, and my Waziri," he accused, his voice low but terrifying. The black trembled, his knees giving beneath him. "He ordered us to do it," he pleaded.

"Who ordered it done" demanded Tarzan. "The officer named Nikolai Petrovich," gasped the soldier. "I shall find him," replied Tarzan grimly, "but YOU helped to murder the Waziri."

Tarzan's arms swung quickly upward and with them the body of the black soldier who had helped despoil the ape-man's home. Powerfully it was flung aside and Tarzan turned in the direction of the Red's headquarters.

MILK SUGAR MADE AT WELLINGTON

Dairy Inspector Tells Y's Men of New Industry

"Canada's Dairy Industry" was the theme of an interesting and educative address heard at the weekly meeting of the local Y's Men's Club last evening when James Baker, local Dairy Inspector and graduate of the O.A.C., spoke to the club members.

Mr. Baker opened his talk by informing his audience that in 1933 some 16 million pounds of milk were produced in Canada. He then classified the various outlets of the province and assured his listeners, that the majority of fluid milk was used in human consumption. Fifteen percent is use for butter, eight percent for cheese, of which the Province of Ontario produced some 75 per cent of the cheese manufactured in the Dominion.

Much to the surprise of his listeners Mr. Baker informed the Y's Men that a new industry had been opened in Wellington, Ont., by the Quinte Milk Products Co. for the manufacture of "milk sugar", this product being used for human consumption and in the manufacture of drugs. One of the subsidiaries of the milk sugar is a substance known as Casein, that today is being used for the manufacture of dyes, gloss to be applied in the manufacture of paper, glue, paints as well as an excellent fertalizer. Casein is non-inflammable and therefore a covetted product in manufacture of ash trays and other articles, that will eventually replace celluloid. Mr. Baker predicted a brilliant future for the product of Casein, now being made at Wellington from the skimmed milk after it had been powderised. After commenting favorably on the subject of pasteurized milk, Mr. Baker gave a few astounding figures in Canada's dairy trade by stating that over 280 million pounds of butter were manufactured in this country in 1933 while 111 million pounds of cheese were made. "Canada has the largest butter eating population in the world, that is per capita, some 32 pounds per head," stated the speaker in conclusion.

Mr. Baker was introduced to the club by Y's Man Court Miller and thanked for his educative talk by Y's Man Geo. Pauley and President Alex Weir, who presided.

INVESTIGATION MADE BY MOUNTED POLICE

Believe Mother and One Child Poisoned in Home

Camrose, Alta., Dec. 11.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police today were making intense investigations into the deaths of Mrs. Isabel Brown, about 36, and her two-year-old son Kenneth, and the serious illness of her eldest child Kathleen, 11. Four other children escaped poisoning.

Investigation made immediately after the deaths became known last night disclosed Mrs. Brown had given the children candies poisoned with a Gopher poison made of strychnine and then shot herself. Melancholia was blamed.

The Browns resided at Ferintish, ten miles south of here, and the tragedy was said to have occurred, while the woman's husband, Charles Brown, was absent from the house. It was doubtful, if the eldest girl would recover.

The four other children, who ate only a little or none of the candy, were Jean, Edwina Mary and Bobby.

REVENUE IS ON THE INCREASE

May be a Surplus Over Ordinary Expenditures of Year

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (CP)—If Dominion Government Revenues keep rolling in at the present pace the Federal Treasury will not only have a surplus of ordinary revenue over ordinary expenditure for the present fiscal year but a comfortable sum to apply towards special capital and other disbursements at the end of the fiscal year. There is little prospect, however, of the total receipts of the Treasury equalling the total outlay.

At the end of November when eight months of the fiscal year had elapsed ordinary revenue amounted to $245,062,540 and ordinary expenditure to $243,458,091. The Treasury was thus in the black to the extent of $1,604,449 on ordinary account. The encouraging feature of the figures, which are contained in a statement just issued by the Comptroller of the Treasury is that revenues are more than $28,800,000 ahead of last year. During the first eight months of the year 1933-34 ordinary revenue amounted to $216,902,271.

In the month of November ordinary receipts of $29,222,631 exceeded receipts for the same month a year ago by $1,454,105.

While revenues have been higher so far this year, expenditures have also been increasing but not on the same scale. Ordinary expenditures for the eight months are $4,441,903 more than for the same period a year ago.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Age of Innocence"

A Heart-Stirring Love Triangle of the Seventies

Capturing the spirit and beauty of the novel from which it was adapted, "The Age of Innocence", starring Irene Dunne and John Boles, is now on the screen at the Capitol Theatre. Noted as one of the classics of modern American literature, the story deals with the convention-ridden era that marked the close of the last century, and gives intimate glimpses of life as lived by members of New York's then Four Hundred.

"The Age of Innocence" centers about the romance of a freedom-loving girl for a man who strives to throw off the shackles of a narrow social code. Drawn together by kindred interests and a lifelong friendship that ripens into love, they are confronted with the alternative of sacrificing their own happiness or that of those whom they would not wound.

In New York of the pretentious, glamorous Seventies, Newland Archer and May Welland, of the elite, are engaged to be married. Now comes May's cousin, the Countess Olenska, in the wake of rumors of impending divorce from her dissolute husband. Kindred spirits in taste, ideals, and rebellion against the limitations of the era, Archer and the Countess are drawn together. Archer, however, is bound by his word to marry May, and does. After the wedding trip, he is again thrown into contact with Ellen. Theirs is a love of real beauty, against which they fight bravely, realizing that happiness for them means disgrace for the family—and far more important—terrible hurt for the innocent May. In the end, they meet their problem in a fashion which leaves few dry eyes but a feeling of admiration and satisfaction.

The film marks the first joint appearance of Miss Dunne and Boles since their memorable "Back Street", and the supporting cast includes Lionel Atwill, Helen Westley, Laura Hope Crews and Julie Haydon.

In support of the above mentioned feature will be shown a funny technicolour Frank McHugh comedy, "Not Tonight Josephine", and an interesting British Miniature entitled, "Engadine Memories."

Du Barry Tea Cups tonight. Shows at 2.30; 7.15; 9.10.

AT THE BELLE

"Chained"

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in Rare Film Treat

In "Chained", Joan Crawford and Clark Gable are co-starred in a story written especially for them by Edgar Selwyn, noted writer and producer.

They are cast in the kind of roles which each has made famous—Joan as a vivid young lady of Manhatten, and Clark as a young American rancher in Buenos Aires.

With Otto Kruger as the "other man," a rich, gentlemanly, middle-aged New Yorker, also in love with Joan, the story takes on dramatic power.

Packed With Action

Following the new trend of fast moving locale, the background against which the action takes place is as swift changing as the drama itself. Beginning with a sun-flecked motorboat sequence on New York by, the locale swiftly shifts to Manhattan, then to a luxurious liner at sea, then to Buenos Aires, South America, out onto a great ranch, back to New York, and thus to a smart mountain resort in the north.

The story itself concerns a beautiful girl who deliberately breaks one man's heart to save a man to whom she is indebted from suffering. Then she bravely faces the dramatic consequences, with the surprise ending a happy one for all three.

Clarence Brown, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's ave director, who was behind the megaphone for "Chained" also directed Joan in her last hit picture, "Sadie McKee." Armed with a powerful story and a remarkable cast, he has woven "Chained" into a brilliant photoplay of humor and drama.

Plays Gable's Friend

Stuart Erwin plays the part of Gable's friend whose wise observations add flavor to the rapidly paced story.

Una O'Connor and Marjorie Gateson are equally well cast as Joan's companion, and Kruger's wife, respectively. Also featured are Paul Porcasi, Akim Tamiroff and Ralph Bushman.

Three Selected Shorts

Three selected short treats have been arranged for exhibition on the same program including a bright and tuneful all-star musical comedy, "Good Luck Best Wishes," "Fair and Cold," a clever and original sport chat, and another of Pete Smith's amusing and popular "Goofy Movies."

"Mrs. Wiggs" Leaving

Just as though the immortal characters of the famous book had sprung to life, the character's in Paramount's "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," which closes a very successful engagement at the Belle tonight, provides chuckles, heart-throbs, tears and thrills of recognition to the spectator of one of most charming films to be exhibited here in some time.

With Pauline Lord, one of America's foremost stage actresses in the title role and W. C. Fields and Zasu Pitts in principal featured roles, and Evelyn Venable and Kent Taylor contribute youthful charm and romance to the picture. Five of Hollywood's cleverest juvenile stars are cast in the roles of "Mrs. Wiggs'" numerous progeny. "Them Thar Hills" is the title of one of the funniest Stan Laurel-Oliver Hardy comedies seen here in some time. The Belle latest new events of the world, and Pete Smith's "Pro Football" with its gridiron stars, thrills and laughs completes the program.

INTERESTING PROGRAM GIVEN AT Y. P. MEETING

MOIRA—The Young People's meeting was held at the home of Mr. Angus Mumby on Friday evening and was under the leadership of the President Miss Bessie Ketcheson. The meeting opened with a children's hymn "Jesus Loves Me". The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary Miss Verna Foster, which were adopted and approved. The Devotional period was conducted by Mrs. L. Vanderwater. This department was opened with a hymn and the Scripture Lesson taken from the second chapter of St. Luke's Gospel was read by the leader. Mrs. Vanderwater then gave a very pleasing and inspiring talk to the Young People. Following this the Rev. R. J. Merriam led the meeting in prayer and then all joined in singing "What a Friend We Have in Jesus". Miss May Merriam then pleased the audience with a very descriptive and graphic account of the wedding of the Princess Marina and the Duke of Kent. Following this Rev. R. J. Merriam in his usual fine and capable manner discoursed on "The World's Greatest Teacher" which was the first of a series of talks which the pastor intends to take up. The biography of the Life of Robert Burns was then given by Miss Bessie Ketcheson and a Scotch song "Flow Gently Sweet Afton" was rendered by the Misses Verna and Betty Foster and Miss Norma Ketcheson. A sketch on the Life of Sir Walter Scott was given by Miss Ruth Emerson and Mr. Joe Williams favoured the gathering with one of Scott's poems. At this time general business was discussed, following which Mr. Ross Ketcheon and Mr. Angus Mumby came forward with two very interesting contests. The Hostess served a dainty lunch which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. A vote of thanks at this time was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Mumby for the use of their home which they had opened up most freely for the meeting. Auld Lang Syne was sung and brought the meeting to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morton are leaving this vicinity and moving to their new home at Thomasburg shortly.

They ran into the path of a pony being driven by Master Harold Elliott which he uses for transportation to and from the school. The little lads were thrown to the ground and sustained slight head injuries and from all reports the accident could not very well have been averted.

Miss Betty Foster was a dinner hour guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williams on Sunday.

Miss Pearl Vanderwater, who has been spending some time in Stirling is home again.

Mr. Adam Dean and family have vacated the premises, which were once occupied by Mr. Jerry Bowers and have moved back to the Ray property at Fuller.

Brueckner was expelled from the National Socialist (Nazi) party and deposed as a member of the Prussian state council. He was accused of "conduct injurious to the party." SECRETARY OF CHAIN CORPORATIONS TESTIFIES

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Millbury, Mass., Dec. 12 (CP)—Millbury expects soon to be the first town in the country in which the fingerprints of every school child will be on record.

Roscoe C. Hill, finger print expert, of the State Police is responsible for interesting residents of the town in the plan, and today, an amateur, Ralph Horne, will start taking the prints of every school child.

. . . .

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 12 (CP) — Police are looking for a patriotic thief.

Several weeks ago someone stole a flag from beneath the United States District Judge's bench in broad daylight. Then someone took the flag in the city hall auditorium.

But the payoff came when the flag disappeared from the main floor lobby of the city hall right across the street from police headquarters.

Philadelphia, Dec. 12 (CP) — Everyone in Judge A. S. C. Millar's courtroom glared at Charles Watson as Mrs. Juliet Watson told how her husband beat her.

Say, what is this, anyway? asked Watson but his public defender silenced him.

Then Mrs. Watson looked at Watson. "Why, that isn't my husband", she said.

"That's what I've been trying to say," Watson said.

Guards returned him to prison and got the right husband, Primus Watson.

. . . .

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 12 (CP) — Emil E. Slepicka was drawn for Federal Grand Jury service and was eager to perform such civic duty, but his name was scratched.

At the last minute, the clerk of the court discovered Slepicka's name was due for presentation to the Grand Jury in another way—for indictment on an alleged whiskey still conspiracy.

Kendallville, Ind., Dec. 12 (CP)—Fate dealt an unkind hand to Leslie E. Pitcher and then did an about-face.

Three years ago Pitcher lost his job in a Mishawaka woolen mill. He came to Brimfield, near here, with his wife, and they lived in a tumbledown shack along the right of way of the New York Central Railroad.

Yesterday life had a different aspect, for the Pitchers were notified they had fallen heir to $100,000 by the death of a relative in Wisconsin.

Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 12 (CP)—Dr. Joseph De Sigall, Vienna portrait painter, starts his day with a half-hour romp with Chiquita, a five-year-old lioness.

Their workout yesterday morning, however, was so realistic that neighbors ran out of their homes offering to help him.

He explained that Chiquita was "only playing."

. . . .

Miami, Fla., Dec. 12 (CP) — Three Dade Circuit Judges have decided a Judge is a Judge during working hours, and not an everyday citizen.

They therefore ruled W. O. Bozeman, Miami Attorney, in contempt, and fined him $25.

Bozeman admitted calling Judge Uly O. Thompson a "liar" during a recent telephone conversation, but claimed he was talking to "Mr." Uly O. Thompson and not "Judge" Uly O. Thompson, at the time.

The Judges ruled that as the conversation took place while Judge Thompson was in his courtroom office, and was about to discharge court functions, it should be construed as part of the court's business.

Chicago, Dec. 12 (CP) — The Chicago Board of Education's economy drive, which causes all lights to be turned off at 5 p.m. is giving local high school basketball fans heart troubles.

Yesterday the 5 o'clock ruling stopped two thrillers. Harrison and Bowen were tied at 23 all and the Farragut-Crane game was deadlocked at 22 to 22 when the lights went out. The games will be played out, starting in plenty of time so the lights won't fail.

CONFRONTED BY BURGLAR

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP)—When Mrs. Robert Whillans entered her apartment here she was confronted by an armed man who threatened her with a revolver, pushed her aside and made his escape to the street where he was joined by a companion.

On checking up Mrs. Whillans wedding ring, a diamond ring and a small amount in cash were missing.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.—(CP)—Empire-wide investigation into the operations of manufacturers and traffickers in armaments, should be urged to the limit by Canadian Liberals, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion leader, told the National Liberal Federation here today. This investigation should include the sale by Canada and other parts of the British Empire of essential war materials, "with a view to the ultimate control of the supply and sale of munitions of war by the League of Na'ions or some other effective National Agency".

Opposition Urged

Coupled with this Mr. King suggested that Canada take the lead in declaring definitely not only that it will not give any succor to any nation which wantonly disturbs the world's peace but that it will provide neither arms nor foodstuffs nor credits to such a nation. "I believe asserted Mr. King "that a declaration of policies of the kind by the government of Canada would not only be right in itself, but would win for this country friends among all the peace-loving nations of the world and would serve to open the door to broad general negotiations which would harmonize and protect their mutual interests."

Delegates Gather

Mr. King was chief speaker at the opening meeting of the National Federation here today. Delegates from all over Canada assembled for the annual gathering of this organization under the presidency of Hon. Vincent Massey.

In his opening address Mr. Massey said that "the electorate of the Dominion is impatiently waiting to repeat on a grander scale the decision which has already been expressed in the five provincial victories for Liberalism and the eight important Federal by-elections in which Liberalism has been victorious in the last few years." By taking advantage of the law, he remarked, the government could postpone an election to next fall. "It has unfortunately been characteristic of the present government to take advantage of legal rights where no moral rights existed.

Claims Feelings Indicated

If any government has ever received full and adequate indication of the feelings of the people to whom it should be responsible, the government at Ottawa has," Mr. Massey added that a government in London in similar circumstances would fail to appeal to the country for a mandate inside of a few weeks.

The conviction that throughout the world today the most crying need for a policy of peace had been borne in upon him during the recent visit he made to Europe, Mr. King said. "There must be a world peace, or, sooner or later, there will be no peace at all."

Fear of Sudden Violence

He was not one of those who believed that early war in Europe was inevitable nor did he believe that responsible rulers in Europe wished for war, but it was now generally recognized that some act of violence

ELEVENTH CHILD MAY BRING MONEY

Mrs. Kenny Leading in Miller "Stork Sweepstakes"

Toronto, Dec. 12—(CP)—A baby girl who might be worth half a million dollars to her r October, 1936 was born last night to Mrs. Mathew Kenny, apparently leading contender in the Charles Vance Miller "stork sweepstakes".

Last night's addition to the Kenny family gives Mrs. Kenny 11 children registered at the vital statistic department since the millionaire sportsman lawyer died in 1926, leaving the bulk of his estate to the Toronto mother who gave birth to the greatest number of children in the ten years following his death.

Mrs. Kenny now leads Mrs. Grace Bagnato, court interpreter, who anticipates this week having her ninth child since 1926. Mrs. Kenny is reported to be disappointed. She has for some time, been expecting twins.

U. C. PRESBYTERY ENDORSES PROBE

Continuation of Price Spread Inquiry is Urged On Government

Chatham, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP) — Endorsation of the price spreads probe was expressed at a meeting of the Kent Presbytery of the United Church at a meeting in Ridgetown yesterday.

The chairman of the probe committee will receive a resolution in which the Presbytery "commends the principle involved in the price spreads inquiry and asks the government to continue investigations which will bring about enactment of such laws as shall insure to employer and employe a fair result for their labor."

The Presbytery also petitioned Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Welfare, to give the transient problem in Ontario by providing work in camps. A personal evangelistic campaign will be started in all churches of Kent to induce more people to go to church.

LAKE DEEPENING PROJECT FAVORED

Third of a Billion Dollar Proposition is Advocated

Cleveland, Dec. 12—(AP)—A $336,462,000 rivers and harbors development programme including the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty project with Canada was recommended today by United States War Department's engineers here.

The plan proposes to deepen eight Great Lakes ports sufficiently to permit them to accommodate the largest ocean-going ships. These ports are Buffalo, Chicago, Milwaukee, Toledo, Cleveland, Duluth, Calumet and Detroit.

Several other Great Lakes ports also would receive improvements.

The report, made by the War Department engineers as a result of surveys begun several years ago, was forwarded to Washington today by Col. Max C. Tyler.

It is estimated that if the plan were put into operation, it would furnish 100,000,000 man-hours of work over a period of four to seven years. This would mean employment for several thousand men.

Asked how the program could be financed, Col. Tyler said, "that all depends on President Roosevelt's policies and whether congress appropriates the money necessary."

HOPE FOR RETURN OF SIAM'S KING

High Official to Interview Royal Pair at Cranleigh

London, Dec. 12 (AP)—A fervent wish that the King and Queen of Siam would return to their people and retain the crowns they threaten to discard was expressed today by Chao Phy Sri Dharmad Ibes, speaker of the House of Representatives.

He made the statement shortly before leaving for an audience with the tiny monarch. Admiral Phya Rajawangsan Siam's minister to Paris and Phra Subarn Sompati, minister to London, accompanied him on a 40-mile drive to Cranleigh, where the King and Queen are staying in an old stone mansion.

The main issue, Sri Dharmad Ibes said, is a proposed law which would remove the necessity of obtaining the king's approval for executions, which caused the king to threaten to quit.

Rumors from Bangkok that the king's private assets are being sold in preparation for his permanent abode abroad were denied by Sri Dharmadhibes.

SEE DEVELOPMENT IN LABATT CASE

Inspector Boyd Visits Border City With Detective

Windsor, Dec. 12 (CP)—Possibility of further developments in the John Labatt kidnapping case in this border area was foreseen today with the arrival here of Inspector John Boyd of the Ontario Provincial Police and Detective Sgt. Frank Crowe of Toronto.

It is understood that since the surrender at Detroit of David Meisner his subsequent extradition to London, investigations have been under way here with a view to apprehending other members of the kidnapping gang. At least one of the men, it has been rumored, is known to be in the Detroit district.

Neither officer would divulge the progress of their investigations.

23 BODIES TAKEN FROM RIVER, HOTEL

Roster of Dead in Lansing Fire May Never Be Known

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 12. — Five bodies, charred beyond recognition, had been taken this afternoon from the blackened ruins of Hotel Kerns where at least 23 persons were killed yesterday in an early morning fire.

Who they were could not be conjectured.

A medical aide in the temporary morgue set up near the scene said, however, that he believed at least one of the bodies was that of a woman. Near another was found a key ring with the name of Senator John Leidlein, Saginaw, Mich. He already had been included in an official list of "known dead".

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 12 (AP) — As fire blackened, ice-shrouded ruins of the Hotel Kerns began giving up their dead today, State Police announced that 22 persons had been listed as victims of the flames that trapped the sleeping guests yesterday morning.

The roster of "known dead" in Michigan's most horrible fire tragedy included those whose bodies were taken from the icy waters of the Grand River, into which many terrified guests plunged; those who leaped to the street, dying of injuries, and those definitely reported by relatives to have spent the night in the hotel and to be missing now.

Searchers began digging into the still smoking debris this morning, and a temporary morgue set up near the scene contained the blackened bones of the first victim to be removed.

It could only be conjectured whether the first body taken from the debris was that of one of the missing, but it was found about the place where Monroe was seen by fleeing guests to collapse.

12 Bodies in Morgue

The twelve bodies of terror stricken guests lay in undertaking establishments. To these known dead were added the names of State Senator John Leidlein, Saginaw, whose friends were unable to arouse from sleep when the fire broke out, and of David Monroe, assistant hotel manager, whose body was seen in the ruins by fleeing survivors.

The belief prevailed that the charred remains taken from the debris this morning were those of Monroe but arms, legs and head were missing and it could not be told definitely whether the body was

Chain Stores' Claim Independents May Buy As Cheaply Challenged

J. G. Johnston Tells Probe There is No Unfair Competition

OFFSETS TO DISCOUNTS

Alex Edwards Declares Independents Without Discounts

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP)—Members of the Mass Buying Commission today challenged the statement of J. G. Johnston, Secretary of the Canadian Chain Store Association that independent grocers could buy goods as cheaply as the chains and were not subjected to unfair competition.

"How can you say that", asked Sam Factor, Lib. Toronto, West Centre, when Johnston said that considering special taxation and extra cost of supervision, goods cost the chains as much as the independents. The chains, the Toronto member said, obtained quantity discounts, secret discounts, and special allowances that were not open to the small independent merchant.

It was necessary for the chains, Johnston said, to supervise their stores and this cost from one to two percent which largely offset their special allowances and discounts.

Alex Edwards, Cons. South Waterloo, insisted the independent merchant did as much supervising as the chain although the cost was not listed under a separate heading. At the same time, the independent did not have the discounts of the chain buyer.

Competency is Factor

"Our belief is," Johnston said, "the independent merchant who is competent can today carry on successfully in competition with the chains." He continued reading to the Commission his 47,000-word brief defending the merchandising and purchasing policies of chain stores and the system generally.

Johnston told of a former Toronto piano manufacturer who opened a grocery store on Bloor Street and was making a success in competition with the chains. The Commission counsel asked Johnston if he knew how long the man and his family worked and how much money he was making. Johnston said he did not, adding that few Canadian businesses made money last year.

"Except the chains," Sommerville suggested.

Profits of the chains fell sharply, Johnston retorted.

Wages By Chains and Others

During his brief, Johnson said chain stores paid higher wages than independent merchants.

"I think you had better amend that sentence," Sam Factor advised.

"I do not want to amend it," Johnston said, promising evidence later to substantiate it.

"Then we will take it for what it was worth," Alex Edwards said.

Cold Weather Wave Easing Up

Toronto, Dec. 12.—(CP)—Ontario's temperature rose today as a wave of cold air that had plunged temperatures below zero moved eastward depressing thermometers in Quebec and the Maritimes. Westward the weather continued mild but forecasters predicted temperatures would fall.

Canada's coldest spot last night was Doucet, Que., with temperature of 12 below zero. It was two below in Fredericton and zero at Quebec and Moncton. The East, however, was promised warmer weather tomorrow by forecasters.

Toronto which shivered in zero air yesterday felt comparatively warm when last night's minimum temperature was 16 above. Kingston's lowest was four above, Ottawa's four Moosonee's and Churchill's 12.

Mr. Willis had set two charges. One had ignited and he was about to ignite the second when the explosion occurred. He is survived by his widow and four children.

'SNOWFLAKES' COME IN SNOWFLURRY

Mr. Wallace Havelock Robb of Abbey Dawn, Kingston, writes the Ontario Intelligencer in regard to the appearance of a flock of birds from the North:

"The 'Snowflakes' those twittering and fluttering advance messengers of Santa Claus, the snowbirds of Christmas, have arrived from the North. A flock of about 100 came here in a snowflurry this morning. Yesterday Dec. 10th, I saw about 50 between Campbellford and Brighton."

STEAL BELTING FROM FACTORY

Some time during the closed season the cheese factory situated near Ivanhoe was broken, entered and robbed, the Provincial Police were notified yesterday. Upon investigation it was disclosed that a length of valuable leather belting and the engine governor were both stolen. The value of the stolen goods was set at $60.00. Provincial Constable Kelly investigated the matter, but was informed that the cheese factory had been closed since last June, no suspicious persons having been seen loitering about the premises during the off season. When the robbery was consummated could not be disclosed. The matter is still under investigation, however.

CHEERY ROBIN SEEN IN CITY

While a bright sun flooded the city and district this morning with its warm rays, a plump robin was observed sitting on the limb of a tree on Charles Street. All that was missing, reported observers, was the spring time carol of the bird.

WARDENSHIP MAY BE CONTESTED

It is a foregone conclusion among County Councillors that the office of Warden for this county for the year 1935 will be contested at the first meeting held in January. Two names have been prominently mentioned from among their number as the candidates most likely for office. This year it is expected that a Conservative Warden will be elected, following the retirement of Warden George Jordan, prominent Liberal, who held the seat last year. The ratio for the past several years, two Conservative members as Warden for each consecutive year, and one Liberal representative.

MR. A. B. BAIRD ATTENDS MEETING

Destructive bugs and insects of the country will probably have a bad innings during the coming year following the convention of entomologists of the Dominion, in the employ of the Dominion Government which was held at Ottawa. Latest methods of control and eradication of the pests formed the chief topic of the discussion. The meeting, highly specialized in character, was of interest to entomologists only and will be covered by a press service bulletin, it was reported by Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the local Dominion Entomological Bureau, who returned from the convention this week.

LICENCE PLATES FOR 1935 ARRIVE

A new deal is in store for local motorists. Today Mr. S. E. Vermilyea, official license issuer for this district signed receipt for delivery of some 6,500 passenger vehicle licenses for 1935. This year the series for this district will be in the "W's" and "V's". No forms have been received from the Department of Highways as yet and no issue will be possible until these arrive, it was stated at the office today. The plates this year will contain black letters on an orange background.

PARKING SITUATION ON FRONT ST. BETTER

It is not likely that Mayor G. O. Tice who first promoted the suggestion through a proclamation published, will find it necessary to pass a bylaw restricting parking by merchants along Front Street during the shopping season. It has been noticeable throughout the downtown section during the past several days that parking space has been more plentiful for visiting shoppers.

TWEED MAY HAVE INDUSTRIAL PLANT

Whether the village of Tweed will have a large industrial plant for the manufacture of calcium carbonate and allied chemicals within the near future will depend on the report of investigators who are now in the district of Tweed making test surveys to discover if the carbonate content found in the marl in Tweed district is heavy enough to warrant the establishment of the industry, it is reported.

NEED OF TOYS IS VERY URGENT

The need of toys for children whose parents are unable to procure same as gifts at Christmas is urgent. There are upwards of 500 children to be looked after by the fire department, Chief Lynch informed a representative of the Ontario Intelligencer. Toys for boys they have in considerable numbers but girl toys are scarce. Citizens who have such discarded toys are asked to contribute same and they will be properly placed.

MINOR FIRES GIVE FIREMEN RUN

Smoking wires that had short-circuited on a wood truck at the rear of 31 Bettes Street late yesterday afternoon called firemen to that address. No damage was occasioned the truck except the loss of insulation from some of the wires.

Police News

Eighteen transients, giving their various birthplaces from all corners of the globe, slept in the local police cells last night, all tramping their different ways this morning.

When an automobile driven westward on highway No. 2 by Leonard Ellis of Toronto caught fire yesterday, the driver eventually extinguished the flames, but was later surprised when the flames broke out anew upon the arrival at a local garage. The second blaze was also extinguished without serious damage being reported. Traffic Officer Byles investigated and found that the Ellis-driven motor car had taken to the ditch following a puncture some five miles east of Belleville. It was while the vehicle was in the ditch, that Mr. Ellis discovered the first blaze. Miss Doreen Fletcher, a passenger in the automobile, was uninjured.

Three inebriates graced the police cells last night, two of them being brothers from outside the city. All three appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., today and were remanded until Friday for hearing. The two brothers involved refused to pay for their breakfast when it was delivered to them this morning. This matter will also be aired on Friday. The third inebriate, a transient giving his name as that of Edward Rouchon, pan handled a meal late last night from a local citizen. It is alleged that during the meal the transient became pugnacious and started a fistic encounter with his benefactor. "A case of biting the hand that feeds you," was the local citizen's retort.

BOUCHER NOW COACH

St. Louis, Dec. 12.—Eddie Gerrard coach of the St. Louis National Hockey League team, resigned yesterday and George ("Buck") Boucher of Ottawa was selected to fill the post.

Gerard said he would depart on the best of terms with the management, but had "thrown up the sponge" after his team lost 11 of their 13 games played this season.

Last year he coached Montreal Maroons. Boucher coached and managed the present St. Louis team last year when it played at Ottawa. He and Gerard are close friends.

A management change was forecast some days ago when Ottawa interests behind the St. Louis venture communicated with Frank Nighbor at London. Nighbor has been coaching London Tecumsehs of the International League in the absence of "Toots" Holway.

The new appointment was confirmed today.

HARRY GARBUTT INJURED BY TRUCK

Slips Jumping on Truck Which Just Misses Head

Miraculously escaping death after he had been run over by the dual rear wheels of a heavily loaded dump truck at the end of Victoria Park late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Harry A. Garbutt, 147 Pinnacle Street was taken to the Belleville General Hospital where his injuries were reported to be a broken left leg, one broken rib and numerous contusions and bruises.

Mr. Garbutt who is believed to have been attempting to board the moving truck just previous to the accident was thrown to the ground when he slipped. Both wheels of the truck then passed lengthwise over his body. He had been employed as a relief worker on reclamation work at the end of the park.

Today his condition was reported by Dr. G. S. Cronk, called in attendance to be "fairly satisfactory". The patient was reported also to be suffering from severe shock.

Mr. Gene Bunnett, driver of the truck was completely absolved from all blame.

"I didn't know anything about the accident until I felt the rear wheels bumping heavily over something and heard the men on the bank shouting and waving at me. When I stopped the wheels had slid off his body just before they reached his face. If they had gone over his head, then there might have been a different ending."

Companion workers stated that Mr. Garbutt had attempted to board the truck at quitting time in order ride from the park. They watched him slip and fall, and then stood powerless to aid as the wheels rolled over his body.

Letters to the Editor

Belleville, Dec. 12th.

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
City.

Sir,—

The Co-operative Workers of Belleville are interested in raising funds to turn over to the local Fire Department to assist them in caring for the needy families and to assist in seeing to it that the poor children of the city are given a Christmas tree.

Now, in our last Civic election the necessity of the Children's Bright Christmas was used by our worthy Mayor and several candidates seeking office. I do not mention this to insinuate that this mention was a stepping stone to Council as we all know our Mayor to be a gentleman and he is trying to assist one and all, therefore his affairs are a busy one. But why are some members of our 1934 Council ignoring the request of the Mayor. I say this because Ald. Thos. Marshall, the chairman of market and city property, refused the request of the undersigned members representing the Co-operative Workers of Belleville permission to use the City Hall on an evening to sponsor entertainment that funds may be raised and turned over to the Fire Department for the above mentioned cause.

Now we feel that it is of deep interest that Belleville secures the good name it so rightfully deserves insofar as we try to do our very best as brothers and sisters of the city, in looking after our children at Christmas time. But the attitude of Ald. Marshall leaves rather an unpleasant thought in the minds of some. Surely we cannot be let down in the eleventh hour. Last year our Fire Department had to donate out of their own private funds, and it was to assist this body of gentlemen that we required the hall.

Surely Mr. Editor, there has been a misunderstanding and time is short. Can this hall, our own property, not be procured to give assistance and good cheer to our future city fathers and mothers.

Thanking you kindly for space,
General Meeting, Tuesday evening, December 11, 1934.

MUST PLAY WITH SCHOOL

Winnipeg, Dec. 12 (CP)—W. A. Fry, Dunnville, Ont., president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, has ruled in favor of University of Manitoba in the dispute over student allegiance between Varsity and the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association.

Mr. Fry, hearing the appeal made by Varsity after the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association had said Varsity could not force students to play with university teams if they wished to play with other clubs, said Varsity was right in its stands. Students must play with the university if the university requires their services, he said.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO TWO OFFICERS

Mr. G. H. Holton and Mr. J. D. O'Flynn Honored on Retirement

At a fully attended meeting of the Belleville Liberal Executive held in their rooms on December 6th, the President, Mr. G. H. Holton and Secretary Mr. J. O'Flynn tendered their resignations to take effect immediately, which brought forth genuine expressions of regret from every member present and E. J. McQuaid in the course of his remarks mentioned his very deep regret that two officers had found it necessary to take this action. He paid tribute to the other members of the executive for their unfailing courtesy regular attendance at the meetings and for the utmost harmony that had always prevailed at every meeting. He referred to the splendid commodious new quarters of the Club in the following terms, "We are all proud and we think justly so of our splendid new club rooms. One year ago this room was a sorry looking sight but we had unbounded confidence in our membership and it was not misplaced. Three members of this executive put their names to the lease and guaranteed the large rental for the coming year. The members of the association then set to work, purchased new flooring; laid the floor; did the decorating and renovating of these rooms, installed new electric fixtures without receiving one cent remuneration for their labour; equipped the kitchen with stove, utensils and dishes. Paid for the plumbing and fixtures in the washrooms. The entire cost was paid through the contributions of the members of the association, with the help of what we were able to make from euchre parties, etc. I can not give the credit for this to the 'right thinking Liberals', neither do I give any credit to the 'self-styled better-thinking Liberals,' but I do give all possible credit to the loyal true Liberals, of this fair city, who helped make it possible, and when finances permit we hope to make it still more comfortable.

Tribute to Officers

"At this time I would like to pay a slight tribute to the retiring president of this Belleville Liberal Association, Mr. G. H. Holton, a gentleman who for the past fifteen years has given unstintingly of his time and talents in furthering the interests of Liberalism, a true Liberal, a true friend, and a fair enemy. No one but himself could tell of the many hours of intensive work, and the many, many hours of sleep he has lost in assisting the cause of true Liberalism in Central Ontario, and in the last campaign his executive and organization ability, was largely responsible for the magnificent victory of the Hon. Dr. Faulkner, and I am sure you are all pleased that the Hon. Mr. Hepburn and his cabinet in their wisdom have seen fit to honour him, by placing him in charge of one of the finest Educational Institutions on this continent, a duty which we are sure he will perform with credit to himself and honour to the Institution.

"But I very much regret that some of our self-styled 'better-thinking Liberals' have levelled some unjust and unwarranted accusations against him at this time, when his hands are virtually tied, due to his position with the Government and he is unable to reply to them as he would very much like to. He has been called a dictator, Al Capone and numerous other epithets, but in my associations with him as member of the Belleville Executive I have always found him very fair, never dictating or imposing his will on the executive but being at all times guided by the wishes of his fellow members, and all decisions and recommendations had the unanimous endorsation of the whole committee.

"And of our retiring Secretary, genial Jack O'Flynn, I would also like to make a few commendatory remarks. Another gentleman, another true Liberal who has been very lavish in his generosity in giving his valuable time and talents, at any time, at any place, and at any hour to further the cause of our Grand Old Liberal party and always with that pleasant Irish smile of his, and no task was too big, nor none too small to at all times receive his careful attention, and many times at a monetary loss to him in his law practise and I am sure everyone is delighted that our premier and cabinet recognized his sterling worth and outstanding ability when they saw fit to honour him and the grim old Court House of Belleville, when they installed him in the responsible positions of Sheriff and Clerk of the Surrogate Court and we feel sure he will fulfill his duties with honour to himself and prestige to the legal profession of which he is an honoured member."

MOTHER WITH CHILD ESCAPES FROM HOUSE

Injured When Hitting Earth After Leaping from Window

Dunbarton, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP)—Holding her two year old son, Lorne in her arms, Mrs. George Newson, with her night clothes ablaze, jumped from a second-storey window of her home today, after clothes left hanging too near the kitchen stove had set the house on fire. Seriously burned, the woman and her child were rushed to Toronto hospitals.

George Newton, owner, of the frame house a mile northwest of here, was cut by jagged glass when he jumped through another second-storey window. The house was levelled by the fire. Snow on the ground absorbed some of the shock of the jumps.

LIBERALS URGED TO BACK LEAGUE

might precipitate the most serious of crises. The danger was greater because in some countries the decision with respect to action rested so exclusively with individuals, whose direction of affairs is becoming increasingly influenced by the forces behind them.

By training and propaganda the mentality of these forces was becoming more and more a war mentality.

"A policy of peace should underlie all our other policies," said Mr. King. He declared that what had occurred in the last few days revealed not only the service to mankind which the League of Nations was capable of rendering, but the service the League is actually rendering at present. "Whatever the successes or failures of the league may be, it is the one agency in the world today of constant and organized international consultation; the only agency which is everywhere and at all times being used for purposes of peace."

Militant Advocacy Urged

It was not sufficient that Liberals should express by word and resolutions their support of the League of Nations, continued Mr. King. They should become militant in advocacy of those policies which served to strengthen the League in its work. Where the League was asserting the need for more in the way of international communication and cooperation Liberals should strive with greater determination than ever "to put an end to economic nationalism, which, in matters of trade, and in much else, has caused the nations to view each other with enmity, distrust and rapacity during the past few years."

"That was true of economic nationalism was even truer of economic imperialism, "the ends of which economic nationalism in Canada is being made to serve." The ramparts of both must be destroyed, he said.

Financial Need

Even in peace communities, continued the Liberal leader, the conflict between financial greed and the spirit of peace was in evidence. This conflict was between "those who are seeking fortunes through the manufacture and sale of instruments of death and those who are working in the preservation of life." If anything in the nature of an "arms racket" existed it must be exposed. Therefore Liberals should advocate empire-wide investigation of the matter.

Canadian business was suffering today and would continue to suffer from the uncertainty and confusion which could only be cleared up by a general election, Mr. Massey asserted, in giving reasons for an early appeal to the country. Secondly, in the "important conversations which are to take place in London next May on the subject of economic relationships within the British Empire and on the intricate problems of defence, it is of paramount importance that Canada should be represented by a government which possesses the moral authority which can only come from a popular mandate.

"Thirdly, the most important of all, this country can only share in the world-wide movement out of the great depression under a government actuated by a Liberal spirit and directed by Liberal minds."

Whenever the election came, he said in closing, organized Liberals would be found ready for it.

ENGINE'S CREW LOST IN RIVER

Colorado River Swallows up Engine Which Plunges in

Debeque, Colo., Dec. 12—(AP)—The bodies of an engineer and fireman were missing after an eastbound Denver and Rio Grande passenger train plunged into the Colorado River this morning.

The engineer was Young of Pueblo, the fireman MacDonald of Grand Junction.

The locomotive went in the river and reports indicate three coaches also left the tracks.

that of a man or a woman.

Estimates of the number of bodies possibly still in the ruins, based upon the number accounted for, ranged from eight to 70. A painstaking survey by State Police accounted for 182 guests, either among the 14 known dead, the three injured or those who escaped miraculously unharmed.

Register Destroyed

The hotel register was destroyed, and estimates of the number of guests quartered in the 200-room hostelry when the fire broke out early yesterday ranged from 190 to 200. Authorities, turning every resource to a final revelation of the full scope of the tragedy said the complete list of dead might never be known.

Relatives of persons still missing waited silently in the cold, behind a rope barricade. As the searchers carried into the warehouse-morgue the covered form representing their first gruesome find, the fearful spectators filed through the death house, but neither their fears nor their hopes could be realized.

NO MORE PARADES AT FORT WILLIAM

Mayor Tells Aliens to go to Own Country if Not Satisfied

Fort William, Dec. 12—(CP) — There will be no more parades of unemployed aliens on the streets of Fort William while Mayor R. B. Pow occupies the position of Chief Magistrate.

Tired of being constantly approached by delegations from parading aliens, who demanded to be fed at the city's expense and to be lodged and clothed also and to have free medical attention, the Mayor has issued instructions to the Chief of Police to give out no more parade permits to these organizations. He told the delegates they were demanding more than was being given to married Canadian citizens, who are on relief, and that the present relief organization of the city was capable of seeing, that no man went hungry.

Refusing to enter into an argument with their leaders, the Mayor suggested, who were discontended with conditions in Canada should go back to the countries from which they came, where those, who made trouble for the governments were treated in a very different way from that n which they were treated in Canada.

PROFITS IN WAR TO BE EXTRACTED

Conference is Opened at Washington to Map Out Program

Washington, Dec. 12. —(CP)—A conference to map a programme "to take the profits out of war" was called today by President Roosevelt.

He also directed the reappointment of General Douglas MacArthur as army chief of staff to serve through the coming session of the United States Congress and to aid in formulating War Profits Legislation.

Mr. Roosevelt called to the War Profits Conference, which meets late today, Bernard M. Baruch, the chairman of the War Industries Board in the Great War, and General Hugh S. Johnson, former N.R.A. Administrator and Assistant to Baruch during the war.

The President emphasized the Conference was to frame permanent Legislation looking to an event which he hoped never would happen.

He said the subject was being taken up now because there is no war cloud on the horizon.

"I believe the time has come," Mr. Roosevelt said at his Press Conference, "when Legislation should be enacted to take the profit out of war".

He expressed appreciation for the services of the Senate Committee headed by Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota which is investigating activities of munitions companies.

This is one of the phases of the broad programme to be discussed.

Pending the Conference the President reserved his opinion of means of taking profits out of war.

H. SEMARK MAKES ANOTHER RESCUE

Guardian at Victoria Park Saves Sam Blackburn

Once a life saver, always one, as friends of Mr. Harry Semark of this city can testify.

Mr. Semark, engaged as the city's official guardian of Victoria Park during the bathing season this summer chalked up a record of having saved two lives from the deep water. Yesterday afternoon, even through a seven inch sheet of ice covers the Bay of Quinte, he engaged in his third heroic rescue.

While fellow workers on the government dock, where he is employed, stood in paralyzed indecision, when Sam Blackburn, 20, of 6 St. Paul Street, was precipitated into a blow hole in the ice under the dock as he attempted to skate through the arch, Semark acted promptly. Jumping from the dock to the rubbery ice, which cracked dangerously under his weight he squirmed on his stomach to the struggling youth and managed to haul him to safety.

The youth who could not swim had gone down under the ice when reached.

Little the worse for his experience, Blackburn skated in the near zero weather the half mile up the harbor to his home while his clothing froze hard and fast to his body.

County Police Court

When John Rattery, Copper Cliff, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in yesterday's County Police Court, a sentence of two months was imposed after the accused had pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. "Make it three months, sir, so it'll be warm when I get out," requested the prisoner. "Request granted, three months it is," came back the Bench as he held back a slight smile.

Rattery was taken into custody by Chief Hayes of Tweed, on a charge of vagrancy. Rattery, according to the authorities, had been wandering about the town of Tweed and apparently in ill health. Three months' warm lodgings and medical attention was assured the accused as he was led towards the prison cells.

A transent, who was arrested recently on a charge of fraud, requested a week's enlargement, when arraigned before His Worship yesterday. The request was granted. Further charges of a more serious nature have also been preferred against the accused.

HOUSING

Under the spell of the depression thought has been driven to consideration of housing conditions. British activity in this regard under the fine inspiration of His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales has been a vital factor in focussing attention upon the problem. Large cities such as Toronto have under consideration vast schemes of redeeming certain portions of the population from unwarranted dwelling conditions. And even smaller cities and towns have the question in a degree before them in the form of houses which have largely lost their usefulness.

The Ottawa Citizen tells of the difficulty in the way of housing schemes on this continent—the failure to reach their objective because "the subsequent charges made rents too high. What are needed are dwellings which will rent for fifteen dollars a month. Under the present policy of taxes improvements private enterprise cannot construct such homes as the federal administration visions and make them profitable. If private enterprise cannot build them and the Government should not, it follows that millions of families must forever live in shacks and decrepit structures. There are no two ways about it and it would be useful if those now engaged in surveying house needs in Ottawa today kept this important point in mind."

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR'S BOOK

The Hon. Dr. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, has issued a volume of addresses which he has delivered since his appointment to office. The interest which the lieutenant-governor has taken in all questions of public welfare has been manifested in the numerous meetings he has attended and the functions visited. That one volume could not contain all the addresses he has delivered one can readily understand.

Fortunately quite a number of the speeches have been preserved for future reference in the new volume "Our Heritage and Other Addresses." These show the reaction of a leading Canadian to the problems of the day especially in these lean years through which the world has been passing.

Many of the speeches are of the shorter type—those of a social character when the public man has a real opportunity to display wit.

The book is important in preserving for the present generation thoughts of wisdom on vital problems and in indicating to future generations what the chief thoughts passing through the minds of the people of this age were and how they faced the problems and what solutions they offered.

Many a man's speeches would not be worth preserving but Dr. Bruce's fortunately are not of that class.

ODYSSEUS RETURNS

On a December day in 1921 he started in to town from the farm to do some shopping. On a December day in 1934 his wife received a letter from two thousand miles away to say he would be home for Christmas.

Odysseus was the classic originator of the part, of course, and, as the many-sided one kinsman of Zeus played it, the hero stayed away twenty years and sent Penelope the patient not even so much as a postcard to herald his return. On those two points Ontario's latest version of the drama is an improvement on the original Greek. The long-missing husband, now on his way home from Calgary to Simcoe, was absent only thirteen years, and he remembered to send his wife a letter to tell her he was coming home.

These slight variations may be, in part, attributed to the fact that communications and mailing facilities have both improved greatly since Troy was taken. Setting the variations aside as unimportant, the two tales are one in their human essence. The same unfading appeal that has lived in the first and immortal one for some hundreds of generations lights the new one, too. Older than the Odyssey, it is still as new as the morning's news, this story of a wanderer returning and faithfulness finding its reward and the long-divided united again.

Feminists may object that the woman's part in the story appears somewhat lacking in interest and variety. Though Homer nowhere hints it there is a school of modern thought which holds that even Penelope's patience must have worn thin while she wove and ravelled and wove and ravelled all the twenty years Odysseus spent gallivanting.

However, in this as in other important matters, modern thought seems to be in a minority. Mankind in general, and every man in particular, is convinced that the plot runs as it should.

After twenty years, or thirteen as the case may be, of absence and silence, the wanderer returns. He finds his wife and his son and his home all waiting him where he left them. Of course he does. Were it otherwise there could be no happy ending, and every man's sense of the fitting in a tale would suffer outrage.

It may be that every man is right in thinking it right that the story should run so. It may be that the joy of such a reunion would suffice to balance, for a woman, the long years of waiting and loneliness. It may be. Nobody knows but the woman, and women are unaccountable.—Toronto Globe.

HALIFAX PORT DEVELOPMENT

Canadians take a great deal of interest in the development of the port of Halifax, which is with the St. Lawrence the key to Canada from the east. Halifax was dealt a heavy blow by fire some years ago but recovery from that shock was immediately forecast in the impressive courage of the people of the port and of the Province of Nova Scotia to make Halifax one of the great ports of the world. This pier, which was opened for trade on Monday by the Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, was the first new step in that ocean port development.

Canada is so geographically situated that her ocean ports cannot be anything but massive developments. With the intensification of trade which is to revive in Europe and in even Africa Halifax and the other maritime cities are assured of the brightest future. While they do not profit directly by the land trade which passes over the Canadian-American border, they will wield an influence of great proportion in their relationship to trade with the Old World.

Port authorities of Halifax on Monday very clearly placed before the people of Canada the situation that Halifax development is not for the sake of Halifax alone but for the sake of the entire Dominion.

PERSONAL INTEREST IN GIVING

How many persons are allowing social, philanthropic, fraternal, business and religious organizations to do all the work of cheer during the coming season? Probably most people are willing that someone else should have the satisfaction of satisfying human needs, though they give their help.

And individuals who do support these causes in an impersonal way by never showing their own interest in a way other than by cash or material assistance, are losing one of the satisfactions of life.

Individuals ought to do a little of the spreading of good cheer themselves. Their influence upon others would be immense. The influence upon themselves would be boundless in the widened scope of interest in the human brotherhood.

It is so easy for the person with some means to hand over a dollar to a social worker ororganization and say "I'll help with this." But it is more difficult and more important, more in the spirit of brotherhood to carry that dollar or what it will bring to the individual to whom it is to be given. There is a personal touch about this which cannot fail to bring a revived interest in life to the one who benefits.

WOMEN AS INVENTORS

Nearly all the psychologists agree that the feminine mind is quick and intuitive, but, always imitative, never inventive. And now, with the example of Mrs. Richardson of Shepherd's Bush before them, they can guess again, for she won the first prize at the International Exhibition of Inventions with her device for finding and identifying radio stations. She may puzzle the psychologists, but will surprise nobody who has seen the improvements any woman can make with string, hairpin, match sticks and other simple tools, on the crude man-made gadgets of her own kitchen. But woman still rocks the cradle by hand.—Manchester Sunday Chronicle.

1885 REBELLION REUNION

From Toronto comes the suggestion to obser vethe 50th. anniversary of the North West Rebellion (1885) with a reunion of the men who took part in suppressing it. It is possible that the survivors after fifty years would want to include also any survivors who took part on the rebel side. They have evidently had time to appreciate the benefits that have descended upon Canada in the years since 1885.—Ottawa Citizen.

Business men state that the weather which is seasonable is better for business than weather which runs counter to the usual season. That is that mild weather in late autumn and early winter is not conducive to the accustomed trade. Doubtless Belleville merchants have found this to be the case here as it has been elsewhere and with wintry weather conditions have picked up greatly.

Fortunately the migrations which came into this continent will never have the effect of the early migrations which have left Europe a battleground of a number of races. Not only are there the large European civilizations, and the smaller nations but there are the scattered islands of those who are foreign in origin but live within the border and there is also the border mixture of races which is inevitable. Migrations of colonists into Canada and the United States since the affair of 1759 when Canada fell to Britain and of 1776 when the United States revolted, the migrations of colonists have been of a type which is easily absorbed. European migrations were different in character—they swept over and overcame whole sections almost wiping out older racial marks as far as they could.

THE KEY TO GREATER NEW YORK, the freedom of that great city, whatever that is, was presented this week to a Canadian doctor who has achieved world fame through having brought safely into the world five babies at one accounchment, breaking all records of modern times. Dr. Dafoe who brought the Dionne quintuplets into the world, and kept them alive through the most difficult periods of infancy, became thereby a world-wide figure of fame despite the fact that he is what is called "a country doctor" with office in one village and patients in several more beside the country roundabout.

x x

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe is enjoying his first visit to New York City, and is the toast of the town, the greatest celebrity to be honored by a sensation-loving metropolis since Lindbergh's return from his Paris flight.

x x

Walter Winchell, columnist and broadcaster, first to introduce the custom of chronicling "blessed events" in anticipation, welcomed Dr. Dafoe in his Sunday night broadcast as "a man who knows more about blessed events than Winchell."

x x

Dr. Dafoe has been telling the New York folks a few things—about families of fifteen to twenty, of fine healthy physiques in women and men where the northern air and the balsam and pine make for good health and sound bodies.

x x

Asked about "birth control", Dr. Dafoe refused to discuss that as alien to his sphere of usefulness.

x x

As to the effect of night clubs upon maternity Dr. Dafoe said there were none in the north and he knew nothing about them save what he had heard, and from that he would not recommend them as healthful exercise for women or men.

x x

The Dionne parents came from a healthy, hardy race and they live healthy lives. They live close to the soil, said the doctor, and there are no blood diseases in that country, to speak of.

x x

It is doubtful if the people of New York who so gayly welcomed Dr. Dafoe, most of them living artificial lives of rush and worry, running from one phase of night life to another, in an effort to find entertainment, could understand just what a doctor's life on the frontier means. The long rides over miserable excuses for roads, before provincial highways became the fashion, driving with horse and buggy in summer, cutter in winter, over roads and no roads, over ice bound lakes on errands of mercy—despite temperatures as low as fifty below zero. Ordinarily a man would have to be well paid for such strenuous work—unless a man considered that gratitude and service to humanity well performed were worth more than mere money.

x x

It must have shocked the sheltered medicos of the great city to learn that the doctor's monetary reward for bringing five children into the world at once was $25, with a motor ride of several miles—that he had brought twelve children into the world in one family and never received a cent of monetary reward—that he gets more satisfaction out of service to humanity than a fat bank account.

x x

Dr. Dafoe is seeing the high spots and brightest lights of the great metropolis, but does not seem so much impressed with it—just what he expected it to be, sums up his attitude. No danger of him setting up practise in New York, although there would be no danger of quintuplets there, except possibly among the newly arrived foreign settlers.

x x

New York can not give this noted Canadian the breath of north woods, the thrill of meeting a moose, deer or bear on the trail, the unspoiled wilderness just beyond the next clearing, and the fine type of people who are part of the north country, clean and clever, real friends and as wholesome as the breath of the pine and balsam and spruce forests which cover the landscape.

Soldiers—Then and Now

—by—

Theodore Goodridge Roberts

Cuddlecob swanked a bit when he put up his third pip. That was very early in the war—too early, to judge by a future event. He did not get to France with the first lot (nor with any lot, in fact, except on a Cook's Tour)—but he had splendid adventures in England. If he was never invited to Buckingham Palace it was a mistake due to an oversight on the part of some secretary or lord-in-waiting or something like that. It was a treat for all of us whenever he got special leave for London. To listen to him upon his return to camp was almost better than to have gone oneself—and cheaper.

Kindly Remit the Difference

I was told later (being out of England at the time) that when Cuddlecob opened his letter from the office of the Canadian Paymaster General the proverbial child could have pushed him over easily with the proverbial feather. It was really too bad!—and a nasty swipe of a wet tail across the nose for the colonel, too, for it had been on that august authority that wangling Cuddlecob had put up his third pip on that September day of a vanished year. I was told later that Cuddlecob went to bed for a week and in all that time—seven ignominious days and nights—refused to acknowledge any other friendship than that of Rob Roy's Heather Blend. The blow to the exchequer was too much in itself—the difference between the pay and allowances of a captain and a lieutenant over a period of thirteen months—but the blow to the spirit was even worse. For thirteen months he had received and expended the pay cheques of a captain. And now the Paymaster General requested him to reimburse the Government for the difference between the sum which he had received and that which he should have received. He was not a captain. Never for a single day in all those thirteen months had he been a captain. Do you wonder that he went to bed?

But young Cuddlecob was really a good fellow at heart; and he was not a new thing in life. Military life in particular has had its Cuddlecob since the earliest times, under many names. Shakespeare wrote of them. English and other literatures are full of them. Do you call to mind the friend of Sir John Falstaff who, painting his nose and rattling his sword and spurs in London taverns, was always (by his say so) just back from "the front" and full of stories of his own heroics on the field of honor? He was but an earlier and older Cuddlecob. He swaggered in pothouses and Cuddlecob swanked in clubs; and he, Sir John Falstaff's captain, had the advantage of our young Cuddlecob in nose, stomach and mustaches. But they were brothers under the skin.

The Mysterious East

That erroneous promotion seemed to have upset Cuddlecob's luck for a long time, so far as getting out of England went. But at last, in late days, he sailed with one of those more or less mysterious expeditionary forces for the Near and Far East; and, as a result of his experience there (by his own telling) the Mysterious East has become more of a mystery than ever to his friends. Such stories he tells! I have never read better ones. He took the Gold Desert in his stride. He out-poloed Marco Polo. Oriental potentates leaned heavily upon his narrow shoulder, asking advice and offering wives and daughters. But the devil of it is, nothing of all this can be found in official records. But official records are the bunk, anyhow! The truth about that war, after all, is to be learned from what "old soldiers" remember (and invent).

DR. DAFOE ENJOYS MUSICAL SHOW

Will Journey to Washington And Baltimore by Plane Today

(By Sam Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 12 (CP)—The vacationing director of the Dionne drama, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, took to the air today for a quick jaunt to Washington and Baltimore. He hoped to be back tonight to see another musical show.

It was the small hours of the morning when he got to bed after another night along Broadway—the bawl and bare belt, some call it—but the rigorous life he leads in Northern Ontario stood him well when he had to roll out to catch a morning aeroplane for the Capital.

At the end of the first aeroplane ride of his career he was to be greeted by Hon. William D. Herridge, Canadian Minister to Washington, and Director William Kleine of the American Red Cross. Stopping off in Baltimore on the way back to New York, Dr. Dafoe had a visit at famed Johns Hopkins Hospital on schedule.

Sees Musical Show

Last night the little backwoods physician, who gained international renown through delivering the Dionne quintuplets, went to see "Life Begins at 8.40." He just about stopped the show, taking the play away from a galaxy of humorists and platinum blondes heavy on looks and light on clothes.

Perhaps the doctor thought: "For me, life begins at 51."

From the theatre his hosts, public relations counsel—otherwise publicity men and no doing of the shy little Canadian—and motorcycle escort whisked him off to a night-club, sirens screaming and crowds gaping. Everywhere Dr. Dafoe was given a great hand, his conquest of the metropolis complete, Broadway and all.

It was a repetition of his first night out, Monday.

If Dr. Dafoe gets back to New York in time tonight he wants to see another show, "Everything Goes," in which girls and platinum blonde hair are glorified.

Thursday morning he will probably start shooting back to Callander, Ont., and the quintuplets. Telegraphic reports on their well-being come to him regularly.

ROYAL OAK BIBLE CLASS REUNITED

Mrs. J. S. McMullen of City a Former Teacher Attends

Oshawa, Dec. 12.—Sunday afternoon members and former members of the Comrade Class and Royal Oak Bible Class gathered in Albert Street United Church for a reunion service. The class was originally started by Miss Nash, assisted by the Waite brothers and Walter Dyer, in October, 1913, in Belgrove Mission, Sunnyside. After the erection of the original Albert Street Church, the class met there. During this period a large number of the members enlisted in the Great War. Miss Nash was followed by Mrs. McMullen, after which Ed. Sampson took charge as teacher. After a lapse of two or three years the class was again organized and is firmly established and meeting each Sunday. The present teacher is Jack Naylor, assisted by Harold Lemon.

Over two hundred invitations had previously been sent out, but owing to the cold weather out of town visitors were not present in large numbers. Rev. Mr. Manning of Brampton, Mrs. McMullen of Belleville and other former members from out of town were present.

After a friendly half-hour and the signing of the register, the service started at 2.30. Welcome was given by the President of the Class, Wilfred Claus. After a preliminary worship service, a history of the class was given by Harry Willis, a former secretary, followed by letters being read by Clayton Lee to the assembly from former members, who were unable to attend and also from Rev. Mr. Truscott of Lansdowne, Ontario.

After Bill Jackson had read a list of casualties, a very fitting memorial service in memory of former members who gave their lives in the Great War, was held. After a minute's silence the Last Post was sounded by Bugler Jack Smith, followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Manning.

Former members were called upon for reminiscences of former days and the following in turn spoke of their past experiences, of their respective teachers and what the class had meant to them in developing their characters. The speakers were Joe Waite, one of the original class members, Lew Trick, Cecil Bint and Jack Reade.

During the afternoon, Mr. Manning, Miss Nash and Mrs. McMullen spoke briefly. Mr. Sampson was chairman for the occasion.

Music was ably provided by a quartette consisting of the following members; F. Curtis, F. Cooper, A. Skingsley, G. Weales. Ed. Kitchen, as soloist, was assisted by Mr. Norman Williams.

The evening service was well attended and Dr. E. Smith addressed his remarks to suit the occasion, urging each one to pursue the noblest and finest traits of character. By adding these traits, evil and base traits are taken from us. His text was as follows: 2nd epistle of Peter, chapter 1, verses 5, 6, 7, "Add to your faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity."

Letters to the Editor

FARMING AND DAIRY INDUSTRY

Editor of Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—

I would like to express my opinion on a subject which is of most vital interest to the farmer at present.

Speaking from a farmer's viewpoint, I think one of the most serious problems of today is the dairy industry.

While electioneering in 1930 Mr. John A. Weese, our Conservative Member, asked the Prince Edward County farmers if we were satisfied to take as low a price for cheese as we were getting, if so, he was not.

During the same election campaign, Hon. R. B. Bennett was quoted as saying 'I will use tariffs to blast my way into the markets of the world, independent of Great Britain or any other country.'

I would like to know how any true British subject can vote for a man like that.

Coming back to our present problem I think Mr. Bennett's quotations were right in this way, it looks to me as though he has blasted the bottom out of our cheese market.

Under the Liberal reign butter was allowed into this country with a very small rate of tariff, from New Zealand, to the extent of four million dollars worth a year and in return for this, New Zealand took sixteen million dollars worth of manufactured goods from Canada, thus giving the laborer work at a fairly good wage, and helping the employment situation.

In the early months of 1930 including May, June and July, cheese was a better price than in 1929, thus proving the betterment of our former Liberal Legislation.

When the Bennett Government came into power, what happened? They put a high rate of tariff on butter and other goods coming into this country. Consequently more creameries sprang into operation. Our cheese export fell short, thus losing our cheese trade with Great Britain.

Our cheese industry is in a rut and cannot be taken out unless a change of Legislation is made. What this country needs is lower tariff rates on butter, thus forcing more milk into cheese and by doing this help regain our cheese trade with Great Britain. Tariff rates on butter do not only need to be adjusted but most everything in comparison, then maybe Canada could regain their former trade treaties with other countries.

One thing is certain, this country must have an outlet for its farm produce, we certainly cannot consume it ourselves. By forcing the majority of our milk into cheese, and securing our market is the only way we can expect to get more than temporary relief in the dairy industry.

I think too, that the Government should take steps to investigate and revise the cheese situation. Instead of having an open bid market for every small cheese board, represented by a salesman from each factory, drawing a salary to watch our cheese being given away, we should have one salesman, Government appointed, representing several of these cheese boards, and a Government appointed cheese board and packing plants at Montreal, thus giving regularly export, with closed bids direct from Great Britain, doing away with middle graft and overhead expenses, which come out of the farmer.

No doubt some people would criticize a Government appointed cheese-board, but I think it's time we had a Federal Government similar to Premier Hepburn's, that would clean up some of the middle graft and profiteering that has been coming out of the public.

I wonder if Mr. Weese would be satisfied with our present dairy situation, if he was not getting a good salary from Ottawa. I wonder, too, if the Hon. H. H. Stevens sanctioned the butter tariff, also the sugar, hemp and other taxes and tariffs, of which a good majority come out of the farmer. If so, what has he got to bark about, or any other Conservative Member, who wishes to regain the confidence of the people.

It is not Great Britain's fault that cheese prices paid to the farmer are as low as are being received. You can't expect purchasers to take your produce, if you prevent them from selling you theirs, thus "causing animosity." The present cheese crisis of today is in exactly the same rut.

Under the evidential circumstances three is only one thing left to do.

If we farmers, regardless of politics, have backbone enough to stand up and fight for our rights by working and voting for a Liberal Government where prosperity and equalization awaits, due to their course of Legislation, which will again remedy the dairy industry, we will make dairying worth our while.

Thanking you for this space in your paper, I am

Yours truly,

ELICK T. BRUMMEL,

Prince Edward County farmer.

AIR RACE ACROSS CANADA MOOTED

Winner to Receive Pot of Gold and Second, Silver

By EVERETT GRAEME

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, Dec. 12—(CP)— An international air race across Canada with a real pot of gold at the rainbow's end for the winner is proposed by William Templeton, manager of the Vancouver air port.

With a view to drawing attention to the future of aviation in Canada and stimulating interest in a trans-Canada air mail service, Templeton proposed the air derby across the Dominion with the prize a pot brimming with the precious yellow metal mined from the gold fields of British Columbia. A pot of silver would await the airman finishing second.

The fliers would start from Halifax on the Atlantic seaboard and follow the route already mapped out for a trans-Canada air mail service. Over the populous industrial and farm districts of Eastern Canada and the rolling wheat fields of the prairies, the airmen would wing their way to the foothills of the Rockies. Then they would fly over the towering snow-capped peaks and yawning chasms with their treacherous downdrafts below, to Vancouver, Canada's gateway to the Pacific and terminus of the race.

Qualified fliers of proven ability would be eligible to compete in the race, thus making it an international classic and possibly attracting some of the greatest names in aviation on the continent.

Aero clubs and aviation men throughout Canada have been canvassed on the proposal, Templeton said, and have enthusiastically agreed it would provide a great impetus to aviation in Canada.

Definite action on the project is expected next spring, the Vancouver air port official concluded. The size of the pot of gold and pot of silver would be matters for discussion.

KIWANIANS TO BE KIDDIES' HOSTS

Sixty-Seven Children to be Presented With Christmas Gifts

Kiwanians will look after sixty-seven kiddies this year, the Club was told at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday by Chester Smith, in charge of this activity. The children are picked from those, who are on relief, the head of the family being unable to work and who is drawing voucher relief. They will have all the joys of Christmas time the club was told and it is to be hoped, that the sale of Christmas seals will materially assist this work. The children at the Shelter will not be forgotten for on Wednesday next the annual pilgrimage to that institution will take place and a Christmas Tree will be held and every child will receive a gift from the Kiwanis members.

The piece de resistance of the luncheon was the splendid address given by Kiwanian J. O. Herity on the "Unseen". The address was something different and gave the members something to think about as they went about their daily toil. The address will make them observant to the wonderful things, that nature provides and keeps in the proper course. The speaker was introduced by President Eddie Shapiro, the same officer expressing the thanks of the club for the address. Arthur Sills kept the members in good humor with community singing, while Fred Smythe collected the tolls. The report on the sale of Christmas seals was given, which showed the sale progressing favorably and that a fair sum will be realized for club purposes.

Sandy Lummiss Booster

Sandy Lummiss, was the booster of the day, the baker member of the club providing the Roman Meal buns and also hot baked buns for the luncheon. Arthur Sills and Cliff Barragar will get some cheap bread for the next few weeks, they being the winners of the draw. Sandy told the members, that the bread business was the hardest hit of any industry in the city and the business had been used as a football. He explained there was a difference in loaves of bread and to prove his statement, passed around some material used in bread making before it was sifted. The Harris Bread Company, the speaker said, was the first firm in the city to instal a sifter and that there was only one more sifter in the city.

"For a few minutes" said the speaker "we are going to explore the realm of the unseen and for an illustration I am going to use the common apple." Cutting the apple in two the speaker showed the members that there were five compartments in which the seeds were enclosed, the same number of indentations being on the outside of the apple near the end. "Nature is found of odd numbers" said Mr. Herity, "yet I have been looking for years for an ear of corn with an odd number of rows on it." The speaker explained the routine by which the seeds get in the centre of the apple and the beautiful sight an apple tree in bloom is. He showed how the pollen of the blossom was distributed by the bees and the spikes that contain this pollen and waxy substance. "In this invisible atom there is power of control" said the speaker. "It is an exhibition of life and we can trace up the vital processes but life is an inscrutable mystery till the end of time."

Electricity, heat, were given as something we know only part about. "No one has seen heat or electricity yet we can see the possibilities and the benefits, said Mr. Herity. Referring to the Service Club movement started in Chicago some 29 years ago, he claimed, that the "Unseen force was the guiding basis. Definition of Faith, Love, Hatred, Life and Death cannot be given but they are constantly with us and as long as God is in His heaven all is right with the world" said the speaker in conclusion.

Joe E. Brown and Frank McHugh in "6 Day Bike Rider" coming to the Capitol tomorrow.

AT THE BELLE

"Chained"

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable at Their Best

The co-starring appearance of Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in a photoplay is always an occasion for dancing in the streets so far as film fans are concerned. The countless admirers of this magnetic duo will not be let down in their latest picture "Chained," which is now at the Belle, matinee and evening, and ends Friday, for the picture is by far the best in which either the vivid Miss Crawford or Gable has appeared, and furnishes sparkling entertainment from its opening reel to its final fadeout.

Made-to-Order Story

Based on an original story by Edgar Selwyn, the narrative of "Chained" concerns itself with a girl who by force of circumstances is tied to one man but loves another. The various romantic and sometimes tragic interludes thru' which the girl passes before she is able to find release from her bondage make for a story which holds its full measure of lightning-like action, suspense and dramatic power. It is obvious that the story was written especially for Miss Crawford and Gable for it is skillfully designed to give each the sort of role in which the respective stars have proved themselves outstanding in the past.

Credit to Director

No little of the success of this latest Crawford-Gable romance is due its director, the noted Clarence Brown, whose distinguished touches set every production in which he has a hand far apart from the ordinary run of film fare. The entire production has been conceived and photographed with finish and good taste. The settings, both interior and exterior, representing a South American ranch, are extremely interesting, while it need hardly be said that Miss Crawford's new wardrobe will set plenty of feminine tongues wagging.

Excellent support is given the stars by a reliable cast which includes Otto Kruger in the role next prominent to Gable's, the amusing Stuart Erwin, Una O'Connor, who will be remembered for her recent appearance at the Belle in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and the cockney servant in "Cavalcade" and Marjorie Gateson of the New York stage.

George Folsey outdoes himself with the photography, and the same thing can well be said of the Adrian gowns, which are much in evidence.

Excellent Junior Feature

An excellent array of junior features have been assembled for presentation on the same program including an all-star musical comedy, "Fair and Cold," a speedy and peppy sport chat, and the Belle Latest News of the World, revealing news when it is news.

"College Rhythm" Next

Girls, melody and laughs play an equal part in Paramount's Campus comedy "College Rhythm" coming to the Belle Saturday with radio's ace star, Joe Penner, heading the featured part. Directed by Norman Taurog, "College Rhythm" presents Penner, Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie, Helen Mack, Lyda Roberti and Mary Brian in a story about the campus cut-ups who turned the department store business into a college football campaign. Melodies for "College Rhythm" were written by Gordon and Revel.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Six Day Bike Rider"

Joe E. Brown in His Wildest Laugh Riot!

Joe E. Brown, the wide mouthed comedian, will come to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday as a "6 Day Bike Rider", a production that is said to be the biggest rib tickler in which Joe has yet appeared.

The story, by Earl Baldwin, is crammed with hilarious situations, side-splitting gags, romance and heart throbs, and in addition carries enough thrills to make a melodrama.

Joe, as the village wise cracker and local Don Juan, becomes jealous of a professional trick bicycle rider, and tells the neighbors that he will "show" them by going to the big city and winning the great six day race.

He takes his pal along with him and the two get jobs as messenger boys in order to eat until they get the big prize for the winning team. Joe sees his rival, imagines his girl has eloped with him, starts a battle and is thrown into jail on the very day the race is scheduled to start.

His experiences behind the bars, before he is bailed out, are plenty amusing, but are nothing compared to the ridiculous situations in the race after he gets into it. This is not only riotously funny, but carries some of the biggest thrills ever shown on the screen.

Twenty-four professional riders take part in the contest which was held on a real racing track and there are enough spills to send the chills up anyone's spine. In one scene alone sixteen riders pile up in a grand tangle after two of the machines collide.

There is a talented cast of comedy players in the important roles. Frank McHugh, who plays the part of Joe's pal, and rides as his team mate, is a far better comedian than he is a rider and Maxine Doyle is lovely in her role of Joe's sweetheart. Others in the cast are Gordon Westcott, Arthur Aylesworth and Dorothy Christie.

"The Moonstone"

Those countless screen fans who delight in experiencing cold chills play up and down their spines will enjoy the latest mystery melodrama "Moonstone", the thrilling companion feature with David Manners and Phyllis Barry in the featured leads.

The story involves the inheritance of the stone, from which the picture derives its title, by Ann Verinder, played by Miss Barry, and its disappearance on the same night that she receives it.

Suspicion is cast successively on each member of the stellar cast which includes, besides those mentioned, Jameson Thomas, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Herbert Bunston, and Evelyn Bostock.

Capitol News and a comi-color cartoon "Aladdin and His Lamp" complete the programme.

Last complete show 8:45.

Leaving Tonight

"The Age of Innocence", Edith Wharton's prize story, starring Irene Dunne and John Boles.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Toronto, Dec. 12.—(CP)—Judgment was reserved yesterday at Osgoode Hall in the Northumberland-Durham dispute over cost of maintaining certain bridges. The case was launched to test the act requiring the costs to be divided between the United counties.

A motion was sought on behalf of George H. Hooton and other ratepayers for an order of Mandamus compelling enforcement of the Act.

"NERVES" she called it
—it was really her KIDNEYS

She tried to get through each day as best she could. Never comfortable—always distressed. Low in vitality—lower in spirits. She hadn't thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills—for over three generations the favorite kidney tonic and remedy. Seeking relief she immediately took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy and restful sleep. Headache, backache, and other signs of faulty kidneys soon disappeared.

DISTRESS SIGNALS NOW BEING TRACED

Marine Authorities Believe At Least One Ship in Trouble

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Maritime authorities were seeking to trace distress signals from the sea today in the belief that at least one ship and maybe two encountered trouble during the night.

Last night two S.O.S. calls from an unidentified ship were received by Mackay Radio. Later the Steamer F. J. Luckenbach picked up the signals in the Caribbean, but reported she was unable to identify the vessel. Mackay officials said the calls had been distinct but that heavy interference blotted out the rest of the messages.

Later in the night Radio Marine Corporation said its Port Arthur, Tex., station had picked up a message from the steamer American saying the ship had sighted another vessel sending up rockets. The American gave its position at Lat. 13:47 north, Long. 95:09 west, which would place it in the Pacific Ocean south of Mexico and west of Salvador.

Shipping authorities said it was possible the S.O.S. signals came from the same vessel, which sent up the rockets.

DR. ALLEN R. DAFOE MEETS PRESIDENT

Conversation Only About Five Little Babes At Callander

Washington, Dec. 12. — President Roosevelt and the doctor who brought the Dionne quintuplets into the world met for the first time today and talked about babies.

"We talked only about those five little babies of mine," jolly Dr. A. R. Dafoe of Callander, Ont., said as he left the president's office.

It must have been a merry conversation, for the brown eyes of the doctor were sparkling behind his spectacles, and he smiled beneath his close-cropped little mustache.

Asked for details, the doctor said brightly: "Oh, he just wanted to know about odds and ends.

"I told him to come up and see us some time but I guess he's a pretty busy man."

GOODYEAR TIRE AND RUBBER

Directors of Goodyear Rubber of Canada have declared the regular dividend of $1.25 a share on common for final quarter of the year bringing total disbursements for fiscal year closing this month to $5 a share or well in excess of last year. It is known the company enjoyed more satisfactory earnings than in 1933 and unofficial estimates place net per share for 1934 in neighborhood of $8 as compared with $6.76 in 1933. In fact estimated net per share appears to be the highest for any twelve month period since 1929.

CONSOLIDATED "SMELTERS"

Declaration of regular of $1 and bonus of $1 for second half of year brings total dividends for 1934 to $3 a share. The 1934 cash payments will stand therefore as largest since 1930—an encouraging result for shareholders. For 1933, $1.50 was paid. In 1932 10 per cent stock dividend was declared. And in 1931 cash of $2.50 and 10 per cent stock dividends.

Base Metals

Financial Service, Montreal — "There is apparently no reason for the continued weakness in the shares of this company which yesterday sold for new low under 60 cents a share. This compares with a high of $2.05 touched earlier this year and a high of $2.45 last year.

"The company has been making regular shipments of lead and silver concentrates as well as silver. During the first nine months of the current year the company earned net profit of 3 cents per share. Although production is reported to be at a slightly higher rate in the last quarter the margin of profits is smaller due to lower prices for both lead and zinc. Lead is currently quoted at 2.25 a pound on the London market which compares with 2.65 cents last winter. The drop in zinc has been more pronounced from around 3½ cents a pound to 2.67 cents.

"Recent opinion from metal circles on the outlook for both of these metals is more optimistic and higher prices are predicted for 1935-5. An official statement published about a month ago indicated that the company so far this year had added to its ore resources."

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Dec. 12— A flash of action appeared in the secondary gold shares in the morning session of the mining market and hefty price gains were recorded but business slowed down to a snail's pace in the afternoon attended by softening of quotations.

Little Long Lac was run up to 6.45 for a gain of 20 cents and God's Lake to 1.89 to show a gain of 29 cents. The advance failed to hold in the case of Little Long Lac. There was hardly any action in the senior golds. Noranda firmed 40 cents and Eldorado 5.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 12—The charge of defrauding the Federal Revenue department, laid against the chiefs of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams had been discounted by the market for the stock, if today's performance held true. At early afternoon the price was holding at 14⅝, or ⅝ above yesterday's closing price.

Walker's common sold off a small fraction and Industrial Alcohol A held steady. The general tone of the industrial share section was firm in slow trade. Distillers Seagrams accounted for 75 per cent. of the morning business and that trade tapered off in the afternoon.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Dec. 12. — The stock market pulled itself together and found its footing today, after yesterday's bad spill.

Some further scattered selling developed, but the list moved irregularly higher, helped by favorable steel and electric power production statistics. The bond market continued to improve, and commodities moved narrowly.

Among Canadian shares, McIntyre and Dome were slightly lower while International Nickel and Dominion Stores ruled about even. On the curb, Hiram Walker receded fractionally. Dominion Government bonds were steady. Canadian funds eased 7-16 of a cent at 101⅜ cents.

A few specialties led the morning advance in shares. Radio Preferred B, a weak feature yesterday, rebounded two points then lost much of its gain. The Wilson class "A" and preferred issues rose a point or two to new highs for the year, and similar gains appeared in American Can, Phillip Morris, Celanese, International Business Machines, and Liggett and Myers B.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Dec. 12—(AP)— The stock market was steady and rather quiet today following yesterday's sharp sell-off. Recoveries occurred among scattered specialties, but leading industrials, rails and utilities were narrow. Radio Preferred B and Wilson and Co. A were up more than a point. American Telephone, Santa Fe, General Motors and Consolidated Gas were about even. U S. Steel eased slightly. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

6 RECOMMENDED FOR CITIZENSHIP

County Court Before Judge Madden of Short Duration

Six applications for naturalization were presented at the opening of the Jury Sittings of the County Court held yesterday in Belleville before His Honor Judge Madden, all six subsequently being recommended to naturalized Canadian citizenship by His Honor. "I must first point out to you the seriousness of your intention", stated His Honor as he informed the applicants, lined before him, of their duty to Canada and the British Empire if they were finally accepted as bonafide Canadian citizens. For the first time in many years one applicant was a Chinese.

Not a single jury case was entered for trial, Sheriff O'Flynn not having to summon a petty jury. Four civil cases were on the docket, two being adjourned, while the Plane vs. Perry motion in the matter of assessment of damages, was settled out of court. The only case heard by His Honor was a contested will hearing in which the plaintiffs were awarded the judgment of the court in one of the shortest hearings in County Court heard locally in years. The firm of Donnan and Butler appeared for the plaintiffs while I. D. Corcoran of Tweed represented the defendants. The entire court proceeding was one of the shortest County Courts held in Belleville in some time, all matters being disposed of in two hours.

The list of applicants applying for naturalization and their sworn declaration is as follows:

Bill Yaspento, age 46, who was born in Roumania, coming to Canada in 1929, now residing at Point Anne, occupation laborer.

John Bojc, age 39, who was born in Jugoslavia, coming to Canada in 1927, now residing at Deloro, occupation laborer.

Arvi Koski, age 39, who came to Canada in 1923, born in Finland, now residing at Deloro, occupation, boiler-maker.

Frank Tom (Hum Sing) age 22, who came to Canada from China in 1922, now residing in Belleville, occupation, restaurant proprietor.

Steve Chelladko, age 48, who came to Canada in 1912 from Russia, now residing in Deloro, occupation, laborer.

Jan Dobrowolski, age 47, who came to Canada in 1927 from Poland, now residing at Deloro, occupation, laborer.

Those desiring Canadian naturalization were presented to the court and recommended by B. C. Donnan, K.C., local Crown Attorney.

BOY IS SENTENCED AFTER 3 CHANCES

Chatham Fifteen Year Old Fails to Mend His Ways

Chatham, Ont., Dec. 11 (CP)—Three chances to mend his ways and go straight were not enough for a fifteen-year-old boy who appeared in the Juvenile Court this morning charged with theft. The boy was employed by Stanley Stacey, butcher, and was engaged to carry parcels. He devised a means for raising the amounts of C.O.D. parcels, collecting in excess of the bill and pocketing the difference.

After he was caught his employer gave him a second chance. When cash was disappearing regularly from the store register, the proprietor set a watch and discovered the boy was gaining an entrance through the street grating, robbing the till and departing by way of the front door.

Still another chance was given the youth, until it was discovered he had returned to the habit of raising bills, and he was fired, and a complaint laid against him. He will be sent to the St. John Industrial School.

FEW BOATS ON THE GREAT LAKES

By The Canadian Press

Toronto, Dec. 11—Only four ships were reported sailing the Great Lakes today as zero weather gripped many sections and brought danger of ice blockades.

The Iocolite reported in a Toronto harbor and cleared later for Sarnia, her home port. From Sarnia the Windolite cleared for Toronto with gasoline and oil. Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., reported one ship passing up and one down through the canal there yesterday. The Riverton went up and the Gen. Garretson down. No movements were reported today.

Hamilton's harbor was frozen, but the ice was light enough to admit heavy vessels.

Belleville Banker Addresses Rotary

"The history of banking in Canada" was the subject of a fine and instructive talk given the Trenton Rotary club by Mr. B. C. Sisler, manager of the Belleville branch of the Dominion Bank, at the regular weekly meeting at the Hotel Gilbert on Monday evening. The speaker was introduced by Rotarian "Ben" Joyce of the Bank of Toronto. Mr. Sisler said he was also celebrating his twenty-third year in banking on Monday. He gave a graphic outline of the banking systems in Canada since 1608, which was under the rule of the French. Funds were forthcoming for payment of the French soldiers, so notes or card money made it's first appearance in Canada. After 1763 the British occupied the country and the finances were in a deplorable condition and for a time the country was without currency. The banks grew with the country and in 1812 bills were issued and were very successful. The Bank of Montreal started in 1817 and this was the beginning of the Provincial Banking system. The first great banker Alexander Hamilton was the father of the banking system and the basic principles have remained unchanged. After Confederation the system changed from Provincial to National which system is today in business and the country's banking is operated by the nine chartered banks of Canada. Under the present system small centres have the same banking facilities as the larger cities. Mr. Sisler said that the bank had been accused of curtailing credit but easy money was not the cure for depression. He ended with the remark that he had never seen a bank turn down a legitimate borrower. He urged the Rotarians to learn from an authoritative source all about the new Central Bank.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was extended by Rotarian Hugh O'Rourke and seconded by Bill House, President Tom Jarrett expressed on behalf of the local club, their thanks to Mr. Sisler for his instructive discourse on the banking system.

Rev. Campbell at Home and School Club

The Rev. G. Campbell, pastor of Grace United Church was the guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Dufferin Home and School Club, which was held in the Dufferin School auditorium on Monday evening. The speaker told the parents that it was necessary to give their children the proper home training to enable them to be better scholars at school. Good training at home made it easier for the teacher in training the child on school discipline.

GENERAL JULIUS GOEMBOES

Former Premier, now Minister of War for Hungary, General Julius Goemboes (ABOVE) faces a critical situation with his small army menaced by the combined forces of the Little Entente.

Miss Florence Reid, 2nd Vice-President, was in charge of the meeting. Mr. J. Saylor will have charge of the January meeting and the arrangement of the next program. Miss Vandevoort's class won the book, emblematic of the class having the most parents present. Miss Hayes' class, who were the winners last month, turned the two dollars over to the milk fund instead of taking the book.

Mr. Sherbert, principal of the school said that arrangements had been made for a concert on Dec. 19 with the proceeds to go to the milk fund.

Messrs G. Mawson and Reid gave a fine guitar and violin duet. A piano duet by Marie Gainforth and Marion Weaver was well received. Mrs. Bolton rendered a solo with Mrs. W. Weaver at the piano. Orval Ward kept the audience spell bound with his clever slight-of-hand tricks.

Two Serious Fires

Overheated pipes, that are always prevalent during cold spells, caused two serious fires in Trenton yesterday. The residence of A. Boldina on Princess St. was almost completely gutted when fire broke out shortly after nine o'clock yesterday forenoon. Several hundred dollars damage was caused to the house and most of the contents. This is the second time in two years that Mr. Boldina has suffered serious loss by fire.

At noon the brigade was called to the home of Mr. E. Morton Parker on Queen St. where damage estimated at five hundred dollars was caused by fire from overheated pipes. Mr. Parker's loss is covered by insurance.

Members of the fire department were busy almost all day Sunday pouring water on the huge pile of coal that is piled on the dock on the east side of the river. For many weeks fire has been burning in the coal from spontaneous combustion. A great many nights the sky has been illuminated by the flames. Tons of water have been poured into the pile but the fire continues to burn.

Arena Almost Ready to Open

Harry Coutts, who has been in charge of the ice making at the Trenton Arena for many years, stated today that if the cold weather holds out another day the rink will open to the public. For several nights Mr. Coutts has been working diligently in laying a foundation and today the floor is covered with a fine sheet of ice.

The hockey situation is still doubtful but will be ironed out in a few days. A strong town league will likely operate as soon as the next meeting is finished.

SEARCHERS PROBE BLACKENED RUINS FOR FIRE VICTIMS

Known Dead 14 But This Total May Mount to 40 More

SEARCH GRAND RIVER

Fire Marshal Starts Inquiry to Learn Cause of Fire

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 12.—(AP)—As searchers probed the blackened ruins of the $250,000 Kerns Hotel for additional bodies, a three-way inquiry got under way today into the fire, one of the most frightful in Michigan's history.

The known death list stood at fourteen—including six members of the Michigan Legislature—and it was estimated by Capt. Laurence Lyon, of the State police that between 30 and 40 more died either in the flames or by jumping into the Grand River at the back of the hotel and into the street in front.

Early today firemen pulled down all, that remained of the walls of the four-storey structure, which for years had been a favorite meeting place for politicians.

While workers dug into the ruins for bodies, police with grappling hooks manoeuvred a boat through the ice floes on the Grand River hunting for those, who plunged to their deaths in the water below the blazing hotel.

The three-way inquiry was started by E. L. Welch of the State Fire Marshal's office; Prosecutor Dan McCullough of Bingham County and the State police.

The Fire Marshal's office questioned witnesses in an effort to determine the cause of the fire and whether there was any negligence involved.

McCullough said he had called a coroner's jury to meet next week.

One of the prime questions of the investigation will be the report of Mrs. William Lesher, a permanent resident of the hotel, that she was awakened by the smell of smoke at 5 a.m. the alarm was turned in at 5.30 a.m. The inquiry, according to the Fire Marshal, will try to determine whether there was any delay in sounding the alarm.

Mrs. Lesher said her husband reported the fire to the clerk, and Night Clerk Jones said he sent hotel employes to investigate the report.

The complete list of dead will not be known until the ruins and the river have been thoroughly searched. The hotel register was lost in the fire and even among the employees of the house there is a wide variance in estimates as to the number of guests.

The Kerns was reported to have been filled to capacity Tuesday night and it has 213 rooms. William G. Kerns, the owner, whose name has been associated with the hotel since 1902, estimated the guest list at 190 or 200, while Night Clerk Isaac D. Jones said he believed there were 250 in the house.

Capt. Lyon and Fire Department officials said, that 170 persons had been accounted for today. The figure included the 14 known dead; 33 injured, and those who escaped unhurt.

Several of those in the three Lansing Hospitals are in such a serious condition that they may not live. Coroner Ray Gorsline has set up a temporary morgue in a vacant store room across the street from the burned hotel.

One of the miracle-escapes was that of Walter Jeffery, 50, Vice President of the Michigan Association for the Blind. He was awakened by the shouting and commotion of the frantic guests. Unable to see what was happening, he opened his bedroom door and felt a hot breath of flame hit his face. Pulling on shoes and trousers he opened a window and jumped into space. He dropped 12 feet landing on the roof of an adjoining building.

CROWN CLAIMS WILSON ESTATE

Acting Premier Nixon Makes Announcement in Port Hope Case

Toronto, Dec. 11.—(CP)—Hon. H. C. Nixon, Ontario's Acting Premier, revealed today the Province has laid claim to the estate of the late Donald H. Wilson editor and proprietor of the Port Hope Guide who died early in November from arsenic poisoning.

Mr. Nixon said he would be guided by the judgment of Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck in his attitude toward any move that might be made to have the government drop its claim to the estate which includes the newspaper.

Legally, it was said, the estate could be escheated by the Crown because Wilson died leaving the estate to his widow who committed suicide a short time later after willing it to her daughter. She carried the daughter into Lake Ontario drowning herself as well as the 21-months-old girl.

A coroner's jury decided the baby died first so that legally Mrs. Wilson died without heirs. Had it been established the woman died first the property could have been inherited by the next of kin of the child, Ralph and Ruth Wilson, brother and sister of the dead editor.

It is easy to enthuse over these immature layers that swing into egg production at an early age. But on the average they prove unprofitable. Quite often they are the source of small unprofitable eggs and early victims of "laying house mortality."

It is far better to select for your hatchery flocks the well developed pullets—birds with big, sound frames and bodies capable of standing up under continuous heavy production. This stabilizes production and makes a decided reduction in the mortality of mature hens.

Fed on Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash such pullets will produce big eggs with sound shells—hatchable eggs—the result of this ideal combination of a rugged constitution and an effective, profitable feeding plan.

Hatcherymen who want big rugged livable chicks should carefully consider the Ful-O-Pep feeding plan for their hatchery flocks. They determine the quality of your chicks and make or break your reputation. Be certain of your results. Write us for the Ful-O-Pep Feeding Plan.

BLANKET WARRANT ON HUGE FRAUD CHARGE IS LAID

61 Canadians Sought by Mounted Police After Probe

BROTHERS WANTED

Alleged They Defrauded Government Out of Excise Tax

Montreal, Dec. 12 (CP)—Developments were expected quickly today in sections of Canada from Prince Edward Island to Vancouver as tight-lipped Royal Canadian Mounted Police went about the task of rounding up 61 persons, many of them widely-known, who are named on a blanket warrant as having defrauded the Dominion and Quebec governments of the nominal amount of $5,000,000 through illicit handling of liquor.

R.C.M.P. spokesmen stated the amount of $5,000,800 was most conservative and that the actual figure would be far greater. They gave out names of four of those named in the warrant, the four Bronfman brothers, who have been outstanding in the liquor business of Canada and the United States for the past decade, but insisted, that charges against the Bronfmans were in no way to be construed as being connected with the commercial affairs with which their names are associated.

The Bronfman brothers are Sam Bronfman, President of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Limited, Allan Bronfman, Vice-President of that company, Harry Bronfman and Abraham Bronfman. With 57 other persons the warrant charged them with an alleged conspiracy to defraud the Dominion government and the government of the Province of Quebec of revenues payable under the Customs and Excise Act and taxes on the sales of alcoholic beverages respectively.

Names Not Made Known

Names of others involved in the alleged gigantic smuggling conspiracy are not expected to be made known until they appear in court. Spokesmen for the R.C.M.P. stated they feared, that if the names were released many of those involved would leave the country. Several of them are known to be in the United States at present but all are Canadians. The movement of the illicit liquor was within the bounds of Canada and from St. Pierre and Miquelon to Canada, the United States Border not being affected. Police stated many of the names were those of people widely-known throughout the country.

The present case arises directly out of the smashing more than a year ago of a $1,500,000 liquor ring operating throughout the St. Lawrence River and Gulf, police told newspapermen, but that ring was a small affair compared to the one upon which R.C.M.P. have been concentrating for the past year and which was revealed with the swearing out of a warrant before a Montreal Judge yesterday.

PARLIAMENT WILL OPEN JANUARY 17

Expect Session to be Short Followed by General Election

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP)—Plans are laid for the opening of the final session of the present Parliament on January 17. Preparations are already under way in several departments of Government and after Prime Minister R. B. Bennett returns from his speaking engagements this week the order will be full speed ahead.

Although the coming session will not confront the members with the heavy programme of legislation they had to deal with last year they will have a number of important measures and as the session is to be followed by an election there will be more than the usual jockeying for position among the parties in the House.

If no change is made in the present plan the session will begin one week earlier than last year, when it opened January 25 and a week later than earlier forecasts, which has fixed it for January 10.

Three seats in the House of Commons and 11 in the Senate will be vacant, and Long Lake, Sask., and no announcement has yet been made as to by-elections. The contests may take place, while the House is in session. The Senate vacancies or at least some of them will likely stand as they are until just before the election.

Near this sentry-guarded spot, which marks the boundary of three countries—Hungary, Roumania and Jugoslavia—irregular Jugoslavian troops have crossed the Hungarian border to bring about an acute international situation. Leafs Submerge Rangers 8-4 While Maroon Winning Streak Is Broken by the Canadiens

Toronto Now Has Six Point Lead Over Montreal

REDWINGS SHUTOUT

Boston Bruins Keep Pace With Hawks Defeating Amerks

(By A. E. Fulford, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Reginald "Hooley" Smith's reputation as a hockey prognosticator hit a new low today as his prediction Montreal Maroons would overtake Toronto Leafs before Christmas seemed to have little if any chance of coming true.

Hitting back at one of the two teams to beat them this season, Conny Smythe's Leafs defeated the New York Rangers 8-4 in Madison Square Gardens last night while Montreal Canadiens were ending Maroons' six-game winning streak by a 4-1 victory over Tommy Gorman's team.

Harvey Jackson and Charlie Conacher, the National League's leading scorers, went wild as Toronto overwhelmed the team that had beaten them 5-2 in Toronto Saturday night. The sniping left winger got three goals and two assists while Conacher scored twice, once on a penalty shot, and aided in two other goals.

The victory and Maroons' defeat left the Leafs six points up on the Montrealers and gave Maroons little chance of making their teammate's prediction come true unless Toronto hit a losing streak.

Boston, Chicago Tied

Meanwhile Boston and Chicago were keeping pace with each other, at the head of the American section standing. While Bruins were squeezing out a 4-3 win over the Americans last night Black Hawks shut out Detroit Red Wings 4-0 with the aid of Howie Morenz' two goals.

The Toronto-Ranger game set a new high-scoring mark for the season the previous high being ten goals. The teams played wide-open hockey and the Leafs never let up in their search for goals for a moment. They beat the Ranger defence consistently and only Andy Aitkenhead's good work prevented the score from being higher.

Rangers balanced goals by Harold Cotton and Happy Day in the first period with markers by Frankie Boucher and Bert Connolly but 3 Leaf goals in the second settled the issue. Conacher got the first on a penalty shot and Jackson and Bill Hollett followed through. Earl Seibert and Butch Keeling got the Rangers' goals in the third and the Leafs scored three more, Conacher getting one and Jackson two.

Canadiens Show Form

Led by George Mantha, who got two goals and an assist, Canadiens showed some of their old fire in downing Maroons. Mantha tied up the score in the first period after Paul Haynes had put Maroons in the lead with his first goal of the season and then gave Habitants the lead in the second. Wildor Larochelle and Nels Crutchfield got the other goals in the third.

After piling up four goals in two periods Boston came near taking a beating from Americans. Marty Barry, Nels Stewart, Dit Clapper and Charlie Sands tallied in the first 40 minutes and Boston slowed up so much Amerks ripped in three goals in the third.

Red Conn got two of them, one from the blue line, and old Rabbit McVeigh the third. Another veteran, Bill Brydge, American defenceman, started two of the scoring drives and was credited with assists on them.

Clem Loughlin's Black Hawks outclassed Detroit in shutting them out at Chicago. It was the fourth time Lorne Chabot, Hawk goalie, had blanked an N.H.L. team this season.

Tommy Cook got the only goal of the first period, Morenz and Louis Trudel tallied in the second and Morenz got his second goal in the final session.

Charlie Conacher, Toronto, got two goals and two assists in the same game.

Howie Morenz, Chicago, tallied twice as Black Hawks shutout Detroit 4-0.

George Mantha, Canadiens, got two goals and an assist when Habitants beat Maroons 4-1.

CAVALCADE IS BEST OF YEAR

Brookmeade Stable is Leading Money Winner of Year

By Orlo Robertson

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—For the third time in 11 years, the famous Whitney Eton blue and brown capped silks fail to head the list of money-winning owners on the United States turf. Supplanted in 1925 by Samuel Riddle, and in 1928 by E. B. McLean, the colors, carried by some of the country's greatest thoroughbreds, yielded to the powerful Brookmeade stable of Mrs. Dodge Sloane, headed by Cavalcade.

With Cavalcade, the leading money-winning horse of the year, earning $111,235, the well-balanced stable, trained by "Whistlin'" Bob Smith, won a total of $251,138. C. V. Whitney, with Equipoise on the sidelines most of the season, had one of the leanest years in the 30-year history of his silks. He won only $168,520 and just managed to beat out J. E. Widener, who with Chance Sun taking the $100,000 Belmont Futurity and Peace Chance the $50,000 Belmont Stakes, pocketed $160,125.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable was the only other owner to pass the one-hundred thousand mark, winning $110,835. E. R. Bradley, Mrs. John Hay Whitney and Charles T. Fisher, each of whom ranked high in 1933, finished down the list.

The American record of $438,849 was established in 1923 by Rancocas with Zev sweeping all before him in national and international competition.

BUSINESS BETTER IS REPORT GIVEN

This Year Claimed to be The Best Since 1930

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec. 12.—Statisticians calculating the progress of business recovery find that in most respects 1934 was the best year since 1931, in some the best since 1930.

In the final month of the year, industrial production seems in the aggregate to be close to where it was at this time last year. The year's totals in most lines, however, show substantial gains over 1933. That is due in part, of course, to the extremely low levels to which business fell in the early months of 1933, coincident with the banking crisis.

The following table shows steel production in millions of tons, freight car loadings in millions of cars, automobile production in millions of units, and building contracts let in the 37 states east of the Rockies, in millions of dollars, with the last few weeks of 1934 estimated.

	Steel	Fr.	Autos	Bldg.
1934	25.5	30.6	2.8	$1,550
1933	22.8	28.9	2.0	1,258
1932	13.3	28.2	1.4	1,351
1931	25.2	37.2	2.4	3,092
1930	39.5	45.2	3.3	4,523

Perhaps the most striking gains for 1934 have been made in sales of consumption goods and even in the semi-luxury products. This has been in no small measure, business analysts say, attributable to the restoration of farm purchasing power, as result of higher prices, and government bonuses and benefits. This is illustrated in the progress made by the automobile industry which appears to have sold the largest number of cars since 1930. A part of this improvement was due to increased exports.

JUVENILE HOCKEY ONLY IN STIRLING

No Junior And Senior Team Possible This Year

Stirling Dec. 12—In an attempt to once more put hockey over in Stirling a meeting of the hockey fans of the district was called in the Agriculture Rooms on Monday evening. Although the number of adults in attendance was not all that it might have been the younger element was very much in evidence and after a spirited meeting in which discussion was open to all, it was decided that a senior or even a junior hockey team would be out of the question under the present existing conditions. However in an effort to lay the foundation for such teams, it is planned to organize a juvenile league which will be comprised of four local teams, the players having to come under the sixteen years and under rule to qualify. In this way it is felt that the local lads will learn hockey from the ground up and perhaps in a few years succeed in reinstating hockey in Stirling to that place of prominence it has for so long enjoyed. As for the managers of the four teams, nothing has been decided in this respect but it is expected that plans will be formulated at the next meeting. As regards the local rink, that arena has been already previously booked by the Centre League for two nights a week, Tuesday and Friday all season when a double header will be staged each evening. The local high school expect to organize an interscholastic hockey league and have made reservations for Wednesday evenings for their home games. In reference to the latter league, a meeting of the boys of the local high school over which Mr. R. G. Lawlor and Mr. Scollie presided, was held Monday relative to the coming hockey season and while no definite action was taken, an effort is being made to get into one of the interscholastic leagues for this season and uphold last year's record when the students captured the league pennant. This sums up the hockey situation in Stirling. As for the Rawdon League, no activities are reported in that field as yet.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

Basketball in the local Ontario Basketball Association groups took a decided turn for the better recently when three local squads were admitted into the E.O.B.A., two junior teams and the "Y" intermediate squad. Ralph Morden represented Belleville at Kingston for the annual meeting and succeeded in arranging two excellent groupings. The intermediates are grouped with Queens, R.M.C., Kingston Y and Belleville Y. The Deacon A.C. juniors are linked up with "B" section of Group No. 1 along with Queens and R.M.C. The new entry, St. Michael's A.C. was included in A section of Group 1 juniors, with Regiopolis College, K.C.I. and Napanee Grads. 'Irish' have a tough grouping as has the intermediates. With the added clubs basketball seems headed towards a higher plane in this part of the province. The E.O.B.A. controls all basketball east of Toronto but the local group is the only one to function this season. With the resumption of interscholastic basketball after the New Year with two B.C.I. teams swinging into action the lovers of the game will have plenty of sport during the winter.

Out in Peterboro they have a boxer by the name of Gordie Hunter who is reputed to be a real good boy at 125 pounds. After the victory hung up by Howard Wheeler over his lighter opponent, Tony Ronco the night before last, Promoter Clem Allen would surely have an ace in the hole if he signed Hunter to meet Wheeler on his next card. Hunter may outweigh the local lad by a pound or two but this should be a natural. Bill Crawford's clean-cut victory over Vitarelli the other night warrants him a return match with Ken Mayberry. Crawford and Mayberry have each taken a decision from the other and a third bout is in order. It is quite evident that the Y.M.C.A. is inadequate to accommodate a fight crowd as the place was jammed to the doors on Monday night, yet the promoter announced that the show went in the "red." There are to be no further boxing bouts until after the first of the year here.

There are plenty of good golfers in the ranks of National Hockey League players and officials but George Hainsworth, veteran goaler of Toronto Maple Leafs is the only golf captain in hockey ranks. He is skipper of the Westmount club of Kitchener.

Bob Redner, manager of the Arena, announced today that the ice palace would be opened for public skating providing the weather kept around the freezing mark. Already the ice-makers have produced sufficient ice to allow skating but their intention is to have the finest skating surface possible before opening up. An added feature is being presented this season, flags, bunting and pennants are being strung across the rink, making the surroundings very picturesque. The manager also announced that the band would be in attendance for public skating on opening and many nights during the season which is welcome news to skaters. The actual opening will be announced later.

After considerable controversy the executive of the Belleville City Hockey League decided to re-admit Trenton Imperials. Personally we believe this move one of a beneficial nature as an outside club should add prestige to the league. The executive have centred much activity on the subject and apparently have the matter well in hand. The opening date was set for next Tuesday Dec. 18th, a twin bill being offered, South End A.C. meeting the 20th. Century Club and the Aajmaas battling Wally Grills' team. The remaining three teams will take the ice on Dec. 21st. After a lapse of two years city league hockey should be about ripe in Belleville and ready to take its place as one of the major sports. In the meantime Eddie Thomas, manager of the O.H.A. teams, deems it inadvisable to call a practice of his clubs at such short notice. The O.H.A. squads may swing into action next week, weather permitting.

The directors of the Belleville Skating Club met last evening at their club rooms in the Curling Rink and after inspecting the ice decided to open the season on Friday evening of this week. Skating for club members only. The directors also decided that the rink will be open every afternoon and evening during the week excepting Sunday for club members to skate.

When Frankie Finnigan, the durable Irishman who plays right wing for St. Louis Eagles in the National Hockey League, was floored in a scramble and had his jaw broken in November, when Maroons played Eagles, it marked the first time he ever was knocked off his feet in a major league game. Finnigan is a square-built, powerfully constructed athlete, who has resisted or avoided the heaviest bodycheckers. In this incident he was bowled over in a wild melee in front of the St. Louis nets.

Trenton Imperials Re-Admitted To Belleville Hockey League

Loop Will Compose of Seven Teams and Open on Dec. 18

With the re-admission of the Trenton Imperials to the Belleville City Hockey League, a seven teamed loop will face the barrier in that organization, when the loop swings into action on December 18th with a twin bill of hockey, ushering in the winter pastime locally. Six local teams and the Trenton delegation were all represented at a city league meeting held at the Belleville Arena last evening, when final arrangements for the operation of the Belleville City Hockey League was terminated. League rules and by-laws were subjected to careful perusal, with the result that the league will open next week with a twin bill, weather permitting.

Numerous items of league interest were presented and the operation and executive matters of the loop were passed solely into the hands of the league officials. It was the pleasure of the gathering to announce, that ladies would be admitted free of charge to all league scheduled games when accompanied by male escorts, while a five cent fee will be charged to school children. The matter of the disbursements of gate receipts was left in the hands of the league officials, after it was announced that the Belleville Arena officials would absorb 50 per cent of the expenditures of the league in the matter of advertising, referees, etc. All teams present paid their league affiliation fees and team practices will ensue as soon as the Belleville Arena is opened.

12 Players Maximum

After some controversy it was decided by the delegates present that 12 players were to be the maximum to be allowed in uniform during a league game. In the matter of play-off it was finally decided, that four clubs would be included in the league play-downs, the team finishing first to meet the fourth place club as the second and third meet in the semi-finals. Twenty percent of the net gate receipts each night will be set aside in a league pool to be divided at the end of the season between the teams finishing the league schedule. Each team in the loop will be permitted to sign 20 players on league certificates, but must subsequently release eight players to a general league pool, keeping 12 players for league competition. The meeting decided that the players entered in the league pool would be kept in reserve and distributed among the weaker clubs at their request.

President Harry Rollins occupied the chair during the meeting and was materially assisted by his two able executive members, Art Young league vice-president and Bill Fry, secretary treasurer. Passes will be issued each player in the loop, being not transferable and entitling the bearer to all games. Drs. Flynn and Robertson were named as league physicians. In the league play-offs the semi-final games will be determined in two straight games with goals to count on the round, while in the following league final tilt the games will be the best two out of three games if necessary.

Referee in Chief

A referee-in-chief was named for the league, whose duty it will be to provide all officials for league games. The fee set for games, insofar as officials was concerned, was $2.00 per game or $3.00 per double header. Where two officials are pressed into service for a twin bill, the fee will be $2.00 per man. Each club may release players at a will and draw from the league pool of players solely at the discretion of the league executive.

The teams represented and signifying their willingness to compete in the Belleville City Hockey League and their delegates were: Aajmaa Club, Grant Ashley, Clem Bowler; South End A. C., J. Keegan; Stewart Warner-Alemite A. C. Stan Hagerman; United Cigar Stores, J. Ketcheson, T. Sweeney; Grills' Garage A.C., Walker Grills; 20th Century Club, G. Matthews; G. Davidson; Trenton Imperials, J. F. Day.

The league schedule will be released by the loop executive later in the week with the following dates being adopted as the opening dates for Belleville City hockey:

Tues., Dec. 18th—South End A.C. vs. 20th Century Club; Aajmaa Club vs. Grills' Garage A. C.

Friday, Dec. 21st—United Cigars vs. Stewart Warner-Alemite A.C.; Trenton Imperials vs. South End A.C.

BISONS CLOSE TO TOP RUNG

Crowd Tecs of London by Winning From Cleveland 3-1

Fort Erie, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP)—Buffalo Bisons today surged closer to the League-leading Tecumsehs in their drive for a first place berth in the International Hockey League. Bisons broke the second-place tie with Syracuse last night by defeating Cleveland 3-1, advancing to within two points of Tecs.

Cleveland started last night's tussle in a winning manner, grabbing a goal edge in the initial period. Buffalo tied it up in the second and then slapped in two more in the third to ease their way into second place.

Net-tending of both Moe Roberts in the Cleveland goal and Bill Taugher in Bisons' cage featured the game. When penalties robbed the teams of man power the goalers were given a difficult task to keep the rubber out of the twine. Roberts' activity in the Falcon goal kept Buffalo from adding to the three goals.

Bud Cook grabbed the puck after Tiny Teasdale's shot on Roberts around the three-minute mark of the first period to slip down the ice, pass to Roger Cormier who counted the Cleveland marker. Jeff Kalbfleisch swung the disc to George Massecar near the end of the second session to tie it up for Buffalo.

After nine minutes of fast hockey in the last period, Johnny Newman worked a pass to Hal Picketts and Buffalo jumped into command, making sure of the verdict when Bud Jarvis dashed down the ice with Roter Roth and Cliff Barton in a pretty combination drive that saw Jarvis rap the rubber behind Roberts.

BASKETBALL

Only one game of basketball was played in the local Y.M.C.A. house league last evening, when the "Y" Golds downed the St. Michaels A.C. by the score of 38 to 19 as the R.O.A.F. failed to put in an appearance for their scheduled game versus the Deacon A.C. kids.

The "Y" hoopsters assumed an early game lead, when they enmassed a half-time lead of 21 points to their opponents' 7. The "Irish" went on the offensive in the latter frame, however, and practically held the victors at even terms to score 12 points.

Burley of the "Y" squad, led the scorers of the night with 14 points as his team mate, Wickerson bagged 12. White and Atkins were the other marksmen for the victorious "Y" team. Temple led the "Irish" at scoring with six points as Schrieder bagged five and Langton four. Every player on the St. Michael's line-up scored at least one basket, as did their opponents.

The line-ups —St. Michael's—19 —Schrieder, Langton, Hilton, Forester, Temple. "Y" Golds — 38 — White, Wickerson, Burley, Maclean and Atkins.

Referee—Ralph Morden.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By the Canadian Press)

Harvey Jackson and Charlie Conacher, high-scoring Toronto Maple Leaf forwards held an increased lead in the National Hockey League's big seven today. Jackson banged in three goals and got two assists last night when Toronto defeated New York Rangers 8-4, while Conacher scored twice and helped notch two others. Tommy Cook of Chicago, jumped into a tie for third place with Sorrell of Detroit, by virture of his goal and assist in Chicago's 4-0 defeat of Detroit Red Wings. It was his first appearance in the select circle.

The standings:

	G.	A.	Pts.

Harold 'Pie' Traynor May be David Harum of Loop Meeting

Willing to Trade Any Player With Exception of Paul Waner

(By Eddie Brietz)

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Harold (Pie) Traynor, hustling manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is shaping up as the real mystery man of the major league conclave.

Far from satisfied with the way his Buccaneers performed last season, Traynor blew into town with the announced intention of giving the Corsairs the most thorough shaking up at Pittsburgh entry has undergone in years and right now he is in the midst of negotiations with three or four rival clubs, including the Phillies and the Boston Braves.

Before the meetings began it was generally conceded that the money spending firm of Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins, anxious as they are to acquire Oscar Melillo, Brown second sacker, as well as a first baseman and a few spares, would keep the Boston Red Sox in the van of the buying and trading brigade.

To date, however, the easterners have not succeeded in parting with as much as a dime and if Rogers Hornsby, cagy manager of the St. Louis Americans, and "Old Fox" Clark Griffith from Washington continue to be obstinate when the Sox mention Melillo and Buddy Myers, the festivities may end with a one-sided score in favor of the Pirates.

May Strengthen Pirates

Traynor is out to strengthen the Pirates and frankly says he means to make three or four deals before he leaves for home on Friday. To this end he is willing to consider parting with almost every performer on the Pirate roster except Paul Waner.

Pirate officials have definitely spiked reports that the elder of the famous brother team is on the market.

Here is a close-up of the baseball market as managers and magnates went into the second day of their talkfest:

The Red Sox continue to angle for Melillo and first sacker Burns, with Buddy Myer and Kuhel of Washington as second choice.

The Chicago Cubs hope to land a first class starting pitcher with third baseman Stanley Hack and outfielder Kiki Cuyler as bait. Failing to trade, Charlie Grimm may fall back on the Wrigley money bags.

Bill Terry, manager of the Giants finds it difficulty to talk business for a right-hand hitting outfielder although he is willing to part with almost any member of the 1934 Giants except Mel Ott and Carl Hubbell to acquire same.

This is a picture that veteran ring experts never expected to see. Mickey Walker, the "Toy Bulldog," of Rumson, N.J. former holder of two worlds' titles, welterweight and middleweight, and a man who has fought the best scrappers in almost every class from lightweight to heavyweight, is taking a ten count on the canvas of a Philadelphia ring. He was knocked out in the 11th round of a scheduled twelve round fight, by Paul Pir[illegible] new middleweight contender. It [illegible] the first time Mickey Walker had ever been knocked out.

Spite Wife

by Ann Forester

He grinned at her. She suspected that he was proud of his nickname; it pleased his vanity. "Clever you! What's the trick?"

"It's because you're so beautifully dark. You can make your eyes flash when you're mad. If you were a blond you might not be half so impressive."

"You think blonds are less decisive? Huh! You should know Nick. He's blond——"

"Your half-brother."

"Yep. And he's as stubborn as a bull. Nothing indecisive about him, I can tell you!"

"You don't like him, do you?"

"He's too darn dictatorial. He's older than I, you know. Ten years older. And my father left all our business affairs in his charge. It's a darned outrage, but what can we do!"

"Doesn't he handle them right?"

Stan scowled. "I don't know. He's always putting the crusher on whatever we want to do. Vera—that's my oldest sister—has always suspected that Nick juggled things to suit his own ends. I don't know But it was an insult to my mother to have Dad leave things like that."

Judy gleaned further information about Stan's family in that conversation. She sensed the distrust and resentment the rest of them bore to the half-brother who ruled their destinies. Stan's mouth was grim and his eyes black with anger when he spoke of it.

"Of course I was only a boy when Dad died. Too young to handle the estate. But my sister, Vera, was a clever woman—and Amy was married then, and her husband was an attorney. Of course she's divorced now, but we couldn't foresee that My father was always partial to Nick. It was a thorn in my mother's side all her married life."

As Stan spoke Judy had a glimpse of the new life stretching before her. A life of complications and dangerous undercurrents. The old surface serenity of things was gone, gone with the drowsy days and tranquil nights of Summerfield. She had the feeling of drama unrolling before her. Drama in which she was to take an unwilling part.

HOME-COMING

CHAPTER SIX

Judy thought a good deal about Stan's family on that trip out West. Every mile seemed to bring the fact of their existence more clearly to mind.

Stan had spoken of them before this, of course. He had outlined their plans to Judy. "We'll go on back and stay with the family for a while. You won't mind, for a month or two, will you? Give me a chance to get on my feet financially. It's like this, honey. I've always been careless as the deuce with money. Just having myself to look out for....And I spent every red cent I made. You know how it is—

And Judy, who had lived under the decent, frugal roof of Aunt Hetty— Judy, whose small salary had been rigidly apportioned to cover her few small wants, tried to be fair to Stan and know how it was. ....Stan came from a different world, where money was tossed about like water. Stan spoke with easy familiarity of things which to her were the half-mythical pursuits of the wealthy people she read about in the Sunday supplements; polo games — yachting parties—bridge debts—things which the natives of Summerfield did not dream about.

So it was settled that they were to live with Stan's people in the big family house at Lockwood. Judy would infinitely have preferred some small apartment, either in the suburb or in San Francisco, but she could see what an advantage it was for them to be rent free at first. Stan worked for a stock and bond house in the city. Things had been quiet, he told her; commissions had been few and small. But things would pick up. They would live at home and save for their own apartment.

At first Judy had not thought very much about it. Such practical matters had been swallowed up in hectic plans for the wedding. In the scurry of getting over to Laceyville and shop for a white dress. In the glorious dream of Stan's love. ... It was only now, when she had nothing to do but sit quietly here on the observation platform and watch the fleeing shadows of the telegraph poles, spinning backward across the country, that she felt the fact of them sinking into her consciousness.

Her husband's family. .... They loomed large to every bride, but not so large as this. That was because she was going into this new life stripped of family and friends of her own. She would be an alien in a strange country. She would be entirely dependent upon Stan's family.

She went over them in her mind. The old grandmother —Stan's mother—"the girls". She wondered about the girls. There was Vera, who was 29 and not married. Twenty-nine seemed very distant to 22-year-old Judy. She had a more companionable feeling for Amy, who was 25, a year older than Stan. Amy had married young, put in two hectic years of married life and was now divorced and living at home. Judy felt friendly and sympathetic toward Amy. Dreadful—to be divorced. Amy must be secretly unhappy all the time. Judy decided that she and Stan must be careful not to flaunt their happiness in Amy's face and remind her of the companionship she had lost. The thought of Amy was comforting Judy felt that a friend awaited her at the end of this trip.

And there was Nick. Already she was sharing Stan's resentment toward the half-brother. She had unconsciously built up a towering personality in her mind for Nick.. tricky and tyrannical. It was shameful that anyone like Nick Carter should be permitted to rule and impose on a family who hated him. There was only one bright thought about Nick—he was not at home often, Stan had said. Nick was interested in an airplane factory. He was often away from home for months at a time, negotiating the sale of planes in distant cities. "Just pops in now and then to see what fault he can find and how disagreeable he can be," Stan said, with the sulky resentment the thought of Nick could always rouse in him.

Clickety-click-click .... Clickety-click-click....sang the rails. The telegraph poles fled backward into a long vanishing line in the distance, and every mile hurled Judy forward into the new, strange life awaiting her.

When Stan had told Judy that he lived in Lockwood, a suburb of San Francisco, she had been glad. "I'm glad it's a small town," she had said. "Remember, you're marrying the simple village maid, darling. A large city might be too much for me all at once. I'm honestly glad it's a small town—I'm a small town person; I'm used to it!"

There had been a little patronizing edge to Stan's smile she remembered. She had not understood it at the time, but with her first glimpse of Lockwood it became clear to Judy.

Lockwood was about the size of Summerfield, but right there the resemblance ended. Summerfield had been a little centre for a country of small, long-established farms. A peaceful unpretentious little place where the richest man was only "comfortably off"; where the village plumber called the banker companionably by his first name, because they had entered the town school together in the first grade.

But Lockwood was a beautiful parasite upon the great roaring city of San Francisco, lying to the north. Business men of Lockwood— those who were not retired and living on the interest of their money, went up to business in "the city" each day, driving in their eight cylinder cars or catching the 8.30 train—"the millionaire special," some local wag had named it. Lockwood was a town of wealthy homes set in the midst of spacious grounds, homes where the wives and daughters of the commuters led their comfortable, leisurely lives in settings of semi-tropical beauty.

Yes, Judy understood that curious smile of Stan's the moment she caught sight of the Lockwood Railway Station.

Until now, railway stations to Judy had meant red freight sheds and high wooden platforms, paint peeling, blistered by the rain.

She caught sight of the Lockwood station toward the end of a long, warm afternoon—a blaze of white stucco and Spanish tiled roof, set in a plot of green lawn, beautifully tended. Red and yellow flowers smothered it on one side and stunted palms cast stiff black shadows in the five o'clock sun.

There were lines of autos drawn up beside it—matrons come down to meet the suburban train. Here and there was a chauffeur in uniform, or some half-grown boy in short-sleeved tennis shirt. The women Judy noticed, were for the most part in smart sport clothes.

Judy was suddenly flooded by an overwhelming shyness, and she became acutely self-conscious. She pulled at the jacket of her grey crepe suit and tried to see herself in the narrow slit of mirror which hung between the train windows. Was the suit commonplace—small town? Did the snugly fitting felt hat look homemade? She had carefully made herself tidy in the dressingroom at the end of the car just a few minuts before, but now, as she followed Stan down the aisle of the car, she slipped the small mirror from her vanity and snatched a last look. The searching blue-grey eyes which flashed seemed the anxious eyes of some stranger....

The porter had lifted out their grips. Stan was helping her down the steps. Judy had come home..

"Good! Mother sent the car for us. There's Keegan—hello Keegan." Stan spoke to the chauffeur, who came forward to meet them.

"Good evening, Mr. Stanley. I have the car right over here."

Judy, fighting that miserable self conscious, hung on to Stan's arm and murmured dramatically as they followed the chauffeur with the grips: "This is too, too much! Darling! I feel like the lady of the manor, being met by the adoring peasantry! His young lordship returns to the ancestral home with his bride! I'm only a simple village maiden after all; don't give me both barrels at once I can't stand it!"

It was nonsense; the same sort of light hearted nonsense she had chattered back in Summerfield, a gallant cloak for the childish fright and bashfulness which were swamping her. Usually Stan laughed and liked it. It made him feel wealthy and important, as the nickname they had given him as college made him feel. But now she saw that Stan had changed. He was holding himself very erect. He was walking her so quickly to the long, cream colored car that she almost had to run to keep up with him, and Judy saw that his gaze was averted from the rows of waiting machines about the station.

A signalling tap of an auto horn caught Judy's attention. Two girls in a smart roadster were waving wildly to them.

"Stan, there's someone over there calling to you."

"Come on, I don't want to see them." His tone was so savage that her eyes went up to his face in alarm. Stan's handsome profile was set and strangely white, as it had been on the day of his wedding.

JUDY MEETS THE FAMILY

CHAPTER SEVEN

The auto horn became insistent, incessant. People in other machines were turning to see who the two girls were waving to attract. Stan muttered something under his breath and said curtly to Judy: "We'd better go over. The darn fools are determined to speak to us. Go ahead Keegan, put the grips in the car. We'll be right back."

"Who are they, Stan?"

"Couple of my sister's friends." He drew a long breath. "Come on, dear we'll say hello."

Puzzled, a trifle offended, Judy permitted him to steer her over to the car feeling that the bright eyes of the two girls had pounced on her as quickly as a cat pounces on a mouse, and that they were secretly tearing her to pieces with as great avidity.

"Hello, Georgia; hello Marcia. What are you trying to do with that horn—wake the countryside and tell 'em the British are coming?"

The girl called Georgia looked Stan over with a sharp scrutiny which seemed to hold something of amusement. "No; we're a self-appointed committee of two to come down here and see that no sudden bridegroom sneaks into our fair city undetected."

Stan's teeth showed in a smile which seemed a trifle mechanical. "Try and get by undetected with anything in Lockwood!"

"I'm not fool enough to try, thank you!" was the reply he got. And the black eyes of the girl held malicious understanding in their depths.

"Judy dear" — it seemed defiant, the way Stan said it—"this is Mrs. De Haas and Miss Caley. I suppose it's needless to add to you both that this is my wife—".

Mrs. De Haas was the black eyed one who spoke with such sharp brightness. Later Judy was to learn that she was a divorcee with a six-year-old boy, a discontented thwarted young woman, who lived, none too shrewdly, on the alimony she received from her ex-husband half a world away.

Marcia Caley was light—coloring and mentality. A rather dull and unimportant girl who filled in the odd moments of Georgia's life when no one more worthwhile was present. Too dull to be actively malicious she only applauded the quicker witted Georgia by encouraging giggles. She looked at Judy now with eyes as round and dull as blue agate marbles.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and I was wishing I was doing something elts except my homewerk, and ma said, Alley Sing the famous Hindoo filloso-pher and poet gave his 2nd lecture at this afternoon's meeting of the Dawters of Cleopattera, Willyum. It was a very inspiring literary tawk on the subjeck of the inborn bewty of werds. According to Alley Sing a really bewtiful werd is the perfeck marriage of sound and sense. Take the werd mermer for instants, like a mermering brook. It suggests the gentle sound of liquid water rippeling over little stones, witch is of course the very thing the dictionerry intended it to suggest, so there you have the marriage of sound and sense, ma said.

By gollies so we have, pop said, and ma said, And take such werds as devotion and beatitude, Alley Sing claims even childern instinctively reckonize that such werds are bewtiful. If I asked Benny to name a bewtiful werd he could proberly do it without an effort, she said. What's the most bewtiful werd you can think of out of a cleer sky, Benny? she said.

Sarspariller, I said, and ma said, Well, I wont deny it has a certain flowing sound wich suggests its flowing nature, but I'd hardly say sarsparilller in itself in particully poetic.

Sure it is, ma, I said, How about its bewtiful color and its bewtiful taist and its bewtiful gergle when you pore it out, and how about its bewtiful smell a lot better than some flowers? I said, and pop said, And speaking of lovely sounds, you cant beet royal strate flush. There's nobillity and power for you, he said.

Maybe for you, but I cant think of poker and soft drinks in the same breath as Alley Sing and if he was present to hear you he'd tern in his proverbial grave, ma said. I'm going to start the crosswerd puzzle, she said.

Wich she did.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan crawled toward the unsuspecting sentry. Close to his prey, now, he rose and sped noiselessly down upon the Red. Again there was no sound as the ape-man carried the lifeless body toward the lighted guardhouse.

Before its opened windows he listened to the conversation of several Red officers. It concerned their successes in Africa and Europe. Not much interested in this boastful talk, Tarzan moved quietly to another window.

There his attention was drawn to a pompous, red-faced general. Presently an aide entered, saluted and reported: "Olgo Boresch has arrived, sir!" "Bid her enter," commanded the chief-of-staff. Tarzan saw a door opposite him open.

A young woman entered, acknowledging the departing officers' salutes with a smiling nod. Even her soiled garb failed to conceal her striking beauty. She took a folded paper from a secret pocket and handed it to the general.

CHARGE GIRL KILLED BROTHER AND SISTER

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Baltimore, Dec. 13 (CP)—Cornelius Sanders, 41-year-old negro, has eaten his Christmas dinner in jail for the last 11 years, he told police. Apparently his 1934 Christmas dinner will be no exception. He was arrested for Danville, Va., authorities on a charge of flim-flamming.

New Brighton, Pa., Dec. 13—(CP)—Lowry Smith, 26, is partially paralyzed, but that doesn't keep him from hunting. For five days, Smith sat on a stump peering into the forest. On the fifth day, a 12-point buck came by. Smith got him.

Sioux Falls, S.D., Dec. 13 (CP)—Scotty, a year old terrier was dead today, but he was credited with saving the lives of three persons.

When fire broke out in the basement of the S. P. McKenna home shortly before midnight Scotty barked so furiously that he awakened McKenna, his wife and a daughter.

Investigating, McKenna was overcome after calling the fire department. He was quickly revived while firemen made short work of extinguishing the blaze, but Scotty was dead on the basement floor.

Joliet, Ill. Dec. 13 (CP)—Warden Frank D. Whipp has promised to play Santa Claus at Stateville penitentiary provided the 6,000 inmates promise to be "good boys" and slip no dangerous tools in their stockings.

As proof of their good faith the 6,000 we asked today to turn in anonymously such contraband as knives, forks, chisels and saws, in exchange for a Merry Christmas party.

In the yard of each prison, the new and the old, Warden Whipp said, will be placed a large box wherein prisoners may deposit the forbidden implements unobserved.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (CP)—A strange company trooped into the Art Institute today.

Mickey Mouse, The Three Little Pigs, The Katzenjammer Kids, Jiggs and Maggie, Mutt and Jeff, and others of their ilk took their places alongside austere and venerable canvases that grace its walls. The exhibit is part of a salon of American humorists which will open to the general public tomorrow.

Cartoonists from the revolutionary period until the present day are represented in the exhibition which marks the first occasion the cartoon has been exhibited as an art form, except for one or two individual shows in the past.

Anardarko, Okla., Dec. 13 (CP)—Sportsmen are still puzzling over the football team brought here by the Concho Indian School.

Creeping Bear, White Buffalo, Black Wolf, White Turtle, Tall Bird and Two Lone Bears were on the squad, as well as Whiteshirt, Loneman and one Plain Hawkins.

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (CP)—"Help!" screamed a woman over the telephone, "there's a wolf at my door!"

Police rushed to the address and sure enough, a big gray timber wolf sat on the front porch, howling dismally. A sergeant advanced to lasso the animal. It trotted out to meet him. The sergeant retreated.

Then Miss Jean Talbot appeared.

"Oh, I'm so glad you found him," she sighed, and calmly took her pet wolf home.

Denver, Dec. 13 (CP)—Add improved business conditions notes: The registry of the district court reports payments of alimony and support money totalled about $126,000 for the first 11 months of this year, compared to $113,787 for all of 1933.

FIRST NEGRO BABY SEEN BY DOCTOR AT BALTIMORE

Dr. Allan Dafoe Ends Vacation in New York Friday

VISITS PRESIDENT

Tells Reporters of Work Done in Influenza Epidemic

New York, Dec. 13—(CP)—Tomorrow Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe will depart for the restful quiet of northern Ontario.

The programme for the last day in New York of the Dionne quintuplet doctor was as hectic as have been the others since he reached New York Sunday on his first vacation in 25 years.

Vacation it has been, in that he has done the things and seen the things he couldn't in his own pine-fringed habitation. But eyes were a little less twinkling as he ambled off to bed early this morning after the third straight night in the glare of Broadway.

This morning he is to be received by Patrick Cardinal Hayes. He will be the luncheon guest of the visiting nurses service of the Henry Street Settlement. Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the United States President, proferred the invitation. In the evening, The Pediatrics Section of the Academy of Medicine will banquet him.

Dr. Dafoe continued his triumphal swing yesterday with a trip to Washington to discuss babies with President Roosevelt and to see his first Negro baby in Baltimore. Going and coming he flew by passenger plane and when they landed him at Newark Airport in the twilight of last night he said of his first air-trip, "very pleasant."

To keep abreast his holiday schedule, he had to be rushed by automobile to his hotel for a change of clothes, then he was off for Broadway to see the musical comedy, "Anything Goes".

Just Asked About Babies.

After he had called at the White House, the inevitable flood of reporters descended on the amiable little Canadian to gather his reflections of President Roosevelt. The doctor told them, "all he asked me about was those five little babies of mine."

At Baltimore in the afternoon he visited at Johns Hopkins Hospital with the Doctors Kelly—father, son and grandson. Soon, one or more of the Drs. Kelly will re-visit Callander, Ont., to apply another treatment to the tumor on one of baby Marie Dionne's legs.

In the Hopkins maternity ward the good doctor played with the first Negro baby he ever set his experienced eyes upon.

He recalled for reporters the time he had fighting Northern Ontario's share of the influenza epidemic of 1928. That only five of his 1,800 patients succumbed he thought overshadowed in his medical career even the delivery of "those cute Dionnes."

Of course, the experience with the babies was a greater thrill. He recommended the babies for all women. Unless she has at least one baby, he said, no woman's life is complete.

Then he boarded the plane for Newark, sitting up front with the wireless operator and carrying on conversation with officials at the ground base.

NEW HOPE FOR CANCER VICTIMS

Many Cases Cured by Treatment Along New Lines

Manchester, England, Dec. 13 — (CP Cable)—Developments in the long search for an efficient cancer treatment which might prove "astonishing" might eventuage here next year, according to W. R. Douglas, Chairman of the Christie hospital.

He described today how a medico near Manchester is treating cancer on new lines, which are claimed to have cured some cases and to have stabilized others or produced a prorogression of the disease. It is further claimed the doctor is able to diagnose by certain tests whether a patient is about to become a victim of cancer.

The treatment and the name of the physician concerned are being kept secret until it is possible, about 12 months hence, to fairly judge the value of his work.

Marjorie Thompson, 19, of Wooler Accused of Killing Brother, Sister Shooting Them While Asleep in Bed

Uses 22 Calibre Rifle to Commit Rash Act

PUTS UP STRUGGLE

Brother Takes Gun From Girl After Second Shot Fired

The girl appeared in Magistrate's Court, heard the charges against her and was remanded until December 20th.

Cobourg, Ont., Dec. 13 (CP)—Two charges of murder were laid today against Marjorie Thompson, 19-year-old Murray Township girl, alleged to have shot and killed her small brother and sister as they lay in bed last night.

While Marjorie Thompson, 19, was held in custody at Cobourg, arrangements for a double funeral for the younger brother and sister whom she allegedly shot last night were being made today by their grief-stricken parents, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Thompson of Murray Township, 24 miles northwest of this city.

Marjorie, described by the family doctor as a maniac-depressive type, is said to have shot Ina, 10, and Neil 9, and though the firing was done with a .22 calibre rifle at close range, neither body bore powder marks, police said.

Boy Dies Instantly

The boy, Neil, died instantly but the girl lived for three-quarters of an hour although she never regained consciousness. Dr. David McMullen of Frankford, who was summoned, found Ina breathing her last and Marjorie sitting wordlessly in a chair in an attitude of utter unconcern.

BREWERY CREEK YIELDS BODIES

Twenty-four Hours Search Leads to Discovery of Children

Hull, Que., Dec. 13 (CP)—Brewery Creek, graveyard for drowning victims of the district, today released the little bodies of Pauline Pilon, 5; Robert Jean, 5, and Roger Gravelle, 4 years of age.

After a 24-hour frantic search of the city and environs, grappling irons first located the bodies of the two boys. The body of the girl was found an hour later.

The tragic drowning of the trio of playmates had stirred the community. Missing by their parents since shortly before the noon hour yesterday, every nook and corner of the city was being scoured until Brewery Creek, only a half a block from their homes, released their bodies today.

The children had been playing outside their homes and then proceeded to the end of their street where an ice formation on the edge of the creek invited their attentions. Apparently they slipped off the surface into the icy waters.

With water rushing from a mill race at the Hull water works past the creek at a rapid pace, the spot of the drownings is most treacherous.

CAR, TRUCK CRASH TWO WOMEN DIE

Accident on East Outskirts of Toronto After Fall of Snow

Toronto, Dec. 13—(CP)—Two women were killed and one man was critically hurt today in a collision between an automobile in which they were driving and a large transport truck of apples.

The women were identified as Mrs. Hazel Metcalfe, 43, and her sister Mrs. W. L. Snowden, 40, both of Bognor, Ont. The man is W. L. Snowden. He was reported so seriously hurt that little hope was held for his recovery.

The accident occurred on the outskirts of the city and was believed due in part at least to slippery condition of the pavement caused by an overnight fall of snow.

It could not be determined who was driving the car. The driver of the truck was not hurt.

The accident was said to have occurred when the automobile swerved across the road in front of the truck which was driven by W. E. Hannah, of Belleville. Hannah applied the brakes but the truck skidded on the slippery pavement and crashed into the side of the car, hurling the passengers into a ditch.

The two women and Snowden were riding in the front seat and the rear compartment of the car was filled with vegetables and other produce. Mrs. Snowden and her sister were killed instantly. Snowden was driving to Toronto to deliver farm produce to customers.

LARGE OWL KILLED

Lindsay, Dec. 13.—(CP)—Jack Hood, a resident of Valentia, a short distance south of here was successful this morning in ending the career of one of the worst chicken thieves this district has encountered in some years. The marauder a large owl had been the object of various hunting parties recently. It measured five feet from tip to tip, the largest ever known to inhabit these parts.

LOW WAGES PAID ARE ATTRIBUTED TO LOW PROFITS

Statement is Made in Regard to Food Chain Stores

LOW WAGES ADMITTED

Sommerville Argues That Chains Forced to Operate at Help's Expense

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—Low wages paid clerks and managers in food chain stores are attributable to the chain system of making a low percentage of profit on a high turnover of goods, the Parliamentary Mass Buying Commission was advised today by its counsel, Norman Sommerville.

Another discussion of chain wages was prompted by the statement of J. G. Johnston, Secretary of the Canadian Chain Store Association, that chains paid higher average salaries than independent merchants. The chains, he said, admitted they paid low wages but they hoped to increase them when business recovered from the grip of depression.

Comparison is Made

Johnston based his statement on a report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, based on the last census which claimed the average salary in chains was $1,082 and in independents $720. The Commission counsel read from the report a statement from the Bureau that the two figures could not be compared because the number of executives and supervisors differed and the labor classifications such as clerks and managers, also differed.

The Bureau report, Sommerville said, showed the average weekly salary of clerks in independent grocery stores with yearly volumes of $20,000 or over was $16.31. For chains, including executives' and superintendents' salaries the weekly average was $20.74.

E. J. Young, Lib. Weyburn, attempted to place the two figures on a parity. He said if the executive salaries of food chains were removed, the yearly salary for the remaining employees still would be $1,004, compared to $720 for the independents.

Chains Blamed

The chain system was to blame for the low wages, Sommerville declared and one or two Commissioners agreed with him. The counsel said, for instance that if Stop and Shop, Limited, had increased wages 10 percent, it would have operated last year at a loss of $24,000. Similarly, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, on the same hypothesis, would have a loss of $87,174 and Dominion Stores, Limited, would have decreased profits rom $339,000 to $181,000.

These figures showed, Sommerville contended, the chains ran at a low percentage of profit. They were forced "to operate at the expense of their employes."

"I do not think so" Johnston interjected.

Low Wages Admitted

Sam Factor, Lib. Toronto West Centre, said Commission auditors had computed the food chains paid 316 male employes an average of $12.59 a week and 480 women clerks $13.31. "Surely you admit $12.59 is too low a wage."

'Regrettably low", Johnston agreed.

"The chains operate at such a low percentage of profit they take it out of wages."

"They are letting supply and demand, plus the minimum wage laws set wages,' interjected J. L. Ilsey, Lib. Hants-Kings.

"That is the crux of the thing," agreed Chairman W. W. Kennedy.

In defence of the chains wage levels, Johnston said, "You can not get blood out of a stone." The close competition in the Canadian grocery trade would not permit the raising of prices to pay for increased wages at the present time.

Tests on Weights

Turning to the question of weights, Johnston said that Canadian grocers chain or indpendents, could not stay in business if they gave short weight discriminately. It was "an insult to the intelligence of the housewife" to leave the impression that short-weighting was rampant throughout the country—"she would not submit to all this gypping."

Johnston told of two tests made in Toronto by his association. Shoppers were sent into chain and independent stores. In both tests, the chains had a smaller percentage of short weights than the independents. In the second test, the chains showed a bigger improvement than the independents.

Each Babe of 5 Gets Scapular

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—A golden scapular for each of the Dionne quintuplets was given by Cardinal Hayes today to Dr. Allan R. Dafoe.

The Canadian physician visited Cardinal Hayes at his Madison Avenue residence and was accompanied by his brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Dafoe of Toronto.

The Cardinal had blessed each scapular and during his conversation with the physician inquired about the mother of the babies.

Leaving the Cardinal's residence, Dr. Dafoe and his party, with Dr. W. Reid Blair, director of the Zoological Park in the Bronx, visited the various animal cages in the park.

JOSEPH WALMSLEY WAUPOOS ISLAND BELIEVED DROWNED

Set Out to Walk Across Ice on Wednesday Morning

NOT SEEN SINCE

Advised Not to Attempt Crossing Owing to Weak Ice

Picton, Dec. 13 (Special)—Joseph Walmsley of Waupoos Island, is believed drowned in the waters of Prince Edward Bay after attempting to walk across on the ice from the mainland to the island, a distance of one mile, early Wednesday morning. Mr. Walmsley left the home of Mr. James Miller, Waupoos, at 2 o'clock in the morning to walk to his home across the bay. Nothing has been seen of him since although a search was instituted for his body. The severe wind storm raging all yesterday at this point made the search very difficult.

Mr. Walmsley had been in Picton early Tuesday evening, had been driven to Waupoos by Mr. Miller at whose home he visited for several hours. At two o'clock he set out, with a flashlight to guide him across the ice. The warning of his friends that the ice was hardly safe as yet did not deter him.

Under Chief of Police Biddell of Picton, a search was begun when the man did not reach home in safety, but the search, so far, has been fruitless.

Mr. Walmsley was born in Waupoos about fifty years ago and lived there all his life. His wife was formerly Miss Everleigh, a sister of Mrs. Percy Hart, Belleville. Mr. James Walmsley, Picton, and Mrs. Ostrander, South Bay, are brother and sister of the missing man.

ONTARIO ELECTION COSTS $688,218

Chief Expense is $106,684 Pay to The Enumerators

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—Cost to the province of the general election last June 19, was $688,218.71, Hon. A. W. Roebuck, Ontario Attorney General, announced today.

This total includes the by-election in East Kent last winter, the by-elections in North Gray, South Wellington and Kenora after the June elections the Toronto St. Patrick recount and the Prescott recount.

"I doubt if the province ever had a better bargain," Mr. Roebuck commented.

The main item in the election expenditure came from the payment of $106,684 to enumerators. Another expense item listed $2,308 spent on aeroplane transportation to take judges to various districts in the north.

The King's Printer received $17,622 and the advertising firm of Clarke Locke received $14,812 to pay for election advertising in the Ontario press.

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—Mrs. George Newson, Dunbarton, mother, who was critically burned yesterday when she rescued her three-year-old child from her burning home, died in hospital today, but officials said the child, Lorne, will live.

Mrs. Newson stood in the flames as the fire destroyed the house and dropped Lorne into the arms of his father who had made his way outside.

SECRETARY GIVES TIP TO POLICE FIVE ARRESTED

Broker Held Prisoner For Ransom in Rochester Hotel

LURED TO ROOM

Vagrancy Charge Laid Against Five And All Held

Rochester, N.Y., Dec. 13 (AP)—Held prisoner in a downtown hotel room for more than eight hours yesterday, tortured and threatened with death unless he paid his captors $7,000, Frederick E. Peller, Rochester Canadian Securities stock broker, was released by police shortly before midnight.

Five men, two from Toronto are under arrest on charges of vagrancy and a man and woman were under police guard this morning at the hotel.

Peeler's release was effected as a result of the quick thinking of his office secretary, who notified police after her suspicions were aroused by a telephone call she received from her employer late last night.

Peeler told police that at 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon he received a telephone call at his office to go to Room 616 in Hotel Seneca to transact a stock deal.

He went to the hotel to find five men in the room. They informed him that he was a prisoner, he told police, and threatened him with death unless he signed a cheque for $7,000.

Allowed to Call Office

Finally, at 11 o'clock last night, Peeler persuaded his captors to let him call his office secretary to give her some instructions for business this morning, he told police. He was allowed to use the phone on his promise that he would talk only of business.

Peeler said he called his secretary and gave her instructions about purely fictitious stock deals.

The secretary became suspicious as Peeler did not answer all of her queries as to the meaning of his call. She called his home and when Mrs. Peeler said he had not returned that evening, she notified police. She told police that Peeler had started for the Seneca when he left the office in the afternoon.

Shortly before midnight a police squad led by Captain William McLaughlin captured the five men in the room with Peeler and released him.

Following the investigation this morning, police lodged the vagrancy charges against the five. Another man and woman who are also believed to be involved, were placed under police guard at the hotel after the man complained that he was ill.

The five under arrest gave their names as Clifford Edwards, 34, of Long Beach, Calif.; Patrick O'Sullivan, 37, of Toronto; William W. Drasne, 36, of Philadelphia; Roy Roberts, 30, of Toronto, and Maxwell W. Piegelman, 34, of Philadelphia.

GAMBLER ORDERED TO LEAVE

TORONTO, Dec. 13—(CP)—Louis "sleep-out-Louie" Levenson, Detroit gambler was ordered out of town today by Police Chief D. C. Draper despite the fact his lawyer claimed he was here to negotiate purchase of a theatre.

Police said they learned several days ago that Levensen was here and started to search for him. Chief Draper gave him a message to deliver to other gamblers of his acquaintance. It was to keep away from Toronto if they wished to avoid grief.

WORKING HOURS FROM 8 TILL 5

Approximately one hundred and fifty relief workers on the city's lists, employed on various jobs throughout the city, chief of which is the Moira River reclamation work and harbor reconstruction had been given notice today that their working hours would be from 8 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. They will start on the dot and continue until the minute hand reaches the hour. One hour will be given for lunch at noon.

Previously the men had taken just half an hour for lunch and had been in the habit of quitting work at 4.30 in the afternoon.

FIXING SHANTIES FOR ICE FISHING

The two score or more fishing shanties, which annually dot the broad expanse of the Bay of Quinte are about ready for the winter's work.

During the past few weeks hammers have been ringing and sections of roofing paper are being cut to size as fishermen commence the remodeling their shacks in preparation for the vigil on the ice.

As soon as the ice on the bay becomes firm enough the fishermen will haul the tiny shacks to the favored locations and chop the hole in the ice directly under the floor.

Better conditions this year, however, may cut down the ranks of the fishermen.

This year, however, it is expected that not so many men will take part in the fishing. Better conditions, relief work, and a greater number of odd jobs to be had by the unemployed has resulted in fewer fishermen and fewer shacks on the ice. It does not become necessary for many of them to fish all day for perch and sunfish and then peddle their catch from door to door evenings.

NEW COUNCIL TO DECIDE QUESTION

Whether open air skating rinks will be provided for the younger residents of the city this winter will be decided by the incoming 1935 city council, it was stated at the city hall today.

"Generally this question is decided by the new council," stated City Engineer Charles A. Mott. "So far I haven't heard anything regarding them."

It is possible that some arrangements may be made between the city fathers and the arena management to provide skating for the younger people in the closed building, thus avoiding the cost of setting up the open air rinks. This system was carried out satisfactorily last winter.

GROWING INTEREST IN STUDY CLUB

Growing interest in every course of study was noted at the School for Leisure Time held last evening in John Street Church Hall under the auspices of the Young Women's Guild of the Church. In the classes of radio mechanics, sewing, reading and blue-print reading large increases were recorded and the registration now totals nearly one hundred. Last evening the Young Women's Guild provided transportation for the members of the school, who come from the Airport, which was much appreciated by these students.

SHRINE DEDICATED BY LEGION POST

Canadian Legion Post 99 dedicated a shrine to their fallen comrades last night in their club rooms on Bridge Street East, with many veterans from city and district being in attendance. David Bradford, President of the Legion, presided and addresses were given by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., Rev. I. B. Naylor and Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne gave the principal address on "Sacrifice". When the shrine was dedicated, the lights were dimmed in the hall and Rev. Mr. Payne pulled the cord that parted the Union Jacks and there in bold relief stood a cross brightly illuminated. The gathering stood for a "minute of silence" in memory of the dead and then Reveille was sounded and the evening's program proceeded. Refreshments were served and a social hour filled in the remainder of the time. It was one of the best meetings the Legion has held in years and showed that the old fire is still burning.

DRESSED POULTRY COMES ON MARKET

The local market today gave evidence of the near approach of Christmas, when Christmas trees and considerable dressed poultry were offered for sale. Turkeys sold from $2 to $3 each, according to size; ducks, $1 to $1.25 each, and chickens, 60c to 75c each. Christmas trees sold from 35c to 50c each, according to size. One vendor had dressed beef by the quarter, asking 4c per pound for forequarters and 5c per pound for hind quarters.

FOXES TAKE PLACES OF BAD WOLVES

The big bad wolves of Tyendinaga have ceded their place to the foxes of that locality, it is reported. Reynard has been active of late in the west section of the county, robbing hen roosts and pursuing gobbling turkeys, who wander from the barnyard. Returning from Read yesterday afternoon with a load of wood, Mr. Carl Severn of this city observed a large red fox with a struggling rabbit in its jaws lope easily across a concession road just across the highway in front of his moving machine.

Defective Chimneys Cause Many Fires

Four chimney fires during Wednesday called members of the local fire department out on as many runs during the morning and afternoon. One call was to Starling Street; a second to 180 Station Street and a call at the same home twice on Geddes Street above the tracks.

MR. FRED MACOUN ON VISIT HERE

In the "Fifty Years Ago Today", column of this paper, the following item appeared in Wednesday's issue:

"Mr. Fred Macoun, a native of Belleville, who for some time past has been with the Canadian Bank of Commerce here, has been transferred to St. Catharines. Mr. Macoun is a young man of many good qualities which will not fail to make for him many warm friends in St. Catharines."

Today Mr. Fred Macoun and Mrs. Macoun, now of New York, have returned to Belleville and are enjoying a brief visit at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. E. W. Cooley, 225 Ann Street and also at the home of Mrs. Newton Vanderwater, Trent Road.

SNOWFALL LIGHT IN CITY DISTRICT

Snow shovels resurrected from dusty hiding places scraped on the concrete walks in front of residences in the city this morning as residents tackled the first of the year's job of removing the heavy fall which fluttered in big flakes over the district last evening. Travellers entering the city said that Belleville, escaped the heavier fall, and that on the roads in the district of Toronto, Lindsay and Sarnia the fall had been heavier, piling drifts in windrows across the highways. Official fall for Belleville was given at the city pump house at just one half inch but small boys who scooped the first snow balls of the year from the fall found it deeper in spots. The average guess was that some two inches of snow had fallen. With the fall came rising temperatures.

CONCRETE FLOOR IN HALL POURED

A solid concrete floor held up by new underpinning and joist to replace the old ones badly eaten by decay, and heavy steel girders to take the bulge out of the ceiling, have transformed No. 2 firehall on upper Front street into more liveable and safer quarters for the department. This week after the new joist has been placed and the concrete for the floor in the engine room poured, workmen are engaged in placing the heavy girders supporting the ceiling which had sagged dangerously.

ICE BOATS SEEN ON BAY OF QUINTE

Ice boats scudded over the frozen Bay of Quinte yesterday for the first time this season on a sheet of glare ice that rasped pleasantly under the whistling runners of the speedy craft. But the boats were manned by the more youthful and reckless navigators. Older hands at the game stood on shore and shook their heads doubtfully. They pointed to the meagre thickness of only six or eight inches of ice so far formed and the air holes and weak spots lurking here and there, a trip for the little boats which zigzagged in dizzying swoops. One boat of youngsters, it was reported sailed across the bay without danger. Last night's snow however, will put a quietus on the sport for some time.

Bryson C. Donnan, K. C.

(An Interview)

"Belleville has one of the most able Crown Attorneys in the Province of Ontario," Col. Richard Greer, K.C. said a few days ago.

He referred to Bryson C. Donnan, K.C., a man of whom most of us know comparatively little, possibly because he dislikes publicity, no matter how well disguised it may be.

A little searching revealed these facts which will tell more clearly than any far-fetched superlatives the stamp of man that has since 1923 been the Crown Attorney in the Police Court at Belleville and during that time has been doing much more than just prosecute offenders. He has actually been instrumental in saving several young men from lives of crime and quietly in his own office has poured words of encouragement into the ears of several who might have been outcasts from society, but for their implicit faith in this man of the law.

He was born in 1896 at St. Catharines. Moved to the Village of Stirling after his father's death. Attended public and high school at Stirling until 1914 when on August 20th he enlisted with the 49th Regiment at Belleville. Served with the Second Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Wounded in front of Arras in March, 1918.

He doesn't talk about his four years overseas. He doesn't even wear a service button. "I thought it would be a thrilling adventure, but it turned out to be an ordeal that I wouldn't want my three sons to go through," he said grimly, referring to the Great War.

He was admitted to the Law Society of Upper Canada as a student-at-law in April of 1919. Graduated as a barrister-at-law in September, 1920. Came to Belleville and worked as a junior partner with the late William Carnew, K.C. who was then Crown Attorney for the County of Hastings.

In 1923 he was appointed acting Crown Attorney following the death of his esteemed partner. Speaking of Mr. Carnew he said simply, "I couldn't have found a better man to begin my life work with. Mr. Carnew had few peers as a Crown Attorney and he taught me much that has been invaluable during the past eleven years."

Mr. Donnan was appointed King's Counsel in 1933 and later the Dominion Government appointed him Deputy Judge of the County of Hastings. He acts in this capacity in the absence of Judge G. E. Deroche and without remuneration. But let's beard the lion in his den.

"Ten days is a long time in a common jail," was his first sally.

"Three months is too long for youthful offenders. They get so they almost like it in three months and they quite often come out with a better knowledge of how to beat the law than they had when they went in. I have seen some youngsters spend twenty-four hours in the cells and decide to go straight."

"Do they ever let you down?"

"Very rarely. I can safely say that in the majority of cases our confidence in them is justified. If we give them a suspended sentence and in many cases we do, I find that most of them watch their step in the future. If they don't it's just too bad."

"Do you treat them all the same?"

"Of course we do."

"Then there isn't a law for the rich and a law for the poor?"

"No, no. That's a lot of bunk. In all the years that I have been Crown Attorney no wealthy man has ever escaped punishment by using either influence or money."

"Do you not know of cases where influence and money have allowed a guilty man to go free?"

"I do not, but speaking for myself, I can say that has never happened in the Belleville Police Court."

"How about other police courts?"

"I don't know."

"Why is it, Mr. Donnan, that of the people who appear in police court a large percentage are from the poorer families? Does the rich man never break the law?"

"Yes, the rich man breaks the law, but not as often as the poor man. He doesn't need money. He can afford to have his brakes tested and we seldom get him on a trivial offence."

B. C. DONNAN, K. C.,
County Crown Attorney

"When a man breaks the law for the second time is it much worse for him?"

"Yes. Two offenders who appear before the court for exactly the same offence may be treated differently by us. I will illustrate this by two cases we had in Trenton last week. One man, the father of a small child pleaded guilty to stealing some coke. He had no previous convictions and received a suspended sentence. The other man also pleaded guilty to stealing coke, but on looking into his record we found that he had been convicted of stealing a motor car in 1933 and he received a jail sentence of ten days."

"Do you think Canada will ever have a John Dillinger?"

"No."

Do you believe that any man could escape from the Kingston Penitentiary with a wooden revolver, or a toy pistol?"

"I do not wish to say anything that might reflect on the law enforcing departments in another country," replied Mr. Donnan.

"Without the slightest hesitation I would say that in any instance where I have dealt with State or Federal officers from the United States, I have always received splendid co-operation. In fact they are just as good as our men."

"Now that beer taverns are here, do you find more drunkenness?"

"We have not observed any increase in drunkenness since the beer taverns opened and very few offences directly related to the operation of taverns. Perhaps Belleville has been fortunate in this respect, but now you are getting into politics and I make it a point to stay out of the political game."

"But Mr. Donnan you must take some side?"

"Believe it or not, I haven't even a vote," was the reply.

"Do you predict any changes in our law enforcing system?"

"Yes. In Ontario, particularly in the larger centres I believe we will soon have a teletype system or a short wave radio system of communication. We have a large floating population now. There are men roaming around the country, thumbing their way on the highways and riding on freight trains. In this way it is much easier for even an amateur criminal to make a quick getaway. The police must not only keep up with the times, they must keep a jump or two in front of the criminals. That is why modern equipment is essential."

"Have you worked on many murder cases?"

"Acting as Crown Attorney, assisting Crown Counsel, I have worked on six murder cases."

"What do you think of our new Magistrate?"

"I think Mr. Butler is a first class Magistrate. He has a keen sense of judgment and a wide experience. I enjoy my association with him."

The office 'phone rang, and that wrote finis to the interview.

Police News

Eleven transients were afforded a warm night's lodging at the local police station last evening, only a comparative few being non-British.

Despite last night's snowflurry and the slippery condition of the pavements early today, only one slight motor accident was reported to the authorities this morning. Two automobiles collided at the corner of Coleman and West Bridge Streets early today, when slipperiness is credited for the accident. Only fender damage resulted.

Numerous transports and heavy duty trucks experienced difficulty in climbing the various hills in the city following the freezing of the melting snow early this morning, however. No serious motor accidents were reported on nearby highways and byways.

The local police cells were free from prisoners last night, not a single arrest being necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours.

SOCIETIES

Christ Church W.A.

Mrs. E. R. Logie was the guest speaker at the Christmas meeting of Christ Church Women's Auxiliary held yesterday at the home of Mrs. A. Vandervoort. Her subject was the life of the Most Reverend I. O. Stringer, D.D., Metropolitan of Rupert's Land, one of the most distinguished Canadians and an outstanding missionary of the north who died a few weeks ago. It was an interesting talk bringing to the foreground the nature of the man who loved his work.

The hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers" was sung, the Litany said by the president; the Christmas story read by Mrs. Coulter from St. Luke's Gospel.

Reports of the year were most encouraging, read by Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Bottum and Mrs. Crozier, besides letters of appreciation. It was decided to send Christmas cards to shut-ins. Mrs. Maybee of Madoc, in a charming and humorous way gave a description of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the most talked of man of the hour. The "thank-you" of the auxiliary to both speakers was expressed by Mrs. Sargent and Mrs. Coulter. The Doxology closed the meeting. Tea was served in the dining room with its festal Christmas decorations where the members made everyone feel at home.

DENY RATEPAYERS ASSOC'N. DISBANDING

Ex-Mayor G. A. Bennett today spiked reports that the Belleville Ratepayers' and Property Owners' Association was disbanded. "We're getting more members all the time, and we've set our next meeting for after the New Year when people have more time to attend than just now," he stated.

Obituary

MISS LILLIE MORRICE

Madoc—Word was received in Madoc of the death of Miss Lillie Morrice of Vancouver, B.C. The late Miss Morrice left Madoc about twenty-two years ago to take up her residence in the West. While living in Madoc, Miss Morrice had been an active member in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church. Drinking Driver Menace Is Painted by Rev. Dr. Brace

Call For Temperance Leadership Urged by Rev. S. C. Moore

At 5.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon several earnest temperance folk gathered in the Y.M.C.A. assembly rooms for a get-together affair and in order to again hear Rev. Dr. A. Philip Brace of Toronto, Field Secretary of the Sons of Temperance on the occasion of another visit here.

During the early part of the proceedings the Monica Hawaiian orchestra under the training and leadership of Mr. Harry Wagner dispensed delightful music in group fashion and in solos, duets and trio arrangement. Comprising this youthful organization are a few quite young boys as promising artists.

After a period of social intercourse and fellowship all sat down to a luncheon of tasty sandwiches and delicious cakes along with appetizing hot Kofy-Sub served under the capable direction of a committee of ladies in the personage of Mrs. J. N. Boyd, Miss M. Gardiner and Miss A. Madden.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple of Bridge St. United Church, offered prayer.

The chairman of the function, Mr. Fred H. Henry introduced the first speaker for this event, Rev. S. C. Moore, representative of the Ontario Temperance Federation. Rev. Mr. Moore referred to his pleasant associations with Dr. Brace for some time and the fine part played by the Sons of Temperance as a unit of the Ontario Temperance Federation. Rev. Mr. Moore stated that there was 'nothing so vital' in reform circles as the need for action in these times evidenced from his recent survey of Eastern Ontario conditions. "The drinking situation today has become the worst problem ever, but there is a better public sentiment being aroused and people are waking up to the price being paid for the revenue derived out of the liquor traffic. Yet the indifference often manifests, creates an amazing amount of alarm for the future. The time is ripe for crystallizing thought and regard for improved temperance efforts," he said, "and if something greater is not done in the next few months golden opportunities will go by default. A sensitive public feeling is suffering because of a lack of leadership in many quarters. We have lost ground during recent years in the legislative realm of temperance, however a new note has been struck in advanced concern over that of many years ago," was the opinion of this former pastor in Belleville.

Drinking Driver

Rev. Dr. Bruce reciprocated the views and personal expressions of the previous speaker. Dealing with his own angle of temperance observation, he compared the amount of $25,000 in value produced nationally in gold during one day's labor with what $25,000 loss of money was said to have meant in Toronto alone when one hour of sale was cut off at the close of a day to the trade. "Our problem now is not simply the drunken driver," thundered Dr. Brace in his appeal, "but the drinking driver according to glaring illustrations and reports." Also the law of the land says that 'no person other than a male person over twenty-one years of age is to be employed in the beverage sale of intoxicants,' yet in many instances," he claimed, "attractive females are serving up the drinks. Again the spectacle in many cases throughout our province where attendance at imbibing places reveals the sex to be a ratio of nearly fifty-fifty or about equally divided, does not tend to a needed state of sobriety and good morals," Dr. Brace said, pointing out that while statistics not long ago showed fifteen per cent. of the adult population as taking out liquor permits, the beer and wine magnates have shown their business astuteness in now reaching out after the other 85 per cent. of possible customers to enhance the state of their coffers. At the close of his remarks many of those in attendance responded to the call for adherence to the total abstinence pledge and were obligated to intense devotion to future aggressiveness in behalf of the cause dear to their hearts. Plans were laid for further endeavours along this line. Bishop Marshall, who graced the assemblage with his presence, paid tribute to his interest in laudable enterprises of this nature.

Gratitude to all those contributing to the measure of success attained in the evening's worthwhile enjoyment was expressed through the medium of the chairman and an early adjournment was made.

October 27, 1934.

Dear Sirs:

As a radio fan I want to mention that I consider myself the proud owner of one of your very outstanding radios, namely the 1935 Globe Trotter, Model 224, which I purchased from Forst's Limited here. Since owning this remarkable instrument my evenings are always looked forward to.

The short wave control of my Globe Trotter has given me all the pleasure I could expect of one double its price. At any moment while dialing on short wave I have enjoyed tuning in on England, France, Germany, Spain, Japan, etc. While sitting at my radio Monday night, October 22nd, I am safe in saying that all minds were concentrated on the race of the flyers from England to Australia. Here again my Globe Trotter proved a winner for, after dialing for only a few seconds, I managed to get Australia and had the great pleasure and satisfaction of hearing the welcome extended the great flyers, Scott and Campbell Black, on their arrival at Melbourne. I am herewith enclosing the newspaper clipping out of one of our daily papers, The Vancouver Province, relating my success through your machine with its wonderful mechanical construction of true accuracy.

Yours very sincerely,
(Signed) W. A. SWIFT.

St. Andrew's Y. P.

On Monday evening the regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young Peoples' was held in the Church Hall with the President, Mrs. Geo. O'Neill in the chair.

The meeting opened with a hymn after which Mr. Hollingsworth led in prayer. Miss Grace Bonter read the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted as read. The business meeting followed, at which the members for the three groups were chosen; Mr. Hollingsworth was appointed leader of the devotional exercises; an editor, Miss Jean Gladney, was also appointed. An invitation was extended by Mr. George O'Neill to the young people to assist the Anglican A.Y.P.A.

The program was as follows. A brief but interesting devotional discussion led by Mr. Hollingsworth. Selections on the harmonica and guitar by Mr. Harold Auger which were very much enjoyed.

A debate: Resolved that the country offers more opportunities for development to young people than the city; the affirmative being taken by Miss Marion Loveless and Mr. Herbert Bonter; the negative by Mr. Eldon Bonter and Miss Winifred Sabine; the latter side winning by one point. The judges were Mr. Hollingsworth, Miss Hilda Thomson and Mr. Geo. O'Neill.

A SIMPLE TEST TO PREVENT SCRATCHING ENAMEL SURFACES

Here is a simple test that will save dollars. Before using a cleanser on bathroom or kitchen enamel fixtures, test it to see if it scratches. Take two pieces of scrap glass and place a little of the cleanser between them and rub the two pieces of glass together. If your glass is scratched—don't use the cleanser on your enamel fixtures. Porcelain enamel is an opaque glass and many of its ingredients are similar to those used in making window glass.

TOY REPAIRS

The art of repairing toys which have served their purpose for the original receivers and which can be used to cheer others at the coming Christmas has become a real factor in the Christmas situation. Time was when a broken doll was a broken doll, a wooden or metal toy broken was moved from place to place in the house until it was finally thrown out. But the depression has taught many things and a broken plaything is not now looked upon as ready for the garbage can. It can cheer another perhaps more than it did the first child to whom it was given.

So out of the attics and cellars and closets and cubbyholes come these discarded soldiers, dolls, jumping jacks, run these broken down toy motorcars, and are carried armsful of all sorts of things which still have an appeal for childhood.

Upon these go to work a number of men and women who have found a real hobby in life. And it is a hobby worth while, for it is undertaken in a good cause, it develops a sense of art as in the restoration of paint to a rain-washed doll's face or the scrubbed paintless wood of a toy, or the scratched sides of tin and other metal playthings.

At this work these men and women who have imposed upon themselves these jobs work joyfully and learn to become very adept in the cause.

As a result at Christmas time there will be gladdened hearts, which might but for this charitable work have nothing new to play with.

So to the firemen and others who labor at the task, the thanks of all should go for their thoughtfulness and devotion to the interests of the children.

WAR FEAR PREVENTS WAR?

How different conditions are to what they were in 1914 was never so clearly demonstrated as in the past few weeks. Bitter national feelings have been aroused in many parts of Europe and national spirit has been stirred to its depths by the events in the Balkans sequent to the murder of King Alexander of Yugoslavia at Marseille in October. War rumors have been afloat, and there is sign of jealousy almost everywhere. Even yet there is the fear not so much from nations wanting war but lest some person or persons in power might through some rash act or sudden decision precipitate war. All the while the disarmament conference was proceeding there was abroad a feeling that underneath the fine velvet of the glove of friendship was a firm hand which might at some time strike.

Still war has not broken out. Britain and France doubtless have used their best endeavours to prevent trouble and Italy and the Little Entente, it is said, have much the same policy. But it must not be forgotten that there is the League of Nations and it is probable if there had been such an organization in the past there would not have been some of the wars which have decimated mankind. But today there is a place where nations may bring their grievances and where nations give their pledges.

So it must be that there is a new set of conditions which prevent war, for most surely in the old days such events would have precipitated conflict. It is a fact that there is a real fear that another war would make conditions in the long run more terrible than they were after the last war, though conditions might for a time improve with an artificial buoyancy which would soon be deflated.

Probably most leaders of most countries feel like the private citizen who is opposed to war for personal reasons as well as for economic reasons. The world wants to be let alone to recover from its last war illness and so avoid the bloody conclusions of warfare.

There may be a few shortsighted enough to want war for the sake of gain and position, for the sake of personal power and aggrandizement as well as for national gain, but the nations at large while seeming willing enough to get the best of a treaty seem none too anxious to resort to arms. They know what forces are ready to make capital of another war and so perhaps avoid trouble They have tragic enough examples to think over as possible sequels to any turmoil which might break out.

The very instability of Europe probably saves from a cataclysm. The last war did not guarantee the end of war; the world knows what has followed and even the wildest of enthusiasts will hesitate.

Of course there is the danger of precipitous action with dire consequences, but as said before in all probability the unsettled conditions, together with the fact that war guarantees not gains but bitterness, strife, spite, plots, and enmity, make for peace.

A new diplomacy is doubtless at work. Britain fortunately had enough power to intervene in the Balkans and prevent further expulsion of Hungarians from Yugoslavia. We see the same new diplomacy at work in the Saar area and elsewhere.

Perchance the sentiment of mankind is weighing the chances of war before war instead of suffering the consequences after war.

SIGNS OF THE SEASON

Examinations to mark the close of the term's work and Christmas trees and Sunday school entertainments are the big things in the lives of the youngest generation, keeping them busy by day and by night. Truly the approach of the Christmas holidays and the annual festivities is one which keeps the young imagination at white heat of fervor and the young minds are taxed to the utmost to take in all the impressions of this great season.

Proof that Christmas is at hand is surely given with the holding of entertainments of a festive character at which emissaries of Santa Claus appear in the most important of all roles in the childish imagination.

AN AIR FORCE CASUALTY

According to the official statement by the Department of National Defence, structural failure of the aircraft during flight caused the accident at Camp Borden on October 31 when Sergeant V. S Roberts was killed. An earlier statement gave the impression that Sergeant Roberts could have tried to escape by using his parachute. The court of inquiry which investigated the airplane crash has discovered that the young aviator never had a chance to use his parachute. Something happened to the machine in the air at 3,000 feet which apparently stunned or killed him. The wings of the machine had folded back over the cockpit in any case preventing the aviator's escape by parachute. It would appear, however, that before the wings folded back, the engine had torn itself loose from the framework. Observers saw the engine drop while the airplane glided on. Subsequently the gas tank fell out. Only after this bad break in the framework did the wings collapse.

It would seem to be desirable in the public interest to give a more comprehensive account of the cause of this recent flying accident at Camp Borden. This country cannot afford to have young lives sacrificed in the flying of defective machines. Drastic economy has been pushed to the extreme limit in Canada, but aircraft cannot be operated on any such false basis. It is too much liable to be economy at the expense of men's lives.

When the government almost totally disbanded the Royal Canadian Air Force nearly four years ago, Colonel J. L. Ralston, as former minister of national defence, protested against the unsoundness of this panic measure of economy. It had taken years to build up the ground organization of the air force. A staff of mechanics had been trained as well as the necessary personnel of aircraftsmen and flying officers. It is vital to the safety as well as the efficiency of the air force to have an adequate engineering staff. The government's economy policy ruthlessly sacrificed this staff of skilled men.

In the years since the sabotaging of the Canadian air force by government order, the failure to keep Canadian aircraft abreast of the progress in other countries has been apparent to any lay observer. Canadian machines have been allowed to become obsolete. Last summer's visit of British fighting machines showed how far Canada has been allowed to fall behind. Fighting machines in flying operations have to be subject to severe strains in the structure. Unless the machines are designed to resist certain strains, the flying officers are hopelessly outmatched in an encounter with more modern aircraft. They are exposed to unnecessary hazards, too, in peace time periods of training. The handicapping of the Royal Canadian Air Force as part of this government's policy of economy has done injury to Canada. Perhaps good may come out of the recent tragedy at Camp Borden, at least to the extent of stirring the authorities to move to restore the former standard of efficient organization in the national air service.—Ottawa Citizen (Dec. 8.)

JULIET RUNS THE SHOW

Come to think of it, the most dramatic thing about Miss Katharine Cornell's Juliet is the fact that Juliet produces and stage manages the drama. It would be difficult to imagine a more striking symbol than this of the emancipation of women from their age-long economic bondage to Romeo, the male.

If the original Juliet had escaped the fate the immortal bard contrived for her and had married her lover, she would have been slated automatically to depend on this Romeo for groceries and lodging until death finally did them part. What the outcome might have been in that event is a nice subject for speculation. But in any case it is quite certain she never could have bettered her position by going out and looking up a job as stenographer, file clerk or even fashion model. She could not have hoped to become a theatrical producer or to head a coal mining company and she stood no chance whatever of being appointed Secretary of Labor.

In our opinion, and with all due deference to Miss Cornell's accomplished performance of the part, her greatest moment comes when she abandons her examination of the box office results during first act intermission and hastens backstage to make ready to declaim the deathless inquiry:

"Wherefore art thou, Romeo?"—Detroit News.

The Japanese say: "A man takes a drink, then the drink takes a drink, and the next drink takes the man.

THE LURE OF THE SOUTH SEA ISLANDS where Nature provides food, raiment and lodging free in exotic surroundings, has changed many a man into a "beach-comber," one of the lowest types of loafers—and with a deceiving promise of rest and happiness has tempted many of both sexes from time to time to seek the lotus of perfect happiness where every prospect seems to please, and, as they discover eventually, man is perhaps viler than anywhere else on the globe. Recent news from the South Seas seems to indicate that at least one Paradise has been broken up by jealousy, greed and the hate that is engendered among a few persons living too close to each other in monotonous surroundings and an existence without sufficient variety. A woman of title in Europe set up a little kingdom on an island in the tropics and gathered about her a little court of admirers. Two bodies found, and the disappearance of the Queen of the Island and her court indicate that violent death entered there after what had been planned as a love nest was turned into a caldron of fear and hate. Folks go far in search of happiness when in all probability it was close at hand all the time—and they only had to reach for it—if they had only known.

TURKEY FOR CHRISTMAS seems to be indicated—especially after seeing that immense flock of turkeys being raised at the turkey farm of Eardley Wilmott near Brantford. Eardley always goes after anything in a big way, as was evidenced when he was Mayor of Belleville, automobile dealer, and military aviator flying over the Andes and up and down South America as chief instructor of an aerial navy for a South American Republic. Eardley's turkey farm is so unique that it is pictured in the news reels—thousands of turkeys—promising plenty turkeys and fair price for Christmas.

PARKING PROBLEM looms again as the holiday trade brings shoppers to Belleville from many miles around. There is nothing so discouraging for would-be shoppers than to have to search vainly for convenient parking places. It is suggested that citizens refrain from seizing the best parking places leaving them for visitors, but it is doubtful if suggestions will remedy the trouble. The Retail Merchants Association should take the question up vigorously and work out a plan to fit the situation. There are a number of available parking places, aside from the streets, convenient to the business section, and these should be advertised so that our visitors will know where to go. These parking places should be lighted at night, and if necessary have someone in charge. Courtesy and service constitute the best advertising any community can have.

IT IS AGAINST THE LAW in New York City to cough or sneeze on the street or any public place without using a handkerchief to mask the face—that is embodied in a civic ordinance. Any one caught expectorating on the public street is just shot on sight—the unforgivable crime.

FAIRYLAND! Belleville's business section, illuminated by hundreds of colored lights, while the stores vie with one another in beauty of window display. Belleville the Beautiful wil more than earn its name this Christmas.

WHY ORDINARY AMUSEMENTS ARE POPULAR

People Differ From Each Other in Tastes And Inclinations

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

To hear students and lovers of music talk, one would think that only classical music should be allowed to survive. Hearing some ardent devotees of the drama might lead one to believe that musical comedies, vaudeville, melodrama, farces and all forms of drama below the standards of Sophocles, Shakespeare, Moliere, Ibsen and Hauptman, should be swept off the boards.

Again, to hear some painters talk, you might be led to despise what they call "commercial work"—that is, paintings and sketches designed for magazines, newspapers and posters, and intended for passing interest only.

Not all the enthusiastic creative artists, nor all the idealistic worshippers of art talk that way, but most of them surely do. At least they believe that we should always strive only for the very highest of standards. They think we should only admire works that have an enduring quality.

What such persons forget, however, is that there are many varied kinds and conditions of mankind, all of which have a right to be entertained. Nor do they seem to realize that not all persons are the same. People differ markedly from each other in intelligence, emotional make-up, education, culture, tastes and inclinations.

A person who might enjoy a rollicking farce, for instance, might be left absolutely unmoved by the majesty of a tragedy such as Sophocles' "Oedipus Rex". On the other hand, a person who might enjoy Ibsen, Shaw, Galsworthy or O'Neill might be bored to the point of extinction by the ordinary mystery melodramas.

What is more, whereas a person might like so-called "heavy stuff" one day, the same person might the next day relax and get a real "kick" out of the lighter varieties of entertainment.

Let us by all means promote the finest and the best! Let us stimulate, strengthen and foster the arts to their very highest possibilities. But let us not forget that untold thousands are benefited and made happy by less profound forms.

Motion pictures are a concrete example of my theme. We may not always like what the movies have to offer. Nevertheless, it cannot be denied that they have entertained millions who formerly never attended the theatre at all, and they have brought joy and sunshine into places where none previously existed.

I have known creative artists of the first rank who were not ashamed to admit deriving pleasure and relaxation from "slap-stick" comedy. Indeed, there is no reason in the world why one cannot enjoy the best as well as the simplest.

All of us possess, to a degree at least, what might be called "low-brow" tendencies. To give them an occasional fling is good for us. Such adventures relieve repressions and are exhilarating. In fact, even if we prefer the classical in entertainment and art, too much of it, too little variety, and too much sameness, are likely to prove boring.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Persons who are trying to reduce, as well as those who are troubled with chronic constipation, might take a salad dressing made of mineral oil instead of taking the mineral oil in pure form. Such a dressing is made of two cups of oil, one egg, one tablespoonful of salt, one of mustard and a little paprika.

MAY NEVER KNOW LOSS

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 13—(AP) — Discovery of a body in the Grand River has brought the death toll in the Kern Hotel fire to 23.

Officials said they are convinced the complete loss of life will never be known because many of the missing were so destroyed by the fire that their remains cannot be assembled for a definite casualty list.

Twenty-two bodies have been removed from the blackened ruins of the hotel. The body in the river, which flows behind the hotel, was found by a diver beneath the ice floes last night. It will be brought to the surface today, and further search of the river for more bodies will be made.

Fifteen bodies have been identified.

WINTER WILL BE MILD

Caledonia, Ont., Dec. 13 (CP)—Indians of the Six Nations Reserve still insist that the winter will be a mild one despite the recent cold wave. Prophets on the Reserve say that the thin coats on fur-bearing animals and other sure "signs" all indicate that the winter in general will be mild.

All who attended the December social of the Seniors last evening at the Y.M.C.A. enjoyed themselves very much. The special feature of the event was in the fact that the Seniors were doing their best to entertain the ladies of the Business Girls' Gym Class. The ladies were chaperoned by Mrs. D. V. Sinclair and Mrs. E. P. Frederick. Receiving took place in the east room until 9 o'clock. The large gathering then adjourned to the assembly room where a short programme was given. Mr. Cyril McBride, convener of the social committee, acted as chairman, while Mr. Davison of Port Arthur wielded the baton in the hearty singing of the college songs. Readings were given by Miss Mills and Dr. Kimmel; solos by Messrs. Wonnacott Bros. and Davison and Misses Riggs, Ketcheson Davis, Herity and Brown gave instrumental solos. Refreshments were served by the young men.

QUICK THINKING AVERTS DISASTER

Janitor Turns Off Gas in Basement, When Floor Collapses

Liverpool, Eng., Dec. 13 (AP)—A quick-thinking janitor was credited today with having averted a major disaster when a collapsing floor dropped nearly 500 persons into a terrified mass 14 feet to the floor below.

The floor collapsed at St. Clements School while school children and their parents were enjoying a concert celebrating the beginning of the Christmas holidays. Approximately 150 were injured, and 33 of them, mostly women and children, were taken to a hospital.

Only the presence of mind of the school janitor, named Doughty, said officials, prevented a major disaster. When the screaming assemblage was plunged downward in darkness Doughty ran to the basement and cut off the gas supply, eliminating danger of fire and explosion.

Rescuers told stories of narrow escapes. A little fellow of eight lay helpless, one foot jammed beneath a beam, suffering great pain, but he only murmured, "do hurry, please."

Battered and limp, a little girl was removed from the building unconscious. Her pretty frock was pathetically stained with her own blood. A boy of 13, his head badly cut, dashed home to report, "Mother, I have torn my trousers."

The concert hall, on the second floor of the school, was packed with people. The floor suddenly began to sag and then collapsed in the middle. A heavy piano fell to the first floor, but injured no one, and its position aided many to climb up to it to escape through a window.

Firemen and police freed many of the trapped persons, who screamed for aid. Trucks, tramcars and private automobiles aided ambulances in taking the injured to hospitals.

CONSERVATIVES HOLD SOCIAL IN NEW QUARTERS

Dancing Enjoyed After Evening of Euchre and Bridge

One of the most successful socials was held in the new club rooms of the Belleville Liberal-Conservative Club, Front Street last evening. The event signalled the opening of the club's social activities for the coming season.

Well over three hundred guests were on hand last evening to participate in the bridge and euchre games held in the new rooms. Prize winners for the euchre were ladies, Miss Loreen Thompkins, Mrs. (Capt.) Strachan and Mrs. Wm. Brown. Gentlemen, Albert Reid, J. Paul and Robert Goudy.

The door prize, a plump, fifteen-pound turkey was won by Mr. Fred Garlepy.

To the soft strains of Wareham's orchestra, dancing was then engaged in, in the large Orange Hall directly above the club rooms till an early hour. The perfect evening was brought to a close by the serving of refreshments by the ladies of the club.

Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P., for South Hastings was included in the list of out of town guests, who were present during the evening.

SNOWFALL WANTED TO BRIGHTEN TRADE

Merchants Claim Business Better With White Blanket

Wanted: "A fifty thousand dollar snow fall".

The sign figuratively hung on the latch of every storekeepers' door along Front Street. For believe it or not, snow is needed, in the opinion of the merchants of the city in order to start the first actual rush of Christmas shopping. Last night's downfall was received with wide smiles.

"No matter how close Christmas Day is we have to have the snow before we even begin to move our special stock off the shelves", pointed out one prominent downtown merchant today. "People are funny that way; as long as the streets are bare, it doesn't matter how much holly or mistletoe we hang up— it just isn't, Christmas until the snow comes. Then there's generaly a big rush to buy when the first scattered flakes begin to fall."

"It always fills the citizens with the spirit of Christmas, when we have snow on the ground," pointed out a second merchant. He still has vivid memories of the few occasions, when Christmas week finally dragged along to the day itself, and the fresh stock of gifts he had piled on the shelves had lain there to collect dust. That season and previous ones were written off by storekeepers as disastrous ones. There had been no snow to start the rush of buying and a snow-conscious public had failed to enter into the spirit of the occasion.

Although Christmas sales in the city have not commenced with any noticeable rush during the past week or so, up to date the shopping has been fairly satisfactory. Saturday of last week was the biggest day so far, but the coming week is expected to create a record for volume, that has not been equalled for some time. Santa Claus it is pointed out, has been travelling light for the last few years, but he is faced with the possibility of becoming round shouldered under his bulging load this holiday season. Money is more plentiful this season it is noticed, and spirits are lighter and gayer.

FIREMEN FIND WOMAN BURNED

KINGSTON Ont., Dec. 13—(CP) One woman was fatally burned and four others suffered injuries none serious in a fire that broke out early today in a two-storey brick house, almost completely destroying it.

The dead woman, Miss Florence Andrews 22, was carried unconscious from a bedroom of the house after the firemen believed they had rescued all its occupants. They found her unconscious on a bed while making a final search of the burning structure. She had suffered severe burns and partial suffocation from smoke and died in the hospital a few hours later.

The fire started in the kitchen, apparently from an electric iron left by someone who forgot to turn off the current, and spread rapidly.

Firemen arrived to find the building burning fiercely. Four women stood at the windows screaming for help. They rescued Miss Edith Andrews, Miss Mildred Driscoll, Mrs. C. E. Ballard, owner of the house, and Mrs. Moffatt, her mother.

Subsequently as they searched the building they stumbled on Edith Andrews, lying on a bed with a coat over her head. She suffered extensive burns and was seriously affected by inhaling smoke. The other women were not seriously hurt

BOARD ROOM GOSSIP

MANITOBA AND EASTERN

This property which surrounds and includes Arsenic Lake contains three showings of importance. All three have been worked in past and are reported to have shown gold values. Present operations confined to No. 1 showing at East End of Arsenic Lake.

CUNIPTAU MINES

The Cuniptau property is located in northwest half of Strathy Township where company is erecting smelter. Analyses of the massive sulphides show presence of copper nickel, gold, silver and platinum group metals.

LONGLAC ADAIR

Development work at the time the property was visited consisted of trenching and test. Consisting of vertical bands of Cherty Quartz and magnetic and massive sulphides cut by flat-lying stringers of quartz and calcite which dip to the west.

NORANDA MINES

According to advice from the North Noranda Mines started work from the surface on their new No. 5 shaft Friday. A raise from 25th level is being put through to meet the shaft and it is expected it will be completed and ready for use about the middle of next year.

Construction work on new cyanide unit also is being pushed ahead and steel work is covered over. Unit should be ready in the New Year.

Sylvanite

By the end of the current calendar year Sylvanite Gold Mines will have completed 9 months of its fiscal year which ends March 31st. Since early in September the mill has been treating an average of 350 tons of ore daily as compared with something less than 300 formerly. With the mill at 350 daily output is on a basis of close to $2,000,000 annually of which about half is net income available for dividends.

The most important news from Sylvanite in the past few months has been the opening of new zones of higher than mine average material about the 1,000 foot level. Nature has been kind to Sylvanite during the past two years in this respect. Sylvanite has secured many important leads in its exploration work from Wright Hargreaves to the west and Toburn on the east.

On the basis of production and millheads since tonnage has been stepped up it is calculated that net income has been at rate of 30c per share annually. Thus the 20c annual dividend is being covered by a margin of 50 per cent. With ore reserves showing a further increase this year shareholders have reason to anticipate the payment of a small bonus next year in addition to regular 20c dividend. At current prices the stock yields just under 9 per cent.

WALDO YOUNG LETTER

One can only say in present situation that there is no evidence as yet of fundamental weakness in the market position and no need therefore to abandon commitments in anticipation of reversal of the main trend. The industrial price average yesterday did not break the 100 level much less the 99 level which I regard as the more critical of the two. Probably more important than buying of specialties like Celanese Wilson and Co. "A" and Industrial Rayon — specialties that seem not to have exhausted their strength—was the firm undertone of less speculative issues. Among these were American Can, Standard Oil of N. J., Proctor and Gamble, Mathieson Alkali, Union Carbide, Commercial Credit and J. C. Penney. I doubt if the Motors have exhausted their possibilities. The time is now opportune, however, for new commitments except on a quick trading basis. Further irregularity around this level is probable with increasing dullness. A sharp rally should it occur should be expected to be followed by a secondary setback the character of which would indicate better than can be judged right now the course of the market from here on.

GOLD

From the "Gold Mining Record" of London: "For what it is worth the outlook as it appears to us is that possibly by the end of March the gold bloc will cease to worship at the fetish of the Gold Standard the dollar will be devalued to 50 cents and Sterling to 10 shillings connoting a rise in gold to 170 shillings, a price already reached in Australian currency.

"Broadly speaking this would mean at least double dividends for the world's gold producers in short by and by we expect a furious blaze in the gold share market. But as far as we can see it is chiefly dependent upon the gold bloc. There is however no doubt that in Belgium, Holland and Switzerland a large influential and growing group is in favor of "going off" and at once.

SUSPENDED FOR NONPAYMENT

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—J. M. Forbes, of Timmins, Ont., today was suspended for three months from practising as a solicitor in Ontario, by an order of Mr. Justice J. A. Hope. The suspension may be lifted when he pays his certificate fees and all arrears to the Law Society of Upper Canada with an additional penalty of $40.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Dec. 13. — The stock market displayed a more confident tone today as business and trade news continued bright and hopes for a livelier springtime advance were renewed.

Dealings, for the most part, were of a highly selective character. A number of specialties moved into new high territory for the year while the old-line leaders were generally content to improve their standing by small fractions. Bonds were quiet and fairly firm.

In the Canadian list, McIntyre was easy, while International Nickel improved slightly. On the curb, Lake Shore and Hiram Walker each sold a shade lower. Dominion Government bonds were steady. The Canadian dollar was up ⅛-cent at 101.12½ cents.

Shares of Wilson and Co. "A" and McLellan Stores advanced about a point each to new 1934 tops. Radio Preferred "B" recovered 3.

Both the Radio and Wilson issues reflected capitalization prospects for these companies. Industrial Rayon and Celanese were higher as Rayon prices were increased. Santa Fe and Delaware and Hudson moved up about a point each and the other rails were a little better. The Metals and Utilities were listless, as were the oils.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Dec. 13. — The mining section had its firm and soft spots today with the general tone inclined to remain steady. Several of the secondary golds moved into higher ground on heavy trading, notably God's Lake, Little Long Lac, Pickle Crow, San Antonio and Macassa while the senior golds recorded narrow recessions.

Pioneer was sold in rather heavy volume on a price drop of 45 cents to $11.05. Base Metals were firm with Noranda up 50 cents and in the silvers Eldorado snapped out of its slumber of some weeks duration to advance 15 to 20 cents on heavy buying.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 13.—Publicity about Distillers-Seagrams has evidently affected the trade in that stock for its volume on the industrial section was sharply down today. The price sagged about three-quarters, other Distillery issues were slightly weaker while the general market tone remained steady.

Ford "A" was a feature today, trading in heavy volume on a price rise of ¾ to 25¾. United Fuels Preferred jumped six points to 29 on considerable volume. In the oils, International Petroleum was heavy and the other oils were unchanged.

YOUTHS INJURED WHILE SKATING

Carrying Place Boys Under Medical Care After Accidents

Carrying Place, Dec. 12—Covering the surface of the Bay of Quinte from the end of the canal to the "Island" with a solid sheet of ice, Jack Frost turned in a hurry-up job and managed to squeeze into one clear and chilly night the freezing energy usually exhibited in several days. After nearly a week of this cold weather both the Bay of Quinte and Weller's Bay are frozen solidly enough so that skaters are enjoying the glassy surface along the shores; and one pair of local youths, more adventurous than the rest have enjoyed several rides in their newly-constructed iceboat on Weller's Bay.

Misfortune dogged the footsteps and finally caught up with one local youth who sought for skating honours when on Friday evening last a number gathered at "Corrigan's Pond" to enjoy the first good skate of the season. Rounding a corner of the pond at full speed Erle Weller, son of Mrs. G. Weller, in some manner slid head first into a pile of small rocks at the edge of the ice and gashed his chin so severely that he was picked up bleeding by his companions and hurried to Dr. Farley in Trenton where four stitches were required to close the wound. This accident, an unusual one and certainly a painful one, quite failed to dampen the ardour of other more fortunate skaters, and Sunday afternoon saw a large crowd at the "Pit" at the Consecon Corner.

A second accident of a similar nature occurred at the same place on Sunday afternoon where a number of smaller children were playing on the pond. Lyons Davis, ten-year-old son of Mr. John Davis of the Canal, borrowing a pair of skates from a chum, essayed to show his skill. However, he had gone only a few feet when his feet flew from under him and threw him against the ice on his head with such force that his scalp was badly broken and he lay stunned and bleeding. Arriving at this moment Mr. Ross Hennessey picked up the injured lad and carried him to the home of Mr. Will Hanthorn from where the two motored to Dr. Farley in Trenton. Two stitches were needed this time and the young lad will need to remain quiet for a few days after his injury.

Mrs. Harry La Tour, Mrs. E. H. Hennessey, Mr. Will La Tour and Master George La Tour spent Friday afternoon shopping in Belleville.

Miss Nora Hennessey entertained some thirty guests at her home on Saturday evening, the party being a particularly enjoyable one. A number of local young people as well as a number from Trenton made up the crowd, and a very jolly time was had. Games and music with dancing to the music of guitar, violin, and two mouth organs kept everyone busy and happy; and the refreshments served later climaxed a delightful evening.

A jolly dance was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller in Mount Carmel community last Wednesday after the programme of the Women's Association bazaar here; and quite a number of local people attended.

Mr. Vernon Westfall, assisted by Mr. Henry Harris, have been busy recently trucking baled straw.

Miss Helen MacDougall of Picton spent the week end at her home here.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

YOUR GROCER CAN HELP YOU TO Keep on the Sunny Side of Winter

RAW, bleak days bring a change in living habits. You get less outdoor exercise—less vitalizing sunshine. At this time of year you must maintain your strength and energy to help ward off colds and other winter infections.

Your grocer can help you to sunny living. On his shelves you'll find Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, the cereal that helps keep you free from common constipation, due to insufficient "bulk." This ailment is the most frequent cause of sluggish days, loss of appetite and energy.

You can correct common constipation safely by proper diet. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly. Its gentle bulk, much like that in leafy vegetables, aids elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

Get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in severe cases. If not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Unlike cathartics, the same amount of ALL-BRAN continues to be effective when served regularly. Sold by all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Spite Wife

by Ann Forester

"It is indeed a pleasure to be the first to meet you Mrs. Carter and bid you welcome to Lockwood. We have all been looking forward to your arrival ever since Amy—Stan's sister you know —told us you were coming in today; and Marcia and I couldn't resist running down here to say 'hello'."

"You are very kind" Judy spoke in a cool composed voice and she bent her head as any princess might have done. She felt Stan's eyes brush her face and she knew that she had managed this thing very well. A healthy little throb of anger went through her heart. Under the false effusion of this woman she felt avid curiosity. There had been much talk of Stan's marriage in his home town!

"We were so surprised weren't we Marcia to learn about the wedding! Whoever would have suspected Stan Carter of being so romantic! I congratulate you Mrs. Carter! It's wonderful to have such a romantic marriage in this practical age. It must have been love at first sight. Was that it Stan? You old fox—we none of us suspected you were such a fast worker! Was it love at first sight Stan!"

Stan's smile was steady but Judy knew that he could cheerfully have reached up and throttled this girl about her long, bare throat. "Figure it out for yourself Georgia. Thanks for the good wishes. We'll have to get along—"

"Mrs. Carter we'll see each other again! Amy is planning all sorts of lovely things for us to do together. You'll love our little set; we're all such good friends, and we see so much of one another, don't we Stan? We're just like a great big family here in Lockwood."

"Sure. Thanks, Georgia. Thanks Marcia. We have to get along. The family expects us. Come on, Judy!"

Judy's reserved goodbye was cut short by Stan walking her off abruptly but not so abruptly that she failed to hear Marcia Caley's smothered laughter and Georgia's warning "Sh-h!"

Judy felt her cheeks flame quite as though she had heard the muttered remark which passed between the girls. She gave an angry little laugh. "Well, manners seem to be at a premium, if thats any indication—"

"It isn't thank G—!" Stan spoke with thin self-control. "Georgia De Haas is one of the biggest cats in town. Why Amy goes with her, beats me! She was eaten with curiosity and she came down to get an eyeful. Now she'll run on back to the rest of her gang to report."

There was such a sharp edge on Stan's words that Judy's eyes flashed to his face. The little muscle was twitching in his cheek again, and she could see his jaw bone, outlined white under the skin. A strange sense of dismay leaped in her heart that this incident could mean so much to him. Her voice was indignant when she answered: "Well, I don't see why you take it so much to heart! What can she say—that you married a Hottentot! That your wife is impossible a country clown...."

That jolted the man out his black mood. His eyes flashed quickly to her face; his manner was conciliatory "Aw honey—don't pick on me! You were splendid. You put that chatterbox right in her place! Proud of you, I am dearest!" He helped her in the car. Got in beside her and slipped his arm behind her. "Here—give your husband a smile, Mrs. Stanley Carter!"

Stan, his old handsome, persuasive self again—swaying her by his sparkling good looks....

The machine spun along the broad streets of Lockwood. The trim, expensive shops of the business district fell behind them. Shops which Judy had never dreamed could exist in a small town. She had an impression of small but smart sport-clothes houses, period furniture shops, groceries, with plate glass windows which displayed exotic looking fruits, imported canned goods. A motion picture theatre which was a veritable palace. Judy learned later that it was considered a lark for the younger set to descend upon the theatre at whimsical moments, bareheaded, informal all set for an evening of rather young gayety.

The car had turned into a long avenue bordered with live oaks which met far overhead, forming a leafy tunnel of the street. Here and there, set back behind stone walls and bronze gates, or hiding coyly in massed shrubbery or beds of well tended flowers, she could glimpse large, expensive homes.

Judy watched, fascinated. There was one of white stucco —a rambling palace, which at the same time contrived to be a Spanish mission in type. She had a glimpse of bright awnings—low paved porches with garden chairs, a fountain playing lazily in a patio filled with long sunset shadows.

"Oh, Stan—that house! It's the loveliest thing I've ever seen! Who lives there?"

Stan was looking out of the other window of the limousine. He did not seem to have heard her question. She repeated it, and he spoke, very off-hand. "Oh, that. People named Wilson. Look, Judy there's my place——"

In a minute the car was entering a long arch of driveway. Judy was looking at her future home.

Nothing of stucco and bright red tiles about the Carter house. Nothing bright at all. The house was old, a large frame building whose youth went back to the elegant eighties as the gingerbread trimming on the porch roof as the trayed. But ugly and even weather-beaten as it was there was a dignity to this old mansion which the beautiful stucco house had lacked. It was thought Judy as though some queenly old dowager were compared to a beautiful insipid girl.

The chauffeur was carrying the grips. Stan had helped Judy out. She found herself walking up the steps at his side and fighting painful self-consciousness.

The door was opened by a Chinese servant in blue linen whom Stan addressed as Pon.

"Family at dinner? All right—we will go on in. Help Keegan take the things upstairs to my rooms. Come on Judy."

She sensed a tenseness about Stan as they went along the hall, but for that matter, there was a tenseness about herself also. Fighting down that acute bashfulness, crushing back the childish desire to turn and flee out into the soft, concealing twilight. A dream, that this should be Judy Denning, walking down this long, polished hallway to meet strange people who were now so astonishingly her relatives..Dreamlike impressions of gleaming hardwood, of long heavy drapes over the long, narrow, old-fashioned windows, of family portraits in dull, gleaming gold frames.

They stood in the open entrance of the dining room, facing the family.

THE CARTERS

CHAPTER EIGHT

It lived in Judy's memory afterward like a scene from a play. The dark paneled walls of the room forming a sombre background for the long dining table. A blurred impression of tall candles gleaming about a great yellow bowl of narcissus in the centre of the table.

Never again was Judy to see or smell narcissus without this scene flooding back into her mind. Faces lighted sharply through the mellow glow as Stan called:

"Hello, everybody! Here we are!"

Click of silver on china a chair pushed back. The middle aged woman at the end of the table came to her feet with a glad little cry. "My boy! My darling boy!"

Stan bent and kissed her, then shoved Judy forward with a gentle little shove on her shoulder.

"This is Judy, mother....Judith Denning Carter herself, in person! Do the honors and have Pon fetch a couple of plates; we're starved."

"Oh, my dear, I'm so sorry....I mean, you know how your grandmother is —about mealtimes I mean; they must be served right on the minute.....she won't wait...." All of this in a fluttering whisper, that it should not reach the ears of the formidable old lady seated at the further end of the table. Then with a gasp, Mrs. Carter seemed to recollect her new daughter-in-law. "My dear, I'm sure I'm very glad to meet you. It was a great surprise—you'll admit that—but I'm sure that we all welcome you here to the house. But really, Stan—I do think you might have let me known some other way than blurting it out like that in a telegram.. just blurting it out like that—all at once. Such a—a surprise...."

Stan's white teeth flashed. "Couldn't Mother. Didn't know myself. We were fast workers, were we not Judy?"

"Well, aren't the rest of us here at all!" called a woman's voice across the table, a voice with an imperious ring to it. "Don't we meet the bride?"

"Sorry everybody!" Stan's arm swung Judy to face the rest of them. "Meet the wife, family! Judy you might as well know the worst right away. These are your new relatives."

Judy nervously whipped her own shrinking spirits up to reach the level of light banter Stan had adopted. It was a time of obvious merriment. Everyone laughed, tossing out questions to which they expected no answers, making exaggerated ejaculations to trivial statements.

"That tiresome trip across country—you must be nearly dead, you two!.... You certainly sprung a surprise on us.....Mother nearly dropped in her tracks when she got your wire. ....And the heat—wasn't it dreadful on the train?.... You'll like Lockwood, Judy —— of course it takes getting used to. ....Everyone stopping us on the street asking us about you, and we didn't know a thing but that you'd married...."

There was a part of Judy which stood away and surveyed them all while the rest of her mind was taken up by their voices and their bright, curious eyes. A cool detached portion of her brain, which was busy with those first impressions which are after all so important to crasis likes and dislikes.

Mrs. Carter—Stan's mother— was a nervous, fluttery sort of person, indecisive, always a little disorderly in dress and mind. Judy looking at her was reminded of the inefficient White Queen in "Alice in Wonderland". Her long and still abundant hair was fine and silky as cornsilk and perpetually slipping down from the heavy coil in which she wore it. Her faded china blue eyes were a little vacant and she had a small, soft, helpless mouth. But it was easy to see that in her youth she must have been lovely— with the fragile pink and white beauty of girlhood.

Vera, the elder sister, was as dark as Stan, running rather to bust and hips in her twenty-ninth year, but a decisive and dominant personality. Her tweed sport suit and the tailored blouse which topped it were correct and trim, almost mannish in appearance. "A committee meeting up at the golf club—I didn't have a moment to change. I've just been dashing about all day," Judy heard her say to Duke.

She was to learn that it was an affection of Vera's to seem always in demand; always driven to a breathless pace by important engagements. It was Vera's way of appearing popular.

And there was Amy. With the first glimpse of Amy, vanished was the friendly image which Judy had been building in her mind about this girl! She had pictured Amy as much like Stan—she had thought she would be small and dark and friendly, a sympathetic, rather a pathetic person secretly sorrowing over her unhappy marriage.

In reality, Amy was a younger—and more tidy—edition of her mother. Amy's flaxen hair was carefully marcelled into large flat waves, and the china blue eyes were cool and self-possessed beneath her mascaraed lashes. No, thought Judy, one would never pity Amy, she seemed too entirely satisfied with herself.

And, sitting in her armchair as though it were a throne was Madame Carter, the mother of Stan's dead father. Erect and dominant she was, in spite of her 80-odd years. Her face was the color of old parchment, covered with a spiderweb of fine wrinkles. Her frail old body seemed lost under the weight of the dark garnet silk gown she wore. But her eyes were bright and alert, watching Judy whenever the girl looked over at her, watching Stan—lively, thoughtful eyes —not entirely friendly eyes.

"We couldn't get here any sooner" Stan was saying, one careless arm flung over Judy's shoulder. "Your gabby friend, Georgia waylaid us and had to get rid of a bunch of talk before we could get away."

Was it Judy's fancy, or did a long, meaningful look flash between Vera and Amy?

"Well, of course, Stan you can't blame Georgia for being—interested. We were all so surprised,—" Amy put in her clear high voice.

"I'll bet" Stan answered cryptically. "Well, do we stand here all night, or do we get dinner?"

"Oh, darling" His mother fluttered to her feet again. "Of course Judith will want to go upstairs and fix up a little. Your old suite—is that all right? And I had Pon fix up the extra closet as a dressing room. If it isn't right we'll arrange things tomorrow...."

Floating her out of the room on a wave of talk and laughter. Smiling teeth and bright, watchful eyes. As surely as though she had been there Judy felt that Stan's telegram telling of the marriage had flashed upon this house like lightning. As surely as though she had been there, she felt there had been a family conference held over it. A shocked and stricken conference; and that an air of bright friendliness had been agreed upon.

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma was reeding Sparkels from the Silver Screen saying, Romance romance, is there anything elts in Hollywood?

What elts can you do with a climate like that? pop said, and ma said, According to this magazine there's a confirmed rumor that Stover Stevens is again harmonising with Valencia Valence his former wife, and that nobody will be serprised if they marry again to the tune of wedding bells, except perhaps Rosa Rite who is Stover Stevens present wife and is said to be less happy than he is when he's out of her site.

And even after they've grown up she'll still be older than he is, and that's genrelly a mistake. And besides, Bubbles Berd is getting better and better on her artistic side, while Baby Dumpling shows sines of being a waning star. Everybody said he seemed entirely to self conscious in his last picture. The ideer such an ideer, let me see that article, Willyum, where is it? ma said.

Tarzan studied the girl while the general read her coded message. Correctly, he judged she was one of the Red's spies. Therefore her beauty held no appeal for him. Gladly he could have wrung her fair, young neck.

The red finished reading. "Good," he said to Olga. Then to an aide: "Fetch Lieutenant Petrovich!" Tarzan waited eagerly. For the first time he was about to see the man who helped murder his mate and torture her faithful servants.

Soon the evil-visaged fellow was ushered in. The general returned his salute, saying to the girl: "Allow me to present Lieutenant Petrovich, who will be your—" Without waiting to hear more, Tarzan of the Apes vaulted into the room

He sent the lamp crashing as the surprised officers leaped for him. Grabbing one, Tarzan flung him against the other as they called for help. Freed from attack, the ape-man seized Petrovich and sprang through the window.

MAROONS MEET LEAFS TONIGHT

Game Holds Many Interesting Possibilities For Both Squads

Tommy Gorman's swashbuckling Maroons and the seldom beaten Toronto Maple Leafs clash at Montreal tonight in a hockey contest that holds more interesting possibilities than most National League contests so far this season.

Stung by the defeat Canadiens handed them Tuesday and eager to close up the six-point gap between themselves and Leafs in the Canadian section standing, Maroons are planning a desperate stand to halt the high-scoring Torontonians. The teams have met once before, Toronto taking a 2-1 win with two third period goals.

While they are battling in Montreal, Boston will attempt to break the tie with Chicago for leadership in the American section by defeating Americans in New York. If they win they would hold first place until at least Sunday when Black Hawks get back into action again.

Under the management of George Boucher, Ottawa Senator star of a decade ago who succeeds Eddie Gerard, St. Louis will attempt to halt their losing streak when they meet Detroit Red Wings in the Missouri city tonight. Jack Adams' team have beaten them twice before in closely fought games by scores of 4-1 and 3-1.

MAJOR DEALS CALLED OFF

Meeting May Adourn Without One Deal Being Made

New York, Dec. 13.—There is a strong probability that the current major league baseball meeting may wind up tonight without a single major deal to put on edge on the otherwise dull and lifeless proceedings.

This unheard of situation developed when the three-cornered swap between the New York, Pittsburgh and always-willing Philadelphia Nationals began wobbling and threatened to go by the board entirely.

Until midnight the thing seemed in the bag, with the Giants sending a young pitcher and a wad of cash to Philadelphia in return for George Davis, an outfielder for whom Bill Terry has cried since the day he sent him away; the Phillies, for their part were to turn the cash and catcher Al. Todd over to the Pirates in exchange for Lloyd Waner and Earl Grace, a catcher.

The hitch came about when Pittsburgh, desperately seeking a four-cornered affair to lure Hal Lee away from the Boston Braves.

Bill McKechnie, cagy pilot of the Braves, was willing to part with Lee, but he turned thumbs down on all the talent offered in return so the weary traders called it a night with the whole affair very much up in the air.

BULLDOGS WIN AT SYRACUSE

Score is 3-1 And Leaves Both Teams Tied For Third Place

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 13.—Syracuse Stars were forced to share the third place in the International Hockey League standing with Windsor Bulldogs today. The Stars absorbed a 3-1 defeat here last night which left the two teams tied behind Buffalo Bisons and the first place London Tecumsehs.

A tripping penalty to Al Huggins of the Stars had a lot to do with the Bulldogs' victory. Early in the first period while Huggins was serving time, Sammy McManus scooped up Eddie Convey's pass for the first goal and a little more than a minute later Carson Cooper notched Windsor's second counter. Figuring on the play was Frank Steele.

Early in the second frame Scotty Martin took Bill Toukey's pass to score the only Syracuse goal but the Windsor margin was extended again before the period ended. "Whitey" Fields sidled in on Phil Stein in the Syracuse nets and found the net with a low shot from twenty feet out.

The Bulldogs, content with their two-goal edge, played defensive hockey for the balance of the game and there was no more scoring.

SERGEANTS SHOOT TO WIN CONTEST

Officers of A.L.I. Defeated by 488 to 459 Points

Considerable interest was taken in a rifle shoot at the Armouries last evening when the officers of the Argyll Light Infantry and the Sergeants of the battalion battled for supremacy at the range. The result was a win for the sergeants, who were afterwards entertained by the officers as a result. Fifteen members of each department participated, the sergeants winning out by 29 points, their total being 488 to 459 for the officers. After the competition an enjoyable time was spent in the Sergeants' Mess. The scores:

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

"Apparently we can't make ends meet financially by staging boxing shows at the "Y" so we'll have to move into larger quarters," stated Promoter Clem Allen in reference to his next S.W.A.A.C. fight program. Clem would not say just where he would present his next show but definitely stated that the "Y" gymnasium was too small. Incidentally either the armouries or the city hall, both being heated, would be ideal locations. Promoter Allen's fighters have been booked to appear in Stirling on 19th instant. Clem has not completely arranged the card as yet but in all probability only Belleville and Airport scrappers will be included on the proposed card to be presented in Billie Whitty's town. The bouts are being sponsored by the Stirling Hockey Club, we believe.

Following Monday night's boxing show the Peterboro sport scribe took exception to the manner in which Dave Cowan's Lift Lock City mittsters were received in the following sport note that appeared in the Peterboro Examiner the morning after the bouts. It reads:

"Dave Cowan took four boxers down to Belleville for a fight card last eve and two won while two lost out. Reg McMillan kept up his winning streak by decisioning Tom McCarthy in the best bout of the evening. Pete Vitarelli found Bill Crawford too heavy and strong and the scrap was stopped in the fourth. Tony Renco got the idea Killer Wheeler was bad news and went into his shell and took a technical kayo in the third. Len Minicola outpointed Bob Vieau in five fine rounds of clever and hard-hitting boxing, despite the fact the Frenchman had twenty pounds on him. After the Peterboro boys were weighed in, someone toted off the scales, saying they were out of order, so the locals had to take Belleville's word as to the Quinte guys' weights—and we're told every home fighter out-weighed the visitors from ten to twenty pounds. That's poor stuff, but brings all the more credit to the Cowan clouters for their showing."

The Patrick brothers, Frank with Boston Bruins and Lester with New York Rangers, are not the first brother-managers in the National Hockey League. A few years ago, while Art Ross was ill, Sprague Cleghorn officiated as manager of the Boston Bruins. At the same time, the Pittsburg Pirates were being piloted by his brother, Odie Cleghorn.

Eddie Collins, Jr., son of the famous second baseman and one-time Columbia university quarterback, is following in his father's footsteps on the gridiron. Young Eddie is quarterback of the Episcopal Academy eleven in Philadelphia.

Yesterday's rise in temperature slowed up the manufacture of ice at the arena to such an extent that manager Redner would not definitely state just when the Belleville Arena would throw open its doors for the inauguration of skating this season. "If the mercury drops tonight and remains considerably below the freezing point for the next 24 hours, we may be able to open Friday in a pinch," stated Mr. Redner rather dubiously, however. In the meantime season tickets are being sold rapidly and at a nominal figure.

Bright and early yesterday morning the various managers of hockey clubs in the local City League were on the job endeavoring to entice the cream of local hockey players to sign on the dotted line. President Harry Rollins threw a bombshell into the ranks of the loop when he announced that only signed league certificates that were issued to the managers on Tuesday evening would be considered by the league executive. It seems that some of the team managers had signed players on a slip of paper previous to the issuing of the league certificates. These signed players were under the impression they had been officially recorded into the league, but when the organization's official certificates were produced, a general scramble to re-sign players ensued. Practically every team in the city league has procured practice hours at the arena some time over the week-end when aspiring pucksters will try out under the observant eye of the various club managers. Each team will likely get in two or three stiff practices before the season opens next Tuesday night.

Although the matter of goal umpires and time-keepers was not approached by the league executive on Tuesday evening it is hoped that a staff of neutral goal umpires and time-keepers will be appointed to work in conjunction with the referees. League passes should be afforded five or six interested hockey fans who can be relied upon to act as competent goal umpires or timers as the case arises. The matter of referees is being left in the hands of an appointed referee-in-chief whose duty it is to provide adequate officials. Some years ago a flourishing city hockey league was operated in Belleville and there is no reason why the winter pastime cannot return to that plane once again. Judging from the pre-season interest being taken the loop should provide plenty of stiff opposition.

Nick Wasnie, who slipped out of the major league for 24 hours recently when he was signed by Minneapolis of the American Association, but at once re-signed by St. Louis Eagles of the National Hockey League, will be wearing his fifth National League uniform in that city. He has been with Chicago, Canadiens, New York Americans and Ottawa in previous seasons. Wasnie is a heavy shot from the right wing.

In one of the most important baseball trades of the year, Fred Lindstrom, outfielder, and Larry French, pitcher, of the Pittsburg Pirates, were sent to the Chicago Cubs in exchange for Jim Weaver and Guy Bush, pitchers, and Babe Herman, outfielder. The trade was negotiated at the meeting of minor loop heads in Louisville.

VOLLEYBALL

Keen competition marked last night's city league volleyball games at the Y.M.C.A. when the Hydro and Belleville Business Men won over the R.C.A.F. and the "Y" Seniors respectively. Each game proved a stiff battle in itself as the Hydro won the first two games from the R.C.A.F. by the scores of 19-15 and 15-4. In the third game, however, the Flyers returned to form and forced the Hydro into overtime, eventually winning 16 to 14. This is the first overtime game to be played in the league this season.

In the nightcap affair the Belleville Business Men defeated the 'Y' Seniors in a hard fought opening title by the score of 15 to 13. The 'Y' lads came back strong in the second game to win 15 to 7, but fell to pieces in the final game, going down 15 to 3.

The line-up

Hydro—R. L. Brown; Davis, Post; O. W. Munnings; K. Munnings; C. Shedden; L. Blaker.

R.C.A.F.—O'Neil; Pafford; Benson; Mitchell; Jones; Burdes.

Once Mild in Polar Region?

Little America, Antartica, Dec. 13 (via MacKay Radio) (AP)—The possibility that the south polar region might once have had a mild but humid climate was advanced today as a result of discoveries of coal and fossils by a geological party of the Byrd expedition.

The find was made by a geological sledding group headed by Quin Blackburn. The new coal fields and sandstone containing the fossils were discovered 182 nautical miles from the South Pole at the head of the Thorne Glacier in the Queen Maud range.

"Our ppresent camp is on a morain at the immediate base of a mountain capped with sedimentary strata containing several beds of coal and plant-bearing sandstone," Blackburn messaged the home base by radio.

"We have collected numerous fossils. Our only problem now is to decide what specimens to bring out."

Blackburn reported: "We have sighted numerous new mountains and glaciers, but the most continuous strong winds somewhat hinder our activity."

MANY ARTICLES FOUND IN RIVER

Pieces of shattered cant hooks and peavies relics of the days when the shouts of lumberjacks echoed through the district, a rusted and corroded revolver a mysterious and grim hint of some tale of misdeed or crime, and a solid copper coin, whose age and origin none can decipher are only a few of the interesting finds picked up from the bed of the Moira River during the past few weeks by the men who are engaged in relief work clearing out the bottom of the stream. The revolver was found just below the upper bridge the cant hooks and peavies near the mouth of the river where log drives had jammed and were consistantly dynamited free in the bygone years. High water of the past week or so has hampered the work of the relief gangs in the river but their labours at clearing the bed of the small islands and extra material is being steadily carried on.

CHRISTMASTIDE IS USHERED IN

Several Entertainments on Wednesday Provide Enjoyment

O.S.D. STAFF PARTY

Members of the Association of Teachers and Instructors of the Deaf held a delightful Christmas party last evening at the Ontario School for the Deaf, when a Christmas program was given, following which the members were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Holton at a supper at their home on the Trent Road.

The party was held in the sewing room of the school which was transformed into a Christmas fairyland by its lovely Yuletide decorations. For the interesting program Miss Rierdon, president of the Association, was in the chair. The numbers included a Christmas carol by eight small children in pretty little costumes, carrying lanterns; Christmas in Verse by Miss Catherine Ford; monologue, "The Angel's Song" by Miss Sheffield; reading "The Chimes" by Miss Leacock; Christmas Carols, Community Singing by the Association; reading, "The Awakening," Mr. Stratton; reading, "Is There a Santa Claus" by Miss Panter; Poem, "Yes, There is a Santa Claus" by Mr. McGuire.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. George Stewart who gave an eloquent address on Christmas which brought a real Christmas message to his hearers. Mr. Holmes moved a vote of appreciation to Mr. Stewart and Miss Van Allen voiced the thanks of the Association to the other artists of the evening.

The singing of Christmas carols was one of the features of the evening, Mr. Alec Gordon who had coached the Association in the preparation of the carols, presided at the piano during the evening.

At the close of the program the members were invited to the home of Mr. G. H. Holton, Administrator of the Ontario School for the Deaf, and Mrs. Holton where a delightful welcome was extended them. The charming rooms were gay with Christmas decorations and the guests thoroughly enjoyed the friendly hospitality of the social hour. Delicious refreshments were served, the tea table being particularly attractive with its handsome lace cloth and silver bowl of crystal and silver flowers.

Christmas carols were sung by the guests and as the happy evening drew to a close, Mr. Mel Blanchard conveyed the appreciation of the Association to Mr. and Mrs. Holton in a well-worded vote of thanks.

Miracle Play Given

The December meeting of the Here Am I Mission Circle in conjunction with the Women's Missionary Society was held last evening in the Tabernacle Church Sunday School rooms. After a short song service and reports from each society the following Christmas programme was given, Mrs. H. Froats presided.

The responsive devotional service was introduced by Rachel Fox and Mrs. G. F. Lent led the service. A reading "In the Light of Bethlehem Stars" which expressed what the Christmas spirit should mean was given by Mrs. Froats. Mrs. Bradley sang a beautiful solo entitled "The Gift." Mrs. Naylor told the very interesting story of "How the Chimes Rang." A poem "From Sea to Sea" was read by Mrs. Ed. Sharpe. Lou Dougherty gave a reading which described "A West China Christmas."

Miss Ruth Plunder enacted a monologue "Christmas List," which stressed the fact that Christ whose birthday it celebrated should be first on each list.

A miracle play depicting the scenes of "The Nativity," was effectively presented, with the following characters:

Mary—Edith Bird.
Joseph—Ethel Horton.
Innkeeper—Emma Dafoe.
Angels—Dorothy Moorman, Edna Cherrie, Phyllis Weese, Marjorie Chambers, Lois Moorman, Marion Fisher.
Shepherds—Mae Edmonson, Marjorie Austin, Ruby Moore, Grace Gay.
Wise Men — Laura Dougherty, Lou Dougherty, Thelma Hodges.

Mrs. Wright favoured with a piano solo of familiar Christmas music.

A pantomime "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." Music offstage was contributed by Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Duff, Dorothea Newson and Hazel Palmer. This followed by the Benediction closed the programme which was thoroughly appreciated by all present.

EXPECT 61 NAMED WILL SURRENDER

Bronfman Brothers Ready to Answer Charges of Mounties

Montreal, Dec. 13—(CP)—Wholesale surrender of 61 men sought throughout the Dominion on charges of defrauding the Dominion Government of $5,000,000 in connection with a giant liquor-smuggling ring were expected today following announcement from Ottawa two of the four Bronfman brothers named in the blanket warrant were ready to turn themselves over to Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Sam Bronfman and his brother Allan, President and Vice-President respectively of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Limited, said in Ottawa last night they would give themselves up to R.C.M.P. officers as soon as police were ready for them. The other brothers Harry and Abraham Bronfman, were in The United States but would follow the lead of Sam and Allan.

W. E. Cleland, a director of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, who was with the Bronfmans in their hotel room in Ottawa, issued a statement in which he reported, that the company was in no way connected with the charges against its officials. "I note with satisfaction" he said, "that it has today been repeatedly, officially and distinctly stated that Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Limited is in no way connected with the proceedings against certain individuals for alleged breach of the revenue laws.

"Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Limited and its subsidiaries both in Canada and the United States have always carried on their business in full compliance with all laws and regulations and no suggestion of irregularity has ever been levelled against any of the companies or the conduct of any of the officers of the company."

MARJORIE THOMPSON KILLS BROTHER, SISTER

According to Dr. McMullen, Marjorie had been unbalanced for a year, the condition beginning with pronounced melancholia. He had her under the care of a specialist for a time but ultimately sent her home in the belief she might recover. She had never shown signs of violence before tonight, he said.

The double slaying occurred at about 10.30 o'clock. Apparently in a sudden fit of rage, Marjorie took the rifle from its place downstairs, loaded it and went upstairs to Ina's room, according to the way police now reconstruct events. She then shot Ina through the left eye, police say, and re-loading the rifle, walked into the room where Neil slept with his brother Floyd, 14.

Put up Struggle

To get to Neil's side of the bed, where she was found, she had to walk past Floyd and around the foot of the bedstead. Floyd was roused by the shot which penetrated Neil's brain through the right eye. Floyd leaped up and snatched the rifle from her hands. Her father, who was asleep in the kitchen, awoke and rushing upstairs, seized hold of her as she struggled with Floyd.

Dressing, Floyd ran to a neighbor's and telephoned Dr. McMullen who notified the police. Word was hurried to Mrs. Thompson who with two other sons Lorne 17, and Lloyd a twin brother of Floyd, was attending a Christmas social at a nearby church. Mrs. Thompson collapsed and both she and her husband had to have medical attention.

Marjorie was taken to Cobourg by County Constable McCaul. It was suggested today that owing to the mental condition of the girl, Provincial authorities might waive formal arrest and trial. Present indications are that there will be no inquest.

Lay Two Charges

Provincial Police will today lay two charges against Marjorie Thompson, who last night shot and killed her brother and sister, while they lay asleep at their home north of Stockdale, one charge will be that of insanity, while the second one will be that of murder. Dr. H. C. Rundle of Brighton, coroner, went to the scene of the double tragedy and after investigation ordered an inquest, which was convened immediately. The preliminary evidence and identification were taken after which the inquest adjourned to a date to be fixed by the coroner. The jury was composed of neighbours from the surrounding district and included—Allan Austin, Albert Caskey, Wm. Bird, Wm. Kemp, Blake Terry, Ray Plumpton, John Benns, Harold Wiley and Roy Osterhout. Preparations are going forward today for the double funeral of the victims, while the parents and other members of the family are grief stricken in the loss of their loved ones.

Never Fired Gun Before

The Ontario Intelligencer reporter who visited the scene of the dual tragedy shortly after the report of the incident reached the local office of the Provincial Police here, interviewed the grief-stricken family in the crowded home. "I don't know why I did it" were the first words heard from the lips of Marjorie Thompson, by her brother Floyd, who wrested the gun from his sister's hands as she was about to reload it and fire at him for an intended third victim. When questioned as to whether the frail, sickly Marjorie was in the habit of handling the gun, Mr. Blake Thompson, her father replied—"She never fired a gun in her life before". When the gun was found by Sergeant H. Thompson and Constable Kelly of the Provincial Police the ejector bolt was missing while laying nearby outside the house was found a large butcher knife. Mr. Thompson informed the authorities that he had thrown the gun out of the house immediately following the discovery of the dual tragedy the father having been asleep downstairs at the time of the shooting. When questioned as to where and how Marjorie had porcured the .22 calibre rifle Mr. Thompson stated that the gun had been in his automobile all day. He did not remember whether it had been returned to the house early in the evening or not. The ammunition box was found behind a clock on a mantlepiece.

Did Not Hear First Shot

Floyd Thompson, twin brother of Lloyd and the brother said to have been sleeping with Neil at the time of the tragedy, informed the Ontario Intelligencer he did not actually hear the first shot, although some noise aroused him. "Later I woke up and heard our bed-room door open, some person came in and walked around to Neil's side of the bed. There was a "bang". I jumped up and saw it was Marjorie. No, she didn't speak. I grabbed the gun out of her hands as she was about to reload it. Yes, I hid the ejector bolt under the mattress so she couldn't fire the gun off again", stated Floyd, rapidly and all in one breath. Floyd stated, that his sister came up close to the bed before firing point-blank at her brother. Both kiddies were shot directly through the eye and are believed by Dr. David McMullen, who first attended them, to have died practically instantly. "The lad died instantly, while the girl never realized, what happened, although she lived for a few minutes," stated Dr. McMullen to the Ontario Intelligencer early today. Riding on horseback, afoot and in motor cars, neighbours for miles around were seen rapidly making their way to the Thompson home in a blinding snow storm in order to render what assistance was necessary under the circumstances.

Sister Quiet

Lloyd Thompson, twin brother of Floyd who miraculously escaped death at the hands of his deranged sister, informed the press that his sister seemed to be more quiet than usual during the earlier hours of the evening. "Mother, Lorne and I went to the Christmas Tree practice, you see, but I remember now, that Marjorie refused to eat any supper and sat in the corner of the room alone. Of course we did not think anything of that at the time as she often refused to eat at the table with us", stated little Lloyd at the home of M. Nelson, a neighbour.

The Thompson home is a frame structure with four rooms downstairs and three bed rooms in the upper portion of the house. Little Ina slept in a bed room to the left of the top of the stairs, while the boys' room was to the right, at the top landing. According to the general belief of those to investigate, Marjorie crept up the stairs, turned to her left into her sister's room, where she also slept. The door was closed behind her and she walked up to the bed and apparently fired the .22 calibre rifle in the face of her sister. Re-loading the gun she retraced her steps into the hall, opened the boys' bedroom door and walked across the room, to shoot Neil.

Family Grief Stricken

A third bed room is situated in the front portion of the upper part of the house, but was not entered. Downstairs there is a kitchen and living room and a rear room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Thompson as a bed room. Mrs. Thompson, upon her return from the schoolhouse was grief-stricken upon learning of the dual tragedy, that had befallen her family. She was not questioned by authorities. Mr. Thompson also showed signs of emotion. The Thompson children were well known in the community, where they resided, their farm being an old homestead and having been occupied by Mr. Thompson's father previously.

Sergeant Harry Thompson and Constable John Kelly of the local detachment of Provincial Police investigated the matter while County Constable Lew McCaul placed Marjorie Thompson under arrest and conveyed her to Cobourg, where she was lodged in the county jail awaiting further investigation. The future procedure in the matter is now in the hands of the Crown Attorney at Cobourg. Alienists will later be consulted in the matter.

DR. ALLAN ROY DAFOE TELLS THE STORY OF QUINTUPLETS' BIRTH

(From The New York Times)

Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe gave the first complete picture of the background of the celebrated Dionne infants, their birth, early care and present condition, in his talk at Carnegie Hall Monday night. After expressing his pleasure at "my first real holiday in twenty-five years," he said that he considered the entire affair "a modern fairy tale with a medical flavor."

"The only available data as to previous multiple birth in the Dionne family shows that on the wife's side there were three sets of twins among her first cousins," Dr. Dafoe said. "The husband's side produced two sets of twins, but these are rather distant relatives to the present family.

"When twins or more babies are born at the same time, they are known in medical terms as being identical or fraternal. Identical babies mean that the babies, no matter how many, have all originated from a single fertilized egg and the babies all look alike from birth. This similarity in physical appearance continues throughout life and some experts in twining feel that even their thoughts and actions are similar.

"One outstanding British surgeon has remarked that if tumours of a certain kind are found in one twin, they are invariably found in the other also.

"Before birth identical twins receive their nourishment and eliminate the waste products of their bodies through a wonderful bit of mechanism in a circumscribed area known as the 'afterbirth. This single area communicated with the Dionne babies through five separate channels which are called umbilical cords. In identical multiple births the babies are always of the same sex.

Fraternal Babies Not Alike

"In fraternal multiple births, the babies do not look alike (any more than members of the same family). There are separate afterbirths for each baby, and the babies may or may not be of the same sex. The Dionne quintuplets then had their origin in one fertilized sex cell, and not five separate cells. The babies looked alike at birth and have gradually become more and more alike. At the present when they are lying in a row, it requires a certain amount of concentration to tell them apart. Their eyes are changing into a dark brown and their hair is a light shade of brown.

"In order to prevent any mistakes in identification, either now or in the future, footprints of all the babies were taken and filed away. Prints from the feet are taken because the usual whorls found in adults are not developed enough in their tiny fingers to make an impression. At one time the possibility of a blood transfusion for these little babies was considered, so their blood was grouped, and as would be expected, they were all found to be of the same type.

"To any one, except a biological expert, the theories of why this happened are difficult to understand. Some point to the so-called 'throw back' explanation. We occasionally see in human beings miniature breasts on the abdomen and this is supposed to show that sometime during the process of evolution the human females always had more than one baby at birth. There are other theories, but apparently they are all based on comparison with lower animals, and there is no direct proof found in humans."

Describes Country There

Dr. Dafoe described the lake-studded country, with fertile patches between its rocky hills and asserted that "hard work and good health" are essential to making a living in this country. Although many have been on relief in the last few years, work has been found for all of them, enabling them to retain their self-support, he said.

"The people of this section of the Northland, came from Quebec. They are direct descendants of the early settlers of Lower Canada who left Normandy over 300 years ago. Their home life is remarkably pure. They live close to the soil and have not been spoiled by the modern civilization. These people are sturdy simple, law-abiding folk, loyal to their race and particularly to their faith. Race suicide is non-existent and it is not usual to find families of fifteen to twenty. They are naturally happy in nature, buoyant in outlook, and live to some extent under a communal system.

"Over half my life has been spent in Callander and I am vitally interested in the problems, both medical and otherwise, of the people there. My work has been hard at times, but I have been fairly happy through it all, and in spite of attractions elsewhere, this country will continue to be my home.

"Immediately following graduation in 1907 I stepped out into the unknown realms of general practice with a few words of advice from a wonderful father—himself a country doctor who lived to practice for fifty-one years. 'Do your work well and keep your mouth shut.' The first year was made up of locum tenens work in several mining towns of Ontario, but finally ending up in Callander. This village at that time was very busy with its lumbering activities during the Summer, but rather quiet in the Winter.

"The country surrounding was somewhat sparsely settled and the roads were very bad, especially in the Winter and Spring months. The struggle which was necessary for a bare existence during the first five years of practice, remains as a nightmare.

Bought a Few Books

"I was able to save enough money to buy a few books and they, with my dog and pipe, were my faithful companions. As time went on practice improved; better roads were built and the country opened up to Summer visitors. At the present I have a comfortable home with electricity and a good library and I still have my two friends to whom I have made an addition in the form of a radio.

"Mrs. Dionne was 25 years of age when the five babies were born. She was married at 16 and had six previous full-time babies, all of whom are living except one. A midwife looked after the births of her first and last two babies, but I looked after the other three. She did not receive medical pre-natal care with any of her pregnancies and all her babies were born in a normal way, except one. The process of labor with each baby was less than five hours, and there were no complications after. The mother was always out of bed by the fifth day, and carrying on with light house work. This treatment, of course, is not due to my advice, but it has been the custom of the country. They would most certainly benefit by a continued rest in bed, but this is sometimes difficult to carry out as the houses are small and the children numerous.

Called in May 12

"My first intimation about the condition of the patient was received on May 12, when her husband came to tell me that she wasn't well. From the symptoms given it was evident that there was a moderate degree of toxemia, or poisoning, of pregnancy present. He was asked to report during the next week and from certain tests it was easily seen that the condition was becoming worse and I insisted on visiting her. My fears were unfortunately true and I found the mother in rather an alarming condition. She was showing the typical signs of a condition well known in pregnancy, which borders on convulsions, but was still up and around. She was put to bed help obtained, and certain measures of treatment instituted. She was somewhat uncertain about the exact time that the baby was expected, but on careful questioning, the expected date of birth was found to be around the third week of July.

"The examination showed that there was some definite abnormality of the pregnancy, but the tissues were so swollen, that exact findings were very difficult, and I didn't particularly suspect multiple pregnancy. From certain evidence in her history, there was a slight possibility of another baby, but there was no proof and, of course, this cannot be accepted as a fact. During the next week the mother improved.

Hurry Call at 4 A. M.

"At 4 A. M. on May 28th a 'hurry call' came from the Dionne home. I arrived to find the house in confusion, no preparation made for confinement, except a tea-kettle boiling on the stove. I was astonished to find two babies had already been born, and a third one was arriving. Two neighbors were acting as midwives and doing excellent work. The father had disappeared. I scrubbed up in the best way available, and took over the situation. The neighbors then scurried around the house to get some coverings for the babies and replenish the fire. In the meantime, another baby appeared in the world, and this was followed by still another. The last two babies were born with an "angel's veil" or a caul, covering them. In olden times an incident of this nature was supposed to bring good luck for the future.

"In the early hours of the morning, and still sleepy from a previous obstetrical case that night, the whole situation seemed to be unreal and dream-like, but I mechanically went about the business of looking after the babies. The attendants told me afterward that my eyes were bulging and with the arrival of each baby, my only word was "Gosh!" with ascending inflection. The three larger babies were born first and the two smaller last, but the order of birth sequence is not known. All the babies were breathing and whimpering slightly. I didn't see how all of them could possibly live, so I baptized them separately. They were then wrapped in the only coverings available which proved to be remnants of cotton sheeting and old napkins, and then laid in a row on the corner of the bed and covered with a heated blanket.

"The mother, in the meantime, was not reacting in a normal fashion. She was showing signs of an increasing condition of shock. This was probably due to a combination of toxemia, disturbance of the blood system and an inability of the markedly stretched muscles to contract properly. In spite of treatment, the mother was not recovering, her condition was alarming and she presented the appearance of a dying woman. It was my duty, as no one else was available, to get the priest. Reluctantly leaving the midwife, with careful instructions, I hurried away for the priest, a distance of two and a half miles.

Mother Soon Out of Daner

"On returning the mother's condition had improved, and this improvement continued until, about three hours later, she was definitely out of danger.

"During this time of great worry the five babies were almost forgotten, but their kitten-like cries reminded me of their presence. Blankets were put into the oven to heat and these were wrapped around the babies and changed repeatedly. An ordinary butcher's meat basket was obtained from one of the neighbors. The heated blankets were placed in the bottom of the basket and the babies wrapped in their warm coverings were placed in a row and covered with a heated blanket. The top blanket was changed frequently, and three hours later the babies were taken out singly, placed on a warm blanket, gently rubbed with warm olive oil and then returned to the common basket.

"For twenty-four hours nothing was given to the babies, but a few drops of warm water from an eyedropper every two hours. A larger laundry basket was obtained on the second day and a few hot water bottles were located which helped to keep up the temperature. A graduate nurse was employed that first afternoon, followed in two days by another. The babies were wrapped in coats made of absorbent cotton. They were lying so close in the basket, that it was necessary to count them off, for fear our eyes were deceiving us. After twenty-four hours, feedings were started with a few drops of water, milk and corn syrup solution with one to two drops of rum."

Supplies Sent From Afar

Supplies and equipment came in from many places as soon as the news of the astonishing arrivals went forth, Dr. Dafoe said. He told how nursing mothers in Toronto gave milk for the quintuplets, and how incubators arrived from Chicago. He continued:

"The first week was a nightmare with the frequent alarms and innumerable trips, sandwiched between my other calls. The babies needed constant supervision and frequent stimulation to arouse them out of their attacks of suffocation. They were typically premature in appearance, dusky blue skin, bulging foreheads, thin faces, enlarged tummies and spider-like limbs. Inhalations of carbon dioxide and oxygen were used frequently from the first week and this procedure was carried out, when required, at varying intervals for nearly three months. It certainly was most valuable with these babies.

"In the second week supplies and equipment were pouring in and the first opportunity was given to us to organize and lay out plans for the future. Previous to this, we were working with the most meagre equipment. The babies' room was isolated and carefully cleansed; all possible measures of aseptic technique were introduced, including gowns, masks etc. The nurses through a women's organization of North Bay made special Little Red Riding Hood dresses without sleeves absorbent cotton gauze jackets, and fashioned diapers to suit their small bodies. Each baby had its own complete outfit and these were washed most carefully and kept apart.

"The children of the house were moved to other quarters, as several of them had colds. We have been particularly fortunate in having such splendid nurses. They have been intelligent, vigilant and most faithful in their duty. Every one knows, I am sure, the value of good nursing with any case but this is particularly true in the case of premature infants. A great deal of credit should go to them for the survival of these babies.

Babies Gained Steadily

"During the first few months the babies had their 'ups' and 'downs', but they gained steadily in weight and their progress in health was favorable. They were fed at first every two hours, then 2 1-2 hours and the three hours for a considerable time, and now this has advanced to four hours. They remained in their incubators until they all reached the six-pound mark. They had their first real soap and water bath when they were two months old. Before this they were given olive oil baths. In the early weeks of prematurity it was vitally important to handle these babies as little as possible either in feeding or in cleansing.

"The growth of the three larger babies has been more rapid than that of the two smaller ones, but still they all have maintained a fairly normal increase. Little Marie has a haemangioma (or blood vessel tumor) on her right leg, which grew fairly rapidly from the size of a large nickel to a 50-cent piece. It was raised above the surface of the skin and was dark purple in color. This was treated with radium emanations in August, and although it hasn't disappeared, there is a cessation of growth. It will be necessary to use further radium."

An uncle of the children hesitatingly inquired of a North Bay newspaper the cost of inserting "a five-in-a-row birth notice", Dr. Dafoe said, and thus focused the attention of the world on the quintuplets. He said the publicity that followed was "stupendous" and all sorts of messages poured in on him and the Dionne family.

The appointment of a Board of Guardians "prevented exploitation of the babies through a rather ruthless contract signed a day or so after the babies were born," he said.

Government Aids Family

"The Ontario Government has indeed been a great friend to these babies", Dr. Dafoe continued. "They have provided the sustenance of life for the whole Dionne family and the staff of the hospital, have repaired the roads, constructed a new power line for the electricity, and most definitely supported us in our efforts to prevent the exploitation of the infants.

"We feel that in certain ways the babies are wards of our country and it is somewhat of an experiment in State control. However, we are not forgetting that they belong to their parents and we encourage as close a relationship as possible between them. When the babies are older their brothers and sisters will be close at hand to join with them in their daily play."

During the Summer the babies were somewhat anemic and showed signs of rickets Dr. Dafoe said, and in the early Fall each baby in turn developed a severe type of intestinal toxemia, which "gave me many anxious moments." But in September they were removed to the tiny hospital especially constructed for them, and since then they have shown decided improvement he said.

"For the first time in their lives, they have been introduced to the Northern sun and the invigorating outdoor air. They spend hours under warm wrappings on the veranda in the fresh air. One would hardly recognize now the babies of two months ago; their faces have filled out, their eyes sparkle, their legs are straight and plump, their tummies are in good proportion, and these happy little souls are taking on the rotund appearance of little puppies," the smiling little doctor declared.

"It is really a treat to go into the nursery and see such a collection of smiling, healthy babies. When they are wrapped up and ready to be moved to the verandah one feels that the same baby is being taken out five times."

As Quintuplets' Doctor Given Ovation in New York

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe was noticeably embarrassed when he faced an audience of 3,000 in Carnegie Hall, New York, and told his hearers of the birth of the Dionne quintuplets, and of the subsequent care given to the infants. When he stepped on the platform the audience fairly howled its applause for the homespun doctor from the Canadian north country, and it took him a little while to get his breath and start his talk after the applause had subsided. He is seen here standing on the platform waiting for the applause to die down.

Opera and Oratorio

The regular meeting of the Presto Music Club was held recently at the home of the Misses Anglin and Mr. S. Anglin, 273 Ann Street. Two very interesting papers were delivered by Mrs. Robert Brown and Miss Bessie Handley.

The Opera

"The Rise of the Opera" was traced by Mrs. Robert Brown, from the year 1600 when the first opera was woven around the story of Orpheus and Eurydice, this opera containing the great principle of modern opera that music should be subservient to the meaning of the text. It was pointed out that little was known of the costumes or stage settings but the composer sang the hero's role and the accompaniments were played behind the scenes by an orchestra composed of harpsicord, guitar, lute and three flutes. In 1607 "Orfeo" by Monteverde was produced and called a fable in music. Other names used for opera in the seventeenth century were drama in music, tragedy in music, comedy in music and finally opera in music. Monteverde introduced innovations into polyphonic music for the purpose of giving greater emotional expression and he made the score of "Orfeo" include 30 instruments.

In 1637, Venice was the first city to devote a theatre to operatic representation. In 1647 the opera reached Paris while the first opera to be produced in Germany was presented in 1678.

The work of Handel in restoring simplicity to operatic forms, of Piccini who developed the operatic finale and the rise of Opera Buffe were ably discussed by the speaker. She referred to the three great operas of Mozart, "Don Juan", "Marriag of Figaro," and the "Magic Flute", to the operas of Beethoven, Weber and Rossini, the last introducing the bass singer to a place in opera.

In the middle of the nineteenth century appeared the most important figure in all the three hundred years of opera—Richard Wagner. He brought about many reforms in opera, his most important theories being that music was secondary to the drama, claiming that the composer should write his own drama. He made symphonic use of the orchestra. His works caused storms of bitter discussion, but scarcely a work has been written since his day that does not bear traces of his theories.

Guiseppe Verdi gave new life and vigor to the Italian opera about the year 1851 and after Verdi came Puccini and Mascagni whose influence was also felt.

Many other names could be added to the list of composers who introduced new ideas into opera—Gounod, Humperdinck, Massenet, Saint-Saens and Charpentier. Among the composers of the present day whose operas have been produced recently at the Metropolitan Opera House are Deems Taylor and Howard Harrison.

Oratorio

"The Birth of the Oratorio" was interestingly described in a paper delivered by Miss Bessie Handley who told of the early Mystery plays introduced by the church, the addition of music and chorus singing, and the development of the musical drama by the Romans. The first production of a Passion Play was sponsored by Pope Gregory while the Miracle Play was introduced in England in the time of William Rufus.

Sacred Plays were again introduced into the church by De Neri, a Florentine priest, who founded a congregation of clergy to help uplift music in the church. These plays were held in the vestry of oratory, hence the name oratorio. The first work to claim the title of oratorio called "Representation of the Soul and Body" was composed by Cavalieri, an Italian in 1550. Carissimi (1604-1674) became famous as a writer of sacred cantatas and oratorios. His oratorios seem to be the first step toward idealism as opposed to the realism of the opera. Two other Italian composers of note are Stradella and Scarlatti, of latter being famed as one of the greatest of the Neapolitan school of composers. From these beginnings can be seen the modern oratorios taking shape and mainly through the works of the great German composers.

Miss Handley dwelt on the works of J. S. Bach, particularly his Christmas, Easter and Ascension Oratorios, the last two now usually called cantatas. Handel was the first really great writer of oratorios in the accepted style of today. He wrote two in German and his English oratorios number seventeen. In these Handel is found at his best. He believed that oratorio should break away from the theatrical, have no stage settings, and while the subject should always be religious, it should be written to hold the interest of the audience, and to instil a feeling of pleasure rather than duty. The Messiah, one of the greatest operas ever written, was first presented in London in 1743. King George II. is said to have risen to his feet with the singing of the Hallelujah Chorus, feeling that such majesty deserved special homage, a custom which still prevails. With his English works in this style, Handel won the title of "King of Oratorio."

In conclusion Miss Handley pointed out that in tracing the development of the oratorio it was not necessary to proceed further than Handel as he established this form of composition and gave the following composers an inspiration to carry on the work he had begun.

The musical part of the program was of special interest, the numbers being: "Prayer from Rienzi" (Wagner), Mrs. A. E. McColl; trios, "At Eventide it Shall be Light", "Holy City," "Lift Thine Eyes", "Elijah", Misses Riggs, Reddick and Mrs. Sparling; duet, "He Shall Feed His Flock," Miss Riggs and Miss Reddick; "Blow, Blow Wind" (Sarjeant), Mr. F. Hitchon; "The Charming Bird" (David), Mrs. Houston; Confutatus Madedictis" (Verdi), Mr. Anglin; piano duet, "Overture to Romeo and Juliet" (Bellini), Mr. R. Lennox and Mr. C. Templar; "Gavotte" from "Mignon" (Thomas), Miss Reddick.

U. F. O. REQUESTS MORE HYDRO LINES

Relief Workers Urged on This Project to Reduce Service Charge

Toronto, Dec. 13.—The twentieth annual meeting of the United Farmers of Ontario today continued to discuss resolutions aimed to better the position of farmers in the province.

At yesterday's meeting delegates voted unanimously in favor of a motion asking that when practical a considerable portion of all expenditure for relief purposes in rural municipalities be used for construction of hydro lines to farms at the same time applying the full benefit of this relief expenditure to reduction of service charges.

A resolution urging that the numbers of noxious weed seeds permitted in various grades be reduced in grass seeds and other seed grains offered for sale as seed was tabled for later consideration.

Motions coming up today ask for uniformity of grade names in distribution of farm products, reduction of interest charges of agricultural development board loans, submission of a referendum to the people of Ontario on the beer and wine legislation, and that milk distribution be considered a public utility.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Six Day Bike Rider"

Joe E. Brown Shatters all Laugh Records

Joe E. Brown's latest comedy, "6 Day Bike Rider," which opened at the Capitol Theatre today, was greeted not only with gales of side splitting laughter but with breathtaking starts.

The picture is not only uproariously funny, but presents some of the biggest thrills ever shown on the screen. The situations are most unusual and hilarious enough to shake the kids and grown-ups alike with laughter. There are also numerous gags and stunts that added to the merriment of the show.

The thrills come in the big climax of the picture, an actual bicycle race in which there are spills aplenty.

This he wins on a series of the most ridiculous flukes and rides triumphantly around the track to the cheers of the throngs.

Maxine Doyle, a comparatively newcomer to the screen, has the romantic lead opposite Joe and gives a splendid account of herself. She is not only beautiful to look at but possesses real talent that should take her far in the movies.

There is a strong cast of talented comedy characters playing in support of Joe. Frank McHugh is particularly good as Joe's pal who rides in the race with him and gets into any number of jams. Gordon Westcott is the "city slicker" who tries to steal Joe's girl, but is defeated in the end as comedy villains usually are, and gives a most hilarious performance.

Others in the cast include Dorothy Christie, Arthur Aylesworth and Harry Seymour.

The Moonstone

A mystery drama without a murder—a spine chiller with no phantoms lurking in the background waiting to pounce on unsuspecting creatures. It sounds unusual and it is. So unusual in fact that it makes "The Moonstone," the second feature attraction on this program one of the most entertaining mystery pictures ever filmed.

Briefly, the story involves the inheritance of a stone brought from India by Ann Verinder of the Yorkshires in England. Blake, Ann's sweetheart, who brought the stone, warns Ann of the ill-fate that has accompanied the wearer of the stone, and asks her to dispose of it. But Ann insists upon wearing it. The mysterious disappearance of the stone from under Ann's pillow as she sleeps, and the suspicion cast on many persons when Sir John Verinder, Ann's father, is found unconscious in his room and Rosanna Spearman is discovered dead in the garden, leads to a nameless fear that grips the entire household. The solution of the mystery comes in an amazing climax brought about by a clever twist in the plot.

David Manners and Phyllis Barry play the leading roles, with Jameson Thomas, Herbert Bunston, Gustav von Seiffertitz.

Capitol News and "Alladin and His Lamp," a funny cartoon precede the showing of the feature presentations.

Last complete show 8.45.

AT THE BELLE

"Chained"

Distinguished Direction of Clarence Brown Evident in Vivid Drama

Clarence Brown, who is known out in Hollywood as the director who has never made an unsuccessful picture, comes through with flying honors again with his production of "Chained", the new Joan Crawford-Clark Gable co-starring vehicle which opened to large audiences at the Belle last night.

Lavishly mounted, beautifully photographed and acted to perfection, the new picture holds all the elements of skilfully thought-out screen entertainment, enhanced by the romantic excitement which a story involving the glamorous Miss Crawford and the popular Mr. Gable always give.

Realises Her Mistake

In "Chained" Miss Crawford plays the role of an American girl who has promised herself to a considerate, wealthy, but elderly man, played by Otto Kruger. It is not until she meets the young South American rancher, Clark Gable, that she realises the mistake she is making in plunging herself into a life which offers a maximum of security but the minimum of love. The threads by which the complicated triangle is entangled create a tale permeated with emotional pungency and powerful dramatic situations.

Miss Crawford, looking more stunning than ever, and wearing a wide variety of eye-dazzling, Adrian created gowns, shifts from tragedy to laughter with a sureness that emphasizes the fact that she has become one of those rare actresses who do not rely on their personality alone for their success.

Gable, as the rancher, is equally fine in another of the virile, sincere roles at which he is a past master.

The reliable Otto Kruger makes the most of his part as the unwanted man, and excellent support is given by Stuart Erwin, Una O'Connor and Marjorie Gateson.

An all-star musical comedy, and "Fair and Cold", one of the speediest and most entertaining Sport chats ever exhibited on a local screen, and a novel screen oddity precede the feature attraction and proved refreshing screen entertainment.

You will find "Chained" unbeatable entertainment. It is a picture that many filmgoers will want to see twice.

Six-Star Tuneful Comedy

What a gorgeous medley of girls, music, comedy and stirring football scenes await you when you see Paramount's "College Rhythm" coming to the Belle Saturday with Joe Penner, favorite radio star, heading the cast in his first full-length tuneful comedy.

Supported by a magnificent cast which includes Jack Oakie, Lanny Ross, Helen Mack, Mary Brian and Lydia Roberts, "College Rhythm" introduces Penner to the film public in a hilarious story of deadly college rivals. In between are some gorgeous chorus scenes, executed by the 150 all-American coeds, some grand folling by Penner and Lydia Roberti and some sweet caroling by Lanny Ross. There are a whole flock of new hit tunes, chief of which are "Let's Give Three Cheers For Love," "Stay As Sweet As You Are" and "Take a Number From One to Ten."

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church held their December meeting which was also the annual meeting for the election of officers at the home of the President Mrs. (Rev.) Clark on Thursday afternoon Dec. 6th. Meeting opened with Mrs. Sam Elliott group leader in charge, and Mrs. K. Vivian presiding at the piano.

After the opening hymn was sung and the Lord's prayer repeated in unison, the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. S. Elliott and Mrs. L. E. Mills led in earnest prayer. The Devotional Leaflet was read by Mrs. K. Vivian and a reading by Mrs. S. Elliott entitled the "Other Half of the Christmas Message."

Roll was then called most of the members responding with a short Christmas prayer. A letter sent in by an absent member, Mrs. George Lazier, was read by the President—a generous donation to the mite box fund accompanied the letter. All joined in singing another Christmas hymn. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary and adopted. Mrs. Everett Stratton the Supply Secretary, reported a layette sent as our contribution to this work.

Rev. H. Clark then took charge of the election of officers and commended the faithful work of the society.

Very few changes were made most of the old officers continuing. Mrs. D. Hinchey reported 16 copies of the Missionary Monthly taken. Mrs. K. Vivian reported $12.42 collected during the year for the Shower Fund. Mrs. A. MacDonald kindly offered to have the programs typed for the coming year's meetings and thanked the ladies for the card sent her when she was sick. Mrs. A. Houston and Mrs. P. MacFarlane took charge of the mite boxes which were found to contain $8.26. Members who have not yet handed theirs in are requested to bring them in at the next meeting. Mrs. (Rev.) Clark closed the meeting with prayer and all repeated the Mizpah Benediction. Attendance was 25. Collection $4.20 and for Flower Fund $1.26. A delicious lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

SAYS BEER TRADE HURTS POOL ROOMS

Goderich, Dec. 13—That the beverage rooms are affecting his pool room and bowling alley business to the extent of a 20 per cent. decrease was the statement made by J. E. Drennan at a long session of the Town Council here, the last item of business being finished shortly after midnight. Mr. Drennan stated that beverage rooms had affected his bowling alley patronage until there was now nothing to it, and even when the council agreed to cut the required license fee, one-third per cent., making his fee $30 he was not sure whether it would be worth while.

I. C. Merritt of Forestry Branch Delivers Address

STIRLING—Mr. R. T. Dunlop, local manager of the Bank of Montreal was unanimously elected president of the Stirling Community Welfare Club at the December meeting of that organization held in the local Community Hall last evening. The dinner which is the last of its kind of this year was presided over by the retiring President, Mr. George Luery. The Women's Institute, provided in their customary splendid style a delicious dinner to which all did ample justice. After the toast to "The King", the meeting proceeded to things of a more business like nature several letters of appreciation which had been received from members of the club who during illness had been in receipt of messages from that organization, were read.

Mr. Bob Bastedo introduced the guests, Mr. Don McCallum of the Bank of Montreal staff; Mr. Tinney of the supervisor's office, Toronto; Mr. Exton of the Bank of Montreal and Mr. Shorey. Througbout the evening, Mr. Bob Patterson acted as song leader and sergeant at arms. An interesting feature of the programme was a vocal solo, "A Rube From Arkansas' rendered by Mr. Arthur Duncan and accompanied at the piano by Mr. Charles Allen who acted in the role of pianist for the entire evening.

A number of entertaining three minute speeches on current topics were given by local club members, Mr. Bert Eggleton the first of these speakers discoursing on the Christmas Season and its proper spirit. Mr. Murney Hicks spoke on Modern Speed pointing out the tremendous pace at which the world of today travels. The final speaker from the club members was Mr. Roy Eggleton who also dealt with prominent matters of the day.

Mr. I. C. Merritt of the Forestry Branch of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests a distinguished graduate of the University of Toronto, was the speaker of the evening, basing his address on that specific work in which he is so deeply engrossed in his capacity as supervisor of educational work on farm wood lots. The speaker in his brilliant address which he so ably illustrated with the aid of lantern slides addressed the club on the care and preservation of the forests and woodlots of the Province and the work of reforestation. Mr. Merritt pointed out throughout this talk just how completely the farmers were destroying every possibility of natural reforestation by turning their herds of cattle into the woodlots where they pastured on the young seedlings. Continuing, the speaker outlined the best approved methods of preserving the woodlots by thinning out the less hardy seedlings. Mr. Merritt through his remarks instituted a new line of thought for the members pointing out to them the commercial value of the woodlots which, he declared, should be regarded as a crop just as the farmer regards his grain: Concluding with an eloquent plea for the preservation of the forested areas of our province which are so rapidly diminishing, the speaker terminated his discourse.

Mr. J. B. Belshaw, a local enthusiast in this matter of reforestation and president of the Horticultural Society, thanked the speaker for his instructive and educative address, Rev. A. S. McConnell, endorsing the vote of thanks most heartily. These same two gentlemen, in suitable terms expressed the gratitude of the Club to the Women's Institute for the capable manner in which they have served the Club not only during the past year alone, but during those years since the Community Welfare Club found its origin. Regrets were further expressed at the dissolution of the local Royal Bank and at the inevitable loss of Manager A. S. Murduff and Mr. G. C. Craven, accountant.

Proceeding further with the business of the meeting the various committee reports were submitted. These included the following committees: Membership, Decorating, Reception, Social, Programme and the Secretary's and Treasurer's reports. These annual reports showed in a very tangible manner just how successful the last year of the Community Welfare Club has been. Perhaps their noblest work was the sending to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto a local boy who returned home completely restored to good health. The Treasurer reported a comfortable balance on hand to commence the new year.

Before proceeding with the election of officers, the retiring President prior to vacating the chair addressed the club at length thanking in no uncertain terms the chairmen and their committees for the untiring efforts they have put forward to make the Club a real success. Their zeal in this respect has facilitated Club relationships in every manner possible and all have worked in harmonious accord. President George asked the indulgence of all while he delivered to them a message for the coming year, a message of a community nature. Outlining briefly the success which we have attained in Stirling in a municipal way during the past thirty-five years, President George pointed out that all had been attained through community efforts alone. Thirty-five years ago, we as a village had no public assets but through cooperation, these assets have been realized If we would continue this spirit of community progress we must needs apply these same fundamental principles to the support of the business industries and institutions of our village, on whose maintenance depends in turn, the maintenance of our schools and churches, in fact all our municipal institutions. With a heartfelt word of thanks to his faithful co-workers during the past season President George withdrew.

Hereupon the Nominating Committee brought in their slate of officers for the year, which slate was accepted by the meeting. The officers for 1935 are as follows:—

President—Mr. R. T. Dunlop.

Vice-President—Dr. H. H. Alger.

Secretary—Mr. Harry Hulin.

Treasurer—Mr. J. E. O'Donnell.

Chairman of the Social Commitee—Mr. John Thompson.

Chairman of the Programme Committee— Mr. Clifford N. Baker.

Chairman of the Membership Committee—Mr. R. H. Williams.

Chairman of the Decorating Committee—Mr. Tom Ward.

Chairman of the Reception Committee—Mr. George Luery.

The newly elected and appointed officers spoke in turn voicing their appreciation of the honour which had been bestowed on them. President R. T. Dunlop spoke feelingly of his delight in his new office asking that the whole-hearted cooperation which they have shown in the past be continued during his regime. In conclusion, he assured the Club that he would give of his best in making the New Year of 1935 as successful and if possible more successful than any previous club year. The meeting then dispersed.

The Stirling Sub-division of the Catholic Women's League held a charming afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. James L. Lagrow on Wednesday afternoon. The guests were received by the hostess Mrs. J. E. Lagrow and the League President Mrs. J. C. McGee while Mrs. Myrtle Crawford and Mrs. James Fitpatrick presided over the attractive tea table with its handsome silver appointments. The drawing-rooms were attractively decorated with potted flowers and yellow 'mums. Later in the afternoon, a number of the men came in for a six o'clock supper. The tea was a decided success and it is expected is the first of a series of such, delightful social functions.

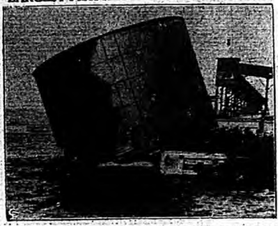
LARGEST FISH KETTLE LAUNCHED IN N.B.



Splash! And the world's largest fish tank starts on a voyage up historic St. John harbor. A tug, a launch and three trucks were required to send it into the harbor waters on its way to a new location, after two weeks had been spent in moving it 400 yards. The big fish kettle has a capacity of 120 carloads, or 12,500 barrels. Here it is shown just as it hit the water.

Winter Winds Give Fish a Chill and Easily Picked Up by the Residents

By DALE HARRISON

New York, Dec. 13—(AP)— The following fish story may be taken plain or with the usual grain of salt. A dozen honest citizens against whom there never has bloown a single breath of scandal, solemnly attest its verity.

The Atlantic ocean, according to persons in a position to know, is very cold largely on account of their being a lot of cold weather in its immediate vicinity. This frigidity would not at first glance seem to be of much moment to fish, inasmuch as fish don't really know the difference anyway.

That, however, is where the amateur icythyologist shows his icythyological ignorance. There are fish which, when winter comes, can't take it.

Last night along the Coney Island shore, these shivering fish came into get warm. Hardy fisherfolk nodded their heads knowingly.

"It's the frost fish running," they said. "These frost fish, mostly ling and whiting, ain't got no use for cold weather. Storm winds and winter cold give them the chills, and they tear in for shore to get warm."

Well, when the citizens heard about it, they went down to the beach to see what could be done in the way of warming up the fish. They found the fish shivering in from the ocean in such numbers as to confound an Einstein.

"It's stupendous?" murmured one citizen in hip boots. "It's gigantic."

Pick Up Fish

So the citizens waded in and began picking fish. Women folk of the Burchers came forth with baskets, and the cold fish gratefully surrendered and were laid, wagging their thanks, in the containers.

A few sporting individuals did not deign to approach the fish in such a crude manner. They came with hook and line. They felt the exercise of trying to get off the hook would be very good for the fish. The fish, however, were too cold to offer any resistance. It was all that some of the fish could do to struggle up to the hook and open their mouths to the bait, they were that cold.

Anyway, the good citizens took the poor, shivering fish home and got out the frying pan. It was no time at all until the fish were thoroughly warmed.

The fisher-folk say that even though the weather is modulating, the frost fish will probably continue to come into shore to get warm, on account of once they they get cold they don't warm up very fast, and besides these fish to quote one embryo icythyologist are not quite bright.

FARMER RESCUES THREE

Dresden, Dec. 13.—Three young men of town who were skating on the River Sydenham were nearly drowned getting on thin ice. The gravel barge at Wallaceburg had broken the ice up to this point and the freezing of the night had not made the ice sufficiently strong.

The young-men were Ross McDougal, Tom Monk and Ernest Wilmot. A farmer, Jack Davis, witnessed the accident, secured a long pole and rescued the three and took them to his home, gave them dry clothes and later removed them to their own homes.

Philadelphia, Dec. 14 (CP) — Lee Kum evidently hadn't heard of the proverbial sagacity of the "Philadelphia lawyer."

The suave gentleman swindled at least 10 of that profession out of $50 each, Detective Sergeant Jacob Gomborrow said, by telling them he needed an "advance" to tide him over until a $200,000 draft arrived from his father, supposedly a rich merchant in the Orient.

Round Grove, Ill., Dec. 14 (CP) —Mrs. Harold McKee, 35, greeted the dawn with a yawn.

She has been yawning continuously since Sunday except for brief respites induced by the influence of opiates. Early today she had approached her 110th hour of protracted yawning and doctors are at loss to know how to make her stop.

Dr. H. L. Petit, her physician, could assign no reason for the yawning other than extreme nervous strain due to caring for an ill husband and a nine-year-old son who is a diabetic.

The affliction attacked Mrs. McKee when she apparently was in good health. Suddenly she started yawning and even the effect of potent drugs brings her only temporary respite.

She yawns 10 to 13 times a minute.

She is able to obtain nourishment when she is aroused from her artificially induced naps, but Dr. Petit is concerned over her ability to endure the protracted strain.

But divorces aren't down to this cost level yet.

MATERNITY WORK QUITE VALUABLE SAYS DR. DAFOE

Vacationer Talks to The Nursing Sisters of Home

ADDRESSES DOCTORS

Vitality of Parents Given as Reason For Life of Babes

New York, Dec. 14 (CP)—Everyone who reads the newspaper knows the five little Dionne sisters can take it, but the true hardiness of Northern Ontario's quintuplets was recorded in sound today for posterity.

Their physician-in-waiting, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, told before a "talkie" camera yesterday how the babies are wrapped up in Eskimo fashion and set outside, even tho' 18 below zero winds be swirling around their special hospital at Callander, Ont. The recording was part of a one-hour siege of picture taking the vacationing doctor submitted to yesterday.

On the invitation of Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the United States President, he addressed a luncheon of the Henry Street Visiting Nurses, telling them "maternity work is so useful, so necessary to mankind." Then, while cameras whirred he spoke as follows:

"I am glad to have had the opportunity to come to your luncheon. I know the value of maternity care such as is undertaken by the Visiting Nurses' Service.

"At the present time the babies are beautiful and intelligent. Although it is 18 degrees below zero up there right now, they are each put in a big carriage and set out in the fresh air."

Earlier, the good doctor called on Patrick Cardinal Hayes and talked "about the babies, and Mrs. Dionne in particular." The Cardinal entrusted to Dr. Dafoe's care six gold scapular medals, one for each of the quints and one for their mother. The Cardinal was especially solicitous about the latter.

From there, New York's No. 1 Vacationist currently was whirled behind his noisy motorcycle escort to the Bronx Zoo where Director Reid Blair proudly showed his elephants, tigers, lions and other infants of the wilds. Unfortunately, none of the animals was having a baby animal, but Dr. Dafoe seemed to have a nice time just ogling.

In the evening the renowned little obstetrician unfolded before the pediatrics section of the New York Academy of Medicine the saga of the quintuplets. He explained the guardianship set up over the babies and, for the fact they were able to buck medical history and survive, he placed credit elsewhere.

"First of all credit must be given to the vitality of their parents," he said. "Second, it goes to the excellent nursing they received.

"I just bossed the job."

Before the applause had died down the photographers had him again for another round of picture shooting.

His schedule for today was not set beforehand. Also indefinite was whether or not he will leave for Callander tonight or some time Saturday.

LEAVES BEFORE POLICE CALLED

Former President of Cuba Again on The Move

Hamburg, Germany, Dec. 14 (AP) —Gerardo Machado, former president of Cuba, repeated his New York disappearance act here today, leaving town with his entourage just a few moments before German secret police called at his hotel.

He was reported to have taken a train and, although no one presumed to announce his destination, it was suggested that Interlaken, Switzerland, was his goal.

Advices from Havana said that the Cuban government had instructed its legation in Berlin to seek his extradition to Cuba, where he is wanted on murder charges arising from his years as dictator of the island republic, and it was rumored that the secret police had tried to advise him that he had better leave Germany in order to avoid trouble.

(Much the same situation developed when Machado took refuge in New York following his overthrow in Cuba 18 months ago. He disappeared from his New York residence shortly before a United States marshal tried to serve a warrant on him. Supporters of Machado claim he is not extraditable to Cuba from a foreign country on the grounds that political charges are not valid under extradition treaties.)

BANDIT SLAYERS ARE PURSUED

Youthful Missionaries Slain But Their Baby is Safe

Shanghai, Dec. 14 (AP)—A report from Tsingteh said tonight that little Helen Priscilla Stam, three months' old daughter of the murdered American missionaries, Mr and Mrs. J. C. Stam, had been found alive and was being taken to Wuhu, mission headquarters.

Report of the finding was sent here from Wuhu and stated that the Rev. Mr. George Birch of Toronto, Ont., a member of the China Inland Mission and stationed near Tsingteh, had the infant and was carrying it to safety. There was no indication as to the health of the child.

It was not immediately indicated how the rescue had been made, although it was know that government troops were in pursuit of the bandits who raided the city of Tsingteh, murdered the baby's parents, and, presumably kidnapped the child.

Shanghai, Dec. 14—The slaying of two youthful American missionaries by Chinese bandits and the abandonment of their bodies on a battlefield fifteen miles from Tsingteh was reported to the China Inland Mission office today.

The fate of their 3-months-old baby, also kidnapped by the band of pillagers who lotted Tsingteh on Dec. 7, was not disclosed.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stam who had been married less than two years were the victims. They were abducted last week.

Liu Cheng Hwa, Governor of Anhwei Province advised the mission no trace had been found either of the child or its body.

Shanghai, Dec. 14—(AP)— The fear that a three-months old baby of slain missionary parents is in the hands of Chinese brigands was expressed today.

Government troops are in pursuit of the bandits, who raided the City of Tsingteh, in Anhwei Province, captured Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stam and their baby and several Chinese.

The bodies of the young Stams were found deserted on a battlefield 15 miles from Tsingteh, but no trace of the baby has been discovered.

Other missionaries in three southern provinces are reported to be evacuating their stations.

A letter written by Stam shortly before his death disclosed that he and his family were held for a ransom of 20,000 Chinese silver dollars (about $7,000).

Stam was a native of Paterson, N.J., while his wife, the daughter of missionaries was born in Canada.

Fire losses since Jan. 1 to Dec. 12, 1934, totalled $13,663,775, as compared with $21,006,125 for the corresponding period last year.

British 'Usworth' on Mountain Waves is in Distress

RESCUE GOES ON

Belgian Seamen From Jane Jabot Lost From Boat

New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—Battling mountainous mid-Atlantic seas to rescue the crew of the foundering British steamer Usworth, two members of a lifeboat crew from the Belgian steamer Jane Jabot were lost today when their boat capsized, a wireless message to MacKay Radio reported shortly after noon today.

New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—A life boat crew from the Belgian freighter Jane Jabot succeeded in crossing mountainous seas today to the foundering British steamer Usworthy and removing safely five members of the crew, according to a wireless message picked up by MacKay Radio.

The Usworth, which sent out distress calls to shipping in the North Atlantic, still has 21 members of her crew aboard, the wireles said, but the Cunard liner Ascania was standing by to lower a boat to assist in the rescue.

Messages relayed to MacKay from the Black Diamond freighter Black Gull, reported the Usworth as describing her condition "precarious" and appealing to nearby vessels to "please do your best to get us off."

A second message from the Black Gull, receved at 11:40 a.m. reported: "A Jane Jabot life boat has succeeded in rescuing five of crew of Usworth and the steamship Ascania, Cunard White Star, now getting ready to launch a boat. Think 21 of crew still on Usworth."

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—MacKay Radio reported today it had picked up a message from the steamer Black Gull stating the British steamer Usworth, in distress in the North Atlantic, had broadcast an appeal "please do your best to get us off."

The message said the "situation looked precarious" and added the ship was "listing more."

Both the Belgian liner Jean Jadot and the Cunard liner Ascania had reached the distressed ship, but found it impossible to get a line aboard because of heavy seas.

At 5.12 a.m. E.S.T. the Usworth sent out this message: "Please try man boats as impossible fling any more lines as coils being washed away and crew worked out."

The Usworth sent out distress signals last night and gave her position as approximately in mid-Atlantic on the Northern European ship lane.

At 5.40 a.m. E.S.T., the Black Gull sent a message to the master of the Ascania, asking whether it could be of any assistance. The Black Gull's captain wirelessed that he could not guarantee an early arrival as he was able to make only five knots in a heavy head sea. Five minutes later Captain Bisset, of the Ascania replied:

"Thanks. Don't think you can be any assistance. Doing everything possible. Very bad weather."

Two members of the Usworth's crew the message said, were rescued from the water when the lifeboat was tossed over in the running seas. Previously, the Jean Jadot's lifeboat had gone back to get another load of the 21 members of the crew still aboard the sinking ship.

The Usworth sent out distress calls before dawn and was answered by the Jean Jadot and the Cunarder Ascania, the latter standing by to lower her own boats shortly after the Jean Jadot's crew made its rescue.

NOT INVESTIGATING

Toronto, Dec. 14—(CP)— J. M. Godfrey, Ontario Securities Commissioner, said today he was not investigating Sudbury Mines stock. The Commissioner denied a report that a probe was planned, purportedly in connection with questioning of three Toronto and two Philadelphia men at Rochestre, N. Y., regarding operations in Canadian Securities.

First Women Called In Mass Buying Probe Voice Their Preference

Mrs. J. Chipman Says Clerks in Chain Stores 'Look Well Fed'

QUESTION OF WEIGHTS

Purchases in 218 Stores Subject of Testimony Before Commission

Ottawa, Dec. 14 (CP)—Two Ontario housewives, Mrs. J. R. H. Chipman, Toronto, and Mrs. Gerald Grossman, Ottawa, gave the Parliamentary Mass Buying Commission today six or seven reasons why they preferred to buy food in chain stores and disliked the independent merchants. They ranged from cheaper prices and more accurate weights to freshness of goods, faster service and larger variety.

They were the first women to appear before the Commission in its long investigation and also the first consumers. Mrs. Chipman, who admitted she bought meats from an independent store because "they are better," formerly lived in Windsor, N.S. She told of making purchases in 218 stores in Toronto, chains and independents, and finding more accurate weights in the chains. The test was made for the Canadian Chain Store Association.

Prices and Wages

Mrs. Chipman agreed with evidence given yesterday by J. G. Johnston, Secretary of the Chain Association that, with care, a family of four adults could buy food for $12 a week from a chain store.

"When you went into those chain stores," asked Norman Sommerville, Commission counsel, "did you know the average clerk in all the chains was paid $2 a day and that the clerks in the largest chain averaged $8.59 a week?"

"Are you trying to break the heart of this witness," asked Sam Factor, Lib., Toronto West Centre.

"They all looked well fed," replied Mrs. Chipman, referring to the chain store clerks and their salaries below the $12 level.

"How can they if their food costs $12 a week," asked Sam Factor.

As To Rent

"How can these clerks pay rent?" Sommerville asked.

"I do not know," the Toronto housewife replied.

"How can they rent a house or an apartment? Is it not a fact they are forced to live in one or two rooms?"

"I do not know," repeated Mrs. Chipman.

The Ottawa housewife said "for social reasons" she was forced to make some purchases in independent stores but she preferred the chains. Her husband was a builder, "an individualist" and the merchants in her section of the city argued she should patronize their stores because they, too, were "individualists." She told of Lodge connections and of the wives of independent merchants calling her by telephone, soliciting her business.

Mrs. Grossman said she had a scale in her home and generally weighed her purchases. "I find I have rarely taken things back to a store because I believe I get more overweight than underweight but I get more underweight from the independents than the chains.

The Ottawa housewife said it would cost her $5 a month extra to deal exclusively with independent merchants. When she was married, her mother-in-law referred to this as "$5 for friendship" and warned against it.

To the Commission Counsel, Mrs. Grossman admitted she knew several Ottawa chain stores had been convicted of short-weight and continued to deal with them. She said she had no idea how much chain store clerks were paid.

SAND IS SPREAD TO HELP MOTORISTS

While motorists skittered helplessly on wheel glazed intersections through the city yesterday and members of the local police force were kept busy adjusting minor disagreements between car owners, whose machines locked fenders after skidding contacts, department of public works employees were on the job of scattering truck loads of sand and cinders on the busiest corners. Murney Hill, Front and Bridge Streets, Pinnacle Street and other intersections were a slippery peril to the greatest number of car owners.

"Last year we gave out tons of sand, but only in a few instances did we see any of it sprinkled on the walks in front of their homes, where it should have been placed. Instead it was scattered on their private walks in the front and rear of the house," stated City Engineer Chas. A. Mott.

CHAMBER PLANS TO HAVE SPEAKER

Outstanding Business Man Will Address Get-Together Banquet

Several important matters were considered at the regular weekly meeting of the directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce which was held in the office of the Chamber on Thursday. It was decided that a prominent and outstanding business man be invited to be the principal speaker at the "Get Together" banquet which is held annually some time early in the year. It is said that if the speaker whom the directors have in mind can be secured a great treat will be in store for those who attend the banquet. The secretary-manager Mr. J. O. Herity, reported that several new members have recently become associated with the Chamber. Early in the year a systematic canvass will be made as usual for new members.

The Open Forum which was conducted following the dinner which was held recently at the Queen's Hotel was considered by the directors to have been quite successful. As a result of the discussion on the "Parking Question" at this meeting the city merchants and other citizens engaged in business down town were directly requested to use parking space on Front street for their own cars as little as possible during the present time when many people from outside places come to Belleville to do their Christmas buying and the willing response to this request has been most gratifying.

Mr. W. B. Deacon, a member of the Chamber and a former President, was at the meeting and joined in the discussion of some of the matters under consideration.

In the absence of the President Mr. W. C. Springer, the meeting was conducted by Vice President, Mr. E. P. Bernstein. The following directors were present— Messrs. Mackenzie Robertson, W. H. Morton, E. V. Illsey, J. B. Boyce, W. A. Parker and H. E. Fairfield.

STORK IS BUSIER THAN THE REAPER

City Has 355 Birth And Only 229 Deaths in Year

A busy stork far outstripped the Grim Reaper in this city during the past year, piling up a total of 355 births against a smaller number of 229 deaths up to the end of November, it is revealed in a summary of vital statistics just completed for the city.

A hint of better times is also contained in the dry, matter-of-fact statistical figures. The year just ending has set up a new record for number of marriages as contrasted with the past two years. A total of 169 bashful brides and grooms applied at the office of the city clerk during that period for the necessary license. During 1933 the number had been only 124 and in 1933 a total of 127 had been registered.

Belleville was also a healthy city, during the year, it is indicated. During the twelve months only 33 cases of scarlet fever were reported. Other diseases were almost nil. Out of a total of 355 births, only 18 infants died between birth and their first year of life. The majority of deaths were due solely to old age.

In 1933 a total of 362 births, 221 deaths and 127 marriages is given.

In 1932 there were 381 births, 263 deaths and 124 marriages.

A slight increase in population is noted, with the present figures listing Belleville at a total of 14,128 people.

OTHER PROJECTS TO BE STARTED

Expect Quarry to Close Down And River Work Near Done

Officials connected with the distribution of work for relief laborers now employed on various jobs in the city were looking around this week for some other task on which to place the small army of workers now listed.

It is expected, that the city quarry will shut down just before Christmas. A fairly large shift of men will then need to be placed elsewhere. Under the steady attack of the picks and shovels of men engaged in the river bed reclamation, this work is being caught up and will soon be finished. A larger gang will then require placing elsewhere.

It is understood that Mayor Tice and members of the city council have under consideration further work in Zwick's Island, although so far no intimation that this would be the next point of attack is given.

Also under consideration is the scheme, whereby property owners in arrear of taxes would be given regular employment on show shovelling in the city during the winter.

DERBY WINNING DOG READY FOR COLD SWIM

Thinks Children Should Swim Even If River Frozen Over

Sandy, Charlie Green's Chesapeake dog, and winner of the Grand Championship trophy in the Toronto Dog Derby Swim at the Canadian National Exhibition last year, is not convinced yet, that the weather is too cold for his small playmates to come swimming with him in the Moira River as they had done during the past summer.

Even though the Moira has been ice-covered for the past several days and the children of the neighborhood who splashed with him in the water during the past summer resolutely refuse to don bathing suits and join him in the frigid water, Sandy hikes daily to the river, just below the footbridge and stands in the swift current, where ice has not formed. Here he coaxes and wheedles the children with his barking and whining, to join him in a chilly frolic.

Police News

Slippery icy pavements that proved rather hazardous for motor drivers were attributed as the cause of a series of minor motor vehicle accidents on local streets during the past 24 hours, although fortunately no person was injured in any of the crashes.

Shortly before noon today an automobile driven northward on Coleman street, by George Bennett, Donald street, collided with a truck driven by Earl Bonter, Carrying Place. According to Sergeant Arthur Booth, who investigated, Mr. Bonter was proceeding northward and was about to make a left hand turn from Coleman onto Jane street just as Mr. Bennett was about to pass the truck. It is alleged by the authorities, that Mr. Bonter failed to indicate his intentions of making a lefthand turn. Mr. Bennett applied the brakes of his car when he first saw the truck starting to turn left, but the automobile slid along the icy pavement damaging the front fender when the impact took place. The matter was amicably settled between the parties concerned.

Two minor accidents happened yesterday, resulting in only fender damage, however. These matters were also settled and were caused by slippery icy pavements.

Eleven transients slept at the police station last night and were informed to "move on" upon their release early today.

One lone inebriate appeared in the local police court charged with intoxication today. Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. imposed the minimum fine of ten dollars and costs. Unable to pay the penalty imposed the accused was sentenced to serve ten days in the common jail. No arrests were necessary in the city during the past twenty-four hours.

Christmas Decorations Being Put Up by Trenton Merchants

Stores Will Remain Open at Night Next Week

TRENTON, Dec. 14. — (Special) The light snowfall early yesterday morning put the finishing touches on the Christmas decorations for the town of Trenton. The large Christmas tree, which is erected annually in front of the Post Office by the Trenton Rotary Club, arrived yesterday and today is being erected and decorated. The business section of Dundas and Front streets, is attired in the real holiday garb. Coloured lights are strung across the streets and each lamp post is wrapped with a Christmas tree which is ornamented with Christmas lights. The store windows are full of wonderful bargains for the busy shoppers who throng the thoroughfare. Under a town ordinance it is unlawful for the business houses to remain open in the evenings before December 15th but after this date the buyers will have a long day to do their Christmas shopping. So far the weather has been in keeping with the occasion and the ice in the river is firm enough for the walkers, who desire the short cuts, although many are a little timid of venturing across the ice so early in the season. The skaters have been enjoying a full week of their pastime on the bay and many ponds in the vicinity. It is rumored, that the Trenton Arena will open its' doors before the end of the week. May we hope, with all the spirit, that is in the air, so near the Christmastide that Santa will not miss a home on his rounds early Christmas morning.

Two New Gas Stations

Another real estate deal was closed in Trenton recently, when the Goodrich Gas and Oil Co. purchased the gas station of Mr. James Armstrong, situated on Dundas St. at the easterly limits of the town. Mr. Armstrong retained the cabins that are known as "Wee Blue Inn". The pumps and other necessary equipment will arrive shortly and the new owners are expected to have the station in operation in a few days.

The Sup -Test Co., who recently purchased the old Gill and Fortune property at the south west corner of Dundas and Ontario Sts. have started to fill the corner to the street level. C. VanAlstine has the contract for the filling. It is likely that the building will not be started until spring.

Icy Road Causes Slight Accident

Just a half hour before town workmen sanded the Gilmour Hill, the Imperial Oil truck driven by Stan Cottrell, skidded on the icy road into the curb with the rear end of the truck striking a lamp post. The impact did not break the pole but the large globe was smashed.

Trenton Entry Forwarded to Belleville

Secretary James F. Day of the LaBrash Imperials has given the list of players to the officials of the Belleville City Hockey League as was requested at Tuesday's meeting of the executive, which was held in the directors' room at the Belleville arena. Trenton's team will be made up of such stars as Joe Gould, who needs no introduction in this district as a goal tender. The defence will be picked from Roy Smith, Bernard York, Bun Lott, Earl Mitchell, Sky Thompson, and a lad named Fenton, who performed on the rear guard duties with the Hastings Juniors last year. The forward line will be composed of Doug Powers, Norm Johnson, George Rosenplot, Bill Miller, Jack Kidd, Allan LaMorre and maybe Ray Fox, if he remains in town. Earl Gray will likely be between the posts if Joe decides to take a night off and take his family to a hockey match. Others on the list include Chink McCoy Whip Lemoire Jack Miller, Norm Wells and Sim Mattis.. That makes up our twenty players and we still have quite a few left if any of these boys catch one of Eddie Thomas' teams in the O.H.A.

Trenton town league moguls had a meeting Wednesday night and were assured of six teams and a possibility of eight, going to make up the loop Wooler has decided to put a team in the town league. The imperial have decided to give the Trenton fans an exhibition game once a week with an outside team and we may see the Campbellford Maroons here next Wednesday eve. With no O.H.A. teams which cost a lot of money and with Harry Moore, given full sway over the town league the golden opportunity of bringing up future stars is possible this winter. It's up to the cash customers to again put us on the map as a real sporting town.

STEADY UPWARD CLIMB IS NOTED

Report of Chamber of Commerce is Quite Optimistic

That the year 1934 has noticeably contributed to the upward movement in employment and better industrial conditions in Belleville is clearly shown in a report issued this week by the local Chamber of Commerce. Business activity, it is indicated has shown a steady recovery during the year about to end.

In a statement made today by Mr. J. O. Herity, Industrial Commissioner and secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce it is pointed out:

"The year 1934 has brought many reasons for gratitude to the citizens of Belleville. While many adjustments have still to be made, there is now an unmistakable upward move in business activity.

"Our industries are sharing, in a most satisfactory manner, in this trend towards good times. Nearly all report a fine percentage of increase in volume of orders over the same period in 1933. Several are working with full mechanical staffs and are even being forced to resort to overtime. One of our most important factories has sufficient orders on hand to keep employed to capacity for six months to come.

"Three of our manufacturing corporations have been compelled to enlarge their factory premises and have taken care of their needs by important plant extensions. The aggregate cost of these improvements has exceeded $150,000. There is no other city in our class in Canada that is able to report this number of factory enlargements during these years of stress.

"An exceedingly valuable addition to our industrial wealth has been made by the location here of Belleville Foundries Limited. As reported in the papers, this new organization has taken possession of the former Thompson Furniture factory where a foundry and machine shop of the most modern type are being installed. Actual operations will be inaugurated soon after the beginning of the new year. The new company has already a fine volume of orders on hand.

"Notwithstanding the financial stress, the Chamber of Commerce closed its fiscal year on November 30th, with a cash surplus on hand. This has meant extreme economy in office operations but nevertheless every essential service has been maintained.

"Promising industrial negotiations are now proceeding with a number of important interests both in the United States and Canada that should have happy results for our city in the months to come. Business recovery in the United States will mean great things for Canadian industrial expansion and Belleville will certainly share in these dpolevmee lessey eve- r.htaonS developments.

Dogs Are Barred Traveller Takes Room

Montreal, Dec. 14.—A black-shirted opulently befurred traveller, complete with black beret and white silk four-in-hand tie, leading two valuable dogs, approached the St. John boat train. An attendant spoke. "The dogs will have to go in the baggage car," he said respectfully. There was an explosion in at least four European languages.

The passenger showed checks for lower berths for himself and his wife. But rules are rules.

"What can I do? The dogs cannot travel like that," said the black-shirted one.

Letters to the Editor

Belleville, Ont., Dec. 14, 1934.
The Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.
Dear Sir,—

Replying to a letter published in your paper of the 12th inst. over the signatures of the Executive of the Co-operative Workers of Belleville, in regard to the use of the City Hall auditorium, I would like to correct two statements placed before your readers in that letter which are apt to give a wrong impression.

I did not refuse the request of the said undersigned members for the use of the hall. In fact, the only committee approaching me was one man who spoke to me about procuring the City Hall for some such purpose and I informed him it was out of my jurisdiction and advised him to interview Mr. Stock, city treasurer, who has the authority to rent the auditorium and he is the only one who HAS this authority. The use of the auditorium free of charge can be obtained only by appearing before the City Council and securing their consent.

I personally am quite willing to permit the use of the hall for the purpose in question but if the Co-operative Workers' Executive were in as close touch with civic law as we are led to believe they are they would know that there was a bylaw passed shortly after the hall was redecorated setting forth the rates for rental and placing the whole matter in the hands of the city treasurer, and the same bylaw was published in your paper at that time. Though I am chairman of Market and City Property the renting of this auditorium does not come under my jurisdiction.

To cite a case in point; last winter I took it upon myself, as Chairman of Market and City Property in an emergency to adjust the rates for two nights' rental to Dr. Jackson for his lectures because he would have rented it for one night only at our stated fee and would rent it for two nights at a slightly reduced rate, and thinking it more profitable to make a slight variation in that instance I did so. In consequence I was very severely criticized by members of the council at a subsequent meeting and reminded that I had nothing whatever to do with the rental of the auditorium and that this came solely under the treasurer's department and the City Council as a whole.

From these facts it will be clearly seen that some persons in the city are speaking from false impressions.

Trusting that this will help to avoid future misunderstandings and thanking you sincerely for the use of your valuable space.

Yours truly,
Thomas H. Marshall,
Chairman of Market and City Property.

Editor Belleville Intelligencer:

A few days ago I received from a friend some copies of Dear Old Belleville Intelligencer, that have made me feel quite homesick. I am much pleased to see how grown up and fine it has become. It is the first paper I ever knew or remember. I think it is not very much older than I am. I can't find out who is the present editor. As far as I can remember it has always been in the Bowell family. I would like to know year of first publishing. I think it may be some older than I am. My father settled in Belleville 104 years ago, built the first factory there on Moira River, then built a home on East Moira street where he lived for many years, and there I was born and had my first schooling in what was known then as "The Grove". All streets were not named. My last visit to the place was 12 years ago. I wonder how many people now living there can remember when they were trying to get a railroad through, and when the foundation was started for the old Albert College, and when we went to church at a place called the Lower Chapel with Nathan Jones playing the organ.

Two of our family were buried in St. Thomas' Church yard 90 years ago. When Rev. Mr. Grier and Father Breman used to walk about the streets wearing long black gowns down to shoe tops, and when a lady lived on Pinnacle street north of Catholic Church, who may have been your grandmother, or great grandmother— I refer to Mrs. Moore. Oh, I love to remember all the people and improvements from the 50's on, although they now are getting away from me.

When I was there last a man told me that I had told him more about himself and his people than he had ever heard before. Who remembers the beautiful arches built over the street in honor of the Prince of Wales, and the rows of white sticks from east to west showing where the Grand Trunk single track would run, and the wonderful Marble Hall being built opposite the Upper Bridge. I will never forget the quiet old town and the weekly Intelligencer that we used to patiently watch for.

Good luck to Belleville and all her good honest peole. To the papers I am only

EXTORTION CHARGE DROPPED BY POLICE

Claimed Men Trying to Collect Losses in Being Sold Short

Rochester N.Y., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Charges against five men including three from Toronto, who participated in an alleged extortion plot against a Rochester stock broker were to be dismissed in the city court today at the request of the police.

The men were arrested yesterday after Frederick E. Peeler, the broker declared he had been held captive for several hours in a hotel room, tortured and threatened with death unless he signed a cheque for $7,000.

After an investigation by the district Attorney, the Public Safety Commissioner and Police Officials, the latter said they would ask that charges against the men be dropped.

The police said they accepted the stories of the men that Peeler sold them short in a stock pool and they were trying to collect their loss. Police said they found no evidence of any violence.

Entering the investigation, representatives from the Attorney General's office seized the records in Peeler's office. They said his operations in Canadian shares had been under surveillance for some time.

Official Busy Man in Guelph Courts

Guelph, Dec. 14—Delay of the provincial government in filling a vacant legal post has given Crown Attorney J. M. Kearns a busy time at the general sessions of the peace which closed yesterday. When the sessions opened he was clerk of the county court.

Later he assumed his own role of crown attorney and still later carried out his office of clerk of the peace in connection with a number of applications for naturalization.

Mr. Kearns took over the positions in an acting capacity following the resignation of Leo W. Goetz, whose successor has not yet been named.

WARNING TO PARENTS

Parents have been advised by the Ontario Safety League to warn their children never to accept the offer of a ride from a stranger. A letter broadcast throughout the province from the League was as follows:

The necessity for this warning was brought forcibly to my attention a few days ago, when a man in a car stopped one of our little girls and asked her if she would tell him where some school was. He said he was looking for a girl by the name of Hazel Mae to pose for an artist, then he said "You would do just as well," and asked her if she would like to pose and said she "could make from twenty-five to thirty dollars a week." He then asked her to get into his car and said he would take her to her school wherever it might be. She refused, took his car number, and the occurrence was reported to the police. Tell your children never to accept from strangers the offer of a drive or ride. It is a good thing to teach them to read marker numbers of automobiles. Sometime they may be able to get an infernal hit-and-run driver.

The league also urges motor drivers never to cross a railway track level crossing in high gear. "Do not take the risk of becoming stalled while on the tracks. It is safer to shift into intermediate or low gear before crossing a track. As a matter of fact, all railway crossings whether guarded or not, should be considered as dangerous; crossing bells or signals may be out of order; watchmen or gate operators may be off duty. Be especially careful at crossings where there is more than one track. Do not cross directly behind a train that has just passed. Another train may be coming in the opposite direction on the other track. Remember a train at forty miles an hour travels 59 feet in one second, and cannot be stopped in much less than one-quarter of a mile. An automobile at 25 miles per hour can be stopped in 58 feet. Consider therefore which should Stop, Look and Listen? The train or the automobile? Accidents involving railroad trains and automobiles rarely kill or injure any one on the train—it is usually the people in the automobile who are killed or injured. WHY TAKE A CHANCE?

KILLING HITCH-HIKING

Hitch-hiking by the really needy has been killed by the "thumbing" class. Everyone who uses the highway knows that there are countless young fellows who nightly use the conveyances of others to get in and out of the towns and cities. Everyone also has heard of that vast population of shifting men who have been roaming across the country taking advantage of the unrest and making of it an excuse for their endless travels, seeking aid at shelters and hostelries and panhandling the public. This latter class has helped to kill hitchhiking.

The needy accordingly lose out for the pestilential hikers in their greed for themselves have slaughtered the goose which was ready to lay a golden egg for the poor and needy.

There are other persons who hitch-hike to beat paying their way on the railways or on the motorbuses. Transportation problems have been intensified by the condition of affairs which has arisen and the railways and bus companies have a just complaint against those who occupy seats in other persons' cars which cost them nothing for maintenance and operation, in order to cheat a railway, or a bus out of fares. Motorists themselves are sick to death of this type of hiker, who gets all the use of the highway that the motorist is paying for and who avoids his share in maintaininf the railways and buses.

Last of all there is the danger of picking up a criminal hiker. There is no wonder that drivers have reached the stage when they drive by the "thumbing" pest.

One cannot but feel sorry for the needy man who wants a hitch-hike trip but no one cares for the fellow who wants to ride about at all times without payment of anything while everyone else is "paying the shot."

SIGNPOSTS

There are real signposts on the highway to recovery in Canada. Increased railway earnings, increased sales of Hydro power, advancing exports, climbing government revenue, improved retail and wholesale sales and, best of all, the better feeling in the minds of the people.

The last point is inevitably bound up with the others. Improving conditions and optimism move forward to increase the acceleration towards a mended world.

Those who have their fingers on the pulse of the "rise" know that the economic and social heart beat is making healthy music as it brings life to the onetime sluggish industrial plants and as it brings work nearer to those who have not known steady work for some years.

The revival is possible because the people never lost heart, sunken as certain sections of the population were in the economic slough. The economic patient always had a little life in him and on this the recovery doctor is working successfully.

QUEST IS RELENTLESS

The relentless quest for cancer knowledge which will open the way to halting a cure where vital tissue has not been affected is one of the cheering signs of the present age. The demon disease which has so much mystery about him and which exacts so heavy a toll on human life in what ought to be among the best years of life is ceaselessly hunted by medical men.

The fight is on and will not stop until the disease opens up its mystery. With that will be the cure or means of prevention.

Scarcely a week passes but there is a report of a discovery of some kind in connection with cancer research.

To the men and women in the laboratories who are seeking greater knowledge of the disease, and cures if possible, mankind owes a debt of vast proportions. With the widespread concentration of interest upon this work, there is a probability that the medical researchers will be successful.

Once upon a time there was a disease of a very different type, not at all so mysterious, tuberculosis, which levied a toll on young life which has left bitter memories to this day. Those who have just passed the meridian of life recall how many a sufferer used to be seen on his last days with death written on his face. How many novels which come down from the Victorian age, or even the turn of the century record deaths from declines and tuberculosis? One of the best known books had such an incident in its plot, yet how much happier the book would have been without that story of death. The story appeared only because "consumption" as it was commonly known had so powerful a grip on the imagination and had seared the human brain. But that is gone because doctors and experts wholeheartedly fought the disease, took the public into the war against it and by attention upon the open air life, ventilation of homes, and proper clothing have driven back the disease until the public knowledge of it is extensive. The light of day was thrown on it and the fight has largely been won.

Cancer of course if different but knowledge of the value of early diagnosis, and methods of prevention will help in the conquest, research and investigation are making to conquer the malady.

THE FUTURE OF THE AUTOGIRO

The risks of a forced landing among the forests or rough ground of Africa by an ordinary aeroplane which requires a landing run of several hundred feet are acute. But a forced landing can seldom present any terrors to an autogiro, for which a cleared space of only a few square feet is sufficient. There is no personal reason, of course, to think that the autogiro could supersede the fixed-wing aeroplane on long-distance commercial services. For that we must await further developments in the autogiro's size and speed. But for the moment a successful long-distance flight or two would do more to popularize the craft than any number of "stunt" landings in city streets.—Manchester Guardian.

CENSORING SCHOOL TEXTS

The London Socialists are about to establish a board of party censors on the text-books used in the schools of the Metropolitan area. Eery book is to be minutely examined for traces of "militaristic, patriotic, and capitalist propaganda," all of which is to be summarily excised with a blue pencil. In its place is to be substituted matter of "a more impartial character." We, for our part, are not aware that any school books contain "capitalist," far less "militaristic" propaganda, but we rejoice that many of them seek to instil the virtue of patriotism as the first duty of a good British citizen, and we hope we shall never live to see the day when our children are no longer taught reverence for the splenid heritage to which they are privileged to be born.—London Morning Post.

DANGEROUS TRUCKS

One of the most unfortunate consequences of the "depression" insofar as the automotive industry is concerned, is the enormous increase in the number of old and obsolete vehicles on the road. To how large an extent this has been a factor in the increase in the number of motor vehicle accidents this year is something no one can estimate. But it has been estimated that there are, in Canada today, 110,000 trucks and 200,000 passenger cars which are obsolete.—Brandon Sun.

Serbians in Yugoslavia and Czechoslavia live a tense life They figured in the outbreak of the Great War in the killing of an Austrian archduke and lost the King of Yugoslavia by assassins at Marseilles. They cannot but keep an eye on their neighbors as the recent sensation at the League of Nations shows. But how fortunate is Canada when her citizens can look across the only boundary and see a peaceful, friendly people, largely of the same racial origins. It pays to have good neighbors and to be good neighbors.

Beware of the fury of a patient man. —Dryden.

Celerity is never more admired than by the negligent.—Shakespeare.

BELLS ACROSS THE SNOW

When winter rules with rigor our wide
Canadian land,
And summer yields the sceptre to his all-
conquering hand;
When nothing but a world of white is seen
where-er we go,
We still have something to atone —the
bells across the snow.

Tho' voiceless is the streamlet, and no more the robins sing
To give us hope and courage—dear harbingers of spring!
Although the storm clouds gather, and tempests 'round us blow,
Above the din we hear again—the bells across the snow.

We hear their merry music through the city's rush and roar,
Their pealing cheers the lonely road along the pine-clad shore,
And the aged, sitting dreaming, by the firelight's ruddy glow,
Catch echoes of the days gone by, in—the bells across the snow.

And if in years to come we're called in other lands to roam,
In memory we'll come back to thee, our own Canadian home:
And when the shadows lengthen and life's lights are burning low,
In dreams we'll hear the music of—the bells across the snow.

—Helen B. Anderson.

AS WE HAVE REMARKED BEFORE this is an age of speed—hotel burns down in Lansing, Michigan, with considerable loss of life, one day—the picture of the burning building appears in this newspaper the next day. Do readers realize just how much they are getting for the small sum expended in subscription, and how many persons are busy every day contributing interestingly in word and picture to the production of the home newspaper. In the "good old days" when telegraph news came in by train or coach, and local and district news was from a week to two weeks old before appearing at the fireside, the production of a newspaper was a wonder—now it's a miracle

THE MODERN PENCHANT for change seems to have extended to Niagara Falls, one of the show places of the nation. Some time ago a huge chunk of scenery fell into the swirling waters and changed the aspect of one view. A few days ago a huge slice of table rock let go and slid into the torrent, making another change in the view. Seems as if there should be legislation to make the view at Niagara Falls permanent— er somefin.

FARMING OYSTERS FOR PEARLS is a comparative new industry although experiments along that line have been tried for years. Now a Japanese is said to have solved the question by producing pearls as good as the natural ones. He plants the seed pearls in his own oyster bed, providing the same surroundings and influences as far as possible as the deep sea natural pearls and claims to have achieved success—but his oysters will never reach the restaurant, and folks who have visions of discovering a pearl in the raw oyster order will still have to depend upon the natural variety.

AND HE WAS TAKEN UP onto a high place and shown the whole world of skyscrapers, silver and gold and precious stones, elevated railways, surface railways, bus lines and subways, besides many beautiful bridges and stately ships—and he looked through a great telescope which magnified greatly and brought the country for miles around to his feet—but in all that vast panorama of shifting lights and shadows, of great wealth, hidden and exposed, of stark want forming up in thousands in the nightly bread line—a great city of unlimited wealth and pitiful poverty—the man from Callandar who was taken up to this high place by the man from Broadway—saw nothing to compare in beauty, brightness and Christian character to his beloved Canada.

"What do you think of the girl your son is marrying?" the dad was asked.

"Well," he replied, "I guess she is all right for the modern age, but if I'd brought home a girl like that to my old home and told the folks she was elected to be their daughter-in-law, I reckon they would have run us both out."

Soldiers—Then and Now

—by—

Theodore Goodridge Roberts

My friend Cuddlecob was awarded the Order of Bountiful Crops, First Class. Well, that is surely as good, from a military point of view as the (French) Order of Merit of Agriculture.

A comrade of Galt, Ontario, has asked me a question concerning the "Mons Star". He wants to know if those lads of Galt who marched into Valcartier Camp in September, 1914, and fought in the Second Battle of Ypres in April, 1915, are entitled to the "Mons Star."

The Mons Star

I think that, officially, there is no such thing as the Mons Star. But I think that there should be. The senior of the three British service medals of the Great War (1914-1918) is the star shaped one marked 1914-1915. British soldiers who engaged the enemy at Mons or elsewhere in 1914, and all British troops who fought in Flanders or on any other front in 1915, are entitled to this medal (star) and this ribbon. The heroes of 1914, however, wear a rosette on the ribbon; and they, surely, have the right to call that medal the Mons Star.

The Second Battle of Ypres

Now consider the case of the Canadians who fought in Flanders in April and May of 1915. They wear the 1914-1915 star and ribbon without the rosette. Fair enough! But so do those Canadians who were not at the Second Battle of Ypres, and did not engage the enemy until September 1915, wear that star and ribbon. This does not seem fair, to me. The whole system of the British service medals of the Great War strikes me as being an unfair muddle. It seems to me that (a) those who fought in 1914 should have a 1914 Star of their very own; that (b) those who fought the Second Battle of Ypres and the battles of May of that year should have a 1915 Star and a rosette to wear on the ribbon; and (c) that those who fought later in that year should have the 1915 star or medal without the rosette on the ribbon.

In a lesser war, a special medal would have been struck for the April and May (and perhaps the June) engagements of the Canadians and others of 1915, about Ypres. This is not a personal matter with me. I was still in England at that time.

The Victory (or Allies) Medal

Even if the matter of the 1914-1915 Star was straightened out to the satisfaction of all concerned, grounds for reasonable complaint remain in the manner of awarding the Victory Medal. Only three service medals were issued to British troops for the Great War, and only two of these denote service in the field, on any front. All that we know of the man with the Victory Medal (without asking) is that he served on some front or other, but not in 1915. The fact is, he may have served in the face of the enemy from January 1st, 1916, until the end of the war! In which case (and there are many such cases) what has he? Two medals—the Victory and the General Service. And yet he may have done his duty at Sanctuary Wood, on the Somme, at Vimy, at Passchendaele, at Amiens, at Arras and at Cambrai. Think that over! On the other hand—because those entitled to the 1915 Medal (star) are entitled to the Victory Medal also—a man who may have got to the front in December 1915, and back to England again as soon as possible, has three medals. I know of a case of an officer whose only service in the field was seven weeks at the base in the early autumn of 1915. Three medals! But I know even funnier things than that about medals.

REDUCED INTEREST IS ASKED ON LOANS

Farmers of Ontario Suggest Hannan To Bank Board

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—A resolution asking reduction of interest charges from 5 to 3 1-2 percent under the Agricultural Development Board, and resumption of the policy of loans to farmers, was passed today at the 20th annual convention of the United Farmers of Ontario. The resolution will be forwarded to the Provincial Government.

The meeting endorsed the appointment of H. H. Hannan, Secretary of the U.F.O., as a director of the Central Bank of Canada, representing primary industry.

"There is no organization more entitled to put a nominee in than the U.F.O." said Mr. Hannan, "although only three percent of shareholders of the bank are listed as farmers."

CLEAN CHIMNEYS VITAL NEED HERE SAYS FIRE CHIEF

Houseowners Also Warned Against Cracks in Chimneys

BURNING OF ZINC

Belleville needs chimney sweeps, professionals or amateurs or the owners and occupants of houses, to guarantee clean chimneys. That is at least the impression of a reporter who conversed with Chief W. J. Lynch of the Belleville fire department. The chief says the condition of the chimneys in this city is serious, really serious.

"'We cleaned the pipes and the pipe holes last week' is what householders tell us," remarked the chief. "But the trouble is in the chimney itself."

"You don't mean that some one should go out on the roof and see that the chimney is properly swept down so that all evidence of clogging be removed?" asked the newspaperman.

"The chimney should be cleaned. Why of course people have cleaned their pipes but the trouble is in the chimney. There are some chimneys which have not been cleaned in two or three years."

"Why I should not hesitate to say that there are homes in the city whose chimneys have not been cleaned since they were built," the reporter offered in comment.

Four Fires in Hour

Chief Lynch did not just say but went on: "Fifty per cent. of our fires are in the chimneys which have not been looked after for two or three years. Yesterday we had four fires within an hour. Today with so many persons burning wood, especially the green wood which leads to coating the chimneys and pipes and also while burning soft coal, there is a real danger. Why the other day in Coleman Ward we had a hard time. We could not cut through the coating for the four inch thickness of waste which had formed. We tried a hook but it would not cut through and the billows of smoke could not get out."

"Is there anything that can be put in the fire to help clean pipes and chimneys?"

"Yes. If the chimney has not been neglected too long, it is advisable to burn a little scrap zinc in the stove or furnace every six weeks or so. I tell you what I do, I burn the zinc of old car batteries. This will help to keep pipes clear.

An indication of what a fire means when the chimney is clogged is conveyed by the fact vouched for by the fire chief, that into one chimney thirty gallons of chemical had to be sprayed and poured in order to extinguish the roaring inferno.

Trouble in Attics

And there is another thing Chief Lynch drew the attention of the press to—"We find many houses with the mortar missing in the attics between the ceiling and the roof. Unfortunately some houses have not inlets into the attics. Even in houses which have, there is the strange fact that no one seems to think that it would be well to examine the brickwork of the chimney to discover if there is missing mortar. Now in case the mortar is missing and a chimney fire breaks out the fire eats through into the space above the ceiling and beneath the roof. And then there is a fire in the attic."

If mention had been made of householders only, up to this point in the interview, Chief Lynch was not going to let the owners and occupants of stores escape. "Not only houses but business places have their chimneys blocked and some of them cracked.'

If the chief's hints and suggestions are taken there will be a great clean-up in attics to see if the brick work of the chimney is solid and some climbing out on the roofs to make certain that the chimney structure is not blocked somewhere above the roof with a caking of soot.

BROADEN TRADE IF GOV'T. TURNS

Empire Agreements Will Not be Scrapped Says Mr. King

Ottawa, Dec. 14 (CP)—Trade relations between Canada and other parts of the British Empire will be revised if the Liberal party comes into power but the Empire Trade Agreements will not be completely scrapped. As the National Liberal Federation continued its annual meeting here today it had before it this declaration of policy from Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, party leader.

Canada under a Liberal Government, said Mr. King yesterday, could conduct future trade negotiations with Empire countries in the spirit of Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin as he declared himself at the 1932 Imperial Conference in Ottawa. Mr. Baldwin then stressed the desirability of bringing about a general lowering of tariff and other trade barriers throughout the world and urged that no intra-Empire arrangement should be made which might discourage trade with countries outside the Empire.

After a strenuous meeting yesterday when preliminaries were disposed of, reports received from all over Canada, and a speech given by Liberal leader Mackenzie King, committees were struck to deal with finance, nominations and kindred matters. These committees will report today.

Behind closed doors the meeting will today go fully into matters of organization, it is expected. Decks have been cleared for a discussion of all phases of this matter, and with a general election coming on, preparations for the battle will be one of the important subjects to come up.

Yesterday Mr. King gave an address in which he recommended Empire-wide investigation into the arms traffic with exposure of a "racket" if such existed. He also protested against economic nationalism and economic Imperials as detrimental to world people.

Hon. Vincent Massey, president of the Federation, declared that the people of Canada were impatient for an election in which they would have an opportunity to repeat recent Liberal successes in the provinces and Federal by-elections.

SHE HAS NO FEAR OF GETTING FAT

Eats Well—But Takes Kruschen

Here is a letter from a woman who has discovered the ideal way of getting slim and keeping slim:—

"For the last 11 months I have used Kruschen Salts, and I have come down in weight gradually. I have reduced 33 lbs., and I feel ever so much better in health. I can now eat anything without having any fear of getting stouter. I feel very fit, and can go up and down stairs with perfect ease, and don't get short of breath or palpitations, which I suffered a lot with before taking Kruschen."—(MRS.) R. P.

Taken every morning, Kruschen effects a perfectly natural clearance of undigested food substances, and all excessive waste matter. Unless this wastage is regularly expelled, Nature will eventually store it up out of the way in the form of ugly fat.

EXCITEMENT NOW AND THEN IS HELPFUL

Too Much Excitement. is Harmful to Body And Mind

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The craving for excitement is exceedingly common and is often so insistent that it actually amounts to an obsession. To every walk of life the excitement fever is in evidence. Even the old may display it as well as the young.

For instance, people run after fire engines or ambulances, a mouse running across the street quickly gathers a crowd; any occurrence in the slightest way unusual stirs people up. We also have our baseball and football games, prize fights, and other spectacles.

A little excitement now and then is beneficial and stimulating, both to the body and to the mind. The over-doing, however, acts in an opposite way, devitalizing the system, bringing on nervousness and producing stress and strain on all the organs.

It is a well known fact that too much excitement, or excitement experienced over a long period may cause heart disturbances, high blood pressure, digestive upsets, and the like, not to mention the pernicious effects that may overwhelm the glands of internal secretion.

One often wonders why millionaires keep on trying to accumulate money when they already possess more than enough. Excitement undoubtedly is one of the chief factors that holds them to the task.

Then consider those who go in for dangerous undertakings such as exploring, big game hunting, airplane stunting, and other hazardous pastimes. Here, again, the love of excitement is the chief motivating factor.

During primitive times man had to be continually on the alert fearing attack by other savages and by wild beasts. Thus excitement became a habit and a natural adjunct to the instinct of self-preservation. These traits modern man has inherited from his forbears, and to this day he cannot quite get rid of them entirely.

Witness the eagerness with which detective fiction is read, and how people delight in seeing movies and plays where there is plenty of action and suspense. In fact, such outlets for excitement are valuable because they are less devastating to body and mind than genuine excitement actually experienced.

The Greeks and Romans knew how strong the craving for excitement is and so they held gladiatorial combats, foot and chariot races, in order that the crowds might, through such harmless channels, let off some surplus "excitement steam." When we, in modern times collect in large numbers to watch a game and cheer the contestants we are also letting off steam and it does us good.

Therefore, by all means, have your share of excitement but be careful lest you overdo it. The best way is to take it in small doses, and at intervals. Then mental and physical health is safeguarded.

If however, you let the excitement urge get the best of you, and you allow yourself to become excited, or do it deliberately, while you work as well as play, you may be sure that sooner or later you will pay a price in health; either some organ will give way or your nerves will suffer a breakdown.

Remember that excitement, like a fever, is consuming, what is more, it is extremely difficult to slow down when once the craving for excitement has got the upper hand.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Persons suffering from tuberculosis, a chronic disease must necessarily be concerned about the food eaten. Too much food places a strain upon an already depleted system, while too little deprives the body of the added nourishment and energy it needs. When the fever is slight, easily digested food in about the same amounts as in health may be given. When fever is high, a liquid diet of milk is best, later on adding semi-solid foods with the addition of these containing minerals, vitamins and roughage.

Sheets Distributed Attacking Dairies

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—Ontario authorities plan to investigate pamphlets distributed in Hamilton Wednesday and containing an attack on private dairies, Hon. H. C. Nixon, Acting Premier and Provincial Secretary said today.

The pamphlets, which were unsigned, were distributed during the night or early in the day and were feared to complicate negotiations looking toward a peaceful settlement of the milk war.

"You can't float literature like that. It is against the law I am sure. It was calculated to cause trouble and when such statements are made they must carry the name of responsible persons," Mr. Nixon stated.

SURPRISE PARTY ON ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. E. Carter, Trenton Are Feted

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Carr, Trenton, were guests of honor at a delightful surprise party arranged by their daughters, Mrs. Harry Baker, Trenton, and Mrs. W. E. Carter, Roslin, on Wednesday, the thirty-fourth anniversary of their wedding.

The party was held at the home of Mrs. Baker, Trenton, where a number of friends gathered. An interesting feature of the evening was the unexpected arrival of relatives from Belleville and others from Bancroft whom the guests of honor had not seen for a number of years.

Games were enjoyed and a delicious lunch served, the centre of attraction being the beautiful wedding cake.

Christmas Concerts

A Christmas Cantata, "The Echo of a Song" presented before a large audience in St. Andrew's Church Hall last evening, delighted all present with its lovely Christmas music and its interesting and timely story.

V.O.N. ON DUTY CHRISTMAS DAY

Christmas season and even Christmas Day will make no difference in the twenty-four hour nursing service being given by nurses of the local Victorian Order it was stated today. The two nurses now engaged will be on call at any hour of the day and night for families who need the service.

If anything their duties are expected to be more onerous during the season at hand. Broken daily routine and a mixed diet during the holiday is expected to add to the woes of the younger generation and a subsequent wave of hurry-up calls for the nurses by anxious parents.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Six Day Bike Rider"

Joe E. Brown In His Most Riotous Role!

Joe E. Brown, the wide-mouthed comedian, brought tears of laughter to the eyes of the large audience who attended the opening of "Six Day Bike Rider", now at the Capitol, in which he is ably supported by Maxine Doyle and Frank McHugh.

Joe, as Wilfred Simpson, is a conceited small town station agent, who sings in the church choir, and who considers himself not only the village cut-up but a veritable Don Juan.

When he finally centers his attention on Phyllis Jenkins (Maxine Doyle), daughter of the banker, he thinks she should be really complimented. She, on the other hand, falls for a professional bicycle rider, Harry St. Clair (Gordon Westcott), who is engaged as a trick rider at the county fair. Wilfred becomes jealous, boos his rival's act, and finally jumps on the platform and actually shows up the professional as a trick rider.

It was fine for the home folks, but while Wilfred was doing his stunts, Phyllis went off with St. Clair. Wilfred thinks they have eloped, and in his excitement drops a lantern which sets fire to a barn. When the girl and the stunt rider are found sitting on her father's porch, Wilfred is given the air, and also loses his job.

Taking his pal, Clinton Hemmings (Frank McHugh), with him, Wilfred goes to New York and enters the pair in a six day bicycle race. Both boys get jobs as messengers to provide meals while training.

Wilfred is sent on an errand and discovers St. Clair in a flat with a woman whom he thinks is Phyllis. They battle and Wilfred lands in jail when it is discovered that the lady is St. Clair's real wife.

Phyllis actually runs away from home to join St. Clair but when she discovers he is married, rushes to jail to see Wilfred, who will have nothing to do with her.

In the meantime, it is time for the race to start. Wilfred is in jail, but Clinton starts the grind anyway. Phyllis wires her father who takes Wilfred out of jail.

He enters the race at the zero hour and in a breath-taking series of funny sequences, manages to win both the race and his sweetheart.

The Moonstone

This mystery-packed companion feature was adapted to the screen from Wilkie Collins' famous novel. It concerns the inheritance of a famous jewel, its loss and its recovery, resulting in a thrilling climax, bringing the story to a happy finale. David Manners and Phyllis Barry are the principals in the cast and are ably supported by Jamieson Thomas, Evelyn Bostok and Gustav von Siellertitz.

Capitol News and a cartoon, "Aladin and His Lamp" complete the programme. Last show 8.45.

Tomorrow only, "The Red Rider" thrilling serial with Buck Jones and his wonder horse, "Silver".

AT THE BELLE

"College Rhythm"

Penner Makes Debut in Comedy Riot Film

In a whirl of girls, music and riotous comedy, Joe Penner, America's favorite radio comic, makes his long awaited feature picture debut in Paramount's Six-star musical comedy hit, "College Rhythm", coming to the Belle tomorrow (Saturday) matinee and evening.

And if you thought Penner and his ubiquitous Goo-Goo, who by the way has accompanied his master into the talkies, funny over the radio, you'll find them simply irresistible in this show where they are surrounded by a bevy of comedy and beauty stars.

It's a mirthful farce, with lots of dancing and hit tunes, built around the ludicrous rivalry of two college boys for the same maiden's hand. The principals in the triangle are Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie as the wise-cracking football star, and Mary Brian, as the source of contention.

They are supported by Helen Mack, Lyda Roberti, George Barbier, Franklin Pangborn and Robert McWade. And the whole picture has been given a number of elaborate settings and top-hole direction by Norman Taurog, director of the recent "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and so many grand kid comedies.

The ludicrous feud between the collegians is carried into the business world and Stacey's department store where they go to work, together with Penner, keeper of the team mascot, Goo-Goo.

In order to take business away from their competitors, the boys inject college atmosphere into the institution, with chorus girls, brass bands and a football team.

The highspot of the picture is the football game between the two store teams, in which Ross proves his valour and then decides he doesn't love Mary Brian, after all, but his demure little secretary, Helen Mack. That leaves Oakie to team up with Mary Brian and they're more contented.

Under the direction of Leroy Printz studio dance director, 150 winsome and appealing lasses in the All-American Co-ed chorus execute some of the most ingenious and stunning routines the films have ever featured.

There are a whole flock of new tunes by the champions of the keyboard, Gordon and Revel, chief of which are "Let's give three cheers for Love," "Stay as Sweet as You Are," and "Take a Number from One to Ten."

Performances by the entire cast are so uniformly excellent that it would be an injustice to the others if any one were singled out for especial comment. Suffice it is to say that if you go to see "College Rhythm", you will be rewarded by the most enjoyable show you have seen in many months.

Excellent Short Treats

Heading an excellent program of short treats are "Our Gang" in a new rip-roaring comedy "First Round Up". The Belle latest World Events, as revealed in the popular Belle Newsreel, "Old Pioneer" a happy harmony screen gem in full beautiful technicolour and at the Saturday matinee performanceClyde Beatty, world's greatest animal trainer in the further adventures in "The Lost Jungle."

Santa Here Saturday

Santa Claus will be at the Belle Saturday afternoon to greet all the kiddies, and to present each and every one of them with a Xmas gift.

Joan Crawford, Clark Gable and Otto Kruger appearing at the Belle for the last times tonight in their greatest romantic hit "Chained." It is an excellent picture, don't miss it.

Joe E. Brown and little Maxine Doyle in his latest laugh riot, "6 Day Bike Rider," now at the Capitol.

GODFREY ACTS ON QUOTATIONS

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—Aiming to eliminate alleged frauds in connection with quotations of unlisted securities, J. M. Godfrey, Ontario Securities Commissioner, today announced the appointment of a committee of reputable brokers to cooperate with newspapers to see that as far as possible quotations are given only where there is a bona-fide market for the stock.

Mr. Godfrey declined to reveal the personnel of the committee but he understood newspapers are not publishing quotations except when approved of by this committee.

"While this procedure will not give absolute protection to the public it will eliminate many of the frauds which have been perpetrated in the past," the Commissioner said.

Furthermore, the Commissioner declared, no broker in the future will be permitted to send out circulars giving stock quotations unless these quotations have been taken from the press.

In referring to the sale of unlisted securities, Mr. Godfrey charged, "one of the rackets which was being perpetrated on the public was putting a framed-up sale through an unlisted broker for a few shares of stock at a high price, having the quotation published in the newspapers and on that quotation attempting to sell these shares to the public at that price."

'Porkie' Quill Probable Cause Of 'Tug's' Action

Elvin Roach's hound dog, "Tug" "just didn't seem to have much sense" during the past 3 months or more, according to his owner. Eery time he tagged along downtown he'd bump into the lamp posts along Front Street and yelp when he hit them. At night he'd howl at the moon when there wasn't any moon to be seen.

Elvin was thinking of getting rid of the old rabbit hound. But this week when he was idly patting the dog's head his hand felt the contact of a sharp point just under the eye. Closer examination revealed a still sharp but badly worn porcupine quill that had evidently worked its way through one side of the head, emerging out under the eye.

Tug is getting well again since the quill that had evidently partly blinded and worried him has been pulled out.

ACTION UNDER SEED ACT IS HEARD IN COURT

Charge of Selling Foul Seed is Laid by Thurlow Farmer

CASE IS DISMISSED

A charge of selling foul seed preferred against G. C. Brickman by the Dominion Seed Branch of the Department of Agriculture, was dismissed by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., at the adjourned sitting of the police court this afternoon with the costs of court charged against the plaintiffs. R. J. E. Graham, who conducted the prosecution for the Department admitted the technicality that was advanced by Charles A. Payne, K.C., acting for the defence, who showed that the Dominion Seed Act called for the accused to be present or two disinterested parties when samples of grain in dispute are taken for analysis. The plaintiffs reserved the right to appeal.

Charged with selling seed grain containing foul seed G. C. Brickman, local seed merchant, appeared in police court today before Magistrate E. J. Butler. The charge was laid by the seed branch of the Dominion Government following complaints laid by Mr. Wilfred Hutchinson, Thurlow township. Mr. Brickman pleaded not guilty and the plaintiffs took the entire morning tendering evidence. Shortly after noon today Mr. Charles A. Payne, counsel for the defendant, objected to the introduction of the seed analysis by experts from Ottawa on the ground that the seed in question had been confiscated by the local seed inspector, the sample not having been taken in accordance with the Dominion Seed Act. Mr. R. J. E. Graham, counsel for the prosecution, immediately requested a recess, court being adjourned until 2 p.m. Mr. Payne's objection came rather suddenly and caused a slight commotion in the court.

Told of Purchase

The charge was instigated after Mr. Wilfred Hutchinson, a Thurlow farmer had complained to the Dominion Seed Branch relating to certain seed which he had allegedly purchased from the firm of G. F. Brickman and Son of Belleville. Mr. Hutchinson testified that he had purchased some 66 bushels from Brickman on May 10th. last. "They were guaranteed clean and free from herrick," stated the witness, who said he paid 65c per bushel for the seed. Subsequently Mr. Hutchinson purchased a further 37 bushels on May 15th. at the same price. While sowing the seed a hired man, working for Mr. Hutchinson, observed herrick seed in the oats and brought it to the attention of the purchaser. Mr. Hutchinson swore that he showed a field of oats, spotted with herrick to Mr. Brickman, who is alleged to have remarked, "If that's my seed I'm sorry."

Upon cross examination Mr. Hutchinson admitted purchasing other oat seed from the Tweed Milling Company. He also admitted keeping some of the seed said to be purchased at Brickman's in a box, this seed later being turned over to the seed inspector when it was discovered that herrick or wild mustard was growing on the Hutchinson farm was free from herrick previous to the sowing of the oat seed early this spring. Mr. Hutchinson admitted he did not ask for the best government tested seed, but stated he asked for and believed he purchased clean seed. It was disclosed during proceedings that government tested Grade No. 1 oats sold from 75c to 90c per bushel last spring while ordinary oats brought around 50c per bushel. Mr. Hutchinson denied however, that he was purchasing ordinary oats.

Stephen Brown, a hired man on the Hutchinson farm, corroborated the above evidence and told of examining the oats and of being told that they were clean seed oats.

Lester Wyatt, a neighbor also testified on behalf of the plaintiffs, and stated that the Hutchinson farm had previously been clean and free from herrick. "There was herrick growing in the north field where the oats had been sown," he stated.

Seized by Inspector

George Mikel, government seed inspector for the Dominion Seed Branch, told of going to the Hutchinson farm on July 2nd. last. He went over the entire farm and found 50 per cent. of the oat fields infested with herrick on the north part of the farm. He confiscated some three or four pounds of the seed, said by Mr. Hutchinson to have been purchased from Brickman. The seed was forwarded to Ottawa for analysis and the certificate returned showed the product bearing traces of herrick. Other expert testimony relating to the price of oat seed last May was submitted by witnesses.

When J. V. Mackay and George Elliott, two members of the laboratory staff of the seed branch at Ottawa were called Mr. Payne objected to their evidence, it not being according to the act. Mr. Payne pointed out that in Section 26 of the Dominion Seed Act the inspector confiscating a sample of seed that had been sold, must remove the sample for analysis under the observation of a neutral person or in the presence of the person who sold the seed. This procedure was not followed through by Inspector Mikel, he pointed out. Mr. Graham requested an adjournment until this afternoon. The case is still in progress.

WEEKLY LIVESTOCK REVIEW

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)— Lambs featured trading on the Toronto Livestock Market this week gaining 50 cents the first three days' movement and although the division was weaker on Thursday it held most of the gain. Advances were also registered on hogs and some grades of cattle. Hogs closed with a 20-cent advance while cows and weighty steers were 15 higher.

About 500 head of cattle were carried from the previous week but a good cleanup was made, only a few plain killers and stores were unsold. No special demand for Christmas beef was noted and no extra rush is expected next week.

Hog receipts were again light and the division responded with a 20-cent advance. Bacons closed at $7.35 F.O.B. $7.70 off truck and $8.10 off car. Outside points were strong and small buyers paid slightly higher levels for their supplies.

Included in the lamb run were 630 fat Westerns as well as some finished native held for Christmas trade. The ordinary run of good ewes and wethers sold 25 to 50 cents higher at $7.25 to $7.75 but closed weaker with most stops at $7.50. The entire shipment of Westerns went at $7.85.

Small lots of choice lambs brought $8.00 to $9.00 while one lot of Southdowns, fed by J. Brodie of Stouffville, Ont., topped the market at $9.50. Mr. Brodie recently won the Grand Championship of the Chicago Livestock Exposition with his show of car lambs. Sheep were steady at $1.00 to $3.00 while a few yearlings went at $4.50 to $5.00. Cull, buck and heavy lambs ranged from $5.00 to $7.00.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—Breaking into action at the opening, the gold group traded at a fast clip throughout the first three hours, Wright Hargreaves, Hollinger and Little Long Lac leading in the volume and price gains. Silver issues, with exception of Eldorado, were slow and the base metal stocks were almost dormant.

Little Long Lac and God's Lake were the top notchers for volume and they had gains of 10 to 15 cents each by early afternoon. In the senior group, Hollinger, Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves were higher and Bralorne slightly soft.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)— Buying power was at low ebb in the industrial section which stood out chiefly in the volume sales of recent favorites. Oil and food stocks were slow, brewery shares hardly moved and only Distillers Seagrams in the liquor group traded in anything approaching normal volume.

Some of the oil shares were up narrowly on small business and prices were off for Nickel, Smelters and Bell Telephone.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Dec. 14. — Financial markets continued to follow a criss-cross pattern today and there was a notable absence of definite trends in most speculative departments.

As in recent sessions, interest in stocks was largely of a selective character, the general list milling about in an extremely narrow range. Only slight price changes were shown in the bond list.

Among Canadian shares, McIntyre improved slightly, while Canadian Pacific and International Nickel were off a shade each. On the curb, Hiram Walker and Lake Shore were slightly higher. Dominion Government bonds ruled steady. Canadian funds gained 3-16 of a cent at 101 1-16 cents.

McCrory Stores Preferred stock got up three points, McLellan Stores was up fractionally and Philip Morris advanced a point, all to new tops for the year. Dominion Stores eased to a new 1935 low. American Woollen Preferred gained two and Celotex Preferred more than one.

The oils, including Standards of New Jersey and California, were a little lower.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—Firmness in a number of specialties was a feature of the quiet trading in stocks today. The late tone was steady. American Telephone and Consolidated Gas were each a shade lower, while U.S. Steel, Santa Fe, United Stores Corp., U. S. Smelting and Delaware and Hudson advanced moderately. Radio-Keith-Orpheum improved fractionally in heavy dealings. Transfers approximated 850,000 shares.

ADVISE 61 ACCUSED TO GIVE SELVES UP

One of Those Covered in Blanket Warrant is a Woman

Montreal, Dec. 14 (CP)—One of the 61 accused in the immense liquor smuggling ring which is claimed to have defrauded the Dominion Government of $5,000,000 in duties and excise is a Montreal woman, according to reports here today.

The woman was said to have been a former resident of the Maritime Provinces and to be secretary of one of the other accused in the case.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police, whose investigations led to the uncovering of what they claim is an extensive conspiracy to defraud the government by smuggling liquor into Canada, expected results today from their advice to accused to accept railway fare to Montreal and give themselves up voluntarily. If the accused, scattered from coast to coast, do not come voluntarily, the Mounties said, they will be brought here under arrest.

SIX YEAR CRIME IS SOLVED AND SUSPECT IS HELD

Body of Ten Year Old Child Found Hacked in 3 Pieces

GIVES CONFESSION

Lead Officers to Hideaway And Help in Search

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The grave of Grace Budd disgorged evidence to clinch solution today of the kidnapping and killing of the child and incrimination of Albert H. Fish.

Fish after mocking her family by mail since the crime was committed six years ago, was captured finally through the letters, which he himself sent; confessed and led officers to the little girl's timberland tomb.

Butchered by a meat cleaver, the body was found in three parts, the skull buried in the woods near a ramshackle house in East Irvington, the other bones by a road.

"The blood lust seized me," the wizened 65 year old house painter said. "But I'm glad it's over now. Helping the police find the body somehow makes me feel better."

To the family which had never known what had befallen their child, then 10 years old, since she walked hand-in-hand with a stranger into one of the most mystifying kidnappings, the swift solution was a shock.

Horrible Thing

"It was a horrible thing," said her father, Albert Budd, "and this makes it worse."

The father and a brother of the girl, Edward—who originally had been marked for the murder—confronted Fish and identified him as the man who disappeared with Grace. He was charged with homicide and kidnapping.

Police pounced upon Fish in a midtown post office substation yesterday while he waited for a remittance from a son in a civilian conservation corps camp.

The last of a series of cruel letters to the Budd family had been received only a few days ago, written on the stationery of an employment agency, and tracing it back, police came to the catch.

Told Whole Story

Spontaneously Fish launched into a confession, but he was cut short and taken to police headquarters where he told a complete and coherent story. Its text was not divulged, but Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine said it ran thus:

Contemplating the killing in advance, the man had bought a meat cleaver, saw and butcher knife, wrapped them in a tarpaulin and checked them at a news-stand.

Then he went to call at the tenement home of the Budds, whose son Edward had advertised for a farm job. Fish represented himself as one Frank Howard, and said he had a farm near Farmingdale, a farm that existed only in his imagination.

He intended to take the 18 year old boy with him and kill him, but upon meeting the family was captivated by delicate little Grace, with her big blue eyes and brown hair, and marked her instead for the massacre.

Invited to Party

He returned a few days later—it was June 3, 1928—said he was not going to his farm until the next day, and invited Grace to accompany him that day to a party he said his sister was giving for some children.

Delightedly, the child pinned a rose on her white dress and went with him—to death.

After picking up his baleful bundle, Fish took her by train to the Westchester hideaway which he knew to be unoccupied. He had lived in a nearby house eight years ago.

Telling the child to play in the yard until the other guests arrived, he went into the house, laid out his gruesome array of tools and called her. She came to him.

It was three days later before he returned. It was there that they found the body last night. The skull, a few bones and tattered remnants of a tarpaulin.

CATCHER OF DOGS LOSES HIS OWN DOG

Bob Sproat Longs For Return of Rabbit Chasing Pal

St. Thomas, Dec. 14.—Many men have lost dogs while out hunting, but it didn't make a story. When the dog catcher loses a dog while out hunting, and can't find him again, it's news.

Bob Sproat, the city's dog catcher, is an inveterate rabbit hunter. So is P.C. Tom Rickwood. With a fresh fall of snow on the ground this week, they thought the time opportune to go rabbit hunting. They got four jacks but lost their dog. Sproat now has a real job on his hands trying to catch the party's favorite rabbit hunter.

Tom Rickwood says the last they saw of him, he was just two jumps behind a rabbit headed for Belmont. They have it figured out that he would be at Simcoe by now.

DETROIT NEGRO IS A NATURAL

Probably Man Needed to Pull Boxing Out of Doldrums

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP)—A twenty year old negro youth may bring the return of knockout thrills to boxing and lift the sport out of the doldrums.

The new hope is Joe Louis, from Detroit. Within the last six months graduating from the amateur ranks as a gold glove champion, Louis has compiled an amazing record, engaging in 11 fights, winning nine of them by spectacular knockouts.

Tonight Louis will attempt to blast his way through the most formidable opposition he has yet met during his brief career, when he meets Lee Rammage, heavyweight of San Diego, Cal., in a ten round battle at Chicago stadium.

The Detroit negro is a natural, smashing hitter. He wastes no punches. His blows travel no more than six inches in most instances and he gets a crushing snap into them.

The pulling power of the young Detroit negro is reflected in the fact that tonight's match probably will draw a gate of $25,000. Just six months ago Louis was fighting around Chicago for $50. Tonight he will earn about $5,000 with his fists.

He is suffering severe pain and weakness from loss of blood.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Harden of Belleville were Picton visitors on Tuesday.

The grave illness of Mr. Clarence Way is causing concern to his friends.

On Tuesday morning, Dr. Gerald Allison, M.O.H. finished the toxoid treatments being given to pre-school and school children here.

His visit to Picton had been arranged by the students' forum of the school. The programme consisted of; Community Singing "Oh! Canada." Piano solo "Humoresque" by Rachmaninoff, Miss Kathryn Hadden. Principal J. H. Fox then introduced Mr. Macdonald. Born at Port Dover, and educated at Woodstock College and McMaster University, Mr. Macdonald has travelled widely in Canada and the United States. He knows intimately, Quebec, British Columbia and the Canadian West, and these provinces have supplied the background for many of his poems.

Mr. Macdonald delighted the large audience with the following of his poems, giving the introductory story in connection with each.

(a) Roses (b) Whist-a-wee (c) The Song of the Ski (d) Grannies (e) The Lace Maker (f) Ghost Hornpipes (g) Negro Chant (h) Hills Song (i) Dat Leetle Box (j) I Love Old Things (k) Melissa's Broom. His humorous selections brought a storm of applause, and there was great appreciation shown for each selection.

The Glee Club sang "Ontario" the words and music written by the Poet, bringing the program to a close.

The Tennyson Club served refreshments, to the members of the Collegiate Staff, the guest speaker, and the Glee Club following the programme, when a much enjoyed social hour was spent.

WILFUL DAMAGE CHARGE IS LAID

Action Result of Raid Carried Out by Winnipeg Police

Winnipeg, Dec. 14 (CP)—Charges of wilful damage to property have been laid against Inspector William Eddie, head of the Winnipeg city police morality squad, and seven of his assistants as result of a raid on premises occupied by Lee Hai, Chinese.

The information against the police officers was sworn yesterday by Lee Hai before A. W. Laws, Justice of the Peace, at the court house. Summonses, returnable in Manitoba Provincial Police Court Dec. 17, were immediately issued.

Lee Hai alleges the officers raided his premises Nov. 2 last and chopped down certain doors and partitions and fixtures with axes and hammers. The property, it is alleged is owned by Lee Get Jim another Chinese.

Police, following the raid, laid charges against Lee Hai of conducting a gaming house, but proceedings in the action were stayed when the Crown, it is alleged, found no search warrant had been issued.

MEDICINE MEN PAINTED CLIFFS

Washington, Dec. 14 (CP)—It seems that all the mysterious hieroglyphics on the walls and cliffs of Indian villages are not the keys to ancient languages.

Some of them are only the artistic handiwork of medicine men who imbibed too freely of their own "medicine."

Dr. John P. Harrington of the Smithsonian Institute told today how he scratched his learned skull many a time trying to re-establish these dying sign languages of aboriginal tribes. Specific instances he found, in California, Arizona and Nebraska.

The Indian subjects of these tribal greats must also have wondered, too, when they woke up in the morning and saw across the face of a cliff symbolic scrawlings of owls, rattlesnakes, birds and whatnots.

It seems that Dr. Harrington found a 75-year-old Indian woman who helped him solve the mystery. They studied the ancient Indian languages together until it finally developed that medicine men knew several tricks not heretofore revealed. One of them was that certain fruit juices fermented and made a liquid both pleasant to the taste and exhilarating to the senses.

Another was that the oil of certain seeds made a paint that defied rain, snow and other elements for a long—time or until the Smithsonian Institute tried to remove it.

And even the medicine men weren't averse to painting the town.

U. F. O. DEMANDS REFERENDUM ON BEER AND WINE

Also Request Milk Distribution be Made Public Utility

FOR CENTRAL BANK

Natural Products Marketing Act Also Approved By Meeting

Toronto, Dec. 14—(CP)—Demands for a referendum on the beer and wine question and that milk distribution be made a public utility were before the Ontario government today from the United Farmers of Ontario.

The U.F.O. 20th annual convention adjourned last night after re-electing R. J. Scott of Belgrave, Ont., president for a fifth term and W. G. Nicholson of Underwood, Ont., vice-president for another year. The organization also approved "in principle" the Natural Products Marketing Act and the Central Bank of Canada.

The Provincial Government was requested to enact legislation amending the Municipal Act so as to allow any municipality to acquire existing milk plants and undertake the distribution of milk as a public utility.

The only delegate to speak on the resolution, E. J. Lawrence of North Bay, Ont., charged that dairies in North Bay sold milk at 11 cents a quart, while producers received but two cents. The Ontario Whole Milk Producers' Association has not discussed the possibility of making milk a public utility, V. S. Milburn of Peterborough, who represented that organization, said.

Delegates thought no discussion was necessary before unanimously passing a resolution urging the Ontario government for a referendum on beer and wine sales in beverage rooms.

Hon. R. Weir Commended

Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, and the Federal Government were commended for their attempt to enact legislation, which would make possible the evolving of a long-time plan of organized production and marketing for agriculture when the meeting approved the Natural Products Marketing Act "in principle."

Disapproval was voiced of the Dominion Marketing Board being composed wholly of civil servants. Some members of the Board should have been direct representatives of primary industries, the resolution said.

A request was made in the resolution that in development of marketing schemes as far as farm products are concerned practically the entire management and direction of such schemes should be placed in the hands of the co-operating producers.

A committee composed of W. C. Good, Paris, Mr. Scott, H. H. Hannam, secretary of the U.F.O., and N. E. Lindsay, Renfrew, was appointed to study the Act after Agnes C. Macphail, U.F.O. member of the House of Commons for South East Grey, stressed the necessity of a close review.

Amendment is Lost

Bruce McNevin, Omemee, Ont., vice-president of the U.F.O. felt it was a mistake to allow the Marketing Board to interefere "with the interprovincial flow of primary products."

He sponsored an amendment to the resolution, which declared "there may be grave danger of placing autocratic powers in the hands of a central board to interfere with the free movement of primary products between provinces," but it was defeated.

Although commending the Dominion government for establishing a Central Bank, a resolution passed by the meeting disapproved of features of the Bank's constitution which permit it to be privately owned and controlled. The bank should be managed by federal authorities responsible only to the people of Canada, the motion declared.

Establishment of the bank to issue all currency, control exchange rates, handle banking business for Dominion and Provincial Governments ad control credit, was approved.

Swallows Razor Blade but Later Coughs It Up

South Shields, England, Dec. 13 (CP Cable)—John George Hunter, aged 10, was playing with a safety razor blade in school today, when he swallowed it.

John George told teacher, who thought the boy was telling a tale, but sent him home with a companion. On the way the boy confided in a policeman, who hurried the lad to the infirmary.

Sure enough, the X-ray revealed the blade in John George's tummy. While doctors made careful preparations for a most difficult operation, John George became sick at his stomach. Up came the blade.

Amazed doctors and nurses called it a miracle.

VISITING CHOIR DISCOVER BODIES

Police Believe Fit of Insanity Led to Killings

Shaunavon, Dec. 14.—Royal Canadian Mounted Police Thursday sought solution to three violent deaths in a farm home thirty miles northeast of here. Murder and suicide by one of the trio while temporarily deranged was suspected.

The dead are: Harold Nyen, 25; David Nyen, 23; and Freda Johnson, 35, housekeeper to the Nyens.

Discovery of the tragedy came when six young men and women drove to the Nyen home for choir practice, walked into the darkened house, and stumbled across the three bullet-pierced bodies.

The elder Nyen was shot through the forehead and lay in the middle of the kitchen floor. The woman had been shot through the side of the head, apparently as she ran from the kitchen to another room.

The younger Nyen was found at the outside door of the kitchen, killed by a bullet. A .22 rifle lay at his side.

Police are working on a theory that young Nyen, in a fit of insanity, killed his brother, then the woman, and then committed suicide. He is reported to have told friends some days ago that he was not feeling well.

No motive for the crime has been ascertained.

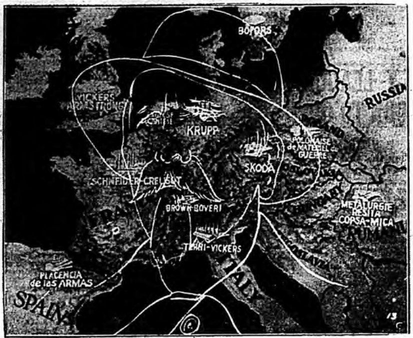
SHADOW OF ZAHAROFF HOVERS OVER MUNITIONS INDUSTRY



An impressive map of Europe the war-like Europe of today, showing the many huge munitions plants which, reports indicate, are going full blast turning out destructive shot and shell, preparatory to the "next war" now brewing. This is one scene from the photoplay, "Dealers in Death" which relates the story of the world's munitions makers. The film was shown to the U. S. Senate committee now conducting an inquiry into the munitions industry of the United States. This committee has heard evidence declaring that Sir Basil Zaharoff, Greek-English munitions salesman, was the greatest exponent of the art of selling munitions by use of bribery and other such means in the world. His shadow is described as being always in the background of the munitions "racket" It is Sir Basil's head shown in outline ABOVE over map.

LATEST CALIFORNIA GOLD STRIKE PROMISES BIG PAY

California's latest gold strike is declared by mining experts to be one of the most important gold discoveries made in recent years. However, the discovery is not a poor man's prospecting proposition as much costly equipment is needed to refine the gold from the ore. There are few, if any, nuggets being found. Photo shows Jess Knight, owner of the Elephant Eagle mine, holdings pan with $1,500 in gold amalgam. Workmen in background are N. W. and Chris. Anderson.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

Christmas may conjure visions of roast turkey and overloaded Christmas trees, scintillating in electric brilliance, but to firemen of the city it means just another watchful period.

In an effort to cut down the annual toll of fires in homes directly attributed to defective electrical appliances and decorations each season, Fire Chief Lynch and members of the local department are requesting all citizens to observe the first steps of safety in their homes this Christmas.

They warn:

See that inflammable material is clear of and not hung over heating and lighting devices, steam pipes, stovepipes, electric light bulbs, etc.

See that your electric circuits are properly fused and not overloaded by the addition of temporary lights.

Examine your fire extinguishing appliances and see that they are sufficient, in good order, and readily accessible.

See that all exits are plainly marked and not obstructed.

Have all temporary decorations removed and safely disposed of as soon as they have served their purpose.

Remember that nothing can render these displays absolutely safe, and that if accidents are not to mar the festive season, constant vigilance and care must be exercised.

WILSON CALLED DESERT SLAYER

Grins at Brother of Slain Woman as He is Given Life Term

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 13 (CP) — Arthur C. Wilson was convicted of murder for the desert slaying of Mrs Irene De Bolt, Cleveland, Ohio widow, today by a jury which fixed the penalty at life imprisonment.

Mrs. De Bolt was found slain west of Van Horn, Tex., Nov. 7, 1933, her body stripped of clothing and $1,650 in currency. Her automobile was missing.

The prosecution said Wilson, her companion on an automobile trip westward from Cleveland, had beaten and strangled her to death for her money. He was arrested, while employed on a Canadian liner plying between Montreal and Port of Spain, Trinidad.

As Wilson 29-year-old former steel chemist was led from the courtroom he grinned at Leo Rattigan, a brother of the slain woman.

Rattigan leaped to his feet and swung his fist toward Wilson.

A Deputy Sheriff sprang between the men and averted the blow.

Delayed Alarm Probable Cause Of Fire Loss

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 14—(AP)—In the wake of charges by the Fire Marshal's office that a delayed alarm was responsible for the heavy loss of life in the Kerns hotel fire here Tuesday Dan McCullough, Bingham County Prosecutor said early today that a coroner's jury would make an exhaustive inquiry into the events, that transpired in the hotel before the blaze.

Testimony that there was "considerable drinking" in the hotel and singing in the corridors in the early morning hours before the disaster was in the hands of an investigating committee from the Fire Marshal's office today. Charles E. Gauss, State Insurance Commissioner and two Deputy Fire Marshals, E. M. Welch and Murray McKenna issued a preliminary report after questioning Isaac D. Jones, the Kerns night clerk, bellboy Cleo Evans, and William Blank, a janitor.

Gauss said the fire was suspected 15 minutes or more before the alarm was turned in. As he completed his report searchers brought up two more charred bodies, whose identities are listed somewhere on the roll of 30 "known dead".

WRESTLER LAYS OUT CAR THIEF

Pair of Thieves Make Mistake With Ju-Jitsu Expert

Chatham, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP) — When Andy Walters, mechanic of a local Motor Sales Company stopped his car near Windsor to offer a ride to a couple of "thumbers," he hade a mistake. The men were car thieves.

But when the robbers attempted to take the car by force, they made a mistake. Before Walters was pulled out of the drivers seat he turned the ignition key and put it in his pocket.

When he found himself on the pavement he received a demand to "turn over the key" and his reply was "try to get it."

The robbers were burly fellows and one of them accepted the challenge only to find himself in the vice-like grip of a double-arm lock. Almost enough to dislocate the arm.

A simple movement on the part of Walters sent his victim crashing to the pavement, his jaw hitting the concrete with such force that he was rendered unconscious.

When Walters turned to look after his second assailant he saw him streaking across a field in full flight.

The would-be robber sprawled on the pavement was later handed over to the Windsor police.

The robbers didn't know that this quiet-looking, under-sized motor mechanic runs a physical culture class on the side, and specializes in ju-jitsu wrestling.

ACQUITTED BY JURY

Sandwich, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP)—A jury in the Essex County Court of General Sessions deliberated two hours before returning a verdict acquitting Nick Ciccinni of Windsor on a charge of unlawfully threatening Mrs. Philamenia Grimaldi.

In his own defence Ciccinni yesterday denied he demanded $300 from Mrs. Grimaldi under threat to burn own her house if she refused or bomb it if she called police. He said he was seeking the return only of money loaned by him to the woman, when he visited her Sept. 21 last, on which date the alleged threat was made.

Majors Reject Plan to Ban Broadcasting of Games

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Dec. 14.—The future in baseball of Babe Ruth, was partly solved today as magnates, managers, players and camp followers scattered in the wake of the dullest major league meetings in many years.

The erstwhile ruler of the realm of swat, done as a regular performer and crowded out of the sixteen managerial berths, may start next season as assistant manager of one of three big league clubs—the first step in the realization of his dream to wind up his distinguished diamond career as a manager on the big time.

With all managerial berths filled for the present, and the Babe vowing he would rest on his laurels rather than sign another player contract, the Boston Braves stepped into the breach yesterday with overtures which would take him to beantown as first lieutenant to Bill McKechnie.

Charles Adams, one of the Boston owners, approached Col. Jacob Ruppert, Yankee owner, with the idea and the colonel agreed to release Ruth outright to Boston provided he is not wanted in a similar role by any of the American League clubs.

Then it was revealed that both the Philadelphia Athletics and the Boston Red Sox have been pondering the idea of obtaining baseball's most colorful character as chief assistant to managers Connie Mack and Joe Cronin.

Just how the bambino will feel toward a proposition to play second fiddle on a big league team, with the chance of stepping into the managerial shoes later, is not known. But it is felt that Ruth, now returning from a barnstorming tour to the Orient will welcome an opportunity to remain identified with the pastime he has graced so long.

Before scattering for their homes last night, the club owners held a joint session with Commissioner Landis at which they rejected a proposal to ban broadcasting of games and appropriated $20,000 to the American Legion's amateur baseball activities.

THE HEIGHT OF GOOD TASTE

COOK-BOUCHER-COOK LINE REUNITED TO ADD SCORING PUNCH

BILL COOK FRANK BOUCHER BUN COOK

The attempt of Lester Patrick to turn his veteran right-winger, Bill Cook, N.Y. Ranger, into a defenceman for the 1934-35 N.H.L. season, failed. The Blueshirts' high-scoring front line of many years' standing, which saw the Cook brothers, Bun and Bill, flanking clever playmaking Frankie Boucher, was wrecked by the change and though Bill made a very fair rearguard the attacking corps was hopelessly muddled with Cecil Dillon in Farmer Bill's right-wing berth. Bogged far down in the league standing, and slipping every day, Patrick halted the experiment and returned Bill to the forward line. With the veterans leading the assault, Rangers downed league-leaders, Toronto Maple Leafs, 5 to 2 on Toronto ice. The Cook to Boucher Cook combination may dazzle N.H.L. opponents for some time yet to come. Above the great trio are shown in action, working with their old well-practised precision.

The twin feature on tonight's program sends Sammy Fuller, Boston lightweight, against Eddie Cool of Philadelphia. The winner will be matched with Tony Canzoneri Dec. 28 after which the Garden hopes to send the ultimate survivor against champion Barney Ross.

LONDON TECS BEAT AT HOME

Lowly Cleveland Team Did Trick but London Still Leads

London Tecumsehs and their astute manager, Frank Nighbor, today found their path to a second consecutive International hockey league crown contained a few pitfalls, one of them dug by a team that crawled along on the bottom of the league standing last year.

Although Tecs were still two points ahead of Buffalo Bisons of second-place standing, it took the lowly Cleveland Falcons to humble them for the first time on their home ice last night and Falcons accomplished the task in convincing fashion, 4-2. The glory of the battle went to the former Ottawa flash, Milt Halliday who tallied two of the four goals for the rejuvenated Falcons, one in the first and the other in the third period.

Sparky Vail, only scorer in the middle frame, and Roland Reeves who scored in the third added the other counters that helped place Cleveland in a third place tie with Syracuse and Windsor, two points behind Buffalo. Benny Ward figured on the assisting side of London's two goals, both coming in the third period, one by Toots Holway and the other from Ernie Kenny's stick.

In the other battle last night Syracuse Stars were smothered 7-1 by Detroit Olympics, last-place aggregation which added two points to climb within a couple of points of the third-place holders. It was a runaway for Olympics as Stars went to pieces.

Two goals in the first and five in the second period ran up the huge Detroit total. Ossie Osmundson, Wilf Starr and Les Moffatt collected two apiece and Yip Foster scored once. The lone Star goal was scored by Jack Markle near the end of the second period which saw the end of the scoring, the teams battling on even terms in the final period when Goaler Phil Stein of Syracuse managed to get in the way of all Detroit shots.

KI-Y LEAGUE SOON TO OPEN

All But Juniors Will Play in Old Curling Rink

The annual call for Ki-Y League hockey clubs was announced by Secretary J. E. Shortt following the annual meeting of that organization yesterday. As in seasons past the local Ki-Y league will embrace bantam, midget, juvenile and junior hockey series. The league, operated for the uplifting of hockey in Belleville, is sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club in conjunction with the Y.M.C.A. The following executive will guide the destinies of this thriving loop for the coming season—Geo. Lee, Les Nichol, Bill Cook, Frank Polwell and Joe Shortt, acting as secretary.

Arrangements have been made by the executive to allow the younger groups to play their games at the old curling rink of George Street, where the rink will be provided gratis, all groups except the junior series playing on this ice surface. Any group of boys will be welcome to affiliate with the Ki-Y League after first making application to Secretary Shortt as soon as possible. Sweater crests are awarded the players on the winning team of each group, while silver cups and league pennants are held by the champions for one year only. The league has consented to provide a puck, officials and goaltenders' pads for each game. League schedules will be drafted as soon as a sufficient number of teams have signified their willingness to compete in the respective groups. Registration cards and league certificates are provided by the league, all players participating having to sign these credentials before being allowed to compete in the loop.

Four sections or groups have been arranged all grouped according to ages. The bantam, midget and juvenile classes will play their games at the curling rink, with the junior series being played at the Belleville Arena.

The age limits of the Ki-Y groups to be conducted are:

Bantam—11 years and under, Jan. 1st, 1935.

Midget—14 years and under, Jan. 1st, 1935.

Juvenile—17 years and under, Jan. 1st, 1935.

Junior—19 years and under, Jan. 1st, 1935.

"It is our sincerest hope to open the Belleville Arena on Saturday," stated Manager Bob Redner this morning, when approached on the subject. "One more good stiff night of freezing and we'll have an excellent sheet of ice to usher in the skating," added Mr. Redner as he pointed proudly to the Arena ice surface today. Upon raising ones glance to the rafters, however, a more pleasing sign greets the eyes as the girders and lighting effects are all gayly decorated with pennants and bunting. Immediately upon the opening of the Arena local city hockey teams will get down to serious practice as their loop opens on Tuesday next.

Convener Bill Lowe of Intermediate O.H.A. group No. 1, has called the group meeting for the drafting of a schedule for tonight at Port Hope. Manager Eddie Thomas will represent the local organization and present his suggestions as to a possible post-schedule play-off. Eddie is in favor of having the second and third club meeting in a two game series with the winner advancing into the finals for the group championship against the club finishing first. Naturally each team will endeavour to finish on the top rung of the ladder as they will have a better opportunity in the league play-downs. The O.H.A. has advanced the date, when group titleholders must be declared one week, allowing the groups until the 15th of February to declare their respective winners. The intermediate clubs to compose group No. 1 in the O.H.A. are Lindsay, Peterboro, Port Hope, Cobourg, Campbellford and Belleville, all being invited to send delegates to the group meeting this evening at Port Hope. Any club failing to send along official delegates will naturally have to abide by the schedule and take the dates allotted them by the clubs present.

The annual call for Ki-Y League sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and the Y.M.C.A. has flourished long and proved most prolific during its existance. A slight change in hte league has been announced this year with the Bantam Midget and Juvenile groups playing at the old curling rink, while the junior group will hold sway at the Arena. Any organized team of boys throughout the city may compete in this league but the team captain or manager must make application to Secretary Shortt as soon as possible, as the various group schedules will be drafted next week. The bantam series includes all boys up to 11 years of age, midgets up to 14 years, juveniles up to 17 years while juniors must be under 20 years of age on Jan. 1st, 1935. The Ki-Y League has produced numerous local O.H.A. stars and is an excellent feeding ground for the local junior team. Individual crests, pennants and silver cups are the prizes awarded the winning teams in the respective groups. Entries will close as soon as sufficient teams are entered in each group.

Last summer, while the baseball season was at its height, J. B. Fitzpatrick, proprietor of the Paisley Hotel in Napanee, jokingly made an offer to Ernie Gibbard. "If you win the intermediate "A" and "B" championship of Ontario this year I'll treat both your clubs to a turkey dinner," stated Mr. Fitzpatrick. "That's just O.K. with us" came back Ernie with an air of assurance. The winning of two provincial baseball titles by the Gibbards has long since been history, but it remained for Mr. Fitzpatrick to make good his promise last week. Approximately 275 indulged in an excellent turkey dinner at the Paisley House during which time Manager Gibbard was presented with a travelling bag, while Coach Walt Gerow was recipient of a large reclining chair, both gifts from the teams to their mentors.

Royal McKillop, promising two-year-old trotter recently purchased by Elmer LaBarr from the Iroquois Stock Farm, has been viewed by many horsemen since his arrival and all report him a fine individual. The colt is being exercised daily by Mr. Shibley his trainer, but he is feeling so good, that extra precaution has to be taken so that he will not injure himself. The colt is being pointed for the Trotting Futurity at the C.N.E. next fall and other important stakes throughout Ontario.

The recent announcement stating that Dr. E. G. N. "Kewpie" Kennedy, star grid player from Western University, would launch his professional career in partnership with the Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner and open his practice in Belleville, should be welcome news to the local rugby football contingent. A player the calibre of Kennedy should add prestige to the autumn pastime and elevate the game materially in Belleville next season.

The National league's gain in the election of Ford Frick as president is the Baseball Writers' association's loss. It also is Frick's loss as far as a white silk suit and top hat are concerned.

As interlocutor in the annual minstrel show at the scribes' dinner for years past, Frick wore the suit and hat. He will now have to give them up, as it obviously would be unbecoming for the President of the National League to go on the stage in that costume.

Spite Wife

by Ann Forester

"Well of course it was a shock to them!" she told herself in her heart as she left the room. "But they're nice to me. They're trying to me nice. I mustn't be catty!"

As she disappeared from view and went up the broad polished staircase to the second floor Judy heard that a sudden hush had fallen on those others gathered about the dining-table. She knew that they were only waiting for her to get out of earshot before they started discussing her.

"Well"—there was a note of distinct relief in Stan's voice—"that's that Meeting the family. ....Hun! That's behind us. It wasn't bad."

"Oh, no."

"They acted pretty decent. The thing was rather a surprise, you know. But Mother was a brick about it, wasn't she?"

"She was—fine."

"They liked you. I could tell, the way they talked. And, believe me, if my sister Vera doesn't like you, you'd know about it. Amy, too. Amy's more subtle than Vera But they liked you."

Not a thought as to whether she liked them. Her likes and dislikes did not seem to count Judy thought hotly and then crushed the thought as being petty.

She entered Stan's suite of rooms high ceiling and spacious, as was every apartment in this rambling old house. A large masculine bedroom, with a glimpse of a large white bathroom beyond. There was a livingroom, furnished with deep, comfortable chairs in expensive brown leather.

Stan had disappeared in the bathroom to wash his hands and face. Judy stood before the massive dresser taking off her hat and jacket. As she did so her eyes went searching about the room.

It gave her a glimpse back into Stan's life. His college pennant tacked on the wall. A bag of golf sticks leaning in a corner. Photographs, framed and unframed, covering wall and dresser. A tall silver cup, won in a polo match, standing on the mantelpiece.

The sheer contrast of it flashed back the old Denning house at Summerfield. The little white bedroom that had sheltered her girlhood.. the homemade Swiss curtains..the pear tree, with warm spring rain dripping from its leaves....

A wave of homesickness engulfed her, bringing a lump to her throat tears to her eyes. That old private life of hers was gone forever. She had cut off from her old life—her home. Stan was back in his.

THE BEAUTIFUL UNKNOWN
CHAPTER NINE

Two more places had been added to the table when Judy and Stan returned to the dining room.

Judy found herself between Stan and his mother. She sat there, fighting shyness and feeling a little forlorn. It was, as she had thought upstairs, quite apparent that Stan had returned to his old life, a life which left his young wife hesitating on the outside. These people—Stan's family were making an effort to be nice to her, but it was evident that it was an effort.

"Let's see—Stan met you at college, didn't he?" Mrs Carter turned her absent blue eyes on the girl. "I think I've heard him say he met you there?"

"No. That was Phil Davis, a friend of mine. I met Stan when he came to Summerfield to visit Phil—"Judy began eagerly. But Mrs. Carter's attention had wandered. "Amy," she called across the table, "why don't you have narcissus on the table when you give your bridge luncheon, These are very nice ones Rogers sent up today, and they make lovely centre bowls...."

It wasn't that they meant to be unkind, Judy told herself, crushing down the sudden resentment which rose in her heart. They didn't mean to be patronizing. She was just outside of their lives. Time would take care of that....

Even Stan was different. In Summerfield she had been wrapped in the thrilling glamour of his love. On the long trip across the country there had just been the two of them in delightful little tete-á-tete dinners in the diner; the two of them thrillingly isolated in the small drawing-room. But Stan was swallowed now in that old life—that life of Lockwood in which she had no share.

She sat with a little mechanical smile of bright interest stamped on her lips, unaware of what she was eating, while lively talk went back and forth about her, talk of people she did not know, of places she had never been.

"Dart Towers and Billy Sumner won the twosome at the Sonoma tourney last week." That was Vera talking in her positive voice. "Dart wants you to play the new Balaure course with him, Stan."

And Amy: "You remember that Winship girl, Stan— the one who looks like a gopher? She gave a party last week, and of all the washouts! Patty Warren and she had to go home and rub liniment on herself it was such a pain-in-the neck. Patty's a scream!"

"—building a new wing on the Country Club and extending the porch for bridge tables—" Vera again. "I've been made chairman of the improvement committee but the Lord knows where I'm going to get the time, I'm so swamped with committee meetings now—"

Judy felt that her smile was becoming strained. She felt dowdy and stupid. The room was still reeling like a railway train, and there was a home-sick lump in her throat which threatened to choke her. She lifted her eyes to the end of the table and found the sharp watchful stare of the old grandmother upon her.

If only she were alone with Stan, her heart was crying. Never had she wanted Stan so desperately. Wanted him to draw her into his arms and tell her that he loved her more than anything on earth. If only she and Stan were together, in their own little apartment. She wouldn't care how small it was how shabby, just so they were alone together!

Her own name spoken beside her made her jump. Mrs. Carter had flutteringly remembered her new daughter-in-law.

"We must give a party to introduce Judith. A dinner party. It would be better to keep it small, I think."

"About 12. Just the old crowd—some of the old crowd—" Amy shot a sly look at Stan which surprised Judy. "Better have it in the middle of the week Mother. If you wait until the end, everyone's away on weekend parties."

"We'll go to the club afterward and dance,' put in Vera's positive voice.

"You're awfully kind," Judy said in a low voice, then stopped. Another word and the nervous tears would come. The conversation raged about her, giving her time to master herself while she pretended to eat. She was miserably angry with herself. What was the matter with her! she asked in secret exasperation. These people meant to be kind. What did it matter that they didn't include her in the talk and the plans. This was Stan's world. Stan, whom she loved with such piercing devotion.... her man. If she wanted Stan she must follow him.

Blessed relief when the evening ended; when at last she went upstairs to Stan's suite and shut the door. Shutting out the new strange world. Relaxing —taking off the mask. Creeping into Stan's arms, standing with closed eyes, her cheek pressed hard against the comfortably rough lapel of his coat.

But even here the sense of strangeness persisted. While Stan splashed about in the bathtub, Judy wandered aimlessly about the room.

So big—her own shadowy figure in the mirror across the room looked a little forlorn. It was a great pier glass set there many years ago in the youth of this old house.

The mahogany dresser was formidable in size. How small and shabby her toilet articles looked spread over the top. Cheap imitation ivory, shown up for impostors beside Stan's handsome ebony and silver brushes. Judy went over and stroked the handle of the hairbrush with a gentle forefinger. She remembered her sixteenth birthday. Ken Baker had given these to her. He had got a paper route after school hours and saved for her present. With the memory she seemed to see Ken Baker spinning along in the summer dusk, bareheaded, shirt open, seemed to hear the jangle of his bicycle bell, and again the lump of homesickness in her throat nearly choked her.

She moved quickly away from the dresser, looked at the photographs which clustered on the walls, to regain her composure.

So many people, all seeming so we'll dressed, so self-assured. Well fed, gay young people, for whom life had been made comfortable and safe....Stan's class picture at college—how he stood out among the more commonplace students! Tall and dark and romantically handsome....It was a little satisfaction to recognize Phil Davis. Fat ordinary Phil was a link with her own life....That was something.

Pictures of Stan in golf clothes. Pictures of Stan on a yacht. Stan an arm around two pretty girls on the porch of a rustic cabin. A carful of pretty girls—she recognized Amy among them; all very gay in fluffy summer dresses. Stan and Amy and another girl in a canoe—a girl so lovely, that, snapshot though it was and faulty in focusing, Judy caught her breath in admiration. And, over on a small table, behind a pile of books, a large picture in a heavy silver frame.... the girl in the canoe again.

Judy picked it up and regarded it thoughtfully. Undeniably pretty. More than pretty—beautiful with that hint of strangeness which the truly beautiful always holds. An oval faced blonde. Long strange eyes under unbelievably thick lashes. The pictured eyes plunged deep in Judy's earnest gaze and held her fascinated.

She was still looking down at the picture when Stan came out of the bathroom scrubbing his ears with a towel.

"Stan, who is this beautiful girl?"

He came over. Stood just behind her, his gaze going over her shoulder to the photograph. A long silence, then: "I didn't know that thing was there!" He spoke in a queer, muffled voice. A voice which turned his wife's gaze to his face in surprise.

"Who is she?"

Stan walked away. Went into the bathroom and hung up the towel.

"Oh....just a friend of Amy's. Eunice, her name is."

Judy was studying the picture again. It held her with a queer fatalistic fascination.

"Is she really this lovely?"

"How the devil do I know —" frank impatience in Stan's tone. "Oh—she's pretty all right."

Judy never knew why she persisted on the subject when Stan seemed so bored. "Does she live here? Do you know her well?"

"Sure. She went to school with Amy. She's married now. Name's Wilson. They live in that big stucco house you asked me about on the way up from the station."

Judy replaced the picture on the table. She did not understand the lightening of her own heart at learning that the beautiful unknown was married.

Strange—dreamlike to be getting into that massive mahogany bed. Impossible that this was really she, married to Stan—living in this big strange house. Lying here in the moon-dazzled darkness.

Stan had lighted a cigarette and now he stood at the open French window smoking. His back was turned to the room, his gaze went out into the mild darkness.

In the long pier glass Judy watched him—a tall slim figure, wrapped in a silk lounging robe. Her eyes went down the narrow dark head, down the strong slim neck, the broad line of the shoulders....Like the smart advertisements in the backs of the magazines, thought Judy.

Why was he standing there so long?....It made her think of the bridal night when Stan had stayed in the smoker....The sudden movement in the depths of the glass startled her. Stan had flung the lighted cigarette out into the night.

He had come over to the bed, his eye were dark caverns and she felt their brooding regard as he took her face between his hands.

"Little Judy.." there was a note like a sob in his voice. "Ah, but you're a fine, true kid to tie to...."

She started to speak but her words were smothered by his lips.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing on her sewing machine and I said, Heck, ma, I cant find my brown cap so what's a use of looking any more?

Rome wasn't bilt in a day, ma said. If at ferst you dont succeed never give up the ship, and remember that constant drops of water wear away a stone. So keep on looking, she said.

What do you bet you can find it, ma? I said, and she said, I could find it easily enough if I tried, but I'm not going to try. I'm not falling in any of your little traps today, thank you, hee ree, she said.

Well, it's not on the ferst floor and it's not on the 2nd floor and it's not in my room, and I haven't been in the celler all week, so I mite as well just give it up and admit I cant find it and just get another cap, I said, and ma said, Now look here, young man, dont be rediculiss to the point of abserdity. If you're going to be so easily discourraged at your age in such a simple matter as finding a cap, what's going to become of you later in life when you're called on to confront really serious problems? she said.

What kind of problems, ma? I said, and she said you'll find out to your sorrowful dismay if you dont develop a little more sense of resolution and never say die, you'll soon find yourself a neglected back number among the forgotten have bins. How would Columbus of ever been the ferst to discover America if he'd mislayed his compass, and made a spineless decision to stop looking for it? How would Napolean of ever conkered Waterloo if he'd sat down in weak kneed despair just because his sword wasn't in its accustomed place? she said.

But jimminy crickits ma, I know I'll never find that for the simple reason because us fellows was throwing our caps to see if we could make them come back to us like Australian boomerangs, and mine happened to land on the top of a automobeel going passed, and it kept rite on going even after I yelled Hay stop, and I dont even know the license number of it, I said.

Being the beginning of the sad part.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED

REX MAXON

Almost before the Reds realized what happened, Tarzan and his prisoner were gone. Seeing the coast clear, he carried Petrovich into the shadows. There he released his vise-like grip upon the terrorized, half-choked man.

Commanding him to walk ahead, Tarzan cautiously passed the final outposts. Turning west, by midnight he felt safe from discovery. Petrovich begged and questioned. The only answer he got was a prod from the ape-man's sharp war-spear.

Grimly, Tarzan determined the Red's fate. It must end in death! He had no desire to torture. But his oath to punish his mate's slayer made him decide the brutal Red officers should suffer even as they made her suffer.

Throughout that night the awful silence of this naked giant wrought upon the exhausted Red's nerves. Morning found the two beside a small stream. Here Tarzan halted, motioning his prisoner to drink and rest.

'DO SOMETHING' IS ELECTION CRY

David Lloyd George Plans Comeback on This Phrase

London, Dec. 15— (CP Havas)—"Do something" is the keynote of a national recovery programme on the crest of which David Lloyd George Britain's war Prime Minister intends to stage his political comeback with the aid of a private brain trust, comprising economists, financiers and business men representative of all political parties.

His "new deal" platform provides for state supervision of the Bank of England as the "key to economic recovery and reconstruction.

"I am certain that the next general election will show an immense upheaval in favor of a complete overhaul of our economic system," the grizzly 71-year-old Liberal warrior was quoted today by the Daily Herald in explaining his program.

MORE BUSINESS REGULATION SAYS PREMIER BENNETT

"Not a Prophecy But a Promise" Indicating Action

ELECTION COMING

Canada May be Forced to Take Positions Among World Nations

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)—Canadian industry and finance today had it on the word of no less an authority than Premier R. B. Bennett that more and more government regulation of business could be expected in the future.

"That is not a prophecy but a promise," the Prime Minister asserted last night before a gathering here of more than 1,000 members of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada.

Stray phrases indicative of the imminence of a Federal general election recurred during the Premier's address. It had been a long time since he had gone on the road, he said with a smile, but he would be going soon.

"And no traveller has worked harder preparing samples for his customers than I have in the past four years," he added.

Mr. Bennett avoided reference to the suggestion of Sir Robert Falconer, former president of the University of Toronto, who was an earlier speaker, for the appointment of a full time Minister of Foreign Affairs at Ottawa. But to the plea of Canon A. P. Shatford of Montreal, another speaker, for more experimentation in government, the Premier in humorous vein replied that he had been making experiments for the past four years and had not got over some of them yet.

Mr. Bennett pointed to the Marketing Act and the Bank of Canada Act which had been put thru' last session despite the claim of "big interests" that the Government was cutting business to pieces.

Governments to Regulate

"The capitalistic system has been on trial for 1,900 years," he said, "and in the period of depression, while it did not entirely fail us, it has in part and it has shown beyond question that governments will come more and more to regulate business."

Since parliament was an elective body, this put the regulative power into the hands of the people, he observed. He therefore saw for commercial travellers, who were the ambassadors of commerce, a duty to lead in educating the people in the importance of their position in a democracy. Unless this responsibility was taught the people, democracy was doomed, he said.

"Sometimes," said Mr. Bennett. "I become depressed when I see what appears in the newspapers, what appears as the utterances of responsible men. And in this I speak of no one party but of both parties. Appeal is made to prejudice, to ancient racial hatreds, to animosities and creeds.

"Why? To mislead the people. Who cares about the bogey of imperialism? For their education and welfare? Who cares other than to mislead the people of Western Canada by appeal to ancient enmities?"

Sir Robert Falconer, pointing to Canada's position between Europe and Asia, asserted the Dominion would shortly be forced to take a commanding position among the nations of the world. If Great Britain allied herself with Japan, Canada would be forced to take a stand as between the Orient, the United States and Great Britain. It was with this in mind that he urged the appointment of a full time minister to the portfolio of Foreign Secretary, an office now held by Mr. Bennett.

Besides Canon Shatford, Allistair Fraser, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, also spoke.

ROADWAY SKID CAUSES DEATH

Mrs. Vina Freved Dies in Port Hope Hospital From Shock

Port Hope, Dec. 15—When a car driven by her son-in-law skidded on the slippery highway near the Union Cemetery Friday morning and crashed into a tree, Mrs. Vina Frever, aged 44, 424 West Henry Street, Charlotte, Mich., sustained injuries which resulted in her removal to the Port Hope Hospital. The victim was in delicate health and her injuries, accentuated by shock, resulted in her death shortly after noon yesterday.

The body was removed to A. W. George and Son's funeral parlors and Dr. F. W. Diamond, coroner, decided not to hold an inquest, claiming that the fatality was an accident, pure and simple.

The driver of the car was George R. Thayer, Charlotte, Mich., and other occupants were the dead woman's husband, George Frever, and Bessie Packard, Eaton Rapids, Mich. The machine was not proceeding at a fast speed and was not badly damaged as a result of the impact. Mrs. Frever was sitting in the front seat and was thrown against the windshield. She sustained minor cuts and bruises and a possible fracture of her ribs.

The party were proceeding to their home after Mrs. Frever had received treatment at Dr. Locke's clinic at Williamsburg. Provincial Constable Ed. Purves investigated.

ADMINISTRATION COSTS DOUBLED

Kingston Faces $10,000 Extra Annual Expenditure

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP)—Kingston faces additional expenditure of some $10,000 annually, as a result of the finding of Judge H. A. Lavell, who, as sole arbitrator between the city and the County of Frontenac in the matter of the costs of administration of Justice, today handed down his finding.

As matters have stood in the past Kingston was called upon for an expenditure of $10,519 for their share of the costs of administration of Justice last year, and it is roughly figured, according to the new percentages arrived at by Judge Lavell, that the city may be called upon for an outlay almost twice that amount.

The finding is retroactive to March 31, 1934, so that the city will be forced to pay an additional amount for this year.

Birthday on Sunday

Birthday greetings will be extended by all classes of citizens tomorrow to Mr. Robert E. Colling, who then attains the seventy-first year of his age.

Mr. Colling recently retired as turnkey for the County of Hastings. He preserves an active interest in the city and is at present a member of the Belleville Parks Commission with which he has been associated as a commissioner since the institution and organization of that body.

THIBET SHAKEN BY EARTHQUAKE

Extent of Damage in Mountain Area is Unknown

London, Dec. 15 (AP)—London's seismographs recorded a severe earthquake early today, the shocks continuing for an hour. The epicentre was recorded as 4,000 miles away in a direction believed to be in the Arctic north of Canada. The shocks were also recorded at Birmingham.

Bombay, India, Dec. 15 (AP)—Two severe earth shocks were recorded on seismographs here today from a distant centre believed to be in mountainous Tibet on the other side of the Himalayan range.

The first shock was registered at 2.02 a.m. and the second at 1 p.m.

Calcutta, Dec. 15—An earthquake of severe intensity was recorded at Calcutta at 7 a.m. today. The epicenter was believed to be some 200 miles north of Darjeeling, Bengal, in Northern India.

Nepal, tiny mountainous nation in the Himalayas between India and Tibet, was thought to be in the earthquake zone. No direct word came, however, from Kathmandu, its capital, 75 miles from the Indian frontier.

India's united provinces were believed to have been affected, although it was considered unlikely that the large province of Bihar felt the shocks

THOMAS A. WATSON IS HEART VICTIM

First To Hear Human Voice Over The Telephone

St. Petersburg, Fla. Dec 15—(AP) Thomas A. Watson, 80, manufacturer of the first telephone instrument, and first to hear a human voice over the device, that of its inventor, Alexander Graham Bell died suddenly of heart disease last night at his winter home here.

Watson came here three weeks ago from Boston where he resided.

Watson in an interview here several years ago, described how an accident, involving spilled acid, resulted in the first actual reception of a human voice over a wire on March 10, 1876.

Prof. Bell and Watson had arranged wires leading from a room on the top floor of a Boston boarding house to a room on the floor below. The apparatus was arranged for transmission of the voice in one direction only.

Watson was waiting tensely in the room below, his ear glued to the reception apparatus. Suddenly he heard Dr. Bell shout excitedly:—

"Mr. Watson! Come here; I want——!"

Struck with the realization that he had actually heard Prof. Bell over the wire, Watson dashed jubilantly upstairs.

"I heard you! I heard you!" he gasped.

Then he noticed Prof. Bell brushing frantically at his arms and clothing. He had accidently spilled a bottle of acid upon himself. His summons over the wire, made with little hope it would be heard, was really one for assistance.

Watson said Prof. Bell soon forgot the acid, when he learned his voice had been heard over the wire.

Timber Wolves May be Used For Dog Team

Garson, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP)—When Walter Kolonsi, Garson, patrols his trap lines sometime next spring, a couple of full grown timber wolves may be included in his team of huskies.

Two weeks ago he snared two timber wolves, and now believes before the winter is out, he can round them into shape to take their places in harness.

Bringing the forest marauders home, he chained them in a cage in his woodshed. After patient training he dispensed with the apparatus when the "big bad wolves" lost their ferocity and began to eat out of his hand and delight in friendly scratches behind the ears.

Kindness did the trick, he maintains, saying the wolves look forward eagerly to his appearance at feeding time.

AUSTRIAN LEGION GERMANY BLAMED FOR TWO KILLINGS

Austrian Auxiliary Patrol Members Shot Without Warning

THREE MEN IDENTIFIED

Patrolmen Not Able Even to Remove Rifles From Shoulders

Vienna, Dec. 15—(AP)—The Austrian government was considering immediate representation to Germany today concerning the shooting to death of two members of an Austria frontier patrol by alleged "Austrian Legion" men from Germany.

An official announcement said the patrol was suddenly confronted by three men who opened fire without warning. The incident occurred near the Austro-German border in the vicinity of Erl.

The patrolmen, said the announcement, were not even able to remove their own rifles from the shoulder straps.

It was stated at the Foreign Office however, that confusion still existed concerning the circumstances of the encounter.

A spokesman added that Austria has the assurance of Bavarian authorities that German officials were making vigorous attempts to apprehend the persons who fired upon the Austrian patrol.

Apprehension is Felt

Official circles regarded the incident as likely to interfere with the efforts of Fran Von Papen, the German minister to re-establish amicable relations between the two countries.

Discontent has been previously expressed over the shelter that Germany was alleged to have extended to the Austrian Legion.

Vienna, Dec. 15.— (AP)—Two members of an Austrian Auxiliary military formation on frontier patrol duty, were shot and killed today by three men identified as members of the so-called "Austrian Legion" from Germany.

The shooting occurred near the Austro-German border in the vicinity of Erl.

An official announcement said the patrol was suddenly confronted by the men who opened fire without warning. The patrolmen, the announcement said, were not able even to remove their own rifles from their shoulders.

SAM RICHARDSON WAIVES APPEAL

Charges of Conspiracy Will Be Heard at London

Montreal, Dec. 15.—(CP)—While outcomes of reports two Montrealers would be arrested on similar charges was awaited, Samuel A. Richardson, Montreal, made preparations today to travel to London, Ont., to stand trial on charges of conspiracy to defraud farmers of Western Ontario of $50,000.

Richardson, head of the defunct Richelieu Corporation which planned to export cattle to Great Britain, was ordered to stand trial in the Ontario City when he appeared in Superior Court before Mr. Justice E. Fabre Surveyer, here yesterday.

Announcement that he would travel to London, Monday, came as somewhat of a surprise as Richardson had filed notice of appeal immediately after Mr. Justice Surveyer handed down his decision and had been released on $3,000 bail. His lawyer announced later he had waived appeal.

Sought for some time on a warrant signed by Judge C. M. W. Hawkshaw of London, Richardson was arrested by police of suburban Westmount Oct. 27. He is alleged to have conspired with "divers other persons" to defraud western Ontario farmers. The charge arose out of Richardson's alleged action in retaining part of the proceeds of sale in England of cattle which had been consigned by western Ontario farmers through the Richelieu Corporation.

Major Burges, Commuter At Woolwich Arsenal, Is Committed for Trial

Crown Charges Burges, Winner of M.C. in War, Gave Technical Information of "Secrets" to Imperial Chemical Industries

CLAIMS COMPANY WARNED WAR OFFICE

Burges, a Man of Excellent Record, Denies Charges But Crown Claims He Suggested Money From Company—Arrest Made in Parliament Square

LONDON, Dec. 15 (C.P Cable)—Another first class sensation involving alleged revelation of "official secrets" broke today with the committal for trial at the Old Bailey of William Burges, a second-rate computer at the Woolwich Arsenal.

At Bow Street Police Court Burges was committed for trial at the Old Bailey after evidence was given to the effect he had approached Imperial chemical industries and revealed technical information to which he had access by virtue of his position "as a person holding office under the King," as the charge read.

During the hearing it was stated Burges had an excellent war record. He won the Military Cross and retired from the active forces with the rank of major.

The Crown stated the prosecution was made after Imperial Chemical Industries had been refused some information for which they applied at the War Office. Burges, who would have been aware of this refusal, it was alleged, approached the company and indicated he was in a position to obtain the information the company desired.

When Burges opened dealings with Imperial Chemical Industries, the Company, it was declared, immediately communicated with the War Office and thereafter acted under War Office instructions in its dealings with Burges.

Under the name of "Vincent", the prosecution contended, Burges called at the Company's offices and handed over documents which the prosecution contended were all marked "official secrets."

The documents in question obviously came from the official Secrets Fyle and their contents might be likely to assist an enemy, it was declared.

It was further alleged that Burges later arranged to hand over other secret information at a rendezvous in Parliament Square, and it was at this meeting that he was placed under arrest.

The accused was alleged to have suggested a payment of $500.

Burges pleaded not guilty and reserved his defence for the trial in the celebrated old Bailey Court.

The nature of the technical information Burges was alleged to have communicated or attempted to sell, was not disclosed.

'Officer in Tower' Case

The case recalled the sensational affair of the "Officer in the Tower" Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart now serving a five year's sentence of imprisonment on conviction of revealing military information to a German woman whose identity was never learned. Baillie-Stewart was held in the Tower of London for weeks before the nature of his case was revealed. He is now in Wormwood Scrubbs prison.

One year ago the Baillie-Stewart case was revived when his parents received a remarkable letter from the prisoner in which he asserted a previous "confession" of guilt had been cooked up in the hope he might gain release from prison.

MILK BOARD ACTION COMES UNDER ATTACK

Waterloo Board of Health Delays Vote on Question

Waterloo, Ont., Dec. 15.—(CP) A motion strongly disapproving the action of the Ontario Milk Board in allegedly dictating to dairies and the public what prices shall be paid for milk, was proposed at a meeting of the Waterloo Board of Health yesterday.

The question was held over until a later meeting. Principal objection was that on the increase to 11 cents a quart, with farmers receiving $2 per hundred instead of $1.40 only a small percentage of farmers benefited.

TEMPERATURE RISES DURING THE DAY

A moisture-laden fog, which swirled through the district early this morning on a near-zero wave of cold weather brought a nip to the ears and noses of residents on one of the coldest mornings so far this season. By nine o'clock, however, a bright sun which penetrated the chilly blanket had dissipated the chilliness and dampness and resulted in a steady rise of thermometers throughout the latter part of the day.

Young People Visit Home For The Aged

Friday evening was the occasion of a very pleasant meeting when Bridge Street Young People's Society visited the Belleville Home for the Aged. The programme was in charge of Mr. K. M. Bird. The meeting opened by a sing-song of Christmas Carols led by Mr. Dixon. Miss B. Arbuckle gave a delightful reading and Miss E. Reddick sang the "Old Rugged Cross". Mr. Bird gave a very interesting address on the Four Windows of Life, in which he compared the four windows of a house to life—the child, youth, adults and Old Age. The Misses Shorey favoured with two duets. Miss B. Ketcheson played a piano solo. The meeting closed with refreshments and the singing of old favorite songs A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Bird by Mr. Franklin on his most entertaining programme.

ONLY FOUR FAMILIES ON QUARANTINE LIST

Ideal weather conditions held directly responsible for a low number of contagious diseases in the city at the present time will result in fewer families in the city being quarantined during the Christmas season it was stated by the City Department of Health today. Just four families are listed at present on the quarantine list for a period which is expected to extend through the season.

BUSY DAY IN STORES EXPECTED

While busy crowds thronged the downtown sections of the city early this morning, increasing their numbers as the day wore on, and cash registers in the stores tinkled a continuous tune, shop-keepers and sales clerks girded themselves for one of the biggest shopping days and nights of the Christmas season today. Last Saturday was busy but this Saturday is expected to set the season's record for volume of sales, probably not to be equalled by the last minute shopping days of next week.

One Hundred Skaters Guests Of Quinte Club

Last evening the Quinte Skating Club got away to a fine start when one hundred or so skaters were guests of the directors of the Club. The ice was in good condition and the guests enjoyed a good two hours' skate. The directors appreciate the fine support that the parents of the younger skaters are affording them. They also appreciate the older skaters' endorsement of the principles of the Club. The committees in charge of the different activities are preparing a program for the enjoyment of figure skaters, pleasure skaters and speed skaters throughout the season.

TWO WILD DUCKS SEARCH OPEN WATER

Two wild ducks, evidently separated from the main flock, waddled and quacked dismally on the frozen ice over the Bay of Quinte, early this morning, apparently in a search for open water. Still complaining loudly of the condition of the bay, they took wing later in the morning, headed for the south.

CHRISTMAS CHEER 'TRI-POT' APPEAL

Citizens will have observed the appearance today of the familiar Christmas-Cheer "Tri-pot" located downtown, making the annual appeal for timely assistance for those in need.

The money raised in this way, is an exclusive fund for the alleviation of want and distress as it comes under the notice of the local S. A. Officers.

Adjutant A. W. Martin has stated that this fund in recent years has been very inadequate to meet the demands laid on the Army, and makes an earnest appeal to more prosperous citizens to give in greater generosity than heretofore, or disappointment may occur to many in deserving need.

The Tri-pot will remain in operation till Christmas Eve, and is in charge of authorized workers.

LITTLE BOY BRINGS SLED TO HELP FUND

Firemen's Fund Helped in Many Ways by Friends

Somewhere little Walter Hutchinson of this city heard that in Belleville there were other little children who might just possibly be overlooked by Santa Claus this season, in spite of the efforts of many residents of the city to assist them as best they could in the matter of bringing some joy into their lives on the most favored season of all.

Walter cast about his mind for some method whereby he could help too. He took stock of his playthings, and most treasured possessions. Then he decided. On Saturday morning, accompanied by several other little companions, Walter rapped timidly on the door of No. 1 Fire Station. Firemen, who opened the door saw Walter standing at the entrance. In one hand he grasped a sled. "I want to give this to some kid who needs it more than I do," he told Chief Lynch.

"Thanks, son," complimented Chief Lynch. The sled was accepted as just another gift of the many that have been received by firemen during the past few weeks to be turned over to the needy families on the list.

Firemen also publicly thank members of Minerva Chapter, O.E.S., No. 138 for the gift of many parcels as the result of a Christmas social held in the chapter room last evening. The forty parcels will be included among the gifts to be distributed.

FINES ARE PAID FOR HUNTING WITH DOGS

Checkup of Hunters is Now Manifest by Court Actions

As the result of a check-up of hunters through the northern part of the county recently, a number of men came up before Magistrate R. R. Casement in Marmora, this week for infractions of the Game and Fisheries Act.

Three men pleaded guilty to using or being accompanied by a dog, while hunting deer and were sentenced to pay the minimum fine of $20 without costs. One other case was dismissed on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence. Another charge stands over until the accused, who failed to appear can be located.

In passing sentence upon the men Magistrate Casement emphasized the importance of the conservation of game. If there were no restrictions, and deer were killed indiscriminately they would all be destroyed in three or four years, and one of the greatest attractions for tourists in this country would be gone.

On Thursday of this week, two more hunters faced the charge of hunting with dogs and were dismissed. Two charges of hunting deer without the necessary license were heard and the accused were found guilty and assessed the minimum fine of $20.00 or the alternative of 15 days in jail. The latter two were residents of Trenton.

B. C. Donnan, K.C., conducted the prosecution of all cases.

OTTAWA LIBERALS NAME CANDIDATE

E. R. E. Chevrier is Choice at Large Convention

Ottawa, Dec. 15—(CP)—E. R. E. Chevrier, M.P., was declared the Liberal candidate for the electoral division of East Ottawa in the next federal election at the annual meeting of the East Ottawa Liberal Association here last night. The meeting passed a resolution of confidence in Mr. Chevrier and one which declared he had the confidence of the Liberal leader, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

Last night's meeting marked another stage of dissension which has split the ranks of East Ottawa Liberals since before the Ontario general election. Earlier in the day Dr. Rufus H. Parent, whom one faction of the party recognizes as association president, advised all true Liberals to stay away from last night's meeting, called by J. Albert Pinard who also claimed the presidency.

New officers were elected at last night's meeting. Albert Groulx was made president, and Aurel Parisien, former secretary who, along with Mr. Pinard, had been "read out of the party" by Dr. Parent, was made one of the vice-presidents. Aurel Chartrand was elected secretary.

Police News

"Things were monotonously quiet last night," stated Sergeant Harman in reference to police activities during the night when going off duty this morning. Not a single arrest has been made by the local authorities for the past three days in Belleville.

A general falling off in the number of transients to put up in Belleville over night has been in evidence thus far this month. Last evening only nine weary "travellers" signed the register at the Police Station, this number being slightly lower than the previous nights this week. For the first 14 nights this month, there has been a total of 158 transients accommodated at the police station or an average of 11 a night. During the month of November there were 485 transients afforded a night's lodging in the police station or an average of 16 per night. These statistics, kept by the local police sergeants, show that there is a slight falling off in the matter of transients seeking a night's lodging in Belleville.

SECRET INDUSTRY PLAN IS DESIGNED

Munitions Probe is Busy With Profitless Scheme In Event of War

(By Charles P. Nutter)

Washington Dec. 15.—(AP)—A secret plan in the possession of the United States Army, designed to mobilize industry in the event of another war, engaged the attention of the Senate Munitions Committee today.

A contention has been made to the committee that under this plan industry already has arranged to forego any inflated war profits. Members of the committee dispute this, and the investigators called an executive meeting for today to decide whether public disclosure of the plan's details would jeopardize National Defense.

Military strategy contend it would. There were indications that Secretary of War George Dern had promised the committee complete access to the department's secret plans, but declined to accept responsibility for their disclosure. Some foreign governments are said to have shown interest in this phase of the investigation on the possibility something of military value to them might come to light.

Committee members say the army plans would not take profits out of war but would make large profits for industrial organizations possible.

The contention of investigators is that under these plans each major industrial plant knows what proportion of business it would receive, and that reserve officers, who in private life are connected with manufacturing concerns, would be drawn into the army's purchasing departments to allot contracts in war-time.

Saws Rasp, Hammers Ring on Harbor Front As Commission Launches Vast Development To Make Belleville Port for Ocean Vessels

City to Have One of Best Ports on Great Lakes Says Commissioners

EXTENSION IS BEGUN

Crib-work Built to be Placed in Position at Later Date

"And when we're finished, it will be one of the best ports on the Great Lakes."

Thus does Mr. Geo. F. Ostrom, chairman of the Belleville Board of Harbor Commissioners succinctly sum up the completion of this city's new lake and ocean port when the new dock extension now in process of construction is finished. The statement is echoed by his fellow commissioners on the Board, Mayor Geo. O. Tice and Alderman T. Y. Wills, secraetry.

Saws are rasping through the huge 28-foot long solid fir baulks unloaded this week on the harbor front direct from British Columbia, to be used for crib work in the initial start on the dock. Hammers are ringing. Men are sweating and toiling with cant hook and peavy as they pace the huge timbers into position. Like a vast battery of naval guns the timbers project out over the side of the old dock where they are being assembled into one unit by experts on the job. Step by step the mass is being built up, later to be jockeyed from its present position to the water in a large channel in the ice already prepared.

Plans Gone Over

And superintending the work of his busy crew is Mr. P. LaRocque, expert bridge and crib work builder, sent by the Dominion Government with three assistants from Hawkesbury to take charge of the project Under him is a force of city workers picked for their skill in handling an axe or a cross-cut saw. Later when the crib is to be lowered into the water, Mr. LaRocque will don a diving suit and go down with it. He is an expert diver.

In the office of Mr. Ostrom, the chairman, went carefully over the diagram pictured above, step by step.

"This extension, as you will see, runs east from the present dock to Church Street, a distance of some three hundred feet. Just now the crib work is being built up and will be slid into the water later. Then the cribs will be filled with rock and then in the spring next year when the weather becomes safe enough, we'll be able to start the actual concrete work and build it up to the level of the present one."

"Behind this dock extension we'll have plenty of space for the construction of warehouses and some land left over for industrial sites. This will all be built up to the level of the dock. Just now we're pouring truck load after truck load of stone and earth into it. It will put a finish to that old mosquito swamp that used to be there. And the new land will mean something to the city."

"Refer to the diagram again. Notice that the land on the west side of the dock has also been cleared of all loose stone and earth. You have a place marked 'warehouse' there. That is also another reality. A cement foundation to be placed there and after that will follow a real warehouse. There will be a site there for the boats to unload too When we have the whole thing completed we expect to have some 2000 landing feet. It will be one of the largest docks in Ontario.

Ocean Craft Accommodated

"This summer the harbor between the old pier running from the dock on the south end and the new extension was dredged to a depth that will accommodate the largest boats, ocean craft not excepted. The deepening of the west side of the dock some time ago will give other boats plenty of room and depth. You can see what this means to shippers and storage men of the city and district.

Plenty of work lies ahead before the dock is completed, but when the last form has been removed from the carefully poured concrete, and the last foot of cement has been brushed, and pounded into a smooth surface, members of the Board will see the fulfillment of a dream for a better and larger harbor for Belleville that began some three or four years ago and has been continually pursued since then."

This Canary Drinks Coffee Has Human Intelligence

Mrs. James Kilburn and Pete

By Central Press Canadian

Muscle Shoals, Ala., Dec. 15—Meet Pete, a canary with human intelligence.

Peter demands coffee for breakfast, rides uncaged in an open automobile, flies to the telephone and sings through the transmitter whenever it rings, picks flees off the back of his friend, Tige, a big police dog, and obeys all the commands of his mistress, Mrs. James Kilburn.

Pete leaves his cage every morning and doesn't return until darkness falls and he is ready for a night's rest. He passes most of the day freely out of doors with fishermen and hunters connected with the Kilburn establishment. Sometimes he flies for hours through the woods and over the lake, but he always returns.

Always Returns

He delights in the company of people and spends a great deal of time in the yard or on the porch with members of the Kilburn family.

The bird is thoroughly domesticated and readily makes friends with strangers, hopping from one person's hand to another as they ask him to.

But his greatest attachment is Mrs. Kilburn who trained him. He rests on her shoulder and sings softly in her ear and often reaches to kiss her lips. No matter how far away he may be so long as it is in hearing distance, he always flies to her when she calls.

Mrs. Kilburn says:

"I didn't know a thing about birds when I got Pete as a baby, but I decided to find out just how far a bird can be trusted. I worked with him for six months before I let him go out doors. Now he flies for miles around and I always know he will return. He is two years old now.

"He is just an ordinary singing canary. I have been offered $500 for him but I wouldn't take $5,000.

"Though Pete likes his coffee, no one has been able to tempt him to drink liquor.

"He knows it will hurt his voice" Mrs. Kilburn explains.

Pete always rides to town with his mistress and goes in and out of the stores with her when she does her shopping.

Vancouver, Dec. 15—One of the new citizens of British Columbia is Alfred Martin, a British war veteran who arrived recently in his car and trailer after a transcontinental automobile journey With him are his wife and ten children six boys and four girls, ranging from 19 to 3 years of age.

Mr. Martin visited British Columbia in the early days of the century after service with the Royal West Surrey "Queen's Own" Regiment in India and then wandered over to the Philippines and China. He rejoined his regiment in 1914 and served in France for nearly four years. Then he settled in St. John, New Brunswick, where he established a furniture upholstery business. When things slowed down too badly he decided to turn west.

"I have always regarded British Columbia as the best of the Canadian provinces, having very pleasant recollections of my visit here early in the present century," he says. "So, having decided to come west, I built a caboose to run as a trailer behind our auto. I built it with seats along the sides for the children and for beds for myself and my wife at night. The children slept in the car and in tents which we carried with us.

"We left St. John on August 12, hoping to obtain work on the way across country keep us supplied with necessities. We got work in St. George and stayed there a week. We also spent a little time in Montreal and Toronto. We crossed into the United States at Sarnia and journeyed to Chicago, where we stayed a day.

"We travelled comfortably across U.S. to Glacier National Park, then north to British Columbia. We are glad to be here."

CRAWFORD IS CHAMP

Melbourne, Dec. 15—(AP)—Jack Crawford captured the Victoria Singles Tennis Championship today, easily defeating Adrian Quist, his youthful Australian compatriot, 6-2, 8-6, 6-3. Quist had eliminated Fred Perry of England, world's ranking player, in the semi-finals but he was no match for Crawford.

Perry will play with a British team against a picked Australian side at Sydney on Thursday although he has shown unmistakable signs of staleness as a result of his summer and winter tennis campaigning during the last four years.

Rivers, with a few remarks, introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. A. J. Irwin, General Secretary of the Temperance Union, who spoke at some length. At the close of his address a committee was appointed with Mr. Frank Baalim as convener. Mrs. L. Ashley and Mrs. Hulin sang a duet, "I Shall Not Pass Again This Way." A vote of thanks was tendered to the speaker and also to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dafoe who entertained Rev. A. J. Irwin. The meeting closed with benediction by Rev. G. W. Rivers.

Mrs. Jennie Rupert left town on Thursday to spend a few days in Belleville with her daughter, Mrs. K. Tufts, and will later go to Montreal to spend Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rupert.

FEAR WALLS FALLING AFTER MONTREAL FIRE

Three-Alarm Fire Sweeps Sterling Woollen Mills

Montreal, Dec. 15—(CP)—A fierce three-alarm fire swept the building occupied by Sterling Woollens and Silks Company in Phillips Square in the heart of uptown Montreal early today.

Firemen were fearful the walls would collapse. The Blaze, origin of which was unknown, rapidly consumed the inflammable textiles and the interior of the building was burned out.

Collapse of the walls would endanger many valuable properties adjoining the firemen battled in zero weather to subdue the flames. The building was empty when the fire broke out and no one was injured.

EARLIER PURCHASING

Many persons in Belleville are following the advice to buy early and avoid the rush and obtain wider selection of gifts. Many stores report this earlier tendency as well as a greatly enhanced trading over conditions a year ago.

Every one benefits by this more leisurely purchasing and the approach of Christmas Eve is not dreaded as it will be by the slothful and tardy buyer. This is no suggestion that there should be no last days' buying, but rather that the business of the season may be distributed. Indeed early buying tends to increased purchasing, according to merchants.

100,000 SILVER DOLLARS

Canadians are pleased that $100,000 in silver dollars, the first ever to be minted in Canada will be issued in honor of the silver anniversary of the accession of His Majesty King George the Fifth next June.

This will aid in a small way the silver mines of Canada and will perhaps help in the reinstatement of silver to a place in the domestic life of the people.

How the people will take to the coins which will be little larger than the fifty cent pieces and a little thicker of course, remains to be seen.

But it is Canadian silver which is going into the coins and it is in honor of the king's twenty-fifth anniversary.

EXPERIMENT SUCCEEDS

When low fare railway trips were inaugurated some years ago, in some quarters there was probably the feeling that the innovation would not endure. But the trips have proven beneficial to the railways. In a recent Montreal address, A. A. Gardiner, Assistant General Passenger Traffic Manager of the Canadian National Railways stated that the two railways collected $2,600,000 on trips in one thousand days, that a million persons travelled by these excursion trains, that the annual cost per trip was $2.60, the cost to the companies .385 cents out of every dollar received and of this expenditure 25 cents went to additional labour necessary.

Sixty per cent. of the passengers went to visit their friends, some went to see the country and only twenty per cent. used the trips for business purposes.

Fortunately too, the cheap excursions have been not always to the large cities or to the west—many of them are out of the large cities to the smaller centres.

This seems a good way of fighting the struggle of the railways against highway traffic. When it comes to a cheap trip many a motorist leaves his car at home and takes the train because it is cheaper especially if one person would be travelling in the automobile. It is assuredly a good means of increasing the revenue of the railway lines and Canadians have yet to learn why the holding of these excursions should have been delayed so many years. Fortunately the excursions are now on the accepted plan of the railway companies.

STUDENTS' VIEWS

Somehow 1000 scholars in nine eastern U. S. colleges have got the notion that politics is the tool of wealth. A questionnaire brings reply showing 77 per cent. of the studens voted that way. To the proposition that any man can obtain justice in the courts (that is, in the United States), only 18 per cent. voted in the affirmative, and only 29 per cent voted that public education is an ally of capital. This means that students believe capital has not any control over colleges or education. It is a strange commentary that colleges do receive more money from capital than campaign funds and lobbies, comments the New York Times.

But then students are voting as students might be expected to vote—largely taken up with new thought and building on assurance that they are free. That is seen in their expression of the belief that only 29 per cent. think capital controls the trend of education and colleges which means that colleges are free. Students generally modify their views when they have been out in the world for a while.

The student attitude should be called a youthful enthusiasm which sees themselves stepping forth as young Sir Galahads to right all the world's wrongs at once.

Pedestrians on these slippery days should help motorists at street intersections. The condition of the roadways may be such that a motorcar may slew and it would be well for pedestrians to take no chance of being in the way of a car. They should give themselves time in crossing to escape any sudden movement which may result in their slipping and falling in the path of an automobile. If it is difficult to avoid slipping, the pedestrian ought to realize that it is difficult to prevent cars slipping in a sudden emergent calls on the brakes.

Britain is leading with a new type of airplane which attains a speed of over 230 miles per hour in level flying and while loaded down with its full military equipment. It is even said that a new British plane under construction and to be put in the service may attain a speed of three hundred miles an hour.

Expenditure on aerial defences in such a respect does bring about airplane development, for necessity is the mother of invention in planes as in everything else.

WELL DRESSED WOMEN

It must be a source of nation-wide satisfaction that no less than three out of the twelve best-dressed women in the world, as designated by the Parisian dressmakers, are American-born, though only two apparently continue to make the United States their home. To qualify for a place in the select circle, it is understood that a candidate must do more than invest the sum of $50,000 annually with the dressmaking trade. She must have brains, poise and vivacity. These are qualities which would carry a woman, or for that matter a man, very far in other spheres than fashion.

Parisian couturieres obviously have no insular prejudices. The twelve names on their best-dressed list show that a good customer may live almost anywhere on this globe. Among the countries represented are the United States, England, France, Italy, Spain, Holland, Egypt and Indian. In other words, anybody walking up and down the Rue de la Paix with $50,000 to spend on gowns and hats will probably secure a hearing.—New York Times.

PRINTING AND PICTURES

Recently in these columns the reproduction of sound in moving pictures was likened to the invention of printing. The anology is not correct, but the idea is that in both cases the mechanical device enormously multiplies and cheapens production. The pictures are, of course, not as good as the living actors, but they do go a long way in interpreting the thought of the dramatist. Also the introduction of sound causes less emphasis to be laid on beauty of face and form and more on language, elocution and thought. The analogy with the printing press is at least hopeful. The press is available for bad as well as good matter, but on the whole the balance is on the right side. There are similar possibilities of good and evil in the pictures, and it is to be hoped that the result will be equally good as to the greater part of the product.

The analogy has been attacked on grounds which are worth examining. It is said that in the case of printing there is opportunity for the publication of a book having a limited appeal for more intellectual readers, as well as for popular novels. But the producer of a picture for the theatre must always have in view the millions of seekers after amusement. Every picture must be like a "best seller" among books.

The contention is not without weight. It may lessen hope as to the development of the picture theatre on the intellectual side. But there is also a normal/side, an appeal to the heart as well as to the intellect. Now there are many novels which do not rank as classics, which are held in slight esteem by "highbrows" and yet which entertain and edify millions of people who have little or no capacity for literary criticism. The world would be poorer without them. They brighten dull lives, they exalt homely domestic affection, friendship, honesty, courage, sincerity, and their villains give scope for righteous resentment and indignation. Any librarian or bookseller must have such novels in mind.

There are similar possibilities in the picture theatre field. It would be well, of course, if more could appreciate the classic drama appealing to the intellect, but those who do not enjoy that may derive pleasure, instruction and inspiration from plays demanding less intelectual efforts, but clean wholesome and sound-hearted. Then the evening's or afternoon's entertainment might include both the classical and the popular play. We are still hopeful as to the possibilities of the new mode of presentation. Its development has only begun, and there are wide fields that have not yet been explored.—London Advertiser.

STANDARDS FOR TEACHERS

In the happy relationship between the home and school, we see real possibilities for the promotion of service, since the demands made upon our schools have never been greater than at the present time. They must do more than train our children to make a livelihood, they must help them to make a proper adjustment to the needs of community and state. The selection of teachers should be most careful. Qualities of character are as important as their training in the subjects they teach. Their influence should not undermine what parents regard in the home as righteous forces of character. The service rendered by teachers has been of great value, yet we have laid too great emphasis on qualities of mind, and not paid sufficient attention to their qualities of temperament, personally and character. Those who have not these qualities should be denied admission to the profession.—Prof. Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education.

COME ON FOLKS LET'S GO
YOU FOLKS WHO WANT A REAL THRILL—
FILL A BASKET FOR A NEEDY FAMILY

POEMS ARE MADE BY FOOLS LIKE ME, but only God can make a tree, sang Joyce Kilmer, brilliant young American writer, who was one of the casualties of "the war to end all war," which took such a heavy toll of human life in its heyday. Only God can put the Christmas Spirit into the hearts of folks—and hearts must be receptive to it, for the Christmas Spirit goes only where it is sure of a welcome. Hence the illustration which begins this column is just a reminder of the blessings which Christmas affords to those seeking some good to do. The city of Belleville is well organized for the distribution of baskets of Christmas cheer to families temporarily obliged to retrench at this festive season through no fault of their own, service clubs, churches and societies that will make a grand distribution in the name of good old Santa Claus—but there is always some place right near each one of us where the Christmas Spirit can find good work to do. Outside the city there must be homes where folks with the Christmas Spirit will find a welcome and a blessing, if only by saying a kind word or two. Let's grab a blessing or two before the opportunity passes.

SOMEONE HAS SAID that with the savings banks of Canada at the bursting point with the savings of thrifty folks, and interest rates being reduced, this would be a good time to speed up Christmas buying—increased spending which would pay big dividends in satisfaction and more prosperity for all. It has been said that if all Canadians would increase their Christmas buying twenty per cent. a wave of prosperity would start which would have far-reaching effects of a beneficial nature. Money in circulation is the best aid to prosperity, as was illustrated many years ago by the Master in the tale of the talents—the man who buried his talents lest they be stolen was not rated as the best type of citizen, even then.

INSURANCE AGENTS with no power of speech, are the latest addition to New York City's street life. A robot salesman hands out a policy good for seven days, covering accident, sickness or most anything, after a small coin is dropped in a slot. A pencil slides out when the coin is dropped, the person seeking insurance signs his or her name, pull a lever, and out pops a policy. Simple, isn't it—and what a boon for a city populated by the quick and the dead like Manhattan—a city where the god of speed rules supreme and those who are not quick are soon hospital cases.

x x x x

SHOP EARLY and give the poor clerks a chance. City folks should shop in the morning and let our friends from the country have all the room and opportunity for quick service possible in the afternoons. Let's be sociable and considerate—and God bless us every one, as Charles Dickens' Tiny Tim would say.

Soldiers—Then and Now

—by—

Theodore Goodridge Roberts

In the Canadian Militia other than the Permanent Force we have two chest protectors known as (a) the Colonial Auxiliary Officers' Long Service Decoration and (b) the Colonial Auxiliary Long Service Medal. The ribbons of these two rewards for attending annual camps of training are of the same dark shade of green. Twenty-one years of service with commissioned rank entitles one to the Decoration, and the same length of service in the ranks, or of service divided between "other" and commissioned ranks, entitles one to the Medal.

The Officer Gets Both

If you are entitled to the C.A.O. L.S.D.—the Decoration—you are entitled also to the C.A.L.S.M.—the medal. But you are not allowed to put up both on your chest unless your service amounts to thirty years or more. With thirty years of service as an officer in the Canadian Militia you may sport both the long service decoration and long service medal at one and the same time—an attractive silver decoration and a good, hefty, round silver medal; but the ribbons of the same shade of green give the story away to the wise, of course. But to the unknowing in such matters, two things on the left breast of a person in uniform look very much the same as any other two things in a similar situation. Let us consider this. Let us take two cases into consideration.

Colonel Slogger joined the militia as a lieutenant in his youth and stayed right with it even to the extent of not indulging himself in any military service on foreign fields. With thirty years of such service to his credit, he may put both these long military service majiggers up on his honorable left breast—right where the Victoria Cross is worn. On the other hand, Sergeant Doe joined up in 1915 and got to France in the first month of 1916 with reinforcements to a battalion of the 2nd Canadian Division. He had a winter of trench-warfare, with all the trimmings, and then got properly dusted at Sanctuary Wood. After the first three hours of that show, he found himself one of the three dazed survivors (three only) of his platoon. He became a corporal. On the Somme he became a sergeant and was wounded. He was back with his outfit for the Vimy show of April, 1917. He was steady but not distinguished. He had a nasty time at Passchendaele but did not get hit. On one occasion, when the battalion was out of the line, he stepped a trifle too wide and high with a skinful of sweet champagne and suffered a rotten headache and lost his stripes. But he plugged along, doing his duty and hoping that the war would end some day. He regained his stripes in August, 1918. He continued to plug along, doing his duty and escaping death by the thickness of a finger a score of times—right along through the last triumphant hundred days and through the Hindenburg line. And what has he besides his scar? Two medals. For soldiering abroad for 1300 days and nights, or more, and actually fighting the Germans for more than 1,000 days and nights, he has two medals; and Colonel Slogger has two medals in recognition of 360 peaceful, safe days in militia camps (this credits him with attendance at every summer camp) and, possibly, 180 days spent in barracks while qualifying for promotions. Sergeant Doe's medals are the Victory and the General Service, 'tis true—but even so, I think his left chest should be more generously adorned than Colonel Slogger's.

40 YEARS AGO

December 15, 1894

The theatre going citizens of Belleville have seen minstrelsy in all its phases, but never was an audience kept in a happier mood than at the long-looked for, much talked about amateur minstrel performance which took place in the Queen's Opera House last evening. The audience was one of the largest in the history of the opera house, many persons being unable to secure seats. The I.O.O.F. orchestra supplied the music in a faultless manner. The performance opened with a refrain behind the curtain and when the curtain went up the audience went into raptures over the grand sight. The six end men were: Tambos, Ab. Wheeler, Billie Power and Jack Gordaneer; Bones, Billie Thomas, George Robertson and Charlie McKay. They wore full dress suits with blue satin collars on the coats and gold stripes down the pants, high standing collars and "diamonds" galore. In the chorus there were twenty-seven men, seventeen of whom sat in a semi-circle and ten on a raised dais in the rear. The interlocutor, George Dulmage, was the right man in the right place and acquitted himself in a manner pleasing to all. The program opened with an overture by the company, which was followed by a well rendered end song by Billie Thomas, "Dars a Lock on De Chicken Coop Door" with topical hits. He was loudly encored and gracefully responded. R. Fairman sang the ballad, "They Are the Best Friends of All" in splendid voice and responded with an encore. Willie Power made a great hit in his end song, "Handsome Maria Jane", his knowledge of acting standing him in good stead. He was cheered to the echo and recalled. Billie Dempsey sang very sweetly in a fine tenor voice "Mary Grey" and the chorus in this ballad was particularly well rendered by the company. George Robertson's end song, "Climb Up the Ladder Children", went with a rush and took well. W. C. McLean sang in his usual splendid voice "Sailing Home" and was loudly applauded. Ab. Wheeler, who was the bright star of the company so far as fun making went, sang in inimitable style "Lime Kiln Club", and the audience recalled him time after time. He introduced some local hits that took like vaccination. W. F. Harriss sang "Pretty One Asleep" in incomparable voice. The first part closed with a grand final, Wheeler and Robertson doing some splendid jigs. The company quartette, Messrs. Harriss, Fairman, Lewis and Pearce sang several plantation melodies in an excellent manner and were recalled twice. Harry Gormand in his female impersonation, is recognized as having few peers in the profession and he surprised and pleased the audience by his clever make-up and singing. Master Lester Riggs played a very difficult selection on the clarionet with ease and grace. Charlie and Bennie Dickens gave a most laughable exhibition of muscular development. Their handling of the "heavy" weights was a laughable burlesque. Wheeler and Robertson gave a sketch entitled "A Water Melon Scene" and a plantation song and dance. Their dancing was clever and they worked together like clock work. Charlie Dickens as "The Musical Gorilla" was up to date. He played on several instruments and arrangements, the musical jars being perhaps the best of the lot. Ab. Wheeler bobbed up again in a monologue and kept the house in roars of laughter by his witty sayings. His magic was also well received. He sang "Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back". John McCarty and Ed. Cochrane did some clever work on the double bars. The performance was brought to a close with a fancy drill by sixteen members of the company in sailor costumes. The stage was set to represent the deck of a man-of-war and the Jack Tars went through their evolutions with the precision of veterans. The march and counter march into the form of a star was greeted with unstinted applause. The company sang "The Boys of the Old Brigade" at the same time swinging to the front in double column and saluting. Billie Thomas arranged and carried out the drill and deserves much praise. There was not a hitch in the whole performance and great credit is due the management, especially Charlie Dickens and Harry McIninch. Ab. Wheeler should go on the stage permanently. The profession is losing a star by his absence. Following is the executive staff of the Belleville Amateur Minstrels: Business manager, T. P. J. Power; stage manager, R. H. McIninch; director, Charles Dickens; assistant musical director, W. E. Thomas; secretary, W. C. McLean; treasurer, Frank McKeown; stage carpenter, Fred Adams.

BOYS DO NOT TALK AS SOON AS GIRLS DO

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

It is difficult to tell whether your child is developing normally unless you have at least some fairly definite standards with which to compare his progress. Children are sometimes supposed to be retarded, when, in fact, they are advancing at a rate faster than average. It is true, however, that parents frequently do not realize their children are defective in some way.

The following facts should prove of value:

The average child at birth does not weigh nine or ten pounds, but only a fraction above seven and a half. It is of no special advantage to a child to be unusually large and fat.

Newly-born infants avoid the light, and the room should be kept darkened for several days.

Children are deaf for the first twenty-four hours, and sometimes this deafness persists for a week. The cause is absence of air in the middle ear and swelling of the membranes.

Touch is the most highly-developed of all senses at birth. It is specially acute in the lips, mouth and tongue.

The "holes of the head" — the fontanels—do not close at the same time. The one in the back of the head usually closes by the end of the second month. The fontanel in front is obliterated about the eighteenth month.

Too early closing of the fantanels may be due to malnutrition or microcephalus. If closure has not taken place after two years, the child may have rickets, or be suffering from cretinism, or have water on the brain (hydrocephalus).

Girls talk earlier than boys, often by as much as four months. Children say a few words by the end of the first year. At the end of the second year they put words together.

Walking takes place at the end of the first year, but with walking and talking the widest variations exist.

The first teeth appear at six months, but sometimes not until nine. The second teeth appear at six years.

When children begin school, it is not so difficult to determine whether they are retarded. If they fail in their classes, or fail signally and repeatedly in a particular subject or subjects, the question of some variety of mental retardation should be considered.

It is during the earliest years, however, that the trouble should be detected, if any, and prompt steps taken to correct it.

The sooner medical or corrective treatment is begun, the better.

Parents should be courageous enough to face facts about their children and to face them squarely. If the child does not seem to measure up equally with other children of the same age, that alone should cause suspicion.

Every persistent case of mental backwardness should be carefully investigated. Every character fault, such as continual lying or stealing, should be a warning that the child needs scientific help. Every physical deformity or defect should be corrected.

Never wait for the child to outgrow a defect, no matter what its nature may be. That's an easy way out, but a costly and often heart-rending one in the end.

When in doubt about your child, consult a competent physician.

SPENDS LAST DAY IN SHOPPING TOUR

Dr. Allan R. Dafoe Leaves New York For Trip Home

New York, Dec. 15—(CP)— Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe was to spend a part of his last day in New York along Fifth Avenue. One guess was as good as the next as to what he had in mind, but it seemed safe to assume he sought Christmas presents for "those cunning little nippers,"—the Dionne quintuplets, in other words.

Tonight he plans to board the train for Toronto, then Callander, Ont. In the seven days he has been in New York—excepting a few hours in Washington and Baltimore—he has seen "all the main places in town." His train compartment will probably contain a very weary, but immensely satisfied man.

The doctor to the Dionnes hesitated in his busy round of sightseeing yesterday to assure his newspaper shadows, that he will leave New York and the civilization it personifies with no regrets.

"It is a very marvelous city," he said by way of softening up his hearers. "The folks up north will think me pipe dreaming when I tel them. But the pun—perhaps you don't hear it. It's not for me."

The police held the elfish little physician yesterday, but the hold was one of rapture. He sat in at the morning lineup and questioning of prisoners, marvelled at the finger printing and index system; called a radio patrol car and cracked jokes with its officer-occupants.

He trouped around the board decks and hospital of the liner Majestic. He found the liner "Marvellous". He took in the aquarium where live sharks streak around behind very heavy glass and Otto and Margaret, aerobatic penguins, provide diving and swimming lessons for all, who will look.

Later he took tea with Forrest Davis, newspaperman who once visited Dr. Dafoe and the quints at Callander.

BURNING WAX IS CAUSE OF FIRE

12 Buildings Destroyed With Damage at $150,000

ELMSWORTH, N.Y., Dec. 15.—(AP)—A fire sent flowing through the streets by burning wax brought under control early today after it threatened general destruction to this village.

Twelve buildings were burned—five of them levelled—and ten other roof fires were extinguished, but the very centre of the village escaped unscathed. Fire Chief Harvey Dunnigan estimated damage at $150,000.

The fire started in Old Colonial Hall, housing the Elmsford Wax Works, and spread on the spluttering wax that poured forth to the adjoining Valley Stream Hotel on Main Street, beside the Saw Mill River.

From the hotel the blaze went through two apartment houses—one five-storey and the other three-storey—and a private home between them. All five buildings were destroyed.

About 20 families were driven out into the bitter cold. All escaped injury.

Apparatus from 12 neighboring towns succeeded in quelling the blaze.

RAILWAY INTACT KING'S PROMISE

Liberal Party Against Amalgamation of Two Systems

Railway a 1kflO.165clF z

Toronto Dec. 15.—(CP)—In a special despatch from its Ottawa correspondent The Globe today quoted Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal Leader, as stating "that he and the Liberal party stand for the maintenance of the integrity of the Canadian National Railways as a publicly controlled service."

Mr. King, according to the newspapers, declared that the Liberal's party's position on the C.N.R. was the same today as it was on Feb. 27, 1933, when he made the same declaration in the House of Commons. This position, he said, was confirmed this week by the National Liberal Federation meeting in Ottawa.

The Globe despatch continues: "While the discussions of the conference which concluded yesterday were held in camera, it is understood the railway problem came in for some attention and the speech delivered a short time ago in Chatham by Hon. William D. Euler, former minister of National Revenue was mentioned. Mr. Euler was present at the Ottawa Conference yesterday and made it quite clear that when he spoke in Chatham he had been representing only himself and not purporting to speak for the Liberal Party."

MUDDY TIBER RIVER REACHES FLOOD STAGE

Rome, Dec. 15.—Rome became almost a seaport today as Father Tiber humped his back up to 46.7 feet, the river's most extreme flood stage in many years.

The extraordinary depth enabled boats of heavy draft to come up the river from Ostia and discharge their cargoes at St. Paul's gate. Already dangerously swollen, the level of the river lost two feet during the night.

Rome itself is well protected by high embankments but a serious situation confronted upriver communities.

BABY IS HIDDEN IN RICE BASKET

Chinese Mothers Nurse Orphan Baby of Slain Missionaries

Shanghai, Dec. 15.—(CP)—The cold-blooded, public execution of two missionaries by Chinese bandits who looted Tsingteh was described in reports received today by the China Inland Mission Station.

Details of the fate, which befell Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stam, young victims of the outlaws' brutality, were communicated to the Mission headquarters of the Rev. George Birch.

Mr. Birch, a Canadian missionary, was one of a group which brought the Stams' orphaned daughter, three months old Helen Priscilla to Whu after the pillage of Tsingteh.

The Missionary said the Stams were slain by the bandits, apparenty with the object of embarrassing the Chinese Government in its relations with the United States. Their bodies, abandoned on a battlefield 15 miles from Tsingteh, were discovered by Chinese, who risked their lives in the search for the family.

A Chinese Christian pastor, Mr. Birch, related, found Helen crying and hungry in a deserted house, where she apparently had been abandoned by her captors. Chinese harbored the infant in a rice basket until it was possible to begin the long trek to Wuhu.

Chinese mothers nursed the baby along the route the missionary said, and volunteer nurses cared for her. The infant arrived at Wuhu in apparent good health.

Meanwhile, Government troops hastened westward in hot pursuit of the band believed to have perpetrated the outrages. Military leaders suspected a mob of about 1,000 outlaws led by Fan Chinming who were driven from Kiangsi by General Chiang Kai-Shek's campaign to eradicate banditry.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gray is 98 Brought Oil Lamp Into District

Born Near Napanee Now Resident at Mooretown, Lambton County

Mrs. Elizabeth Gray, a member of one of the first families to bring an oil lamp and a cookstove into the district of Napanee in the days when even a stove was a novelty to the settlers, is this week celebrating the 98th anniversary of her birth. She is at present in Mooretown, Lambton County, where she has resided for the past several years. The birthday party was held at the home of her son, J. W. Gray, King Street, Petrolia.

Mrs. Gray is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Russell who came to Canada from England. She was born at Selby near Napanee, in the year 1836. She resided in this district for over forty years and was married at Selby to James Gray. Later she moved to Parkhill where Mr. Gray died, about fifty years ago. Of late years she has resided with her son, a Canadian National Railway agent who has been moved several times to various cities of the Province.

Some difficulty was experienced by Mrs. Gray in obtaining proof of the year of her birth as births were not registered then as at the present time, but her son was able to obtain a certificate of her birth from information obtained from the books of the Anglican Church at Napanee.

The Gray family were believed to be among the first to bring the coal oil lamp and the cookstove into Napanee district, it is recalled by the old time resident. Conditions in those days, too, were vastly different than they are at the present time. Twice a year to Napanee, a distance of ten miles, to do their shopping was contrasted with the present age of speed and fast automobiles. In those days it took the team of oxen one day to go and one day to come with their semi-annual supplies of groceries.

Although there are many happy reminiscences in Mrs. Gray's talk of the old days, she believes that the present day of invention and progress are much better. It has been her delight to cast her vote on many occasions.

Still wonderfully active, Mrs. Gray arises at nine in the morning and retires after eight o'clock at night, taking a short afternoon nap as the usual thing.

Only two of her seven children are living, J. W. Gray of Petrolia and Miles F. Gray of the Legislature of Michigan.

"TEAKBAY" LAST BOAT

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP)—The last boat to churn the waters of Hamilton harbor was the Teakbay, which set sail last night at 11.55 for Kingston. The vessel had arrived here earlier with flour from the head of the lakes, and last night departed for Kingston to winter.

DESCRIBES TRIP TO PEKIN, CHINA

Dr. J. McKelvey, Queen's Graduate on Staff of Union College

East Seymour, Dec. 15.—A recent letter from Mrs. (Rev.) John McKinnon of Chesley, Ont., who is a daughter of the late John White, M.P. of Hastings county and a sister of Mr. Willie White of Roslin, describes the journey to Peiping, China made by Dr. and Mrs. Jack (Red) McKelvey (Mrs. McKinnon's daughter Ruth). Dr. McKelvey, a Kingstonian by birth and a graduate of Queen's University, has been in the John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., for a number of years. Mrs. McKinnon writes:

"In May Jack was appointed Prof. in Gynaecology and obstetrics in the Union Medical College, Pekin or Peiping as it is now called. It is a Rockefeller enterprise and the college and hospital are just the last word in equipment. It is a wonderful position from the point of service as well as professionally and financially. They left here June 26, motored by easy stages to San Francisco, Jack visiting all the worthwhile clinics en route. They sailed from there on the President Coolidge on Aug. 1 via Honolulu which Ruth said was so beautiful that only an artist in words could describe it. They had a whole day there for driving around the island, three or four in Japan, Kobe, Tokio, then Shanghai, and except for the Rickshaws and big bearded sith policemen they could almost have thought they were in any western city.

"They arrived in Peiping the third week in August and are simply delighted with the situation. Rockefeller has built modern up-to-date houses for the professors and doctors which they can rent cheaper than a small apartment in the city. They occupied a Prof. Maxwell's house till the middle of November (the servants are rented with the house) and then they moved into a furnished house that Ruth said was just the last word in equipment even an electrical refrigerator. Ruth's son John McKinnon McKelvey was born on Oct. 6 about 8 a.m. and by their time the baby was not born until 1.30 p.m. Had he been an American he would have been born on Oct. 5. She and her baby were the pets of the whole staff in the hospital. Ruth said she was just overcome by the kindness of the compound people, she had more than twelve dozen 'mums besides dahlias, asters, roses, etc., and a cute little rock garden. They do not cut their flowers there but send them as plants in baskets. They have gorgeous 'mums there. The baby was just showered with presents besides woollies of all kinds. The superintendent and dietition gave him a sterling silver mug and spoon with the Chinese characters "for the first born son" on them and some one else gave him two little Buddhas for luck and health, etc.

"The day they went home from the hospital the Maxwell servants were all lined up to welcome them grinning from ear to ear and shaking their own hands (Chinese fashion). The next day the cook made a very elaborate cake with the Chinese character for congratulations, joy, etc., in the icing. They also presented a beautiful pot of 'mums. She was at a reception and met so many people, they are mostly Americans of course. Then there is the American Legation in another part of the city, and the British, etc., so they will have any amount of social life. The birth of a son is a great event in China."

Miss Jean Rannie went to Guelph on Dec. 14 to help care for her brother Charlie who is seriously ill with Bright's disease.

Miss Alice Hume is spending a few days with Mrs. Roy Walker.

TOWEL THROWN IN FOR RAMAGE

Joe Louis, Negro Heavyweight Shows Form in Winning

By WILLIAM WEEKES

Chicago, Dec. 15. — He may not turn out to be another Jack Johnson, but Joe Louis, a dynamite-fisted Negro from Detroit looks like just what the ailing heavyweight boxing business needs.

This dark cloud, with a silver lining in the way of increased public interest in the big division, surmounted the first critical test of his six-month professional career by scoring a spectacular eight-round technical knockout triumph over Lee Ramage of San Diego, Calif., in the Chicago Stadium last night. Only twenty years old, weighing 194½ pounds and still growing, Louis socked his way into the front rank of the division by the victory.

Ramage, a better than ordinary boxer, worked up a slight lead in points during the first seven rounds.

During the first minute of the eighth round a left hook jarred Ramage and before he could get set Louis opened again, a right cross to the chin set him down for a nine count. He arose and another right floored him for nine. As he struggled to his feet. Louis again sent his right crashing against Ramage's chin.

He managed to regain his feet at "nine", but before Louis could deliver another right, a towel fluttered out from the Californian's corner and Referee Phil Collins stopped the fight after two minutes and fifteen seconds of the round. Ramage weighed 183½, eleven pounds less than Louis.

A crowd of 12,151, paying gross receipts of $26,008.80 saw Louis' triumph.

Give The Birds A Handout!

DOPE TRAGEDY

An amusing example of the terrible power of narcotics over even the tiniest of humans was revealed with the birth of this two-weeks-old baby boy, shown with his mother, Mrs. Jack Lorraine. The baby was born with an addiction for morphine, according to physicians. Mrs. Lorraine told medical attendants and U.S. narcotic agents that she herself is an addict of several years standing. Doctors in Seattle administered morphine to the baby in gradually reduced doses the first seven days of its life. Then the morphine was abandoned and the baby was pronounced "cured". Mrs. Lorraine plans to take a cure herself, now, to take care of her baby.

CANNIFTON W.A.

The regular monthly meeting and Woman's Association dinner was held in the Sunday School Rooms United Church, Cannifton, on Wednesday, Dec. 12th. After dinner Mrs. Cole, the President, took charge of a short programme opening with a hymn. Rev. Mr. Merrick then led in prayer, Mrs. C. Callery read the Scripture lesson choosing the 23rd Psalm. The minutes were then read by Mrs. Mills and adopted. The Treasurer Mrs. Gilbert then gave the report of the year's finances which were very gratifying and encouraging showing splendid work done by the ladies. Mr. Merrick took charge of the election of officers for the year 1935, thanking the ladies for their untiring efforts on behalf of the church. On motion by Mrs. C. Callery, that all the officers who had worked so splendidly be reappointed. This was unanimously adopted. The meeting was closed, and the ladies resumed quilting.

"Escape From The Soviets" by Tatiana Tchernavin. Translated from the Russian by N. Alexander. E. P. Dutton and Co., Inc. N.Y.

Much has been written about Russia; too much of which, we believe, has been nothing but rank propaganda. Therefore, it is difficult to determine the veracity of a volume on the subject of The Soviet. However, "Escape From The Soviets" appears to be an authentic chronicle of life there. We believe it to be the story of life in Russia as it actually is, and not as Russia would have it appear to the outside world.

"My life is typical of the lives of thousands of educated women in U.S.S.R.", writes Tatiana Tchernavin. "We have all of us spent years in study in order to acquire knowledge necessary not only to ourselves but to our country which we were eager to serve. None of us were hostile to the Revolution and many devoted themselves with enthusiasm to work for the new regime. But this did not save us either from famine when we had no food to give our children, or from prison or exile."

Thus, this woman writer attempts to reveal a reign of terror in Russia. She seeks to expose the struggle for existence that she and her husband experienced. They belonged to the intellectual class, and consequently their intellect was put to use under the Soviet scheme. But they barely made a meagre living. Her husband who was a professor at the University also lectured at the Agronomical Institute, and in addition, was in charge of a Zoological laboratory; for which he received a pint of milk a day for their baby. She, herself, had turned to literary work as their only resource. For translating a long novel of Balzac she received just enough paper money to buy some black bread; and her fee for writing a children's story amounted to the price of three lumps of sugar. A pound of butter had to last them at least a month, and a dirty-coloured liquid made with baked oats was called "tea".

No wonder then, that they looked for a way of escape, and fortunately found one. No wonder then, that she should want to write about it, triumphantly as she has done. And no wonder that we think this is the true story of the Soviet.

"The Pursuit of Knowledge" by Stephen Leacock. Liveright Publishing Corporation, New York.

Here we have Stephen Leacock, the Professor. He discusses freedom and compulsion in education. He believes that higher education should be controlled by inspired and inspiring teaching and that the supreme task of the teacher on any educational level is to prepare a Way of Knowing for the student. Then the student will desire to know; and will pursue knowledge once the treasures of culture are arranged in an exhibit that shows their relation to individual satisfaction and social contentment.

Although a humourist at heart, Stephen Leacock can settle down to serious subjects. However, he is never dry for he has the capacity for seasoning a serious subject with his wit. He cannot help his humour. Thus, in this fifth volume of the Kappa Dela Pi Series, he is both Dr. Leacock the professor, and Stephen Leacock, the humorist.

"The Triumph Of An Idea"—The Story of Henry Ford by Ralph H. Graves. Doubleday, Doran and Co, Inc., Garden City, New York.

Henry Ford, of course, will always be remembered for the famous Model T. In fact, it is likely to outlive him. However, he will not only be remembered for leaving a trail of Fords behind him because he will also leave the example of his life. He is truly a great man.

"The Triumph of an Idea" is the story of the founding, success and growth of his business. The picture of the brick workshop where the first Ford car was built is inset. The volume also includes a full description of the Edison Institute and its interesting historical village at Dearborn, Michigan. Here is a story of facts that less than a generation ago would have been regarded as a fairy tale.—E.F.H.

"Polly — I just don't dare take baby out! She's been behaving terribly lately. I can't imagine why she's so cross!"

"She's sallow, Louise, just the way Bobby was when he had that whiney spell last month. She probably needs a laxative. Try Castoria."

"See how baby enjoys her ride today, Polly. I think Castoria has done perfect wonders for her!"

"Yes, I see it has, Louise. Castoria has helped thousands of children. It's especially good for acid stomach. You know, it doesn't contain any of the harmful drugs that often are in adult laxatives. Castoria is pleasant to take, too — tastes awfully good."

AFTER THE POMP AND CIRCUMSTANCE

Epitomizing a scene of domestic teranquility and happiness, the Duke and Duchess of Kent are photographed for the first time at Himley Hall, near Birmingham, during their honeymoon. At their side is a favorite police dog as they sit on one of the ramparts of the ancient structure. They have since left Himley Hall for a new honeymoon residence nearer to London.

BATTLECOMPLAINT TAKEN TO LEAGUE

Abyssinia's Action Causes Stir in Italian Capital

Rome, Dec. 15.—Abyssinia's action in presenting its unusual battle documentation to the League of Nations and styling it "Italian aggression" was described by a government spokesman today as creating a serious situation.

As a consequence, the spokesman said, the Italian government is considering taking a definite step in addition to filing a reply at Geneva. He would not indicate what this step would be but intimated that it might be concerned with sanctions over the undefined Somaliland-Abyssinian frontier.

Italy would also insist, the office source said, that there be an immediate delineation of the frontier by a joint Italian-Abyssinian commission.

The action of Addis Ababa in taking the controversy to Geneva signifies the Ethiopian government has assumed responsibility for the clash, the spokesman said. Previously, he said, Italy had been inclined to believe the battle was precipitated only by a local Abyssinian chieftain.

Appeal to League

Geneva, Dec. 15.—A new international controversy, involving Italy and Abyssinia, commanded the attention of the League of Nations today.

A telegram from the Ethiopian government informed the League of "the gravity of the situation" existing along the frontier between Italian Somaliland and Ethiopia.

It referred to "the aggression of the Italians" but made no appeal for action under any article of the League covenant.

Geneva officials said copies of the Abyssinian communication would be distributed to members of the league. Since no appeal was made, they indicated it was unlikely any immediate specific action would result.

However, it was considered probable the situation would come before the League Council when it assembles January 11 in preparation for the Saar Basin territory plebiscite two days later.

The message to the League, signed by the foreign minister of Emperor Haile Selassie's government, blamed Italian frontier garrisons for two recent frontier clashes.

HITLER'S TRAIN HITS AUTOBUS AND 14 DIE

German Leader Raises Hand in Salute to the Dead

Berlin, Dec. 15.—Shaken by the tragic collision between his special train and an autobus which cost the lives of fourteen persons and imperiled his own, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler returned to his duties in the chencellory today.

Blinded by fog, the driver of the bus drove through lowered crossing gates near Verden into the path of the speeding express. Thirteen of the vehicle's occupants, all of whom were members of a traveling theatrical troupe, were killed instantly. Another died in a hospital.

Seven of the actors were under treatment for severe injuries.

The accident occurred as Hitler was returning from ceremonies at Bremen in connection with the christening of a new 18,000-ton North German Lloyd Liner.

As soon as he was apprised of what had happened, the Reichsfuehrer left his car, walked back along the track nearly a mile and lifted his hand in the Nazi salute over the bodies of the dead strewn over the right of way. Hitler joined members of the train crew in helping to pick up the scattered remains.

FOUND INJURED IN DITCH

London, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP) — Stewart McGaw 21, of Dutton, is in Victoria Hospital here, his condition reported as serious after having been found early this morning in the ditch at the side of No. 2 Highway near Melbourne. McGaw's spine is said to have been badly injured. Although details of the mishap were not immediately available, it was believed that he was the victim of a hit and run driver.

TORONTO MINES (Close)

Toronto, Dec. 15.—Prices dropped moderately lower in the closing session of the week on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Profit-taking on the week's advance was in evidence in God's Lake, Little Long Lac, San Antonio, Coniaurum, Central Patricia, McKenzie and some of the other golds and these sold off.

Hollinger opened at $19.30, up 5 cents and sold down to $19.10, off 15c net, before the close. The market for Bralorne, Dome and Lake Shore firmed, mainly for broken lots and Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves maintained their position. Teck was the most active.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Dec. 15 (CP)— The stock market, as a whole, backed and filled rather listlessly in today's brief session. Scattered specialties accounted for most of the activity while the usual leaders duplicated their recent performances by milling about in a narrow range. The close was fairly steady. Transfers approximated 450,000 shares.

RECOVERS FROM ILLNESS

Ottawa, Dec. 15 (CP)—Sir Robert Borden, Canada's war time Prime Minister, was reported today to have practically recovered from an illness which confined him to his home for a few days.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Dec. 15—(CP)—Trading interest tapered off sharply on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange for a wind up of the week and prices were inclined moderately towards the down side. A little selective buying was still in evidence and this action tilted Ford of Canada to a new high for the year at 26 1-2.

Buying eased off abruptly in the liquor shares with the whole group standing unchanged. Other issues of the interlisted group were off narrowly. Including Brazilian, C. P. R. and Nickel. The Steel of Canada shares as well as Canada Dredge, Wirebound Box and Bruck Silk were arrayed on the up side.

BOARD ROOM GOSSIP

GYPSUM LIME & ALABASTINE

While the general prospects are better and earnings for the current year should show a fair gain over last year in two respects the company's position is handicapped. Sinking Fund payments on 5 1-2 p.c. first mortgage bonds have been in default for nearly two years as the amount due on March 1, 1933, was not paid—nor has any amount been set aside since for this purpose. In connection with interest on bonds payment was made in Canadian funds only on Sept. 1, 1933 and since despite the three-way option. The payment made Sept. 1, 1934, with premium existing at the time of the Canadian dollar naturally would stir up no feeling of protest on the part of U. S. holders. The Sterling pay feature however, is more variable in its advantages at times being more favorable than Canadian pay and at other times of less values.

NEWSPRINT PRODUCTION

With the exception of May newsprint production of Dominion Mills in November reached best level of any month to date this year. The output for last month at 240,869 was over 24 p.c. above the same month last year while for the 11 month-period of this year production shows an increase of 28 p.c. over that in same period last year. The question of prices continues a bugbear of the industry although recent efforts seem to offer reasonable assurance that a higher level will be achieved for 1935.

LITTLE LONG LAC

Financial Service—The mill in operation since Nov. 26 during the perod between Nov 26, and Dec. 8, millheads have averaged about .85 ozs gold per ton. It thus appears that company's estimate of ore reserves and values as put out last summer were quite conservative. It was then estimated values would run between .65 and .70 ozs of gold per ton.

No recent official estimate of reserves has been given out but it is safe to assume that well over 225,000 tons have been proved. With annual producton at rate of 72,000 ton when mill is running at full capacity indicated reserves are equal to 3 1-2 years.

The mill is currently treating around 170 tons a day and it is expected that by Christmas it will be running at its capacity of 200 tons every 24 hours.

OUTLOOK

Gold shares in a spotty movement and Ford as industrial leader dominated Friday's trading. For the bulk of the day junior golds along with Hollinger and Wright Hargreaves dominated the day and towards the close of the session New York showed a new interest in such stocks as Dome, McIntyre and Lake Shore. The movement was not general. For instance Bralorne which should place favorably in any gold race actually lost ground.

New York attributes the New York gold interest to inflation talk. The movement is to be classed as a rally or as some say a false start. It looks like an opportunity to take long delayed profits. With the holidays close at hand the odds are substantially in favor of a drifting market and lower prices. Today's opening indifferent tone firm. Prices may move up before session ends but do not look as if it will go far.

Mill Ready in January

The mill housing at Great Bear Lake property of Eldorado Gold Mines is completed and it is expected the machinery will be installed and mill ready to commence operations in January, 1935, according to E. J. Walle, the manager of the mine who has returned to Toronto from the property.

Sinking below the first adit levels has been commenced with a depth of 250 feet as objective and two new levels will be opened. The company has purchased a 2-ton Bellanca air cruiser to go into commission next month.

OLIN DUTRA IS GOLF CHAMPION

Wins Miami Tourney And Turns to Higher Laurel

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14.—Olin Dutra, victorious in the Miami Biltmore open golf tournament, turned toward the new $5,000 British Colonial open today in search of more golfing laurels.

Dutra beat back the challenge of the "stay at home" pros and is richer by $1,200 for upholding the prestige of the touring professionals.

Mike Turnest of Elmsford, N.Y., one of the players who seldom participate in a major competition, was second at 294 for the 72 holes, two strokes behind the United States open champion. He collected $1,000 for leading the second division.

Two of the half dozen Canadians competing squeezed into the lower prize winning brackets. Andy Kay, Toronto club swinger, finished with a 306 total in the second division and won $79 while Jules Huot of Quebec wound up with 305 and $83.

DR. KENNEDY A RUGBY STAR

(From London Free Press)

Dr. E. G. N. "Kewpie" Kennedy, twice captain of the Western rugby team and a graduate in medicine from the local university has completed a fellowship in surgery at Victoria Hospital and will leave tomorrow (Friday, Dec. 14) for Belleville where he will set up practice in partnership with Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health in the Ontario Government.

Dr. Kennedy was one of Western's best known graduates, having not only an enviable record in academic work but being a favorite on the rugby squad for which he played for eight years. He was captain of the Western Intermediates of 1927 which won the championship and again the captain of the senior squad in 1930. As a player he was outstanding and contributed much to the success of the Western team when they jumped to senior ranks.

A native of Sarnia, Dr. Kennedy received his education in public schools and collegiate there. He entered the University of Western Ontario in 1925 and graduated with a B.A. degree and continued to graduate in medicine in the class of '32.

After his graduation he served as interne in Toronto Western Hospital for one year and then in 1933 returned to the city as senior interne in surgery at Victoria Hospital. He then was awarded a fellowship in surgery at Victoria which he has just completed.

Dr. Kennedy is a member of Alpha Kappa Kappa fraternity and was president of that fraternity for one year.

CITY LEAGUE OPENS TUES.

Mayor Tice to Face The Puck in Opening Game

Four of the seven clubs comprising the Belleville City Hockey League will swing into action next Tuesday night at the Belleville Arena in the initial double header of the season when the South End A. C. meets the 20th Century Club in the opening tilt with the Aajmaa Club pucksters clashing with Walker Grills' "Mechanics" in the night-cap affair. Extensive plans for the inauguration of Canada's national game in Belleville for the season of 1934-35 are being laid by the league executive with opening ceremonies, the presentation of door prizes and other features that will mark the opening of the current hockey season and stamp it as a local major sport.

Mayor G. O. Tice will officially open the season by facing the puck while at the end of the first period in the second game of the night's double header the grand drawing for the door prize will be made at centre ice, thus assuring the pastime of a personal touch. President Harry Rollins called a special meeting of the league executive last evening when final arrangements for the grand opening of the Belleville City Hockey League were made. In order that the league might enjoy neutral officials, six sport-inclined citizens were named as goal judges and timekeepers for the season. Those to be picked by the executive were H. G. Woodley, Cy Young, D. Batchelor, Art Seymour, Ken Edgecombe and Jack Allin. Others may later be added. Neutral referees have also been appointed and will work under the supervision of an appointed referee-in-chief. The dual referee system was adopted for the opening games with two officials being in charge on the ice.

The local hockey season will be officially opened when the S.E.A.C. tangle with the 20th Century Club. The "south enders" have a young team of pucksters signed and includes such players as Pointer, Pete Goyer, Ted Henn, Bill and Jack Pepper, two products of the local Ki-Y League, and George High, while a couple of well known veterans to settle down the youngsters are also included. The 20th Century Club, managed by Gordie Davidson, has gathered together a team of speedsters and should hold their own in the loop. Gordie Davies will guard the twine and will be defended by Matthews, Folwell and Culhane. That local veteran puckster, Johnnie Baker, will lead the forwards into battle, closely followed by Rene St. Denis, Belleville's tricky wingman, and his brother Leo. Cross and Henn are two other excellent players while manager Davidson expects to spring a surprise with two dark horses when the game starts.

The second game or night-cap affair on Tuesday should prove a thriller when the league champion Grills Garage sextette meets up with Grant Ashley's Aajmaa team. Walker Grills has the cream of the crop on paper when he stole a march on all other clubs in signing Rube Buskard as his net custodian. Buskard will be defended by Bill Henn, Ethier and Day. On the front line the Canning twins, Jack and Henry will lead the parade with the McGuire brothers, Freddie and Jimmie following closely. Cy Barriage will make plays at centre with Hap Day and Jim Semark along the boards. The Aaajmaa squad is an unknown quantity as they stole a march on all clubs to sign three O.B.C. students who hail from Quebec and have played in the junior Q.A.H.A. Manager Ashley signed three goalies with Scopis, Hinton and Slemin all battling for that position. Blaker, Buskard and Alexander will take care of the rear guard work with Thorne, Jones, McDonald and three other forwards doing the sharp shooting. All four teams in the loop will hold practises over the week-end in preparation for the gala opening of the season on Tuesday night at the Belleville Arena.

Both Stewart and Klein Will Lineup With Respective Teams

Injuries Secured on Thursday Not Enough to Lay Them Off

While Frank Calder, big time hockey's czar, ponders fitting punishment for the principals in the slashing duel at New York Thursday, both big Nels Stewart and Dede Klein were reported sufficiently recovered from their injuries today to take part in week-end games.

Klein, who suffered a four-inch head wound and dislocated shoulder when Stewart crashed his stick down on him, will line up with Americans tonight when they take on the task National League teams are far from fond of these days—playing Toronto Leafs. If he is still in good condition after that Joe Simpson probably will use him on Sunday night against Red Wings in Detroit.

Stewart, who is nursing an eight-inch cut on the forehead, will play for Boston Sunday against Rangers in New York unless Calder takes action before then to suspend the Bruin. Frank Patrick also will have Red Jackson whom he got from the Americans in a trade for Happy Emms and Obs Heximer, in uniform.

Americans are the only team to play two games over the week-end and if they are good enough to beat both Leafs and Wings can take second place from Montreal Maroons—if Tommy Gorman's team lose to Black Hawks in Chicago Sunday.

Hawks and Bruins will be trying to break their tie for American section leadership in their games against Maroons and Rangers. Lester Patrick will test out his new goalie, Dave Kerr whom he bought from Maroons, in the Bruin-Ranger affair.

The poor, low-flying St. Louis Eagles play Canadiens in Montreal tonight in the fifth game of the week-end. It will be their second start under George Boucher's management. In the first Thursday Detroit beat them 11-2.

Schedule For Group One 'A' Is Adopted

Intermediate O.H.A. hockey will be ushered into Belleville on Jan. 8, 1935, when the Cobourg team inaugurate the Canadian winter pastime in group No. 1 of the intermediate "A" series. ELECTED FOURTH BALLOT

Ottawa, Dec. 15. — H. S. Arkell, Britannia Heights, former Dominion Livestock Commissioner, was chosen Liberal candidate in Carleton county in the next federal elections at the Carleton County Liberal Association's convention.

Mr. Arkell was chosen only on the fourth ballot after one of the most prolonged political conventions ever held in the county, which ended shortly after three o'clock this morning. He defeated Charles McCurry, of Ottawa on the final vote after Huntley M. Sinclair, South March, had been eliminated on the third ballot, and William Gourlay of Carp, had dropped on the initial ballot.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

A recent O.B.A.A. bulletin issued from the office of Secretary Bill Snyder sets a precedent in the annals of amateur sport in Ontario. The O.B.A.A. came out and definitely stated that in the future players who have registered with the O.B.A.A. and who are in the habit of departing for distant points to play hockey in the winter months, will find it impossible to secure playing cards for baseball in the future. Baseball players in the O.B.A.A. find the governing body much more severe and drastic than in hockey annals. With the present Maritime Mercantile League tangle on their hands, the C.A.H.A. would be well advised to take a page of the O.B.A.A. book, that is if they really desire to clean up the hockey situation throughout Canada.

While on the subject of baseball we happened to run into Raymond Carr, newly appointed president of the Belleville Nationals who informs us that Harry Drew who refused the office of secretary treasurer of the local baseball club at their annual meeting has reconsidered his decision and accepted that post for another season. With Carr at the helm and Harry as his secretary the Belleville Nationals once again carry an air of railroadism, as in the days of the old Grand Trunk. When the local baseball team was operated by railway mentors, 'way back in the good old days of the C.O.B.L., a mighty powerful team was fielded in Belleville and it is hoped that the present executive can duplicate the accomplishments of their predecessors. Already there have been three well-known baseball players from outside points visit Belleville in quest of work. All of these ball hawks are unemployed at the present and would add considerably to the prowess of the local club another season. Dame Rumour tells us that Dean Ford, leading shortstop in the C.O.B.L. in 1934, is slated for a move and will appear on the sandlots of Toronto next summer. Then there is the story that Jack Williams, local leading pitcher, is packing bag and baggage for parts unknown. (Ed. Note: Williams will hurl in Eastern Ontario, we hear.) In the face of all these, and other tales to the effect that Peterboro and Kingston are strengthening up, should start the baseball hoop rolling in Belleville mighty soon.

Jim Londos, wrestling champion, is the wealthiest active living athlete of any generation, being well up in the millionaire class. His earnings for this year will amount to more than $500,000.

President Charlie King of the International Hockey League is having his own troubles this season. It seems the clubs composing the I.H.L. agreed to carry two players of no previous professional experience, but to date only two teams in the loop have adhered to this ruling, they being Windsor and Syracuse. No club in the loop is supposed to carry over nine players with more than three years of professional experience in the monied ranks, two unnamed clubs are violating this rule, it was stated by the president yesterday. A showdown will be called for at a league meeting to be held next week.

With the termination of the girls' basketball group schedule in the Bay of Quinte section recently there will be no further games for girls at the Collegiate until they enter the C.O.S.S.A. at Toronto in March. The group winners are Trenton juniors and the Collegiate seniors. It seems too bad that the girls are forced to play their games in early autumn and then rest until spring before the winners can compete in the playdowns. In the boys' section the schedule is not opened until after the New Year, and then the teams are right in their stride when the playdowns start. Not so with the girls. It does not seem fair to the girls winning the Bay of Quinte championships.

The Belleville Arena will open its doors tonight (Saturday), public skating ushering in the winter pastime. Manager Redner announced today that a fine sheet of ice would be afforded the skaters but he expected a perfect sheet for the opening of the city hockey league on Tuesday when the South End Club meets the 20th. Century Club and the Aajmaa Club clashing with Walker Grills' "Mechanics" in the doubleheader. Up at the old curling rink last night the newly organized Quinte Skating Club held their opening, and a good number of skaters and interested onlookers were present. The Belleville Skating Club will re-organize for the season at the Arena on Monday night, a bulletin states.

Before the game in New York against Rangers on November 28, Manager Newsy Lalonde promised the players of the French club that, if they won, he would walk ten blocks at noon on Broadway, wearing a hat that is a duplicate of Charlie Chaplin's screen bowlers. Canadiens won 3-2, and Lalonde paid off, to the riotous mirth of New York crowds.

BENGALS WIN IN TORONTO

Score is 5-4 While Oakville Defeats Port Colborne

Victory roar of the mighty Hamilton Tigers was still heard in Toronto today as the Bengals, back in the mountain lair, boasted a victory that gave them a three-point advantage in the O.H.A. senior race over Torontos, the team that handed them a severe lacing in jungletown last week.

Tigers, champions of the O.H.A. last season, staged one of their spectacular last-period rushes in the Queen City last night after trailing by two goals and handed Joe Primeau's lads a 5-4 reverse. It was Torontos' first seasonal loss.

In the only other scheduled senior "A" tilt, Port Colborne renewed their winless feud with Oakville Villans, O.H.A. intermediate kings last season, and skated off their home ice smarting from a 5-2 setback. The sailors have yet to taste victory this season, although they've tied two games. The win tied the Villans with Torontos for the second top rung of the standing.

Liscombe Scores Three

A sharp-shooting young man from Galt was the big reason for the Hamilton win. He was Carl Liscombe who scored three goals and made the play for another. His last two goals were the tying and winning tallies. Maxie Bennett and Toe Blake who flank Liscombe on the forward line, got the other two Tiger tallies.

Torontos led 2-0 at the end of the second session on smart goals by Normie Mann and Johnny Acheson. Layton Boyle and Russell Bowman, who garnered his first goal of the season, were the other scorers for the all-stars.

At Port Colborne the sailors were "all wet" when it came to scoring counters. They missed many opportunities when in close while the Villans showed a smooth-passing powerful attack. Wingman Peer with a pair of tallies, Pearcy Allen, Townsley and Sutcliffe hit the twine behind garrulous Dinty Moore in the Ports cage.

Centreman Mountain, who has been used but sparingly for the last two hockey years, scored the first goal for the Sailors. Dunn got the other.

HUNGARIAN GIPSY IS A REFUGEE

Charges Yugoslavs Refuse Him Permission to Take Children

Budapest, Dec. 15.—A new group of 26 Hungarians, expelled from Yugoslavia, reached Szeged to-day the Hungarian news agency stated, bringing the total to 1,949.

Yugoslavia explained the expulsions as due to labor conditions and to reasons of domestic security. The measure was a direct consequence of the recent Yugoslav - Hungarian flurry over the Marseille assassinations of King Alexander and Foreign Minister Barthou. Following the League Council settlement of the dispute Yuglslavia was reported to have stopped the expulsions.

Some of the new arrivals said they had served in the Yugoslav army while a gypsy reported that he was not permitted to take his two young children along.

C. N. BAKER IS PRESIDENT BOWLING CLUB

Stirling Organization Reports Successful Year

Stirling, Dec. 14.—Mr. C. N. Baker was unanimously chosen as president of the Stirling Men's Lawn Bowling Association for the new year 1935 at the annual meeting of that association held last evening. This is the second term that Mr. Baker has been elected to the office of president which speaks eloquently of his work in that office during his past year's tenure. The other members of the 1934 executive were likewise reinstated in their respective offices for the new year. The 1935 executive is as follows: President, Mr. C. N. Baker; vice-president, Mr. Ernest Munro; secretary, Mr. W. J. Whitty; treasurer, Mr. R. T. Dunlop. The various committees were also appointed and are made up as follows:

Grounds Committee—Mr. J. E. O'Donnell, chairman; Mr. Walter Wright; Dr. E. A. Carleton, Mr. Charles P. Linn and Mr. Fred Mallory.

Games Committee—Mr. W. J. Whitty, chairman; Mr. T. W. Solmes, Mr. R. W. Meiklejohn, Mr. C. R. Bastedo and Mr. H. R. Tompkins.

Dr. E. A. Carleton and Mr. T. W. Solmes received appointment as the official Club delegates to the Provincial Lawn Bowling Club's annual meeting which will be held in Toronto in a few weeks.

The main item of business of the meeting over which President C. N. Baker presided was, the election of officers. In his brief address at the opening of the meeting, President Baker pointed out in his brief resume of the year's work, just how successful the year's activities had been. The substantial debt which the Bowling Club had accumulated was very materially reduced and the year was, in every respect, most successful. With the same competent executive in office for the coming year, the Bowling Club will be assured of a most successful bowling season.

After an illness which extended over a brief two week period, the two year old infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Richardson, Frankford Road, Muriel passed away late on Monday evening. An infant sister also survives besides the sorrowing parents. The funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock with interment in Frankford Cemetery.

Mr. Douglas Foster of Benholm, Saskatchewan, was a Tuesday guest of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morrow, while paying an extended visit to relatives in Oshawa and district.

Mrs. Walter Wright was hostess on Tuesday evening to a number of lady friends at a delightful bridge. Two tables were played, Mrs. W. H. Pedley winning first prize of a beautiful vase and Mrs. J. S. Whitehead, the consolation prize, a novelty ash-tray. The hostess then served a dainty luncheon to her guests.

The December meeting and social evening of the Anglican Men's Association which was re-organized last month and which was scheduled to be held on Wednesday evening was postponed until the New Year, it was decided at a meeting of that organization held on Sunday last.

Following the regular session of Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 and the regular meeting of the Stirling I.O.O.F. No. 239, last evening, the lodges assembled together to enjoy a social evening and honor the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Broadworth, both members of the respective afore-mentioned lodges.

Noble Grand Sister Edith Utman presided and called for the staging of the most uproarious mock wedding which the lodge had ever yet seen. To the strains of "Here Comes the Bride" played by Miss Mildred Elliott, Brother Sid Murphy entered the lodge rooms followed by a vast throng of persons heralding the arrival of the wedding party. This crowd was dressed in a variety of costumes depicting every walk of life. Enter the officiating clergyman, Brother Henry Farrell in clerical garb followed by the winsome bride, Brother Sam Elliott gowned in the traditional white with wreath and veil, the train of which extended for several yards behind him. The other players in this little drama were likewise garbed as befitted the occasion, the remainder of the cast being Sister Edith Utman as the best man, the obscure groom—Sister Gladys Elliott, the bride's attendant, Brother Percy Utman and the little flowergirls, Sister Mabel Megginson and Sister Cora Waller. The entire marriage ceremony was carried out following which, while the happy couple were receiving the best wishes of their friends, Miss Mina Carlisle rendered sweetly, "I wish I were single again."

This wedding scene made way for the entrance here of the young couple Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Broadworth (nee Freida Sine) whom the lodges were honoring on this occasion. The Noble Grand called Mr. and Mrs. Broadworth to the front while Sister Mabel Megginson read the following address:

HABEAS CORPUS MOTION IS LOST

Richardson Must Face Trial at London, Ontario

Montreal, Dec. 14 (CP)—Samuel A. Richardson must face trial at London, Ont., on a charge of conspiracy to defraud Western farmers in cattle shipments. Mr. Justice E. F. Surveyer today dismissed a habeas corpus application on behalf of the accused which sought to have the trial held here if at all.

Richardson's counsel stated he would appeal today's judgment.

The accusation against Richardson, President of the bankrupt Richelieu Corporation, was described during argument by Joseph Sedgewick, K.C. representing the Ontario Attorney- General's Department as follows:

"Farmers of Ontario entrusted the Richelieu Corporation to ship their cattle to England and Richardson, acting as consignee had no right or title to the money collected for their sale. At the time the conspiracy arose, the company was in an insolvent condition and Richardson used the money speculatively to meet accruing obligations."

The amount stated to be involved was between $40,000 and $50,000.

Richardson's counsel said there was no evidence of conspiracy and asked the charge be dismissed. If it were held that Richardson should face trial, counsel asked that he be tried in Montreal where he said there were about 40 witnesses ready to testify in his behalf.

SPANISH LEADER

Jose Calvo Sotello, former finance minister in Spain, is reported to be leading a move on the part of combined right wing elements in Spain for a coup which would leave them in power. Right wing spokesmen, responsible for the report, deny that the move is Fascist in character, although its program contains several features unmistakably Fascist in character. The plan is said to aim at a modified "corporate state" under which the Socialist party and other progressive elements would be outlawed. Labor unions would be represented in the Cortes.

'TRUNK MURDER' ACCUSED FREED

Dapper Waiter is Acquitted After 5 Day Trial

Lewes, England, Dec. 14—(CP)—The sensational trial of Tony Mancini in the "trunk murder" of Violet Kaye, professional dancer, ended in acquittal for the dapper waiter today. The trial began last Monday.

The acquittal climaxed one of England's most baffling crimes but left the identity of the slayer or slayers veiled in deepest mystery.

The decision followed a brilliant defence of Mancini by Norman Birkett noted criminal lawyer.

The jury reached its verdict in little more than two hours.

Parts of the body of Mrs. Violette Kaye also known as Mrs. Violette Saunders were found in a trunk which also contained members police said were those of another woman.

Mancini testified he placed the body in the trunk but denied he had slain the woman. He said he found Mrs. Kaye dead in bed on returning home from work. She had been beaten to death he testified.

He said he disposed of the body because he feared he would not receive fair treatment from the police.

Mr. Morley Haggerty Haggerty was the chairman and Mr. Chester Sills was secretary for the meeting. Mr. Geo. Cooke, president of the organization, gave a detailed statement of the year's proceedings dealing chiefly with the advisability of joining the cheese patrons' association. Melville Donnan, Morley Haggerty, Samuel Fargey, Samuel Donnan, Donald Haggerty and Chris Ashley are the Board of Directors and Mr. Chester Sills was elected secretary-treasurer. Mr. C. Mr. Bailey was re-elected secretary. The board of directors elected were Messrs. Harold McGee, Arthur Juby, A. Heath, Raymond Chambers and Clarence Fitchitt. Those securing milk routes were Milton Read, Hiram Ashley, Harold McGee, Oliver Stapley, George McGowan and Henry Burrell. ADMITS WEDDING WITH DAUGHTER

Wive's Inquiry Leads to Arrest and Conviction at Portland, Maine

Portland, Me., Dec. 14 (AP)—Frederick J. Smith, 45, of Nashua, N.H., pleaded guilty in Municipal Court today to a charge of marrying his own daughter. Probable cause was found and bail set at $10,000. He was held for Superior Court.

Smith, an army corporal at Fort Williams in nearby Cape Elizabeth, was arrested yesterday following a police investigation growing out of a request to Chief of Police Ralph D. Brooks in which Mrs. Mary Louise Smith of Nashua sought assistance in locating her 20 year old daughter.

The daughter, Ruth T. Smith, was taken by her father to Dover, N.H., in 1927, and the two were married there, Police Inspector Albert M. Thomsen testified at the arraignment today.

Thomsen said Smith and his daughter were parents of a three year old child.

Police said Smith, when first questioned, told a "fantastic" tale to the effect that he was the exact "double" of Frederick J. Smith, the girl's father, and that he had taken Smith's place in real life after his imaginary "Buddy" had been killed during the Great War.

Police said Smith confessed marrying his daughter after they had pointed out discrepancies in his story.

$10,900 ACCOUNT SUBJECT OF SUIT

Bank Account of Capt. Hatfield May Be Attacked

Newark, N.J., Dec. 14.—(CP)—In an effort to permanently attach a $10,900 bank account maintained in a local institution by Captain Freeman Hatfield retired Nova Scotian mariner, the Canadian Government has brought suit in Circuit Court here.

Captain Hatfield is now in prison in Manchester, N.H., awaiting extradition to Canada on a charge of fraudulently obtaining a reparations payment of $72,276.72 from the Canadian Government.

Captain Hatfield obtained the payment by claiming that his three-master freighter, the Gypsum Queen, was sunk by a German torpedo off the coast of Ireland on July 31, 1915.

The Dominion authorities later charged the ship had gone down during a storm and a two-year search by members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for the 73-year-old captain, who retired after collecting the payment, led to his arrest near Manchester early this month.

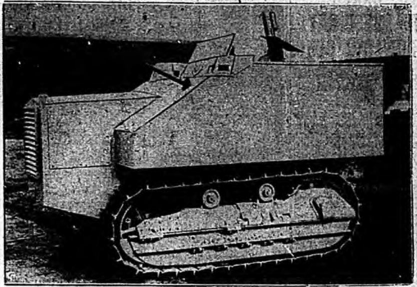
IN PEACE, A TRACTOR; IN WAR A DEADLY WEAPON



This is a tractor-tank. Two hours before this photograph was made it was a humble farm tractor. Its accessories attached, it is now a deadly implement of war, capable of sending forth raking machine gun and anti-aircraft fire and emitting murderous toxic gas. This is one of the wares peddled to various nations by Otto Kafka of New York, an Austrian by birth, though now an American citizen. Mr. Kafka is a dealer in the excellent armor plate with which his tractor-tank is protected. He also deals in scrap steel, pig iron, bullet proof garments and many other sundries which help aid a modern war, and if no war is forthcoming his wares are put to the foremost pursuit of peace time —farming.

MEMORIAL FOR LATE KING ALBERT

The attention of ex-service men of this district, as well as throughout Canada, is called to a proposal being made for the establishment of a Memorial to the late King Albert of Belgium, as a tribute to his work in the Allied cause by those who served with the B.E.F. or the C.E.F. in Flanders.

It is suggested that the great Rose Window of the main south entrance of the restored cathedral at Ypres be filled with stained glass of British design and make to honor his memory. The artist selected by the committee is Miss Geddes, whose work in Canada is well known.

All services, both permanent and non-permanent, are given the opportunity to subscribe. For Belleville and district, Captain-Paymaster Arthur S. Quick of the Argyll Light Infantry will accept all subscriptions addressed to the Customs House in the local Post Office. A ten-cent contribution from all ranks below Staff Sergeants and Warrant Officers is suggested.

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP)—Twenty-five Ontario prisoners will be released from custody in time to spent Christmas at their homes, Hon. H. C. Nixon, acting Premier and Provincial Secretary announced today. These men have all been sentenced for breaches of the Liquor Control Act. The government has no power to release men jailed on other charges, Mr Nixon said.

The stay sought would be in effect only pending the outcome of Mrs Vanderbilt's appeal from Justice Carew's decision.

GILDING THE LILY

CHAPTER TEN

Vera and Amy knew their duty to their new sister-in-law. By the end of the week invitations had gone out for a dinner party to introduce the latest Mrs. Carter.

"Eleven, we're asking. That's enough, don't you think?" Judy heard Vera ask this one morning. Judy was coming down the stairs. The others were gathered in the small breakfast room off the hall.

"It's up to you girls," Stan's voice answered.

"I think, at first, it will be best for Judith to meet people a few at a time. She seems a little—well, a little shy, perhaps," came Mrs. Carter's voice.

The cheeks of the girl descending the stairs were hot and pink. Had her shyness —her homesickness—been mistaken for awkwardness?

"I'm asking the—the old crowd, Stan." This was Amy. "And I wanted to ask you—well you see, it's sort of awkward if I don't ask them all. I wondered if you'd especially mind if I asked——"

"Ask any one you like!" put in Stan's voice harshly. "And, for G——'s sake, don't pester me with details!"

There was an expressive pause, filled only with the rustle of the paper as Stan angrily turned over a leaf. Judy could imagine Vera and Amy exchanging meaningful glances. What was Stan so angry about?

There was still a scowl on his face when she went into the breakfast room; Stan was in one of his black moods.

The days leading up to the party were brimming for Judy —hectic days, filled with a sort of feverish excitement, if not with happiness.

With Mrs. Carter and Vera, she had been driven up to San Francisco to be fitted for an evening dress. Vera, it was, who with her mother had taken upon herself the task of gilding the lily. Amy was frankly not interested in any clothes which were not intended for herself. Amy had her own group of intimates and lived her life in a whirl of bridge luncheons and dinner dances. She had no time for a provincial sister-in-law.

Vera had made room for Judy's supervision, in the midst of her innumerable committee meetings and golf games. Judy would have been more grateful for this if she had not shrewdly suspected that it was not personal interest in her which prompted Vera's attention. It was not Judy herself who could command Vera Carter's time—it was the fact that Judy was now a Carter, and, as such, must be carefully groomed that she be a credit to the house of Carter.

It was Vera who entered the bedroom a couple of days after Judy's arrival and sat her stocky figure down in one of the great leather arm chairs.

"Let's see what you have to wear, Judy," she commanded. And Judy obediently showed her wardrobe.

Vera sat and sucked her lower lip reflectively, and Judy felt that her poor homemade things had lost caste in those sharp black eyes.

"Those hats aren't bad....You made them yourself? Well you HAVE got a knack. But the evening thing are blah. You'll have to get something with more style. Madame Esmee could turn you out something. She makes Amy's things and my own."

"But Stan said — you see, we're trying to save——" Judy wondered if she dare tell Vera about that plan for saving to get a little apartment of their own. She wanted to confide in this older sister of Stan, but she was a little afraid of her sharpness.

"Save — tommyrot! Stan Carter never saved a penny in his life. He doesn't know the meaning of the word. If you save and stint on yourself it'll only be so Stan can join a more expensive golf club. Don't be a fool, Judy! Stan would want you to be a credit to him when you meet his friends."

That had turned the trick. Judy had put in a weary hectic day in the city being fitted for new clothes in Madame Esmee's exotic salon.

And coming back in the car, bowling along the highway to Lockwood, Judy was both appalled and thrilled. It was an ordeal shopping with Mrs. Carter. The dear lady seemed never to know her own mind from one moment to the next. Did he shop for a yellow dress, she was certain to have her plans upset by a blue one. Did she order roses from the florists, by the time the man had them cut and boxed she discovered she infinitely preferred violets. It was owing to the steam-crusher tactics of Vera that anything at all was accomplished.

But, in the light of the delectable costume Madame Esmee was making for her, Judy knew she had been right to get a new dress. Stan would be proud of her. This new gown did make her old white lace of Summerfield days look stringy and undistinguished.

It came two days before the dinner party in a big, vari-colored box bearing Madame Esmee's smart, slashing signature across the cover. A glorious creation of maize moire, startling in its very simplicity.

Judy found herself thinking of the dinner party with an inner shaking excitement. An excitement out of all proportion to a mere dinner. She was meeting Stan's world. She must hold her own; must make him proud of her. Oh, he must be proud of her! She wouldn't want to live without Stan's love and approval. For two days now he had been fighting one of his black moods. When he was in one of them, she knew that he suffered. "I have a hell of a disposition, Judy," he said which was the nearest Stan Carter ever came to an apology. It quenched her resentment; made her wholly anxious to help and please him.

On the morning of the dinner dance Stan left the house early with his golf sticks.

"But Stan, dear, you won't be delayed? You'll get back here in time to dress for dinner. You know they'll be here by eight——"

Stan's handsome dark face had flushed with anger. "I said I'd be here" he said curtly. "For G——'s sake, Mother, let me alone——"

He flung himself in the car and slammed in the gears, roaring down the driveway in a cloud of blue smoke from the exhaust.

The table was set in the dining room for eleven covers. Rich lace table-cloth over green satin. Gold plate and black glassware. Yellow jonquils in shallow black bowls. Tall daffodil tapers in long black glass holders. It had taken Judy's breath when she peeked in at it, late in the afternoon.

Judy lay in her darkened bedroom, trying to sleep. But she was too excited. She lay with closed eyes, and excitement, delight nervous fear surged over her in turn. Impossible that she had been the girl who worked in the Summerfield library all day long.... coming home at night to help Aunt Hetty clean house or sew upon her own simple wardrobe. Going to the movies with Rosamond—or to a small party at another girl's house.... How life had changed. How complex it was getting.

Vera came to rouse her to tell her it was time to dress and one look at Vera's compressed lips and drawn brows told Judy that something had happened.

"It's that Nick!"——A hot, dull flush showed on Vera's broad face. "He's come home! Of all the inconvenient times to pick to walk in on us! He's the most inconsiderate thing on earth!"

So Stan's half-brother had come home, thought Judy, as she dressed. Nick, the family tyrant had come back. She found indignation rising in her own heart. It was horrid that he had to come back the night of her party. She hoped she would not see him.

The long pier glass gave back a vision in creamy yellow. In some subtle way the dress brought out a demure old-fashioned charm about Judy. Out of the suggestion of sleeves rose the soft, pure line of her shoulders, a line of gentle dignity. A strange touch of dignity, too, in the stiff softness of the moire folds of the skirt. "Judy Denning walks as straight as an Indian," was a saying often repeated back in Judy's home town, and the old-fashioned simplicity of the dress played up to this quaint stateliness. Clever Madame Esmee had seized upon the girl's secret charm and played up to it.

Eyes glowing, cheeks flushed with excitement; brown hair sweeping back from her white forehead in a soft, deep wave, Judy knew that she had never looked so well.

Stan's voice sounded from the doorway where he had stood, undetected, watching her.

"You're a darn presentable wench, Judy! I have a good mind to hug you until I muss that pretty new dress!"

His eyes were deep with approval; there was a faint, excited smile on his lips. Judy saw the black mood was gone, and a rush of relieved happiness came over her. Careless of the gorgeous new dress, she pressed close to him as he took her in his arms.

Stan dressed, they were going downstairs, together, when a voice halted them. Martha Madame Carter's maid, came heavily down after them.

"Oh, Mr. Stanley, Madame wanted to know if Miss Judy would come up to her room before she went down to dinner."

While Judy turned inquiringly to Stan, she heard him mutter something under his breath. "Oh, the devil—go ahead Judy. But make it snappy."

"But aren't you coming, too?"

His tone was ungracious "No. I'll be downstairs."

Judy followed Martha's broad figure up to the third story. This was the first time she had been to the quarters of the old autocrat. No one went there without an invitation.

Martha opened the door at the head of the stairs, ushered her into the room. Madame Carter was enthroned in a great stuffed chair. Sitting on a couch close by her was a man whom Judy had never before seen. A man whom Judy knew instinctively to be Stan's half brother—the hated Nick.

NICK

CHAPTER ELEVEN

He was as tall as Stan, this half brother Nick, and more powerfully formed. There was not an ounce of superfluous flesh on his long body, yet beside him Stan would seem a slim, elegantly formed boy. A brown whip cord of a man, this Nick. Brown hair, sunburned to a lighter shade on the crown; face weatherbeaten to a dark tan. His eyes were startlingly light in that dark face; eyes as sharp and grey as the eyes of the old woman in the chair beside him.

Judy felt that they were much alike in character these two. The same strong will. The same austereness of spirit. In her youth Madame Carter must have had the strongly marked features of the man. She felt that they had much of the same bodily vigor, that—providing his adventurous life did not snap the span—Nick Carter would live to just such vigorous old age.

"Ah, my dear!" Madame Carter spoke in her imperious old voice. "I sent Martha for you—I wanted to see you in your new gown." She waved a hand like carved ivory. "Stanley's wife, Nick. Her name's Judith."

The man had risen to his feet and at the curt introduction he held out his hand. Judy felt her own hand swallowed up in a firm, warm clasp. "How do you do, Judith. I think this makes you half a sister-in-law to me."

He had the white, hard teeth of Stan and a little individual trick of clenching them so they showed two even rows resting on each other when he smiled.

Judy thought of the venom in Vera's tone when she spoke of this man, thought of Stan's intense dislike, and she was bewildered. He had not the winning, flattering charm of Stan but she could not help feeling her heart warm to the quiet simplicity of his manner.

The old woman in the chair seemed waiting impatiently until formalities were over. She was always impatient with salutations. It was as though life had narrowed for her until she would waste time only on essentials.

Now her high old voice sounded: "Look, Nick! I've been saying for years that what this family needed was new blood. You wouldn't do your share and marry. Most astonishingly Stanley did! Never thought that good-looking idiot would have brains enough to pick out a nice, sensible girl like this! I think she'll do, don't you?"

A silent laugh in the grey eyes. His gaze bathed the girl in a warm bath of approval. "Oh I think she will most emphatically do Eliza."

The shriveled ivory hands waved the girl to a chair.

"Sit down. Sit down my dear. Don't stare at me so. I won't eat you I've already had my dinner!"

Truly enough a small tray with used dishes stood on a serving table beside her chair. Madame Carter had eaten her dinner at the usual hour almost a religious rite with her.

Now she waved to Martha to remove the tray and requested Nick to bring her favorite footstool—graciously as a queen might request.

Judy was lost in amazement. This was the first inkling she had that the formidable old lady liked her. Madame Carter had barely spoken directly to her; certainly she had not put herself out to make the girl welcome. Judy had noticed her watching her down the length of the dinner table but she had felt that there was contemptuous indifference in those sharp old eyes. Now she realized that the old autocrat was merely biding her own time, reserving judgment, ripening her conviction in private. The girl felt a tremulous gratitude in her heart. This old woman would not lightly give her approval. She had found a friend.

"A nice, honest child, Nick," Madame Carter was speaking vigorously. "I've watched her since she came here—they've fluttered about her and dug at her and tried to boss her and she's kept her head. She's as honest as you are, Nick!"

The man's eyes turned to the girl with that silent laugh in them again. "You may not realize it, young woman, but you've received highest praise. You've been compared to me —and Eliza will assure you herself that she is not in the least prejudiced!"

The old lady leaned over and hit him on the back of his hand with her spectacle case. "Make fun of me, will you, you bad boy! Go get in that devil's contraption you call your airship and fly away! I disown you!"

Of course, Nick was the man who sold airplanes Judy remembered. That explained the covert breeches, the high leather boots and the leather jacket flung over the back of a chair.

"Martha" Madame Carter hailed the maid as she came in. "Help me over to that chest. Where's the key? Stupid, I told you to put it in the blue ginger jar and it isn't here"!

The key was found, Martha's stocky form supported the frail old figure to a long cedar chest on the opposite side of the room.

"Well, how do you like the place, Judy?" Her name came easily from Nick's lips. The grey eyes were fastened quizzically upon her.

"I think it's lovely. Everyone has been very kind to me."

"I don't think they deserve any leather medals for that!"

Impossible to dislike this strong brown man! Why were the others so set against him?

Down the game trail Tarzan saw some antelope leaving the water. He shoved Petrovich into the bushes cautioned him to silence and hid beside him, waiting. In the dawning light the Red got his first good look at his unspeaking captor.

He saw the graceful limbs and the symmetrical body as the naked white savage crouched in the foliage. He saw the unsuspecting antelope come slowly along, downwind. Now a plump young buck came opposite the giant in ambush.

Petrovich's eyes went wide and a scream of terror broke from him at what he next witnessed. He saw the agile beast at his side spring straight for the antelope and heard from those human lips the hunting roar of a wild beast

Down went the buck. Tarzan and his prisoner had meat. Again the ytook up the march, doubly frightful to the Red because he knew not where it led. In silence the ape-man prodded his faltering prisoner along.

17 PERISH WHEN RESCUE ATTEMPT OF CREW IS MADE

15 Members of Usworth's Crew And 2 on Belgian Liner in List

11 MEMBERS RESCUED

Huge Wave Swamps Lifeboat as Crew Taken Off

Liverpool, Dec. 15 (AP)—Seventeen men perished during attempts to rescue the crew of the British freighter Usworth, as wild seas reduced the ship to a helpless hulk.

Advices to the Cunard-White Star Line from the liner Ascania said today, that 15 members of the Usworth's crew had been lost, along with two members of the crew of the Belgian liner Jean Jadot, which, with the Ascania, went to the rescue of the stricken freighter.

The master of the Ascania informed the Line, that 11 members of the freighter's crew had been rescued, nine by the Ascania and two by the Jean Jadot.

The Usworth was abandoned and was drifting helplessly east by southeast with a heavy list to port, The Ascania's message said.

Heroic attempts to rescue the helpless members of the Usworth's crew were described by Capt. Sadie Gonthier, master of the rescue ship Jean Jadot, in a wireless dispatch to the Associated Press.

Seas Roll Furiously

As the seas rolled furiously in a wild storm of hurricane force, the Jean Jadot launched a lifeboat carrying 10 members of her crew, who volunteered for the rescue attempt. The Ascania stood by pouring hundreds of tons of oil on the ocean's surface.

The Jean Jadot's boat finally came alongside the Usworth, Capt. Gonthier said, and started taking off her crew.

It was a perilous job, for the sea kept hurling the rescue boat against the Usworth's sides and the freighter's men were forced to slide down a line to reach the Jean Jadot's boat.

Eight men had been taken off the freighter, when a huge wave swamped the little boat and it became fouled in cargo derricks hanging over the side of the Usworth. The rescue boat edged away, rolling in the raging sea. Suddenly another big wave swept over the frail boat and it capsized with its 18 passengers plunging helplessly into the water.

The Jean Jadot rushed another boat over the side and managed to pick up eight of the 10 volunteers and two of the Usworth's crew.

The two men lost from the Jean Jadot were the fourth officer and another member of the crew.

The Ascania then launched a boat and took off other survivors, while the storm continued unabated.

Steering Gear Smashed

The Usworth was stricken helpless about 850 miles east of Newfoundland, when giant waves smashed her steering gear. She sent out calls for help and the Jean Jadot hurried to her assistance. The Belgian liner managed to get lines aboard the Usworth and was endeavorng to tow the helpless boat to safety, when the storm tore the two vessels apart and for ten hours they were separated.

Then came an S.O.S. appeal from the Usworth, that her situation was precarious and that the crew must be taken off. The Jean Jadot and the Ascania arrived to start their rescue work with its tragic results. Details regarding the deaths of the other seven victims were not contained in the dispatch from the Ascania.

The Ascania reported it had taken the following survivors on board: Captain Reed, James Ellerington, Kenneth Gray, Harold Bottomley, John Rourke, Frederick Andrews Abdul Misca, Said Rasul and Rizivan Rasul.

Those taken aboard the Jean Jadot were identified as Joseph Bray, A. Cade and Waris Khan.

The Ascania, due in Halifax Monday, reported weather conditions were very bad.

Boat Listed 25 Degrees

Newcastle, Dec. 15:—(AP)— The story of the British Steamer Usworth's battle with a fierce gale Thursday night was described in a radio message from the S. S. Ascania received here today by the Bagliesh Shipping Company.

The vessel's No. 2 hatch was stove in by tremendous seas, the message said, its combing severely strained and all boats washed away. The decks of the stricken steamer were strewn with wreckage.

The ship listed 25 degrees as its holds filled with water, the Ascania reported. Its Master decided to abandon the vessel Friday after it had settled perilously low in the water.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"College Rhythm" Six-Star Musical Comedy opens here Monday

Plop! Right down on the tail-end of a stirring football season comes Paramount's Six-star musical comedy hit "College Rhythm," now at the Belle theatre, to show just what can be done with football, properly mixed with girls, music, Joe Penner and a whole bevy of Paramount stars.

Appearing in his first featured picture, Joe Penner, together with Goo-Goo and his famous floppy hat, is supported by a cast that includes Jack Oakie, Lanny Ross, Helen Mack, Mary Brian and Lydia Roberti.

College Rivals

The story opens with "Love and kisses" Finnegan, (Jack Oakie) streaking up the field with state's winning touchdown, while Mary Brian exults and Lanny Ross, who plays a piccolo in the band, burns. Both the boys are in love with Mary.

Their college feud is carried over into the business world when the two boys, together with Penner, keeper of the team's mascot duck, go to work in Stacey's department store. Chuck full of ideas from their college training, they begin to transform the store and what a job they do!

Before they're finished, staid and decorious institution is transformed into a college jamboree with banners, chorus girls, bands and a real football team.

Naturally their competitors follow suit, even down to the football team. And soon the Stacey team is challenged by the Whimples to a game for the individual store's honor.

This game is the highspot of the picture. Under the direction of Jim Thorpe, one of the all-time heroes of the national game, and with stars recruited from the coast's elevens, the film presents a contest that will start your heart throbbing and bring you to your feet to cheer.

Loves Another Girl

After the game, Lanny Ross discovers that it is his little secretary, Helen Mack, whom he has loved all the time, and Oakie now free to propose to Mary Brian, becomes his most valued friend.

Every department of the picture, girls, music, comedy, have been so well executed that there is never a dull moment in the entire film.

The comedy scenes between Penner and Lydia Roberti, musical comedy sensation are excruciatingly funny. Ross's singing of the bevy of brand new Gordon-Revel hits is even better than his radio performances, and you know how good, they are. And Jack Oakie turns in a sparkling comedy performance.

And lest we forget—score another hit for Norman Taurog, ace Paramount director. He smacked the bull's eye with "College Rhythm."

Excellent Shorts

An excellent program of short gems is announced for exhibition with the above entertaining feature attraction, including "Our Gang" in a highly amusing comedy "The First Round Up," the Belle Latest News of the World, and "Old Pioneer" a delightful screen oddity all in full beautiful Technicolor.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Power"

Lavish New Film Sensation

Of the $500,000 spent in the making of "Power", the superb screen spectacle from the story by Lion Feuchtwanger, coming to the Capitol Theatre on Monday, $100,000 of it went into some of the most lavish costumes and period decorations used in the history of picture making anywhere in the world.

The events in the life of "Josef Suss Oppenheimer" played by Conrad Veidt, and recorded in this magnificent film, occurred between the year of 1730 and 1738, when the pompous influence of Louis XIV was still felt in Europe, and courtiers and ladies-in-waiting affected the dress of the most glorious period in the history of Versailles.

The biographer of Suss informs us that "His dress was rich and of fashionable elegance; in fact his tailor bills from September 1736, to January 1737, were no less than 55: Gulden," a lot of money in those days. Many of the ancient dandy's favorite costumes have been copied for Conrad Veidt including the one he is said to have liked the best; an ample skirted gold-braided coat in stag-brown velvet. Another of the suits made for Mr. Veidt is of moire, heavily embroidered in front cuffs and back with elaborate scrollwork in silver and diamonds.

Benita Hume as the Duchess Marie Auguste of Wurttemberg, wears one gown of cream satin so stiff and fine, that the skirt will stand without support. It has a close fitting pointed bodice, and full skirt over the fashionable paniers. From the shoulders hangs a "Sacque" of brocade,—a cream satin ground with flowers and leaves in reds, blues, greens, pinks and purples. Her State dress is of gold brocade worn with the Court mantle of blue velvet and ermine.

All the ladies of the Court wear strikingly beautiful and costly costumes and powdered coiffures, decked with flowers, pearls and diamonds. They carry genuine fans of the period and it is possible that their dresses will set a new vogue in modern fashions comparable with the Tudor trend that has been so marked since the release of another period picture recently seen here.

Months of intensive research have gone into the making of the costumes in "Power", and nothing has been left undone to make them absolute in their authenticity and great beauty.

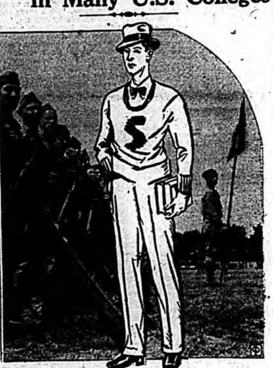
Military Training Remains a Problem In Many U.S. Colleges



Compulsory Military drill for all male students at U. S. land grant Colleges has been a source of bitter controversy for years

By M. O. CHENOWETH

Central Press Canadian Writer

(Mr. Chenoweth, the writer, is a graduate of a land grant university.)

Washington, Dec. 15—Unless ingenius collegians are able to find a way to salve it, a sore point in many colleges threatens to remain as inflamed as ever.

For years compulsory military drill for all male students at land grant colleges has been a source of bitter controversy. It has been fought through boards of regents and trustees, and state and district courts with no solution agreeable to all parties concerned.

Supreme Court Rules

Finally, in the due course of events, the matter was taken before the United States supreme court. In this high authority students opposed to compulsory drill had placed their sole hope of ridding themselves of their practice muskets. But the supreme court now has turned a deaf ear to their pleas.

Cadet training has been the subject of years of dispute in Canada and only a year or so ago Toronto board of education voted against cadet training in public schools, which correspond in Canada to U.S. "land grant" schools Many debates have taken place at Ottawa over grants for cadet training and in the past few years estimates have been cut from $300,000 to $150,000.

The situation is not so easily handled in the United States.

Pacifism, naturally, has been the main motive behind the fight against compulsory drill. To this standard many churches have rallied in support of the objecting students.

This writer often has heard this criticism from college cadets studying militarism against their will:

"Why do they insist that we learn how to become soldiers? We have no desire to fight. We now have peace. Why should we be preparing for war?"

Limits Freedom

Aside from its pacific aspect, military drill is objectionable from another point of view to many students. It limits freedom of expression and movement.

In the majority of college classes students are free to assume relaxing postures, be attentive as they like, depending on their desires for good marks. In a military class there is a strict militaristic atmosphere which does not permit such freedom.

Veteran army men are eager that compulsory drill remain in schedules of land grant colleges. There are some who even favor it in all colleges.

One noted cadet instructor said: "Many of the lives lost in the world war could have been saved if there had been a proper training for the officers and men. Thousands of men died solely as a result of a lack of knowledge of defensive warfare.

"It is logical to assume that our colleges would supply a majority of the officers in the event of emergency. If they are trained in college, such officers will have knowledge how to save lives as well as to direct offensives."

While the controversy thus rages students have continued to object violently against being forced to drill. Hardly a year passes but that several students are suspended from universities for refusing to don a cadet uniform.

BURIED TREASURE TRAIL IS BLOODY

Famous Chilean Poet Sent to Grave by Crazed Companion

By GEORGE JORDAN

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 15 (AP)—The lure of gold—real or imaginary—left a bloody trail the length of Chile for centuries before the act which sent the famous poet Jose Santos Chocano to his grave today.

Fabled deposits, constant searches and duels and murders inspired by jealousies of partners were the order of the day long before the crazed Martin Bruce plunged a knife into Santos Chocano Thursday.

Bruce was frenzied by the suspicion that Santos Chocano, who once organized an unsuccessful treasure hunt on the banks of the Mapocho in the centre of the city, had cheated him of his share in the findings.

Historians find Chile's troublous history a good reason for buried wealth in many places. A number of huge fortunes were concealed at the close of the 16th. Century during the Spanish Conquest. Most of the fortunes were hidden in Santiago and Concepcion, the largest population centres of the period.

It also is reasonably certain treasure was buried in several lost cities of Colon, such as the cities called Imperial and Osorno which were lost for 200 years and then refound.

Big Celebrations at Hospital Planned For Christmas, New Year's

Callander, Ont., Dec. 17 (CP)—A jolly white-haired man who, like Santa Claus, loves children, piled his motor car high with Christmas presents today and drove over snow covered roads to the Dionne quintuplets home. It was the first touch of Yuletide around the hospital where the five famous girls live.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who could easily double in brass for St. Nicholas if he had a white beard to cover his firm chin, had brought many of the presents from New York when he returned last night and others have been arriving at his home here every day of the two weeks he has been away on holiday.

Everything to delight the heart of a child was in the packages Dr. Dafoe carried into the hospital. There were dolls and rattles, toy rabbits, dogs, teething rings and a man on a flying trapeze, elephants and bonnets, a little grand piano, bootees and lots of sweaters to keep the famous youngsters warm thru' the cold northern winter.

But mostly there were dolls. Quintuplet dolls in a row, "cuddly" dolls that are nice and soft to hold, some that say "mama" when you squeeze them but none that say "doctor." Some had real hair and complete outfits of clothing. Some were as big as Yvonne, largest of the five little girls, and others so tiny little Marie may soon hold them.

The Roosevelt Board, functioning under the NRA and headed by Leon Henderson, closed two days of open hearings Sunday night. All of which they said imperilled their economic welfare.

The private conferences of Henderson and his aides today are concerned with the basic demands of labor for a five day week of 30 hours, and a guaranteed yearly salary ranging from $1,400 to $2,500 for production line men.

One of the lightest accident tolls Ontario has had in many months was experienced over the past week-end, when motor cars were responsible for three deaths throughout the Province.

Boothe, 24-year-old broker and former football star and Miss Marion Rogers, 22-year-old Junior Leaguer. Both fatally injured in a crash in downtown Toronto early Sunday morning.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY INQUIRY SPLITS ON POLITICAL LINE

First Few Minutes of Hearing Marked by Blow-up

NAMES DEMANDED

Finally No Members Oppose Names Being Used

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—(CP)— The Textile Industry investigation opened before the Parliamentary Mass Buying Commission today and for the first time in weeks, split the members along political lines.

A promise of political fireworks was given in the first few minutes when the Liberal members asked for a tabulation of tariff changes, as affecting the textile schedules in the last five years. At the suggestion of D. M. Kennedy, U.F.A. Peace River, this was changed to ten years and passed without protest.

The big blow-up came a few minutes later when J. G. Glassco, Toronto auditor, presented a list of cotton companies referring to them by code numbers. Liberal members demanded the names and, although two Ontario Conservatives, Mark Senn and Alex. Edwards, protested, finally secured them.

When the Liberal members demanded the names and the two Conservatives protested Chairman W. W. Kennedy attempted to prevent open war by suggesting the question be discussed in executive session. The Liberals kept up their demands and when a poll of the commission was made, no members opposed it.

Why Names Used

Alex Edwards asked the Liberal members why they were making "a dead set on this industry" and an attack on it. They said the names of chain stores and other companies had been made public and they could see no reason why the names of cotton companies should be held back.

Ottawa, Dec. 17—(CP)—The tariff was thrown into the textile investigation before the Parliamentary Mass Buying Commission today by the Liberal members. At the outset of the probe today Sam Factor, Lib. Toronto West-Centre, moved that all tariff changes affecting textiles in the last five years, be prepared by the secretary.

D. M. Kennedy, U.F.A., Peace River, said the tabulation should go back seven or eight years.

"How about 10 years," asked chairman W. W. Kennedy.

The year 1926 might be a good choice, suggested J. L. Ilsley, Lib. Hants-Kings, because it is the index year of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

It finally was decided to make the tariff tabulation for 10 years, the Factor motion passing without protest.

217 Companies

J G. Glassco, of Toronto, a chartered accountant, submitted the textile report. It was based on questionnaires sent to the 217 leading companies of Canada.

The following table shows the relative value of groups within the Canadian textile industry.

CRASH FATALITY CHARGE IS LAID

Two Young Society People of Toronto Killed Early Sunday

Toronto, Dec. 17—(CP)— Harold Blatchley of Ottawa, accountant for the Royal Canadian Air Force at Camp Borden was remanded till Dec. 6 when he appeared in court today to face a manslaughter charge arising from the death early Sunday in an automobile accident of George Boothe, former football star, and Miss Marion Rogers, at the corner of Bay and Albert Streets.

Blatchley's automobile collided with Boothe's at a street intersection and the former Toronto Varsity grid star and his companion were fatally injured.

Bail for Blatchley's release was set at $5,000.

George E. Boothe, aged 24, of 73 Chestnut Park Road, a member of the 1933 University of Toronto football team, and Marion Rogers, aged 22, of 121 Park Road, a member of the Junior League, were the victims of the accident.

Harold Blatchley, aged 25, a clerk for the Air Force at Camp Borden, the driver of the car which crashed into Boothe's was arrested on the scene of the accident by Patrol Sergeant Oswald Brown on a charge of manslaughter.

The former Varsity football star was driving Miss Rogers home from a social function about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. Their car, which was proceeding north on Bay Street had just reached the north line of Albert Street when Blatchley's car, going west on Albert Street, crashed into its rear.

So terrific was the impact that Boothe's car was swung completely around, and smashed into a taxi parked on the west side of Bay St.

It is believed that Miss Rogers was hurled through the windshield. She was found under the parked taxi with a lacerated head, fractured skull and a broken leg. Rushed to St. Michael's Hospital, she died shortly after admission.

21 Racehorses Burned At Thorncliffe Track Loss Estimated $60,000

'Ladder' Destroyed, Owned by F. Selke Valued at $20,000

PROBABLY INCENDIARY

Horses Are Released But Run Back Into Flaming Building

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP)—Twenty-one racehorses including Ladder, owned by Frank E. Selke, and White Thorn, owned by Selke and Conny Smythe, were killed today in a fire, of probable incendiary cause, which destroyed three barns at Thorncliffe Track, here, with an estimated loss of $60,000.

Neil McArthur, caretaker of the stables, told reporters that fires seemed to have been started in six different places.

The fire was first discovered in two unoccupied stables, and the Leaside Town Fire Department was called. They had the flames under control, and had prevented them from spreading to other nearby structures, when a motorist stopped to tell them that a stable almost half a mile away was on fire.

East York Township Fire Brigade responded to a call for help, and went to work on the third stable. Meantime, McArthur had run to the stable and gone inside, where 21 horses were quartered for the winter.

Horses Would Not Leave

He tried to get the horses out, succeeded in freeing several, only to have them rush excitedly as far as the door of the stable and then turn and plunge back inside to their death.

One horse did get out of the flaming building but was so terribly burned, it had to be shot.

A two-year-old filly owned by King Clancy, Charles Conacher, and Harold Cotton, Maple Leaf hockey player, was among the horses lost.

The value of the three stables, which were destroyed, was set at $4,000 each. Value of the 21 horses was estimated roughly at $50,000.

Three weeks ago two other unoccupied barns were levelled by fire, and the circumstances were so suspicious that an investigation was instituted. A year ago another early morning fire similarly troubled authorities.

Frank Selke's horse, Ladder, valued at $20,000, was the most expensive horse in the stable. Nineteen of the horses were owned by Selke, and he had a half interest with Conny Smythe in White Thorn.

ANGLO-AMERICAN ACCORD SOUGHT

Roosevelt Has Naval Plan in Event of Lapse of Treaties

London, Dec. 17 (C.P. Cable)—A general Anglo-American accord, including a naval agreement in the event of complete lapse of existing naval treaties at the end of 1936, is the goal of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, it was believed in London today.

Keen interest was taken in despatches from Washington that a tripower naval agreement will be more likely under the new American neutral policy proposed in Washington under which, it was understood, the United States' policy of neutrality rights would be modified.

This modification, now under study, would remove the last obstacle to an agreement with Great Britain on the question of the freedom of the seas, it was believed here. Great Britain contended in the Great War she had the right to search vessels suspected of trading with the enemy, and it is understood the proposed new United States policy would remove official protection from such ships.

City and District News

RIVER MOIRA ICE IS DANGEROUS

The Moira River which is covered with a thin sheet of ice at the present time is no place for games of "shinny" or even ordinary skating police of the city are pointing out to youthful enthusiasts. In response to a call from a citizen in the upper section of the town, Constable Wm. Evans on Saturday journeyed to the vicinity of the rear of the Kresge Building, warning several youths from the ice. Dangerous deep holes exist at many places in the river under the weakened ice made more perilous by a swiftly running current.

110 STRAY DOGS HAVE GONE ROUTE

One hundred and ten stray and unwanted dogs of the city found homes in dog "heaven" during the past eleven months, it was reported by the city's official pound keeper, Thos. Thorne this week. The dogs were painlessly executed by the carbon monoxide gas route in the gas chamber. The bodies of the dead animals which are collected by a large Toronto truck making regular calls in the city are burned and the ashes collected and disposed of as valuable fertiliser.

HYDRO PROFITS SHOW INCREASE

Eleven Months' Figures Total $10,192.80 Profit

Net profit for the first eleven months of 1934 was today announced as $10,192.80 by Manager O. H. Scott of the Belleville Hydro System as against $9,591.04 profit for the same period last year.

Power for twelve months past cost $139,324.70 as against $134,827.00 for the previous twelve months. The thirteenth power bill is not in yet.

Revenue for the first eleven months of 1934 was $167,595.26 as against $161,661.79 to the end of November 1933.

The statement means that in spite of increased power costs, revenue has gone up so that the net profits for eleven months will be considerably over those of last year.

One of the reasons for increased revenue is the increase in the average monthly peak of power consumption. The peak average this year so far is 3756 h.p. as against 3505 h.p. in 1933.

The shop was also reported as showing a profit.

At today's meeting which was attended by Ex-Mayors Reid and Duff, Mr. H. W. Ackerman waited on the board in reference to the hospital account discounts which had not been allowed for two months.

The amount of the two months totalled $41.60 and Mr. Ackerman asked why the second discount could not be allowed as the account was paid before the discount date in November, and Mr. Scott answered that the discount could not be allowed as the previous account had not been paid in full, that is including the amount discounted when the prompt payment privilege was not taken advantage of.

Chairman G. A. Reid explained that the regulations were such that the local board could not make any discount where prompt payment had not been made. The commission was powerless to allow the discounts in this case.

Mr. Ackerman hinted that he might take the matter up with the mayor and council.

The committee decided to take out the annual membership in the Chamber of Commerce.

The commission agreed to forward a cheque to the Parks Commission for $200.00 to assist in the cost of tree-trimming for the past year.

Mr. Scott brought up the question of the advisability of considering the bringing to the city of experts in tree-trimming who might be able to give some valuable suggestions in the matter of trimming. The board will meet the Parks Commission and discuss the trimming problem.

The commission agreed to sign an agreement regarding the taking over of some poles on Coleman and North Front streets from the Bell Telephone Company.

BABY BEEF BRED AND FED FOR HOLIDAY FEASTS

Expert of Sixty Years Experience Prepares Choice Beef For Belleville Christmas Feast.

"The Roast Beef of Old England", famed in song and story, is given credit for producing the beef and brawn and brain power which has made England the leading nation of the world these many years. With Christmas time at hand, the glad and festive season of peace on earth and good will to men of good will when all festivities centre in the dining room, it will be interesting to learn some of the preparations being made for the Christmas feasts in Belleville and vicinity by one of the progressive firms which cater to the lovers of good eats.

For two months a number of young cattle have been receiving the care of an expert being fed for Christmas beef. These cattle have been fed in the stables of William Clark, Senior, whose experience of sixty years in raising and buying cattle rank him as a specialist in the production of good meat, and this Christmas beef he promises will surpass his best efforts in that line in the past. This beef, properly dressed is now on display in the store of Clarke and Miles, 180 Front Street, Belleville.

In addition to this display of Christmas Beef, Clark and Miles are showing delicious looking Baby Beef, bred and fed for the Christmas table on the farm of Wellington Howell, Prince Edward County, a man who makes a specialty of raising Baby Beef.

Other interesting features of the Christmas display of Clark and Miles include Milk Fed Veal from the farm of Frank Aikens, Sidney Township, specially fed for Christmas tables; also thoroughbred lambs from the farm of Owen Roblin, Thurlow township.

Hundreds of turkeys, geese, chickens and ducks from surrounding farms are now on display at Clark and Miles.

Inquiries phone 10, will receive prompt attention.

Former Foemen May be Guests

War hatreds will be buried and forgotten and soldiers who faced each other across the shell torn terrain of No Man's Land in France and in other countries as deadly enemies during the Great War will face each other across a banquet table in this city in the near future if the efforts of the officers of the various units comprising the United Veterans of Belleville to hold a grand social evening in this city at which ex-service men of former enemy corps will be guests, are successful. The suggestion to have their former enemies as guests at their socials had been advanced before by individuals, but no collective action had been taken. The idea is now under consideration by the officials of the major units to hold the social evening.

DR. E. G. N. KENNEDY ARRIVES IN CITY

Will Join Hon. Dr. Faulkner in Large Practice in District

A brisk, keen-eyed young chap stood in a welter of books, medical equipment, gleaming instruments and diplomas in the office and consulting room at the home of the Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, 101 Bridge street east this morning busily unpacking the number of boxes and cartons that arrived with him in the city over the week-end.

Dr. Edward Gordon Matthew Kennedy, B.A., who arrived in Belleville on Saturday to take over the practise of the Hon. Dr. Faulkner and assist him in the many duties formerly performed in the city and district by Ontario's present Minister of Health, delved into the interior of one of the fascinating boxes and emerged triumphantly with a stethoscope in hand. Another trip into the bottom of the box and a Materia Medica was resurrected. A diploma, carefully framed, followed. Then a second one. From their neatly wrapped tissue a number of shiny instruments were brought to light. Slowly the tops of the tables, the settee, even the chairs overflowed with the many aids of the up-to-date doctor.

"The worst part of any trip is the unpacking," audibly commented the young medico as box after box was tackled with the same characteristic briskness and vigor of action. "And I don't like the job more than anyone else does. But it has to be done."

Doctor Surprised

Probably no one was more surprised than Dr. Kennedy himself that he should be chosen from among dozens of other recommendations to take over such an important practise as that held by Dr. Faulkner before his elevation to his present position as Minister of Health for the province.

"I was attending Western University at the time when I heard of my appointment. Taking a fellowship in surgery at the time. The recommendation to Dr. Faulkner was made by Dean J. F. Campbell. I completed the fellowship and then came along here."

Born in Sarnia, the visit to Belleville is the farthest trip east he has so far undertaken in the province. But already the whole heartedness and friendliness of the east has made its own impression on the youthful doctor. "I like the east, and Belleville particularly," he stated.

Dr. Kennedy's early schooling was received in Sarnia's public and high schools, after which he entered Western University, London, Ont. He was determined to be a doctor. And spurred on by that ambition, made a notable success of his studies receiving honors in all his examinations. He led the list at graduation.

But with all his studies, he still found time for plenty of exercise and athletics on the college campus. In the field of sport he further distinguishd himself. Baseball, skating and other catívities appeal, but his particular choice was football. In 1931 when Western team plowed their way to the top of the Intercollegiate Union and won the championship, Belleville's new doctor captained the winning team.

Surgery is Hobby

Surgery has a particular appeal for Dr. Kennedy. And to that end he has made careful study of that branch of medicine, graduating with a fellowship in Surgery.

"I like obstetrics, too, however," he adds. "I don't think any doctor, unless he wants to be a real specialist should concentrate too much on any one branch of medicine. However, some of us find some particular appeal in different studies. Mine is anatomy and surgery."

Even in that brief interview one catches the spirit of enthusiasm as displayed by the young doctor. In that crowded consultation room talk turned to other things. Things like health insurance, for example.

"I'm not so sure, that that scheme won't be worked out somehow in the not too far distant future. Of course I haven't been able to give it much study so far, but it seems to me, that some protection for the middle-class people must come. As it is not continued sickness invariably results in the loss of a job for some unfortunate. Then too, others get sick and the family suffers, while the bread winner is laid up. If there was, say, some sort of insurance, whereby he could pay into a fund, while he was working, and then be assisted, when he was unable to work, all that would be ended. I believe, that is the general opinion of my fellow doctors. And I have heard, also, that the Government has such an idea under consideration. There remains much work, however, before this becomes an actuality."

Dr. Kennedy received his first local call twenty minutes after his arrival at the home of Dr. Faulkner on Saturday, which, he believes, is a very good omen for the work which lies just ahead among his many patients, a few of whom have paid their personal respects to the new doctor.

SLIPPERY PAVEMENTS CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

Five Occur But Fortunately no One is Injured

Icy pavements are alleged to have been the cause of a number of motor accidents in Belleville over the week end. Five minor mishaps in which no person was seriously injured happened since Saturday morning on city streets.

Early today an automobile driven south on Station St. by Clarence Mason, 47 Geddes Street, became uncontrollable when the brakes were applied, spinning the car around and colliding with another car being driven in the opposite direction by J. White, Market St. The left front wheel of the White machine was broken. Upon the arrival of Sergt. Harman and Constable Evans the matter of damages was amicably settled.

Dan Cotter, 143 Burnham St., informed the police that he had been knocked down by a car at the corner of Charles St. and East Bridge on Saturday, suffering slight injuries. The driver of the car is reported to have sped away. Police are investigating.

When Carman Bamber, Foxboro, applied the brakes on his automobile opposite King George School, the vehicle spun around, striking a telegraph pole and breaking it off on Sunday afternoon.

Early last evening an automobile being driven north on Station St. by Roy Thompson, city, skidded on the icy road striking another car driven by John Grotto. Mr. Thompson informed the police that the condition of the road was responsible for the crash. The Grotto car was badly damaged about the front part, the fenders, wheels and steering gear being put out of commission.

Sunday Mark Doyle, Melrose, while driving on East Bridge St. collided with a car driven by Constable Arnott. The damage was slight.

E. H. LAROCHE IS DEAD AT 85

Resident of City For 60 Years And Well Known In All Circles

One of Belleville's oldest residents passed away Sunday afternoon, December 16th., in the person of ex-Alderman Edmond Henry La Roche. For some time he had been confined to his home on McDonald Avenue where he had resided for many years. In his passing this city loses a man of fine character, who possessed a pleasing and friendly personality and was held in high esteem by many friends and acquaintances to whom his death will bring deep feelings of regret.

For many years and up until the fall of the year 1933 he was active in the pursuit of his business of general insurance and customs brokerage and he was a well known figure in the business section of the city. Failing health and advanced age made it necessary that he cease to carry on and he disposed of his business at that time.

Born in Quebec

The late Mr. La Roche was born in Quebec City 85 years ago. When a young man he came to reside in Belleville and he had made his home in this city continuously for close to sixty years. For many years he was the owner of the quarries at Ox Point, now Point Anne, and he did an extensive business in building stone, making shipments to many cities and towns in Canada and to some places in the United States.

Later he entered the general insurance and customs brokerage business and was successful in building up a large agency.

The late E. H. LaRoche had a strong liking for the city of his adoption and it was not long after he came to reside in Belleville that he commenced to take an interest in municipal matters. He was ready at all times to do what he could for the advancement of the city and in the year 1882 he was elected a member of the city council as representative from Foster Ward and he continued to represent that ward in the council for 18 consecutive years his last year in the council being 1899. He was a good alderman and served the city well during all those years.

Prominent Sportsman

In recreation Mr. La Roche was an ardent and prominent bowler and curler and played with the best rinks in the city for many years. Many old friends in Belleville and elsewhere will recall pleasant associations with him.

In religion Mr. La Roche was a devout member of St. Michael's Church. He was the last member of his family and is survived only by his wife, who was formerly Miss Helen Holden of this city. To Mrs. La Roche the sincere sympathy of many friends will be extended in her bereavement.

The flag on the city hall tower is flying at half staff as a token of respect to the late Mr. La Roche.

TRAINER USED FOR GOALIE

ST. LOUIS, Dec 17—(AP)—Using Tony Christello, Tulsa hockey club trainer, as a substitute for their regular goalie, Mickey Murray, St. Louis' Flyers last night defeated the Oilers 3-1 before 5,000 fans. Because of the death of his father, Murray was not in the cage for the Flyers and the team borrowed Christello, who was travelling with the Oilers. The victory sent the Flyers into a first place tie with Tulsa.

NATIVITY PLAY AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Presented Under Direction of Miss Jessie Tuite

At Victoria Avenue Baptist Church last evening, following the regular church service, an interesting "Nativity Play" was presented under the direction of Miss Tuite. The play told the story of "The Littlest Shepherd" those taking part being Jean Cook and Roddy Cameron, with Miss Muriel Vermilyea explaining the play in prologue. A lovely tableau effect, with twelve characters, was an added interest in the inspiring little play. Special music under the direction of Miss Forman, choir leader, accompanied the play. Numbers were given by a quartet composed of Mrs. Michael, Miss Forman, Mr. Bray and Mr. Kelley, while those taking part in the chorus singing were Mrs. Welbanks, Mrs. Doolittle, Mrs. Michael, Mr. Kelley, Mr. Michael, Mr. Cook and Mrs. Bray. Mr. Harold Cornell, organist of the church, accompanied the singers.

POLICE COURT

Due to the absence from the city of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., who was in Perth on business today, all Crown cases to have been heard in today's police court were adjourned by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. Two inebriates paid the minimum fine after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication, however, two others fattened the city's coffers by donating ten dollars after pleading guilty to minor charges laid under the H.T.A.

Charged with fraud and two charges of theft of automobiles, Percy Coles, Tweed, emphatically shouted "not guilty" to the former charge, when it was read to him this morning. His case was also laid over.

The annual trek of local poll tax delinquents started this morning when six local youths pleaded guilty to not paying their 1934 poll tax. Originally ten summons had been issued, but four paid up before the court opened, while still a fifth paid a portion of the tax during court, the remaining five were given ten days in which to raise the necessary five dollars of a poll tax.

FAMOUS DOCTOR IS HOME WITH MANY PRESENTS

2½ miles from here where for more than a month now snowfalls have provided Christmas weather. Nurses Louise de Kiriline and Yvonne Leroux were anxious to open the packages but Dr. Dafoe placed a good-natured ban on that and stored them in the attic.

While he was in New York the physician had been snatching moments in his busy visit to make plans for a Christmas party for "my babies" and today he talked them over with Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, the quints' parents, and the nurses.

There will be a family party at the hospital on Christmas Day, it was decided, with the Dionnes and their five older children joining Dr. Dafoe and the nurses in a turkey dinner. Then on New Year's Day, which French-Canadians observe with greater excitement than Christmas, there will be a whole new celebration. There really will be three celebrations in the one week as the babies will be seven months old on Dec. 28th.

Oliva Dionne has been watching in the woods around his farm for a Christmas tree fit to grace his daughters' home and as soon as he finds a suitable one will draw it across the snow and set it up in the hospital. Mrs. Dionne and the nurses have been given the pleasant task of decorating the tree, which will be left standing until after New Year's Day.

Everything Good To Eat

There will be everything good to eat, when the Dionnes and their children walk the 100 yards from their home to the hospital and sit down to noon dinner on Christmas Day but those for whom everything is being planned won't have any. Seven-months-old babies can't have turkey and the quintuplets will suck their usual milk and cereal from bottles, while their older brothers and sisters eat the candy and nuts in the quintuplets' tiny stockings.

In fact, the best advice is the famous sisters won't know anything about their first Christmas celebration. They will catch glimpses of the tree and see their family around for the dinner, but how does a little quintuplet know, what a Christmas tree is?

But there will be pictures taken and when they grow older their parents and brothers and sisters can tell them what a grand time everyone had on the first Christmas after they were born.

How the world showered gifts of toys and clothing and money on them and what a wonderful Christmas feeling there was in the air, when everyone came in shouting "Joyeux Noel" as they stamped their feet and and rubbed their hands to get warm.

Celebrate New Year's

New Year's Day will mean another celebration, another turkey and all the good things that go with it, but again the quintuplets will have little fun. If they have taken a nap early on New Year's Eve, the older children may bundle up in warm clothing and cuddle up to each other in the hay on Papa Dionne's sleigh, while he drives them the two miles to Midnight Mass at Corbeil.

There will be great excitement, all the nieghbors wishing each other "Bonne Annee" as each sleigh drives up to the church door. After the service there will be the sleepy sleigh ride home with the tired children dozing in the warm hay and Papa Dionne clucking to his horses from the driver's seat.

That will be only the beginning, though, of New Year's, a day, when friends and relatives from miles around will call in the afternoon to wish the Dionnes prosperous harvests and happiness in 1935. They have done that every year but now there will be a special attraction for them to come—a view of the quintuplet hospital and a glass of wine and a piece of fruit cake with neighbors, who have become the parents of the world's most famous children.

ANOTHER LUPINO FOR HOLLYWOOD

Film fans who have been enthusiastic in their acceptance of English actress, Ida Lupino (RIGHT), will now have a chance to get acquainted with her 14-year-old sister, Rita. They are shown enjoying a drink of punch in their native London. Soon Ida will leave for Hollywood, and this time she will be accompanied by her mother and sister. Rita has already acted in British talkies, but many think that she will get her big chance in California.

Santa Will Get Through

EVENING, the half light of twilight and day, and from the monotony of grayness above, large fat snowflakes slowly filter down, adding a few more inches to the white blanket already covering the hills and woods. A log cabin nestling at the edge of a pine-fringed lake. Smoke curling up in a white spiral from the squat stone chimney, columning into the winter stillness above. A tiny porch facing a broad expanse of snow covered ice; behind, the softly textured hills, crowned with the white burdened trees, and criss-crossed with the footprints of the tiny woodland denizens.

Inside the cabin flickering flames darting from the logs in a stone fire place. Casting a ruddy glow on the rustic furniture, and bringing into a cameo-like silhouette the ball-tipped andirons and the soot-blackened kettle swinging on its hanging crane. And reflecting the soft glow of its own ruddy flames the beaming faces of three tiny inhabitants grouped around the warmth.

"Will Santa really come, mama? ......here, away up here....and will he really have a big pack on his sleigh? And will the reindeer really haul the sleigh up on top of the roof so Santa can come down the chimney?" Little Mary, the youngest of the three asked the question, wide brown eyes glistening in anxious hope.

"Yes dear, Santa will get through—somehow." But thoughts of deep drifts, and of a tiny path yet unmarked by footsteps, leading away from the door of the small cabin to the settlement beyond obtruded. It was many miles to that tiny village.

"Somehow he'll get through." The answer, repeated, was a bit defiant this time.

"But, Mama, how can he......?" The question was stopped short with a warning glance. Elsie, the oldest, lapsed into silence again, but doubt had been raised. Three anxious little faces fastened their glance on the now calm countenance of their mother.

"Santa will get through—somehow," again repeated the mother.

Santa Will Make Rounds

Just one of the many isolated little cabins that squat on the shores of the indefinite number of lakes through the northern part of Hastings County, and just one of the little families to whom the hope of an actual visit from Santa Claus this season is thin indeed. But hope is still strong. Santa will make the rounds of even the tiniest cabins and shacks, even though it means wading and plowing through snowdrifts to do so, if the statement of a number of Reeves and Deputy Reeves of the County Council at their last session in this city is to be taken literally.

For Christmas season finds the representatives of the various townships just as eager to do all in their power to assist the unfortunates of their district as ever. And many a home through the north will be gladdened this year by the visit of the reeves or their deputized assistants bearing some sort of comfort and some of the treats of the season to their humble homes. Whether they be on the edge of some lake thirty miles from the village or within the village itself, they will be sought out and helped where possible.

"I expect to have at least six real cases to look after myself," stated one well known Reeve of a northermost township at the last session of County Council held in this city a week or so ago. The same Reeve is the one, who has been dipping into his pocket for these several years past in an effort to help the needy families of his section And throughout the ranks of the other reeves and deputies the same feeling is evident. Already baskets are being prepared. Donations are being collected from the more fortunate of the township for distribution a day or so before Santa is scheduled to arrive.

And so little Mary, Helen and Elsie—which is not their right names—will find that Santa has really come and filled their stockings hanging on the fireplace on Christmas night, and then departed, without so much as leaving a mark on their snow covered cabin roof, much as they might search for the foot prints of the jolly old Saint and his spirited steads.

"Santa will get through........"

RED-BLOODED PEOPLE GET THE MOST FUN OUT OF LIFE

Elbert Hubbard once said, "No man ever successfully made love with a cold in his head". And this witty remark proclaims a truth we have all experienced in some way or another. We all know that work is easier . . . play is funnier . . . and life and love doubly desirable, when we are well.

Now, it's an actual fact that well people are more red-blooded than ailing ones. Vitality, radiant health and energy can be seen in the blood in the form of red corpuscles and the haemoglobin (red substance) which the corpuscles carry. When people have plenty of both they are truly "red-blooded".

Many, however, are below normal in red corpuscles and haemoglobin. A short time ago, 45 persons were examined by blood test to see how red-blooded they were. As many as 40 were low in their blood's red corpuscles and haemoglobin. These 40 received a thirty-day treatment of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and became so greatly improved in blood vitality . . . and consequently in health and vigour . . . that the examiner making the test was profoundly impressed.

This famous old remedy was originated by a Canadian authority to correct low vitality of the blood. Symptoms of this condition are lack of colour in the face, loss of energy or "pep", run-down feelings, nervousness, etc. Those who have such symptoms should take a 30-day treatment of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and feel strength, vitality and general bodily well-being returning to them, just as it did to the 40 people in the clinic. BEWARE PATH OF THE LEAST RESISTANCE

To Take The Easiest Way is To Drift

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1934 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Drifting is the cause of failure—not lack of ability or opportunity. Indeed, how many people have a real plan in life, a goal ahead, a definite ambition? Is it not true that thousands are like pieces of driftwood, tossed by any chance wind or tide that happens to hit them?

And is it not logical enough that sooner or later such drifters should be cast upon the shore—exhausted and spent?

The chief reason habitual drifting is such a common ailment is that most of us never really grow up. We may be mature in years and stature, but our mental reactions are those of adolescence.

To be sure, we do not realize it. Nevertheless our outlook on life is definitely juvenile.

Adolescence is, of course, the great period bridging childhood and the adult's estate. Between twelve and seventeen, an uncertain, doubtful attitude, emotional peculiarities, exultation and depression, day-dreaming, air castles and inconsistant interests are characteristic. Besides there is exaggerated idealism, a haphazard way of living, with no concern for the future.

Don't you, yourself, know people who are like that—people whom you could tag with one or more of these traits? And is not every one of those persons a drifter?

Drifters, you see, have never grown up. That is the psychological as well as the scientific explanation. The higher mental faculties, like reasoning, judgment, powers of inference and will, have not developed as rapidly as the rest of the mental makeup. Without mental compass or rudder, there is nothing to guide.

Be careful not to follow the lines of least resistance, to take the easiest way. The easiest way is to drift.

If your life does not stimulate you sufficiently, deliberately set tasks for yourself that will improve the incentive and the desire to overcome them. Always push your goal ahead of your immediate reach, but be careful not to push it too far lest you become discouraged. Keep your goal well in sight.

Study the biographies of great men and see how they accomplished what they did. But never let handicaps discourage you. The handicaps of our greatest men and women became assets stimulating them to greater energy and enthusiasm. We have the case of Demosthenes, who stammered and put pebbles in his mouth to over come it. This practice and perservance finally made him one of the greatest orators of all time.

Watch for the lines of least resistance that seem to beckon to you. It is the easiest thing in the world to drift! Be careful!

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

The habit of eating raw carrots is highly recommended. This vegetable contains Vitamins A and C. What is more, they are filling and useful when care must be exercised not to put on weight. Carrots also possess another advantage, this being that they can be prepared in a variety of tempting ways at little expense.

SHUT TOWN OFF THEN ROB BANK

Gunmen Dared Residents To Stop The Burglary

Willard, O., Dec. 15 (AP)— A gang of 11 or more burglars shut the nearby village of North Fairfield off from the outside world early today, set off seven booming charges of high explosive in the village bank and escaped with loot estimated at $7,000.

The gang came into the town shortly before 2 a.m. E.S.T. and, working leisurely, did not leave until 4.30 a.m.

During this time all the residents were kept in their houses by gunmen, who dared them to come out and attempt to stop the burglary.

James Garrett, a carpenter, stepped out on his back porch and seven shots were fired in his direction. Garrett was not struck.

Members of the gang placed barn doors over the front windows of the bank, a frame structure, to screen their activities. With pieces of the vault and sections of the bank wall, the doors were blown out into the street.

Pieces of the vault were found as far away as 100 feet from the bank.

The gangsters carefully and deliberately cut all telephone wires and electric light wires in the village before entering the bank.

North Fairfield has a population of approximately 800.

KATHARINE CORNELL DISLIKES SHOPPING

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP)—Katharine Cornell who has faced numerous audiences without a twinge of fear is afraid of sales clerks. Here to play Juliet, the actress admitted her great fear as she stressed a dislike for shopping.

Accompanied by a secretary and her two dogs, Miss Cornell made a rush trip to Toronto because she was eager to play here with Edith Evans who made the journey from England to help Miss Cornell with her production.

"I dread shopping," said Miss Cornell. "I get a most awful feeling of inferiority."

Parties are something else the noted actress dislikes. "I don't try to hide," she maintained. "I am not seen much outside the theatre but that is because I don't like going out."

GARLIC ODORS BLAMED

known better as he had spent a greater part of his lifetime "warning other people against tricks like that" told police he had given the money to the gypsy woman.

"She went through a lot of flummery," explained Nixon, "and then placed the money in a bundle. She stitched a cloth around the bundle with heavy cord and then placed the bundle in a long strip of cloth. She stitched the strip with cord and then rubbed the bandage. She rubbed the bandage on my chest and then placed it around my waist next to the skin."

During the two weeks in which he had dealings with the woman, the belt was opened once and the money, in $10 and $20's appeared intact. Nixon said he also imagined he was feeling better during this time.

It was a week ago Monday he went to keep an appointment at the dingy little store on Sandwich Street. There was no response to his knock and he returned again Saturday. When he was unable to raise anyone at the store, he returned to his room and unwrapped the bundle supposedly containing the money. Three one-dollar bills on either side of a wad of newspaper was the total contents of the bundle.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at The Ontario Intelligencer Building, Front Street, Belleville.

MILLIONAIRES UNKNOWN

Poorer folk and those of moderate means escape the notice of the world but to be told that millionaires escape notice may seem a surprise to some. Yet how many can tell the names of Canadian millionaires for that matter? In the United States in the years immediately succeeding the close of the Great War, there were 181 millionaires, and yet few persons know them. It is only a Rockefeller, a Morgan, an Astor, a Ford, a Vanderbilt, a Dupont, who demand fame.

Despite the vast empire which these leaders in wealth are able to control, the fact remains, the very democratic fact, that there are more poor or only moderately well-off people known to the world than all the rich.

All the wealth in the world cannot sink a poorer Roosevelt and a Dr. Banting, or men of that class or great clerical statesmen.

Indeed it would look as if the wealthy men had a real ground for complaint as most of the fame goes to other persons, and even at that most of the wealthy are known to the common people only by name. Not a publication delves into their soul's mysteries mostly because they are not such colorful figures as the millions of poorer folk.

UNSPOILED

Dr. Allan R Dafoe, Madoc-born famous medical attendant of the Dionne quintette, which short form may be allowed because every reader knows the five are all of one birth, is now back home. He is the unspoiled country doctor still. Big cities may have dazzled the rural doctor with their size and their speed, but he knows that even at Callander humanity is humanity, and that the human heart beats very much as it does elsewhere.

Many a man has gone to fame and lost himself forever. The worship of the great in society and in treasure of the world may turn the head that is not firmly set. Often the new-arrival is changed for worse and fight the mood as he will, the change is progressive.

But Dr. Dafoe is one of that happy band of men who have a calling or profession which grants them opportunity to live out a rounded development, which calls for the exercise of every quality a man possesses. He is the happy doctor, who reads out of that great book, the heart of man and woman, the secret of life. What more can man wish to do than Dr. Dafoe has done and can still do? What is fame as compared with the knowledge that he is doing his duty in the out-of-the-way north? The man who most "fills the bill" in New York, a city of million, can do no more.

Yet Dr. Dafoe has done more. He has shown New York a new idea of the value of healthy parentage. "Choose your parents" may sound foolish but that is what Dr. Dafoe would say. The Dionne "quints" (to shorten the term still more) chose their parents well and Dr. Dafoe did not forget to impress upon the Big City practitioners the value of healthy parents. He also brought the cheering nerve-building breeze of the Northland, and he cannot but have stressed the importance of rural life to promote health. Then it must not be forgotten that Dr. Dafoe took himself to New York and other US. cities and gave those cities an opportunity to see a virile very human country doctor. The humanness of Dr. Dafoe went to make up much of the story of his travels in the United States.

CHRISTMAS MUSINGS

Ideal conditions leading up to the Christmas season have prevailed for the past week and indications are that the last six days of the preparations are to be marked with the same fine conditions.

The spirit of the people is finding outlet in no uncertain manner as the purchase of gifts proceeds at a steady rate. Saturday's business was an excellent example of what business can be done when the people are in the mood.

That they are in the mood is clear enough. While the depression's effects are still keenly felt, and while the relief list does not dwindle, the people who are able to bear their own burden and share something for others are not forgetting their responsibility in helping to bear their brother's burden. A good share of the buying may be credited to this object.

This year the stores have had an excellent array of goods, and though the sales have been large stocks are not being depleted for the merchants have seen to it that they are ample to meet the demand.

Merchants believe that the decoration of the streets with evergreens and the use of colored lights have been effective in helping to create the holiday atmosphere.

Now while the claim has often been made that there is too much stress upon the material side of Christmas and while this may be true, yet it is a fact that much of Christmas is what it is because of the enterprise of merchants and business men who have seen fit to develop ideas and these ideas have helped to add to the sumtotal of pleasure and enjoyment.

There is no reason why more persons cannot inject more of the spirit of vital Christmas into the festival even while the material surroundings are increased. Toys which sell for such a thing as money still give enjoyment to myriads of children and a Christmas without toys would be not quite the Christmas which we know gives much enjoyment.

There are no doubt grounds for the view that Christmas entails on housewives a vast amount of labor, and that selection of gifts is quite a task, still merchants in this age have so wide an assortment of gifts which will suit any taste and any pocketbook that buying of gifts is really made easy. The task is not now so difficult as it was many years ago.

Then this vast Christmas buying helps to give men and women, boys and girls employment in a world with too little employment. All these gifts call for ingenuity as one who looks at some of the toys and makers of even the smallest of these cannot but take some enjoyment of the work which comes to their hand.

POETS NEAR ROOF

Poets are now to be among the loftiest persons in the United States. The new poetry centre in New York is on the 44th. floor of the RCA Building. Though poets since time began have laid claim to "soaring", members of the poetry centre will use the very wordly way of the elevator to reach headquarters.

"MAN BITES DOG"

'Sfunny world. Two people starve to death on Galapagos and the human race is startled. Yet there really was no news in their starving. Inasmuch as there was no food for them to eat and not water for them to drink, it was logical that they should die. It would have been big news if they could have lived without eating. Now if people could get just as startled and interested in the fact that there are thousands starving—or near it—right here in this land of plenty, that would be something. Much bigger news for historians will be the fact that there are hungry people in America where there is so much food that the government is destroying crops and killing off cattle. That is news.—Detroit Free Press.

COAL IN ANTARCTICA

Coal has been discovered in Antarctica, and it is a cause for congratulation that people have become sceptical of wildcat stock schemes, or else we should have some promoter or another selling stock in a company to mine the coal and sell it to the South Sea Islanders—and there would be a lot of people ready to take shares.—Hamilton Spectator.

DISEASED NATIONALISM

The mass deportations of unoffending Hungarians on the grounds that the Government of Hungary had some responsibility for the assassination of the Yugoslavian king is an insult to common sense. But it is no worse than the expulsion of the Greeks from Turkey, or the eviction of thousands of Jews from Germany, a country with a long record of culture unknown to Turks and Serbs.

However, militant nationalism is not the only dangerous kind. The world is suffering also from the economic variety. And no political leader who panders to National hatred or prejudice in an effort to obtain special privileges, or teacher who upholds the attitude, "My country is always right," or business man who clamors against trade agreements with foreign countries, or professor who glorifies a dominant race can escape his share of blame for disseminating the deadly dragon's teeth of diseased nationalism.—London Advertiser.

HARD TO GET RID OF

It may be safe to assume that dictatorships will not go by the boards in Europe unless or until the people become thoroughly dissatisfied with them. Even then they may not go very readily. They may not go without force, and considering the severity with which critics of the existing order in Germany, Italy, Russia and other countries of Europe are dealt with, there may be a hesitancy about employing force unless it is felt that public opinion is preponderantly against the existing authorities.

A dictatorship is not an easy thing to dislodge. It usually takes steps to perpetuate itself.—Regina Leader-Post.

OUT OF WEEKLY WAGES

If a man making $40 every week found only $31 in his pay envelope, with a notice explaining that $9 had been held out for taxes, he would not be long in demanding, through his public officials, an explanation of where the money went and why. He would pay more heed to the economy promises of office seekers and he would hold them responsible for their expenditures. It is not improbable that if taxes were so collected the people would soon have better and much more economical government. Yet in effect this is what happens. A tax analyst, writing in the Chicago Daily News, has traced the expenditures of an average $40 a week Chicagoan to see just how much of this spending goes for taxes.—Indianapolis News.

CONCENTRATION CAMPS FOR TRANSIENTS, with plenty of work, good eats and warm quarters is suggested by a Belleville police officer, after several years of observing the units of that vast army which forever marches up and down the land stopping a day and a night in each community, sleeping in the police stations and eating where possible—if the community does not provide a central eating place for transients, panhandling for dimes on the street is resorted to or calls at private houses. This police officer suggests that orders be sent out from the Attorney General's department, Toronto, that on a certain night all over Ontario the transients applying for shelter at police stations be detained, their names and history recorded and then placed in working camps, where work would be provided, and also education and vocational instruction. This police officer states that many young men who have homes, are wandering about getting an education from older idle and embittered men who have made a failure of life and are ripe for most anything outside the law. In England vocational classes for the unemployed were instituted some time ago and the results have been very satisfactory. We are informed that even Belleville constributes young men to the tramping army which moves up and down the land, uneasy, uncertain, unsatisfied—don't know exactly what they want, but want something different than home offers—and these young men as a rule leave good homes to ride the rods, to hitch hike, consort with professional tramps, hoboes and gay cats, acquire vermin and vice—looks as though the problem needed looking into—also the suggestion outlined above.

DR. DAFOE OF CALLANDER, and the Dionne quintuplets, was guest of Walter Winchell et al, at a New York night club recently. There was a peppy floor show with scintillating torsos of various shades from Harlem high yellows to New Orleans fast black, besides the ivory skin you'd love to touch of Sally Rand not trying to hide her large nakedness behind a very small fan. Dr. Dafoe enjoyed the show and asked Winchell how often these parties were held. Upon being told every night, and what the salaries of some of the performers were he said, Well, well, they sure do earn it. New York hasn't spoiled our Canadian pioneer doctor, but it has surprised and entertained New Yorkers who never dreamed that such a wholesome, human, unspoiled by luxurious living and untouched with the greed and selfishness which poisons the great concentrations of people in the United States, could exist—so it was good for New Yorkers that the Callander doctor visited them, and it was good for the doctor who had no idea that so many apparently sensible people could live such hectic, selfish and unsatisfactory lives.

She was jumping on to a moving bus when one of her shoes dropped off. "Ullo Cinderella!" the conductor greeted here, as he pulled the bell to stop the bus.

The shoe was picked up by a rotund little city man in a "topper." Puffing and blowing, he came pounding after the bus and handed her the shoe with the best bow he could manage in the rather breathless circumstances.

"Blimey- If it ain't Prince Charmin,!" crowed the conductor.

Soldiers—Then and Now

—by—

Theodore Goodridge Roberts

Recently, I compared the two medals (Victory and General Service of a real soldier with the two chest warmers (Colonial Auxiliary Officers' Long Service Decoration and C.A.L.S.M.) of a supposed or supposititious colonel who had never heard a shot fired in anger. The left breast of the supposed Colonel Slogger is something to wonder at, but I know of a yet more remarkable left breast than that one. It is the only one of its kind, probably. Let us hope so.

Four Unwarlike Medals

When Queen Victoria celebrated the sixtieth year of her reign, military contingents from all parts of the British Empire attended in London, includng a small and politically select party from Canada. One of the members of the Canadian offering on that occasion was an officer of our nonpermanent active rural militia whom I may as well designate by the name of Crash as by any other or more probable. Better, perhaps! Crash (Captain or Major) received a medal from Her Majesty for that dashing bit of Imperial service. The military minded Crash could not get away from civil and political duites to attend the crowning of our present sovereign (than whom there has never been a better), Crash was a colonel on our Reserve of Officers. But he possessed all sorts of pull—enough pull of every kind to twitch him back onto the Active List and place him in command of the Canadian Expeditionary Force on the London Front. For that service, another medal! Then came the war—but that was not his meat, except for purposes of promotion. He held the line at home.

Terrifically Military

He is not only military, but rather terrifically so. Old ex-soldiers who used simply to salute army commanders and such giants and carry-on without apprehension of august displeasure, find themselves trembling in the presence of this excessively military personage and his four medals. They wonder what exactly is expected of them. Should they droop their heads to represent the drooping of the colors, or clap their hands to represent a salute of guns, or take off their boots, or simply get down on all fours and crawl backwards?

Unfamiliar Medals

Even his medals embarrass old soldiers by their unfamiliarity. They have seen many glorious and strange things on the chests of comrades of all ranks—the Victoria Cross; the D.S.O.; the D.C.M.; the Orders of the White Eagle, the White Elephant and Crown of Siam; the Croix de Virtute Militara; the Legion of Honor; the Orders of St. Stanislas, St. Valdimir, Regina Maria and Wen-Hu to name only a few of them—but two at least of General Crash's four chest-inflaters are strange to them. If you were to tell them, they would hardly understand how a Canadian officer who had never served on or near any battle-front could possibly wear three British medals and a British military decoration.

There are thousands of "old soldiers" who flirted with death from April 1915 until the war's end and carry only three ribbons on their chests, and more thousands who put in three years of fighting (with time out to recover from the the wounds) who wear only two ribbons—but General Crash, who never faced his country's enemies for ten seconds, sports a chest-line of four. What price military glory?

OBSERVE BOXING DAY

BLAIRMORE Alta., Dec 17—(CP)—This Crow's Nest Pass mining town, which declared a public holiday to celebrate the anniversary of the Communist Revolution in Russia November 7, but refused similarly to recognize Armistice Day or marriage of the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina, has decided to observe Boxing Day as a holiday.

DEATHS NOT IN VAIN IS BELIEF OF FATHER

Blood of Martyrs is Seed of The Church

Tsinan, Shantung Province, China, Dec. 17—(AP)—The parents of Mrs. J. C. Stam, who with her husband was publicly executed by Chinese bandits, expressed the conviction today, that the young missionary couple "did not die in vain".

"The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church," said Dr. C. E. Scott, the father, himself a missionary representing the Second Congregational Church of Holyoke, Mass.

Shortly afterward the Scotts left for Wuhu, Anhwei Province, to get their three-months-old granddaughter, Helen Priscilla Stam, who almost miraculously escaped the fate of her parents.

A dispatch from Wuhu revealed the Stams were executed by swords in the ancient Chinese manner.

BUSINESS EVILS MUST BE CURBED SAYS HERRIDGE

Fearless Thinking on Problems, Confronts Canada, Message

BENNETT AT MONTREAL

Prime Minister Pledges Further Regulation of "Unrestrained Greed"

Ottawa, Dec. 17 (CP)—A plea for fearless thinking on the economic and political problems confronting Canada from Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister to the United States, coupled with a prediction of more Government regulation of the "unrestrained greed of man" by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett speaking at Montreal, had political circles buzzing with speculation today.

The two speeches by the Prime Minister and the man who is regarded as his most trusted adviser capped an unusually active week for political leaders in two camps. New ideas were thrown out from authoritative quarters in sufficient profusion to keep the fires of political discussion burning brightly until the opening of Parliament.

Other declarations of the week were Hon. W. D. Euler's railway merger proposal, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King's utterance on the same point and Mr. King's announcement of Liberal policy on the Empire trade pacts.

Policies Shaping Up

Taken together they are regarded as indicative of a gradual shaping up of policies for the general election, which will follow the coming session of Parliament.

Both Mr. Bennett and Mr. Herridge frankly discussed, what they considered the evils of capitalism and both maintained capitalism should be retained. Mr. Herridge addressed the Canadian Club in Ottawa at luncheon with Mr. Bennett an interested listener. Mr. Bennett spoke a few hours later in Montreal.

Canadian democracy, said Mr. Herridge, would not tolerate the social disequilibrium which resulted from an inequitable distribution of the fruits of the profit system. A few would not be permitted to continue to enjoy great winnings at the expense of many.

It was not his place to suggest concrete remedies, he said, although he might have some in mind, but if he were convinced the present system was wrong he would not hesitate to scrap it. Capitalism had been founded on free competition and the open marketplace and developed on the profit system. Profit remained but the open market-place and free competition had gone. Monopolies and the concentration of business had made free competition impossible.

Canada Solution

The solution of the problem as far as Canada was concerned should be a Canadian solution. Other countries had given up their democracies. Canada would not. Consequently there was the greater need of an informed public opinion and fearless thinking. Things to be kept in mind were that "there is nothing sacred about the economic system but the welfare of the people" and that "we owe no less a duty to Government than it owes to us."

On the opposition side of politics the National Liberal Federation held its annual meeting in Ottawa. Expressing full confidence in the coming overthrow of the Bennett Government the Liberals demanded an immediate election.

Mr. King's announcement, that if returned to office he would continue the Empire Trade pacts, while seeking to negotiate certain changes in them was the high point of the meeting as far as public expression of policy was concerned. When the pacts came before Parliament two years ago, Mr. King and his followers strongly opposed them.

Mr. Euler, former Liberal Minister of National Revenue, spoke at Chatham, Ont., and urged creation of a giant corporation to operate the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways jointly. Its ownership would be shared equally by the present two companies.

The former Minister made it plain he was expressing only his own viewpoint and a few days later Mr. King affirmed the same thing and declared he himself and the Liberal party still favored maintenance of the integrity of the Canadian National Railways as a publicly owned and operated system.

Christmas Concerts

BRINGING white gifts for distribution among the less fortunate families in the city, hundreds of Sunday school scholars of Bridge Street United Church marched from the entrance through the aisles to the communion railing where they placed their Christmas gifts within an arched bower, while overflowing bushel baskets of Christmas remembrances were brought forward and placed in front of the pulpit.

It was "White Christmas" for the Sunday School and congregation and Superintendent J. E. Shortt delivered a brief message on the origin of the observance which began, he said, in China, when the great Kubla Khan was honored many a century ago by his people for his righteous rule, with the presentation of white gifts however great or small. This legend was used as the foundation of the Christian "White Christmas" in honor of the birth of Jesus, the superintendent explained, stating that the greatest gift of all was the gift of heart into the control of the Master of men.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple, delivered a sermon in stories to show how generosity and sacrifice were a Christian's part and that the giving of one's heart into the guidance of Christ brought all the other benefits of life in its train.

Christmas carols were sung by the children's choir and by the adult choir and the hymns were of Christmastide.

Mr. H. W. Ackerman speaking to the congregation expressed the belief that a kindlier spirit marked Christmas than a generation or two ago for today children are taught to give as well as to receive at this season. He made the explanation that the gifts presented at the service were not restricted to less fortunate members of the congregation but became part of the vast organizations and churches which serve the less fortunate with food and clothing in season, irrespective of race, color or creed.

Trenton and District

A.W. BARNES, DIES SUDDENLY CALLED

Home And School Club Concert At Trenton

Trenton, Dec. 17 (Special)—Mr. A. W. Barnes, age 51, who has been employed for the past few weeks at the local Cities Service Station on the Power Prover, passed away early Saturday morning in the Belleville General Hospital a few hours after being admitted. Mr. Barnes worked as usual all day Friday and in the evening motored to Smithfield on business where he was suddenly stricken. Friends brought him to Trenton to the office of Dr. Reid who ordered him removed to the hospital. With the best of medical attention he failed to rally and passed away early Saturday.

His sudden death came as a great shock to the many friends he had made during his short stay in Trenton. The body was prepared for burial and taken to Toronto late Saturday where interment will be made.

Liquor Store Staff Increased

Mr. Charles M. Foster, who has been in charge of the Liquor Control Board Store in Trenton for the past seven years received notice of his dismissal last week. The Hepburn Government appointed Mr. Harold Turney as his successor as vendor. Mr. Bert Riley of Sidney Township, former proprietor of Riley's Pavilion, was added to the staff. At present five are employed at the local store instead of four who formerly operated the branch.

Former Trenton Resident Dies

Mrs. Kenny suffered a stroke while playing "God Save the King" at a concert in Hyman Hall in London. The late Mrs. Kenny was born in Picton, lived in Trenton for some time and later in London. She and her daughter conducted the Kenny Studio of Music.

She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Norma and Mrs. (Dr.) A. R. K. Mathews, both of London. Two brothers, R. Reynolds of Toronto, and Charles of Trenton, also survive. Interment was made at London.

Home and School Club Present Concert

A large number of kiddies of College Street Public School presented a concert that packed the auditorium at College Street School on Thursday and Friday evenings. The proceeds went for the Milk Fund of the Club. A pantomime, "The Wedding of the Painted Doll" was put on by the primary students and was well received. Jean Blair gave an excellent exhibition of a skipping rope dance. A play entitled "Santa Claus Junior" was also presented. The dolls, jumping jacks and Santa Claus Senior, made a hit with the youngsters. Several selections on the mouth organ and guitar added a delightful musical touch to the concert. Misses Minnie Lusk, Marjorie McCammon and Thelma Blainey played the guitars, while the mouth organs were handled by Billie Bryer. "Ghosts of Christmas Gifts" was well portrayed in which the little girl had a dream of her old toys. A pleasing and colourful number was put on by the primary students' Rhythm Band, under the direction of Teddy Wibberley. Thelma Garbut pleased the audience with a tap dancing number. A short play in two scenes entitled "A Visit to Santa Claus Land" was well presented. Thelma Blainey entertained with a guitar solo, "The Rosary." "To a Miniature" and "The Minuet" were presented by the senior girls. Miss Marion Bell amused those present with a comic song, "The Little Yeller Dog." A comic number "The Three Black Crows" caused many bursts of laughter with their antics and wise cracks. John Bryer gave a pleasing recitation. Ernest Penlington in a cornet solo, presented "Rock-a-bye Moon" and "Silent Night". The concert was brought to a close with a chorus, "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town" and "God Save the King."

SCHOONER HIRED TO SEARCH WATERS

Wife of Captain Ulm Unwilling to Abandon Hope

Sydney, N.S.W. Dec. 17 (AP) — Refusing to abandon hope for her husband, missing for two weeks on a transPacific flight, Mrs. Charles T. P. Ulm chartered the schooner Lanakai today through the British Consul in Honolulu to make a month's search for him.

Part of the £5,000 (about $25,000) grant the Australian government made Mrs. Ulm last week will finance the expedition, which was decided upon after conference with experts on the Pacific.

ITALO BALBO IS REAL GOVERNOR

Italy's "Forgotten Man" Making Good at His Job

Rome, Dec. 17—(AP)—Increased tension over Italian colonial possessions in Afric resulting from the Ethiopian troubles has turned the spotlight on Italy's "forgotten man" Marshall Italo Balbo, Governor of Italian Libya.

The calm progress Balbo has made as administrator of this colony was recognized today as standing in sharp contrast against other troubled areas where Italy's announced programme of colonial exploitation in Africa has met with barriers.

Marshal Balbo, the man whose mass flight to Chicago through Eastern Canada made him world famous, has re-shaped, re-wrought and rebuilt Libya in his just-completed first year as governor.

The name of Italo Balbo might not be mentioned by an Italian newspaper more than once in a month. In speaking of his work the newspapers use the impersonal reference, "The Governor of Libya".

A WORD FROM HENRY FORD

We will announce our new 1935 cars, and have them on display where you may examine them, on Saturday, December 29th. The cars are coming off the line now and distribution will soon commence.

I have never been very much in favor of the custom of yearly models. Good motor cars do not become obsolete simply because the calendar turns a leaf. Our former custom was to put improvements on our cars as soon as we developed and tested them, so that there was continuous refinement and progress. The custom of introducing new models annually is justified when they are really new, and not merely equipped with new talking points for the purposes of salesmanship.

Last year's Ford V-8 was a good car, the best we had built up to that time. We don't say to any customer with a last year's car that his car is out of date. If it is giving him service, and if he is not in the market for a new car, there is no reason for him to feel that he is behind the procession. He still drives the fundamentally latest thing in cars. The new car has all the qualities and advantages of last year's car, with something added.

The improvements we offer are not experimental in any sense; they were thoroughly tried out under every conceivable circumstance before we finally adopted them. That, in fact, is our job all the year 'round—refining, improving, making new balance of qualities, always adhering closely to our principle of continuous growth in the basic purpose of the Ford car.

The 1935 V-8 engine is practically the same engine we built in 1934, because we have not learned how to build a better one. It has, however, some refinements; amongst which are the copper-lead connecting rod bearings, and the new type of crankcase ventilation.

Most of the improvements concern the riding qualities of the car. There is now more comfort both in driving the car and riding in it—and it was always a very comfortable car to drive. This year we have paid particular attention to the comfort of the back seat rider. The rear seat is now forward of the rear axle, so that all passengers ride between the axles. With the new flexible springs, this gives what has been aptly described as "a front seat ride for the back seat passengers." Besides, it has permitted changes in the design of the body which have resulted in those lines of beauty so much in favor with automobile owners today.

We have always had three fundamentals—Durability, Economy of operation and maintenance, and Comfort. Safety, of course, is taken for granted. The Durability is just what it always was; no one needs to be told at this late day that Fords are built to last. The Economy is even greater than before—an 8-cylinder engine with the economy of a four. As to Comfort, however, there has been a very considerable advance, as I think you will agree when you have tried the car out.

We built more than 20,000,000 cars previous to the V-8. We have built 1,300,000 V-8 cars. The V-8, we believe, is the proper engine for the low-price car field, which is our field.

This 1935 car will be on display December 29th, with all details ready for your information. It is entirely probable that some of our prices will be lower than in 1934. We want them lower because we expect to build a million cars and better next year, and the price must be right. If the price is right, people will buy; men will go back to work; a thousand related businesses will feel the new impulse. At least, we are trying to make 1935 a busier, happier and more hopeful year.

The following address was read by Mr. Edwin Pine:

Dear Florence and Orvil:

Your friends and neighbors have gathered here this evening to extend you their best wishes and a long and happy life together. Florence we shall miss you as you have been raised from childhood among the young folks of this community.

Till it seems as though the time with you
For us to part with you,
The place where you are going
We hope they'll like you too
We hate to have you leave us.
There'll be that vacant place
You'll always be remembered
As the lady full of grace.

These folks have asked you to accept these gifts as a remembrance from Albury community.

Signed on behalf of your friends: Mrs. Fred Dempsey, Mrs. Edwin Pine.

All joined in singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

C.G.I.T. HOLD CANDLE LIGHTING CEREMONY

Groups From Various Churches in City Take Part

The beautiful candle-lighting ceremony, held annually by the Canadian Girls in Training, took place yesterday afternoon in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. The service was held after Sunday School and was attended by over one hundred girls representing groups in Holloway Street, Tabernacle and John Street United Churches, Christ Church, Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, St. Andrew's Church and Emmanuel Church.

Miss Margaret Leslie took charge of the service and led the worship period. Christmas carols were sung in splendid voice by the girls. The inspiring ceremony then took place. A large lighted candle, symbolizing Jesus Christ, the Light of the World, burned brightly at the front of the room. Each girl, candle in hand approached the large candle, lighting hers from it, and as the Recessional hymn was sung, the girls passed out carry their candles still lighted, signifying the thought that they were to carry their light out into the world which would be better for its radiance.

Winged Half-Hour Tribute to Wrights

Washington Dec. 17 (AP)—Hundreds of aeroplanes poised today to take to the skies in a "winged half-hour" of tribute to those two pioneers, Wilbur and Orville Wright.

It is the 31st. anniversary of the first aeroplane flight, made at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina. Aeroplanes were tuned to circle over cities throughout the land in a "flight of remembrance."

While planes roared overhead at Dayton, Ohio, Orville Wright planned to visit the grave of the daring brother who was with him on that historic day.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DO MODERN GIRLS ALL HOLD LOVE TOO LIGHTLY?

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

When it comes to the fundamentals of life, men are born conservatives. And some women, when they leave the old, old trail and begin experimenting with "this freedom" that we've heard so much about, don't seem to know where to stop. A young man's letter puts the case in a nutshell:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My girl and I were devoted to each other for nearly five years. The depression made it impossible for us to marry, as I was unemployed for short periods during '31 and '32. I considered our relationship as binding as marriage. We were faithful to each other, and our plans were for a life together.

"We had wonderful times gazing into the windows of furniture stores and deciding what we'd like to have when we had our own home. Even when I noticed a change in the girl's attitude, and she made excuses for not seeing me as often as before, I thought she was tired of waiting for the happy day, but I felt as if she were already my wife.

"She decided to go away for a two weeks' vacation, and when I told her I would meet her there, she said she wanted to be alone for a while. I wrote to her and asked if I might not come for a week-end, and she wired back she wanted to think something out. I imagined she was considering ways of making my small salary do for us both, because she was very clever about a house.

"Her letter—I can't tell you what it did to me. She told me she intended to marry another man. He is older and decidedly well-to-do, but I had never dreamed of this middle-aged widower as a rival.

"Life doesn't mean anything to me now. Somehow or other, the pattern of things which led to this girl and the home we had planned together is all snarled up. I drink sometimes, not to excess, but just to sidestep the pressure on this wound. I did not accept my girl's decision lightly. I took the next train and had it out with her.

"Then I realized for the first time that she had held my love lightly, that what had meant everything in the world to me had been only an episode, an adventure to her. We just did not speak the same language. She said my anger was primitive, my jealousy that of the possessive male, and that I was not modern. Are all women like that?

"Deceived."

You know, as well as I do, my dear by, that all women are not like that. Nor does that apply to any very large proportion of them, in spite of all the indictments which have been brought against the modern girl. Your question has been framed out of your own bitter experience—and I'll agree it has been bitter.

Your anger and jealousy, as the girl has told you, are primitive. But aren't we all pretty primitive?

The girl is cheating both you and the man she is going to marry. He is old, prosperous and unattractive, and I fear she'll continue to cheat him. She'll probably send for you after the novelty of her position as prosperous matron has worn off—and I hope you'll have the common sense not to return to her when she tries to whistle you back.

The right girl is probably waiting for you not far off, and when you meet her this episode with a calculating, cold-blooded young woman will not seem as serious as it does today.

Livestock

Toronto, Dec. 17.—Early trading on the Toronto livestock market today was spotty with some grades of cattle slow and others active, calves and sheep steady and hogs and lambs unsettled. Prices were generally unchanged.

Sheep were steady at $1.00 to $3.00 cwt.

BOARD ROOM GOSSIP

OUTLOOK

Mining Index at Saturday's close saw 20 leading Canadian Industrials crawl through the 100 mark a point not achieved in months. This display of strength is expected to carry through.

Mines were off. A sharp decline marked the short session when bids disappeared and offerings became numerous. Just at the close there was a flurry created by a demand from arbitrage houses. This has come to be a weekly affair dictated evidently by a desire to carry some golds over a week end just in case something might break.

NICOLA MINES AND METALS

Vancouver — Judgment on the application of J. A. Russell, Vancouver barrister seeking to have dissolved an injunction enjoining him from proceeding with an investigation under the Securities Act into Nicola Mines and Metals Ltd., has been reserved by Mr. Justice F. G. T. Lucas in British Columbia Supreme Court. The Company contended Russell instead of investigating the company as it was alleged he was instructed by the Attorney General was investigating the Company's marketing activities.

GOD'S LAKE MINES

God's Lake was prominent last week according to unofficial word negotiations are being carried on with Newmont Mining Corp to Finance Development Construction of a mill and power plant. It is said Newmont is prepared to advance from $600,000 to $800,000. While the company has funds on hands and shares in the Treasury the deal would eliminate the necessity of offering shares.

GUNNAR GOLD

A good deal of interest centred in Gunnar Gold one of the weak spots of a month or so ago and stock was widely commented upon. An inquiry was held into market action of stock when it broke badly on publication of official progress report but inquiry was held "in camera" and there has been nothing released for publication.

RENO GOLD MINES

According to report from Vancouver the ore at West End of East Ore shoot on 6th level at Reno has been crosscut and drifting has added 50 feet to the known length of the shoot.

The West Ore Shoot is 299 feet long and 2.68 feet wide of an average grade of 1.62 ounces gold per ton and East Ore Shoot is 236 feet long with ore averaging 1.03 ounces gold per ton.

Crosscutting on 7th Level from shaft to pick up the main orebody is now underway. As soon as No. 7 gets into the ore No. 8 and No. 9 crosscuts will be run to the Orebody. These three new levels are expected to provide ore reserves for a considerable period especially if it is found that the vein continues to widen out as has been experience on first 6 levels.

MURDER ATTEMPT BRINGS 20 YEARS

"O. K. Judge" is Salutation as William Press is Sentenced

Montreal, Dec. 17 (CP)—William A. Prest alias Samuel Healy, of Parry Sound, Ont., today was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary by Mr. Justice Charles A. Wilson in the Court of King's Bench having been found guilty of attempting to murder Henry Berryman, golf club employe, and also holding up the Dorval, Que., branch of La Banque Canadienne Nationale. He was given 20 years on each charge, sentences to run concurrently.

"O.K. Judge" spoke up Prest after he was sentenced and then grinned and waived his hand. Berryman was shot by Prest during the gunman's flight from his unsuccessful raid on the bank. Prest was arrested near Rochester, N.Y. at the request of Provincial police.

DRAGGED INTO CAR, DRUGGED, IS CLAIM

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 17 (CP) — Donald McKenzie told police today he had been forced into a motor car Saturday night, drugged, tossed out of the car again and warned to cease his attentions to a woman resident here. McKenzie said there were between four and five men in the car. He said he was too sick from the effects of the drug to register a complaint before. McKenzie's left cheek bore scratch marks. He told police he did not know his correct age, except that he was more than 40 years old. Police are investigating.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 17. — Nothing appears at the moment to be ready to take the place of Distillers Seagrams as the market leader and trading was slow over the board, modified only by fair action in Ford "A" and International Nickel. Trading has tapered off sharply in the distillery shares but the group was holding firm to strong today. Some profit-taking was in evidence in Ford at a slight price decline and Nickel was a shade firmer.

Bell Telephone moved up to a new high mark for the year at 131 and new highs were also registered by two preferred issues, Tamblyns and United Fuel.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Dec. 17.—Mining shares displayed variable moods to-day, some of the seniors selling off in volume while secondary issues pushed ahead, led by Little Long Lac. The latter issue traded in huge volume in the first two hours and then settled down to hold a net gain of 20 cents at $7.10. God's Lake and Gunnar Gold were active and firm.

Strength of the metal shares on the New York market brought in some buying in Noranda on a price rise to $34.25. The cheaper copper issues failed to follow. In the silvers Eldorado carried the load of the morning trade and was holding a gain of a few cents this afternoon.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Dec. 17. — The stock market showed some signs of climbing out of the rut today, although the majority of dealings were still of a highly selective nature.

Scattered specialties developed strength, along with some of the metals, and a few utilities displayed a better tone than in several weeks past. There was little change in the market picture, generally. A number of prime bonds edged into new high ground for 1934 or longer, but price changes in this list were small.

Narrow movements prevailed in the Canadian list. International Nickel, Dome and Canadian Pacific were about unchanged. On the curb, Lake Shore was slightly lower, but Hiram Walker ruled about even. Dominion Government 4's improved slightly. Canadian funds eased 3-32 of a cent at 101.

New tops for the year were recorded by shares of Philip Morris, McCrory Stores and Interboro Rapid Transit with advances of about a point each. American Woollen Preferred moved up nearly three points, U. S. Smelting was two higher and American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and Howe Sound were fractionally to more than a point firmer.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Nothing less than 12 points was worth anything in the National Hockey League's big seven today as leading scorers added points gained in five week-end engagements. There were no new faces in rankings, however.

The biggest shuffle was in the third place position where Earl Robinson of Maroons and Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit jumped into a three-way tie with Weiland of Detroit.

The standings:

	G	A	P
Jackson, Toronto	15	6	21
Conacher, Toronto	9	10	19
Robinson, Montreal	9	5	14
Goodfellow, Detroit ...	6	8	14
Weiland, Detroit	6	8	14
Lewis, Detroit	5	8	13
Aurie, Detroit	3	9	12

STEWART SUSPENDED

Montreal, Dec. 17.—Nels Stewart, burly centre of the Boston Bruins, is under suspension pending further inquiry into his alleged attack on Lloyd Klein, left winger of the New York Americans, during Thursday's game, Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, announced here yesterday. "Dede" Klein is out of competition due to a four-inch gash in his head in addition to a battered shoulder.

After a mild roughing match Klein and Stewart were waved off the ice by officials Eusebe Daigneault and Odie Cleghorn. Stewart then walloped Klein with such force he broke his stick, according to reports from the rinkside. A mixup resulted and Stewart and Klein were given match penalties.

Leafs Come from Behind to Defeat Amerks and Increase Lead to 10 Points Over Maroons

Two Tie Games Played Over Weekend to Create Record

HAWKS LEAD GROUP

Kerr in Ranger's Goal Gives a Brilliant Display

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fans had just about decided ties were a thing of the past in the National Hockey League, when along came week-end games, that put more on the record than had been staged in the 52 previous encounters this season. Before Saturday only one draw had been played, a 1-1 affairs between Montreal Canadien and New York Americans.

Curiously the Habitants and Amerks again figured in the two tie games, playing against different teams, however. St. Louis held Canadiens to a 1-1 draw in Montreal Saturday night and the New Yorkers drew up to within two points of Montreal Maroons by playing Detroit Red Wings to a 2-2 tie Sunday.

The late scoring punch that has brought them most of their long list of wins came to Toronto Leafs' aid Saturday, when Americans were two goals up on them and the Canadian section leaders won 4-3, and drew 10 points up on Maroons, who lost 3-2 to Black Hawks in Chicago Sunday night.

Chicago's victory gave them leadership in the American section, breaking the tie with Boston, defeated 2-1 by New York Rangers, who had Dave Kerr, newly bought from Maroons, in the nets.

Kerr, who was benched by Tommy Gorman in favor of Alex Connell, made 41 saves in his first effort as a Ranger and was given a large share of the credit for the New Yorker's fourth win of the season. Dit Clapper gave Boston a lead in the first period but Bun Cook's middle session rally and another by Cecil Dillon with less than two minutes to go in the third won the game.

Leafs Given a Scare

Americans threw a scare into Toronto fans when, without Dede Klein and Normie Himes, they rapped in two first period goals, Bob Gracie and Happy Emms scoring. Two Leaf veterans, King Clancy and Harold Cotton, even things up in the second, Clancy scoring a brilliant goal with four Americans hanging around his neck.

Nick Metz, Leaf rookie, gave them the lead in the third and Harvey Jackson got his goal before old Rabbit McVeigh brought Americans up within striking distance with their final tally late in the third.

Billy Beveridge's goal-tending stood out in the St. Louis-Canadien affair as he held the Canadien sharpshooters to one goal, Aurel Joliat's effort in the third period. Carl Voss had scored for the Eagles in the first and George Boucher, new Eagle coach, had kept them at a defensive game after that.

Hawks Are Brilliant

Everyone thought Tommy Gorman had taken a lot of strength from Chicago when he transferred his coaching ability to Maroons and brought Lionel Conacher's defensive ability along but Hawks proved they still have enough left to beat the Montrealers. Clem Loughlin's team came from behind twice last night and then went on to win on Mush March's goal.

March and Johnny Gottselig figured in all three Hawks goals and Howie Morenz got assists on two of them. Gottselig scored twice and Mush got the other. Earl Robinson scored both Maroon goals, one in the first period and another in the second.

Detroit had to come from behind, too, to tie Americans. Dave "Sweeney" Schriner, the Calgary product, who is making a name for himself in the N.H.L. sent the New Yorkers off to a good start in the second and when Herb Lewis tied it up in the third, Happy Emms put the battered Amerks in the lead again Lloyd Gross scored the tieing goal for Detroit late in the third. Ebbie Goodfellow got assists on both Detroit goals.

CAPTAINS NAMED FOR KI-Y TEAMS

At their regular club meetings at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday morning the members of the Preps group (boys 10 and 11 years) and the members of the Junior School (boys 12 to 14 years) appointed their captains and selected teams for the Ki-Y Hockey League. In the Preps Eugene Illsey, John Bradley and Blake Kerr and George Cooper; Harold Burkholder and Marston Hitchon and Ken Ingram will select teams. In the Junior School Billie Bateman, Gerald Finkle, Stuart Muirhead and Ross Clare will look after teams.

In addition to their gym floor swim and picture program the boys enjoyed music on the Hawaiian Guitar furnished by Horace Daniels, Earl Gray, Ernie Pry and Bob Stephenson. Each group paid an offering toward the World Brotherhood or Missionary Fund of the "Y" work.

AMERK STAR

Lloyd "Dede" Klein, one of New York American's sharpshooting youngsters, who is showing smart, aggressive hockey with Joe Simpson's crew. Klein and his young cohorts, along with a sprinkling of old line veterans, are, holding the Amerks very much in the National Hockey League race and keeping the title, "Amazing Amerks" tacked to the New York masthead.

MR. PRESIDENT

Toronto Maple Leafs' smart goalie, George Hainsworth, is the only golf club president in the major hockey loop. There are plenty of good golfers among the hockey pros, but George takes the prize as an executive.

THE TOUCH

It cost Lloyd Waner, Pittsburg Pirate outfielder, ten dollars to pay a bet with Hughie Critz of N. Y. Giants as to which would knock most homers in the 1934 baseball race. With a month of the season still to go Lloyd turned over a ten spot, since Hughie had five homers to Waner's one. He didn't wait to be asked for it.

PRAISE FOR HUBBELL

Carl Hubbell, Giants' southpaw, is the greatest pitcher in baseball, according to Paul Waner, the "Big Poison" of Pittsburg Pirates. Paul despite his praise of Hubbell, also is authority for the statement that Paul Dean has more "stuff" on the ball than any other pitcher. The younger Dean, Explains Waner needs a little more control.

Jack Tremilling

London, Dec. 17—Preston North End gained promotion to the first division of the English Football League at the close of last season, along with Grimsby and one of the big factors in their rise to the heights was the brilliant playing of Jack Tremilling. Tremilling formerly a utility player with the club, was given his chance for a first eleven berth and now plays the centre half position regularly. He does not confine his activities to the pivot position, however, as he has handled jobs as full back, half back and forward which made him especially valuable as a reserve player able to fill any gap in the ranks. Preston bought Tremilling from Blackpool two seasons ago. His brother Dan Tremilling, is well known as Bury's regular net goalie and a former net custodian for Birmingham. As regular centre half for the North End crew, Jack is showing his club that he warranted promotion to the first team, turning in an excellent brand of football.

With the local intermediate O.H.A. group schedule adopted Convener Ed. Thomas is calling together the surrounding junior clubs for their group meeting tonight. Convener Thomas invited Napanee, Tweed, Campbellford and Belleville to attend this evening's conclave, when the junior schedule and group rulings will be thoroughly thrashed out. The intermediate O.H.A. group No. 1 in the "A" series was drafted last Friday night and includes Port Hope, Cobourg, Lindsay, Peterboro, Campbellford and Belleville in a 30-game schedule, each club having five home games and five on the road. Skipper Thomas sat back and bided his time during the drafting of the schedule until he manipulated the drawing to his liking, apparently. The schedule gives the local intermediates all their home games during the latter part of January, when the weather should be favourable to assure the home club of excellent ice. Skipper Thomas announced today, that he would look over the local city league clubs for intermediate material before calling his initial practice. The Belleville juniors, however, will be holding nightly workouts in the near future.

Lawrence 'Larry' Goyer, who has starred in professional hockey ranks for the past few years, informed us, that the recent International sports ruling barred him from entering the United States and playing for the St. Paul "Saints" this season. As a matter of fact the new agreement between the Canadian and American authorities actually broke up the Northern League, the loop in which Goyer has starred in the past two seasons. "Larry" is back in town and is now aspiring to turn referee. He will tender his application to the O.H.A. and also expects to work the odd few games in the Hastings County League. Incidently we have been named as referee-in-chief for the Belleville City League (no dear fans we are not tingling any bells). Already we have pressed into service such officials as Bill Green, "Bouncer" Holway, Jack Trualsch, Leo "Stub" Barrett, "Bun" Frechette and Larry Goyer. We have also included a couple of new comers who will be introduced to the city league fans as the loop progresses. It is our utmost desire to see that the local city hockey league is provided with the best procurable referees. Incidently "Bouncer" Holway and Jack Trualsch have been appointed as referees for Tuesday night's games.

Women were permitted to compete in the modern Olympic Games for the first time in 1906 when tennis was listed as a feminine sport. In 1912 they entered in swimming contests, and in 1924 in fencing. To these sports racing and hurdle racing were added in 1928. In 1933 practically all events were open to women.

Clem Allen, local fight promoter, informs us, that his boxers will train at the Alemite plant henceforth. Matchmaker Allen is slated to take his stable of boxers to Peterboro in the near future and is more than "burned" up with the reports coming back from the Lift Lock City. "The Peterboro scrappers sent me their weights in good faith and I matched them accordingly," stated Clem as he assured us, that his fighters would be much under weight for the return bouts in Peterboro. "I'll throw Gordie Morris in against Ronco, so the homester will have the weight advantage while Bob Fisher will be pitted against Viteralli", said Clem. Our personal opinion is, that the local fight promoter is going a little too far in the matter of weights in his return bout. Insofar as we can personally observe, the local boxers are going to be at a much worse advantage than the Peterboro scrappers were here. "I honestly think, that my lighter boys can more than give a good account of themselves against such boys as Ronco, Viteralli and Minicola," said Promoter Allen in confidence. Incidently the next S.W. A.A.C boxing card will be held at the City Hall, we hear.

President Harry Rollins informs us, that all is in readiness for the opening of the Belleville City Hockey League on Tuesday night. "All of the teams included in the opening night games had strenuous practises over the week-end and showed mid-season form," stated Prexy Rollins this morning as he reminded us that Mayor Tice would face the puck and usher in the current hockey season. Another feature is the grand drawing for a valuable door prize. City League hockey has been rather dormant for the past few seasons, but with a rejuvenated interest being taken this season, the local fans should be treated to high class hockey from now until the O.H.A. season opens at least. After all is said and done there is no league quite as successful as a good city league and simply because the fans know the players and naturally take a pointed interest in the games and the progress of the individual players.

The Olympic Games of 1936 will last 16 days, opening promptly at noon on Aug. 1 when the Olympic fire will be lighted by a flame carried by 3,000 torch runners in a dramatic relay race all the way from the original site of the Olympic Games in ancient Greece. The total distance the runners will traverse is 1,837 miles, crossing seven countries.

Wilfrid Cude, slim Welshman, who is in the nets for Canadiens in the National Hockey league this season, is the nudist of the netminders. Some of the goalies dress up until they look like the celebrated big sofa man from Davenport.

But Cude says that he cannot move around fast enough if he wears even the usual amount of protection carried in the goal-keepers' union. So he wears less and he moves fastest.

LONDON TECS 4 POINTS UP

Windsor Bulldogs And Buffalo Bisons Tied For Second

(By the Canadian Press)

A strenuous week-end of hockey found Windsor Bulldogs today matching strides with Buffalo Bisons in second place of the International League with London Tecumsehs up in front with a four-point advantage. Two points behind the second-place teams were Syracuse and Cleveland, deadlocked in third position with Detroit Olympics trailing two points in the rear.

Saturday night fixtures gave London a 2-1 win over Cleveland in the Ohio City and Windsor defeated Buffalo 2-1 in a hectic struggle in Fort Erie. A scoreless battle was staged last night, when Windsor visited Syracuse.

Milt Halliday, the Ottawa native, gave Cleveland, a one-goal advantage in the second session in a combination attack with Leroux and Mike Trophy. London ran in two goals before the period ended. Leroy Goldsworthy scoring on a pass from Bernie Brophy who added the winning goal on Benny Ward's assist.

'READY, AYE READY' TO DEFEND HIS CROWN

Max Baer

Steve Hamas

Art Lasky

Primo Carnera

Max Schmeling

Tehre is one boxing champion who is willing and eager to defend his title—by his own confession. It is none other than Max Baer who wears the heavyweight crown with considerable aplomb. Max recently came to bat with the idea that he fight two contenders for his title on the same night. He selects Art Lasky, Steve Hamas, Primo Carnera and Max Schmeling as the logical contenders. The champ's idea is that these four meet in an elimination contest, opponents to be drawn for in each case, and the two survivors battle himself, the champ, in two ten-round bouts on a double card. Should he lose to his first opponent (Max discounts the possibility with an airy laugh) his conquerer would meet the remaining battler for the crown. It's quite an idea.

Spite Wife

by Ann Forester

"You—you came here unexpectedly?" Judy said, feeling that she must say something, and then wondered if he guessed the bitter consternation he had caused at this particular time.

"Found I could run over for a short visit if I hurried. Have to call in an Eliza every so often or she fades on the vine."

There was a warmth in his eyes which belied the flippancy of the reply. Judy guessed that it was part of a game of which she never tired, this formidable old lady who struck everyone else with awe.

A miracle happened. Madame Carter turned —Judy had never realised the sharpness of those old ears—and gave the high, delighted cackle of age.

"Don't you believe him, Judith, child! It's a guilty conscience drives him back to get scolded. Then he feels free to go out and gather more sins!"

From the trunk the old lady had lifted a folded mass of silk. She shook it loose and Judy gasped. A silk shawl of exquisite workmanship, the long silk fringe sweeping halfway across the rug. Dried sprigs of lavender fell from it, and it was tinted a beautiful ivory with age.

"My son, Nicholas brought this back from China on his last trip before he died" Madame Carter said, and the frail old hands stroked the mellow silk. "It will go well with that yellow frock you have on, Judith. Put it on. I want to see you wear it."

Fragrance of cedar and lavender as Judy complied. The shawl was a lovely thing, heavy with its own silk. The old hands, with their knotted, leaden veins gently patted the folds into shape brushed a sprig of lavender from the fringe, and Madame's eyes lit with a sort of youthful appreciation as they went from the girl to the man, who stood watching the two of them.

"Isn't she lovely in it, Nick?" Then to Judy, "You like it my dear?"

"Oh it's beautiful!"

"It is yours."

"Oh, Madame, I couldn't!"

A hint of temper in the old voice. "Don't be a young fool! If I didn't want you to have it I wouldn't give it to you. I gave you no wedding present. This is my gift."

Judy felt both pair of eyes following her as she left the room. On the second floor staircase she caught up with Amy—Amy very smartly groomed in pastel green satin. Amy's eyes widened with unconcealed surprise at the sight of her sister-in-law. "Why—that's Grandmother's shawl isn't it!"

"Isn't it lovely?" A singing note in Judy's voice. "She just gave it to me for my wedding present."

"Lucky you! I've had my eye on that for years, but the old girl wouldn't loosen up! I asked her for it once and she nearly snapped my head off. My word, Judy, you must have gotten under her skin!"

Cool amusement in Amy's voice; patronising, even. But her eyes were furious as she followed the other girl downstairs.

JUDY MAKES HER BOW

CHAPTER TWELVE

Mrs. Carter's dinner party was in full swing. Judy inwardly nervous found herself seated at the table between a tall thin man with a lazy voice and a thread of brown mustache whom she heard called Dart Towers and Nick Carter.

She was amazed to see Nick there. In the first moment she did not recognise him in the sleek black and white of tuxedo. His bronze face and powerful figure made the other men seem a trifle undersized. In spite of Stan's unusual good looks Nick Carter was the most distinguished appearing man in the room.

In her nervousness at her first formal party Judy was unfeignedly glad to see him. She told him so and he grinned.

"Now I'm repaid for the torture of this collar I decided to come at the last minute because I wanted to get better acquainted with my new relative"! !

His tone was light but there was grave commendation in the grey eyes.

Eliza was right ran Nick Carter's thoughts this girl was unusual! A flowerlike quality about her delicately lovely. She was like a tea rose in that pale creamy thing.. But more than prettiness—character was there. Honesty in the way her eyes met a fellow's. .. .. strength and even a little stubbornness in the line of the small firm chin.——

Judy spoke of the shawl and he gave her some family history.

"Her son Nicholas was first mate on a sailing ship which went to China in the old days. He died when he was still a young man and I think it was the deepest sorrow of her life. Her other son, Robert, was my father. But, strangely enough, they say I resemble my Uncle Nicholas—I was named for him."

This was probably the reason the old lady loved him so Judy thought gravely regarding his strong brown face. In this younger Nicholas, Madame Carter had found her beloved younger son again.

But serious thoughts were crowded out by the flood of new impressions Judy was receiving tonight.

A very gay—very noisy dinner party. Mrs. Carter flutteringly hospitable in grey net over gold, her cornsilk hair threatening to slide over one ear, was at the head of the table. Vera—a trifle upholstered in black velvet and beside her a stout young man whom no one took seriously but who conveniently filled the role of escort on such occasions. Judy learned that his name was "Tubby". As a rule people forgot there was any more to it.

The rest of the women were Amy's particular chums; the members of the exclusive set which dominated Lockwood society.

There was the talkative Georgia —in a dress from which she had obviously removed the sleeves to make a dinner gown. Georgia was a poor manager and was unable to get along on her really generous alimony. She was always in debt; always bemoaning her make-shifts, and pitying herself for being burdened by the care of her child, yet oddly enough she went with the wealthiest set in town. Perhaps the reason for this lay in Georgia's usefulness to her friends. Being burdened with no husband, Georgia's apartment became a convenient place for young married women to keep unconventional engagements. Georgia was adept at arranging little luncheons and afternoon parties where the same husbands and wives never met. Georgia was the go-between in exciting minor love affairs, faithfully relaying telephone appointments, and reaping her reward in careless gifts of gloves and perfumes —theatres tickets—dinner parties. There were several women in Lockwood who would not dare exclude Georgia in their social affairs, no matter how they secretly desired to do so.

With Georgia, her escort for the night—escorts always varied for Georgia—was Billy Sumner, a blond young man permanently parboiled by the golf course.

Across the centrepiece of jonquils was Eunice Wilson, Amy's particular chum.

Judy had started at the sight of her. The beautiful unknown of the photograph in Stan's room! And at the first glance, Judy found herself staring with fascinated eyes.

She was at once lovelier and not so lovely as the photograph. Her coloring was exquisite; her hair a strange rich gold, so perfectly arranged, so lustrous that it seemed carved out of metal. Her face was a perfect oval tinted the same dark cream all over. That pure pallor of Eunice's made other women with color on their cheeks seem trivial —commonplace by contrast. Her eyes were blue— not the thoughtful gray-blue of Judy's; but a brilliant light blue, almond in shape and set in long dark lashes, tiptilted at the corners in a fascinating way. They seemed thought Judy admiringly like twin sapphires set in the ivory of her face.

Yet, in the photograph—though it lacked the charm of her unusual coloring—there had been a depth—a suggestion of character which was lacking in the actual girl. A trick of the shadows, perhaps—the art of the photographer—thought Judy as she gazed across the jonquils fascinated. Certainly the wistful charm of the pictured face was not here to night on Eunice Wilson's perfect features.

Eunice contrived to make every woman in the room seem a little dull tonight. She had come swathed from head to foot in a snowy ermine cape which seemed a royal robe and had certainly cost as much. When she removed it, she was an ice-princess. Her silver dress threw off a scintillating fire when she moved. Her small perfect hands were blazing with diamonds. There was a diamond drop clasped about her throat by a platinum chain and a blaze of bangles on her arm. When she stirred the fragrance of Nuit de Noel went through the room.

And the owner of all this exquisite loveliness was fat and middle-aged and rather taciturn.

"Oh! Is that Eunice Wilson's husband!" Judy exclaimed involuntarily and there was such disillusion in her voice that Nick Carter laughed.

"You are very young, my sister-in-law! Millions seldom go with Adonises! Wilson used to be a puddler in a steel mill in his distant youth. He is many years—and many millions—removed from his crude youth!"

"But she's so beautiful! She's almost unearthly!"

"Just the word," Nick agreed. "One can't thing of Eunice Wilson in terms of the warm brown earth that brings forth violets."

There was a dryness in his tone which flashed her eyes to his face. How oddly he was looking at her. Watching her, Judy thought as their eyes met, with—could it be compassion?

"She reminds me," the man went on "of the beautiful Snow Queen in the Hans Christian Anderson fairytale. There —Judy—did you think I could remember so far back to fairytale days?"

His tone was lighter his eyes were averted to his plate as though he feared she might read too much.

Stan was sitting beside Eunice and at his other side was one of the queerest women Judy had ever seen. A tall, thin —almost skinny woman. Her skin was so dark that it seemed almost coffee colored. Her black lashes were stubby and heavily mascaraed so that they stood out in stiff points about her small greenish eyes. She wore her black hair parted in the centre and brought smoothly down on either side of her thin brown face so that from the front view she appeared to have a madonna look. But when she turned her head to speak to the man on the other side of her, Judy saw that the back was closely cropped so that she appeared a weird combination of nun and urchin.

This hybrid quality was carried out in her dress, half white satin, half black velvet. She wore long dangling eardrops of Calcutta workmanship, beaten gold and lapis. They swung violently with every italicized word—and every other word was italicized in her conversation.

She dominated the party with a sort of determined animation.

Her conversation was full of references to great people—whom she seemed to know intimately and call by their first names, if not nicknames. She tapped men on the arm when she talked to them.

Vera called down the table, to her: "Patty Warren! Where did you get hold of those gorgeous eardrops? Are those the ones—"

The strange woman interrupted her vivaciously, "The very ones I was telling you of, my dear! You know—" she included the rest of the table interrupting several conversation, forcing their attention, "these are a forgetmenot from my latest boy friend! Remember the Rajah, Amy—you know the Rajah of Majotah, Stan—He was visiting the Martins here last summer. I met him at the polo dance you know, and he simply haunted me afterward! When he left he said he was going to send me something to remember him by and these came last week. Aren't they priceless!"

Judy was watching her with fascinated eyes. "WHO is she?" she murmured to Nick.

GOOD BROWN EARTH

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Even as she asked the question. Judy was slightly astonished at herself.

Strange, how instinctively she turned to this man. She leaned on him mentally quite as easily as she would have turned to Stan. Perhaps more so—not for the world would she have had Stan think her provincial and crude. She was always striving to be her brightest, most charming self with Stan. It was different with Nick Carter. One relaxed with this long brown man.

Nick grinned understandingly at her bewilderment. "People are usually stricken dumb with the first glimpse! Why she's just Patty Warren. Keeps the Patty Warren shop down on the boulevard. You know —shop full of those silly little doo-dahs women like. Eardrops and new face powder and startling sport clothes...."

"Oh."

"Patty went to school with Eunice and Amy," Nick went on. "Her family had money then, but the old man lost it fathering some fool invention. Patty married a sap. Oh, nice enough sort of fellow but he doesn't just make the grade. Had some minor office position with Wilson. His name's Cliff Bacon. He's down further on this side of the table. They each kept their own name. Patty makes the coin for them both."

"She must be clever," Judy was watching the exotic figure across the table trying to make up her mind whether she liked her or not.

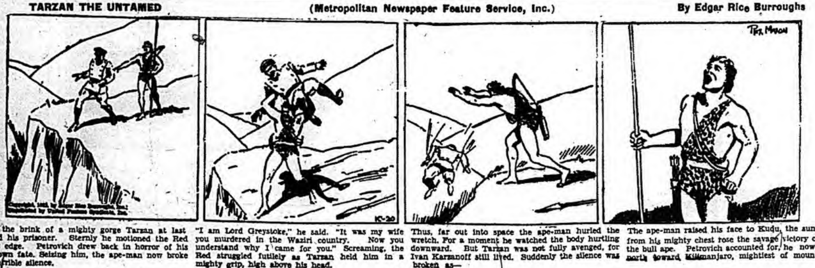
TARZAN THE UNTAMED (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs



K-20
REX MAXON

Upon the brink of a mighty gorge Tarzan at last halted his prisoner. Sternly he motioned the Red to its edge. Petrovich drew back in horror of his unknown fate. Seizing him, the ape-man now broke his terrible silence.

"I am Lord Greystoke," he said. "It was my wife you murdered in the Waziri country. Now you understand why I came for you." Screaming, the Red struggled futilely as Tarzan held him in a mighty grip, high above his head.

Thus, far out into space the ape-man hurled the wretch. For a moment he watched the body hurtling downward. But Tarzan was not fully avenged, for Ivan Karzanoff still lived. Suddenly the silence was broken as—

The ape-man raised his face to Kudu, the sun, and from his mighty chest rose the savage victory cry of the bull ape. Petrovich accounted for, he now sped north toward Kilimanjaro, mightiest of mountains.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Power"

Year's Most Lavish and Spectacular Production

"Power" lavish production starring Conrad Veidt, and supported by a cast of almost 5,000 people, opened today at the Capitol Theatre and left nothing to be desired in the way of film fare.

The story of "Power" is woven around Josef Suss Oppenheimer, played by Conrad Veidt. "Suss" has established himself in commerce and is later introduced to Karl Alexander, the reigning duke of the Duchy of Wurttemberg. His great commercial genius leads "Suss" up the ladder of success to dizzy heights of power. He eventually becomes the dominating force behind the ducal throne. But intrigue threatens to overthrow him. The treachery of the duke imperils the position of Suss, who, after a period of luxurious wealth, and almost absolute dictatorship over the State eventually loses this great power, is betrayed, imprisoned and hanged.

The story of "Power" is one filled with human emotions; poignant with enthralling mystery, intrigue and thrilling drama. It is brilliant with pomp and circumstance; rife with dramatic moments and glamorous with romance and color.

An unusually fine cast supports Conrad Veidt. Included are Benita Hume as the Duchess Marie Auguste; Frank Vosper as the Duke Alexander; Cedric Hardwicke as Rabbi Gabriel; Gerald du Maurier as Wiesenssee; Pamela Ostrer as Naemi, daughter of "Suss"; Joan Maude as Magdelene Sibylle; Paul Graetz as Landauer; and Eva Moore, Haidee Wright, and many other stars of international repute portray subordinate but important roles.

"Power" was directed by Lothar Mendes from the adaptation of the Feuchtwanger story by Dorothy Farnum with scenario and dialogue by A. R. Rawlinson. The photography which was most unusual was supervised by Bernard Knowles.

The rich, colorful atmosphere, the deep and touching story, the glamorous costumes and settings, make "Power" one of the outstanding films of the year which should not be missed.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS

Several well selected short subjects will be shown on this same programme. Included are "Viva Buddy" a Looneytoon Cartoon and "Mirrors", a Melody Master with Freddie Rich.

Du Barry Vegetable Dishes today and Tuesday.

Shows at 2.30; 7.15; 9.15.

AT THE BELLE

"Peck's Bad Boy"

Jackie Cooper, Boy Star at His Best

Suggested by, rather than adapted from, the famous "Peck's Bad Boy" stories that delighted readers a generation ago, the Fox Film screen production of that name coming on Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and evening to the Belle Theatre, has Jackie Cooper as its star and Thomas Meighan in a story role.

"Peck's Bad Boy" is in no sense a 'kids' story.' It is a rich human document.

Jackie, as Bill Peck, believes himself to be the son of Henry Peck, widower, but is actually the latter's adopted son. He is happy with his foster father until the arrival of Aunt Lily and her small son, Horace. These two set out to alienate father and son so that Horace may usurp Bill's place in the Peck household. They nearly succeed.

An episode adapted from the original book, serves to bring the story to a climax by diverting to Bill the blame for a piece of mischief done by Horace. This is the celebrated "episode of the ants". Bill gets the blame as well as the thrashing. This piece of injustice on his father's part is the first exhibition Bill has had of a father's unfairness. Suffering from hurt pride, Bill is alone in his room when Horace comes and tells him the truth of his relationship with Peck. As a result, Bill runs away from home.

Before the film is ended, however, he has learned that his father could be no more devoted, were he his own flesh and blood. The story is said to reach its climax on a note of profound human understanding and with high voltage dramatic effect.

According to advance accounts, Jackie Cooper has the finest role of his screen career as young Billy Peck. Both in its moments of comedy and in the moving delineation of a small boy's heart-ache, it is said to surpass anything he has yet done.

A notable cast includes Thomas Meighan as the father; Dorothy Peterson as the designing aunt; O. P. Heggie, Jackie Searl and Henry Hall.

The story which was directed by Eddie Cline, one of Hollywood's ace directors has not a single lagging moment. It furnishes an unbroken sequence of Pathos, charm and delightful humor.

.. Romantic Harmony Treat

Radio's honey toned tenor, Joe Morrison, is appearing in "One Hour Late" his first starring vehicle for Paramount, in which he is ably supported by an exceptional cast including, Helen Twelvetrees, Conrad Nagel, Arline Judge, Toby Wing, Ray Walker, Edward Craven, Geo. E. Stone, Bradley Page and others.

"One Hour Late" is a fast-paced well-directed and expertly acted drama, that will hold the interest of the spectator from start to finish.

A Pepper Pot Revue and the Belle latest news will also be exhibited.

.. Joe Penner, Funny

Joe Penner, Radioland's favorite comic, scored a tremendous hit in "College Rhythm" which opened to large audiences at the Belle on Saturday, the story which is studded with melody and riotous comedy features Jack Oakie, Lanny Ross, Mary Brian and Lydia Roberti. It will be presented at the Belle tonight for the last time.

VESSELS NESTLE DOWN FOR WINTER

End of Lake Navigation For Season Seen on Saturday

By The Canadian Press

Lake ports today were filled with vessels nestling into winter berths, signalling the end of the Great Lakes navigation season which was one of the busiest for several years. As the boats slowly wended their way into port preparations were being made to shut wireless stations and lighthouses.

Hamilton, Owen Sound, Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie and Collingwood ports witnessed the last vessel movement during the week-end. The Teakbay rang down the curtain in Hamilton waters as it moved out, bound for Kingston. At Sarnia the freighter Mathewston passed downbound to herald the end of the season, while navigation in the Canadian ship canal a Sault Ste. Marie came to a close as the Superior passed through, followed later by the government light tender Murray Stewart and the lightship Gros Cap moved downbound.

All vessels with the exception of a couple of tugs were tied up at Owen Sound, where the freighter Man Isle arrived Saturday. The Normac, which left Collingwood harbor, where ice was slowly settling over the harbor, is bound for Owen Sound winter quarters. The wireless station at Point Edward will be closed shortly.

Grain carrying from the lakehead continued late this year because of winter's delay. Absence of ice on the lakes permitted ships to move after Dec. 12, when marine insurance terminated.

Seattle, Wash. Dec. 17.—(AP)—The British steamer, Cape Ortegal, which sent out distress signals last night when a shifting deck load of lumber endangered the vessel 400 miles off the Washington Coast, was able to turn about and hear later for Puget Sound.

David R. Girdwood, President of the Girdwood Shipping Company, under whose charter the ship was sailing, reported, that the captain of the vessel had radioed him the ship was not in a serious condition and was turning back.

Its distress calls, first sent out at 9.57 p.m. were heard up and down the coast.

"The Cape Ortegal should be able to return safely," Girdwood said.

SAARLAND UNDER RIGID RULE TO PREVENT CLASHES

Anglo-Native Fight on Sunday Cause of Precautions

SUSPEND OFFICER

Complete Inquiry Ordered by The League Commission

Saarbruecken Saar Territory, Dec. 17 (CP)—Rigid precautions to prevent clashes between international troops and Saarlanders were adopted today after bitter resentment was aroused by an Anglo-native street fight.

A resident of the Saar was wounded by a British police officer's pistol as a result the officer and a companion were beaten.

The incident created alarm, with the Saar already tense over the January 13 plebiscite which will decide its future. It came as the League of Nations is moving an international army into the territory to preserve order during the vote.

When news of the shooting and subsequent beatings slowly filtered through the Saar, the German front, a Nazi organization, called special meetings of protest.

A quick investigation was ordered by the League governing commission, which announced the suspension of Capt. James Justice, the officer involved, until completion of the inquiry.

Car Strikes Woman

The trouble began early Sunday when Justice's car, containing also the Earl of Aylesford and Fraulein Kathe Braun, a German girl, swerved upon the sidewalk of the narrow street and injured a woman.

Justice, member of an international police force in the Saar, apologized to the woman, whose injuries were slight. Quick to arrive on the scene were 30 members of a "disciplinary force" of the German front.

The official version said Justice, who was in civilian clothes, believed he was in danger and fired a warning shot with his revolver. A man named Neumeister was wounded in the stomach but not seriously.

The crowd then set upon Justice and beat him badly. The Earl of Aylesford went to Justice's assistance and was knocked into the gutter, receiving a black eye. Fraulein Braun said he also was struck on the head and beaten on the back.

Taken to Hospital

Justice was taken to a hospital from which he was to be discharged today. His force has no direct connection with the "plebiscite army."

"The police have received the order," said a statement by the League governing commission, "to proceed with special vigor in clearing up the incident and to establish responsibilities without regard to the persons involved."

A sequel to the fight developed as Prince Hubertus Von Lowenstein, a German exile, and his half-brother Count Von Alvensleben protested to Geoffrey George Knox, League commissioner, that they had been insulted by a British officer in a cafe.

Justice and his friends were in the cafe before the accident. Englishmen today said they did not know what this protest "was all about."

A German front mass meeting attended by 50,000 persons yesterday was told by their leaders the incident was an additional reason for discipline among Saarlanders.

The street clash followed by only a few hours an appeal by the League commission for a political truce in order to avoid imposition of martial law.

PROTEST BURIAL BY COMMUNISTS

Yugoslav-Canadians Say Dead Man Was Roman Catholic

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Dec. 17 (CP)—Directors of the Kirkland Lake branch of the Yugoslav-Canadian Association have sent to Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor at Ottawa, a resolution protesting a Communist burial service held over the body of Josip Mihelcich.

Mihelcich was buried December 7 after a service in which Mrs. Anna Evoniuk, defeated Communist candidate in the town's municipal elections, declared his death was due to "capitalistic oppression of the working class."

In its resolution the Yugoslav-Canadian Association claimed the dead man was a Roman Catholic and an immigrant from Yugoslavia. The resolution said in part:

"The incident is an outrage to the Christian law-abiding citizens of Yugoslav origin and pressure is being made by them to request the highest Canadian authorities to make an investigation into this shameful occurrence and to bring those responsible for the sacrilege of Christian rights and privileges before the law for punishment."

Mihelcich was buried in unconsecrated ground connected with the Kirkland Lake Protestant cemetery.

RUMOR HITLER WOUNDED DENIED BY OFFICIALS

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Lewisburg, Pa., Dec. 18 (CP) — Three brothers, Raymond, Elmer and Harry Benfer, all farmers, met unexpectedly in U.S. District Court.

Each asked about the others farms, and then they learned each had come to file voluntary bankruptcy petitions.

. . . .

Philadelphia, Dec. 18 (CP) — The police radio system took on a strictly family note for a few minutes and sent several cars hastening with all speed to find policeman Patrick Ferrie, on duty on a "beat."

"Cruise around until you find him," the message said, "and take him to Misericordia Hospital. His wife just gave birth to a daughter in a taxicab en route."

. . . .

Pittsburgh, Dec. 18 (CP)— W. W. Warrick, the jeweler, likes to fix up a pretty window, but he's careful.

Two beautiful golden bars were part of Warrick's display. A thief smashed the window and took them.

"Oh, that's all right about the bars," said Warrick. "They were only gilded lead. But that window cost $50."

. . . .

Macopin, N.J., Dec. 18 (CP) — Louis Nosenz and Henry Brown went deer hunting. They started at dawn, covered some 25 miles and returned home at dusk, tired, discouraged, and deer-less. Mrs. Nosenz then showed them a 240-pound, seven-point buck she had shot from her own back porch.

. . . .

Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 18 (CP) —Dan cupid of Hollywood enters the final lap of his 1934 contest with his ancient rival, domestic discord, practically neck and neck.

At the moment, he is leading by a nose, or a couple of noses. One more couple has said "I do" this year—so far—than has said, "I won't" and called it quits.

The score stands today: marriages, 52; divorces, separations, other forms of matrimonial wreckage, 51.

. . . .

Seattle, Dec. 18 (CP)— Mayor Charles Louis Smith gave Grace Moore, young prima donna, a new experience Monday.

Before an office full of folks gathered at City Hall to welcome her, the mayor flatly refused to be photographed with the singer. The tactful Miss Moore immediately told cameramen she thought enough pictures had been taken.

"I can quite understand why he should be camera shy," she said, "after all, he's no Clark Gable."

. . . .

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 18 (CP) — The Sheriff said it was either the money—$1 dog license fee—or the poodles life. Obediently a negro brought Snow Ball in to give him up.

"Lawdy, Mister, I sho' do hate to see this little dog killed." the negro lamented, rubbing his eyes with a red bandana. "I took him home to my children when he was just a tiny puppy, and we raised him just like one of the family. "It sho' will break their hearts when this little doggie is killed."

Bystanders moved perhaps by the Yuletide spirit, paid the dollar. Snow Ball went home to the "chilun."

ELECTRIC SHOCK PAINFUL TO COWS

One Animal Dead And All in Pain When Owner Arrives

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 18—(CP)—Hearing strange sounds from the stables on his farm at Glanford, Albert Shaver hastened into the building to find his cows lowing excitedly, one animal dead, and all apparently in great pain.

He touched one of the metal uprights which form the stalls and received a severe electric shock. It was discovered a wire had short circuited, and all the metal work surrounding the animals was heavily charged, and each beast received a severe shock whenever it came in contact with the framework.

One cow had taken a drink from a water trough and the grounding of the current through her body caused death.

HITLER NOT SHOT BY GERMAN GIRL OFFICIALS STATE

Story of Wounding is Called 'Ridiculous' by Police

GIRLS' NAMES GIVEN

Rumor Says Strange Plane Fired at Hitler's Plane Sunday

Berlin, Dec. 18 (AP)—Rumors that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler had recently been wounded or shot at were scornfully described as "ridiculous inventions" in official quarters today.

(The newspaper Linzer Volksblatt of Linz, Austria, had published a report saying what it called "a trustworthy source" had stated Hitler was recently wounded by a German girl.)

These rumors reached Berlin today almost simultaneously from Austria and Holland.

An official spokesman, commenting, said: "If the saying is true that people wrongly reported dead or wounded are assured of a long life, then Der Fuehrer will live to the age of Methuselah."

Girls Mentioned

Today's rumors were that Hitler was shot at by a daughter of the dismissed Silesian Nazi Chief, Brueckner.

Since July, off and on, the story has been circulated that a daughter or a niece of General Kurt von Schleischer, former Chancellor of Germany, who was killed in the "blood-purge" of last July, had emptied a revolver at Hitler.

Last Sunday, London heard that a strange aeroplane had fired a machine gun at Hitler's plane as it flew over East Prussia.

Hitler, however, has not been near East Prussia since the funeral of the late President Paul von Hindenburg in August.

The Reichsfuehrer today received General Joachim von Ribbentrop, his personal diplomatic envoy, who reported to him the result of his recent visits to London and Paris.

TRADE GROWTH FORESEEN HERE

British Merchants Seek Trade Relations With Belleville

In a communication received from the secretary of the Southampton, (England), Chamber of Commerce, today, Mayor Geo. O. Tice has been advised that the produce merchants of the city of Southampton are being approached by the Chamber and the Lord Mayor of that city in regard to a previous proposition pertaining to export trade from this city and district that had been advanced by Belleville's Mayor some time ago. If the suggestion advanced by him is acted upon, intimated Mayor Tice today, the results will be of direct benefit to this city and district. The complete proposition was not given by Mayor Tice.

"Wait until we hear something definite, then we'll tell you about it," he promised today.

Cabinet of Yugoslavia Reconsiders Decision

Decided to Resign After Two Ministers Left The Ranks

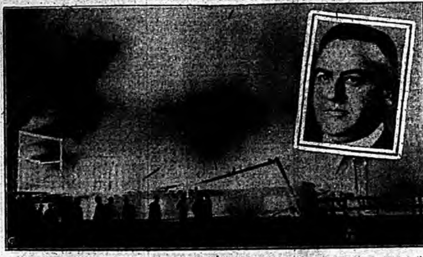
Belgrade, Dec. 18—(AP)—The Yugoslav Cabinet reconsidered its decision to resign today after the withdrawal from the government of Bogolyub Yevtich, the foreign minister and Dragoutin Kojick, the Minister of Agriculture.

The resignation of the entire Cabinet following a conference later today was regarded, however, as a foregone conclusion.

The Ministers at first planned to follow Yevtich and Kojick in placing their resignations in the hands of Prince Paul, head of the Regency. Later it was decided to postpone action until after the remaining members of the cabinet had an opportunity to confer.

The sudden crisis was regarded as a test of strength between Yevtich and Premier Nikola Uzonovich, aged head of a dozen, successive governments.

BLAME GANG FOR FIRE WHICH KILLED 21 HORSES



Thorncliffe race track at Leaside, Toronto, was the scene of a terrific fire which burned to death 21 horses, 19 of which belonged to Frank Selke of the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club. Police are inclined to blame an organized gang for the fires which they have established were of incendiary nature. Damage is estimated at more than $60,000. ABOVE shows the scene of the fire and (INSET) Frank Selke. Three widely separated buildings were destroyed.

FLOOD MARKETS WITH POULTRY

Prevailing Price in Province For Turkeys is 18 Cents

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—Chief interest among farmers throughout the province centres around the movement of Christmas poultry, it was indicated in the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, issued today.

In Southern Ontario turkeys were selling in good volume, at between 15 and 18 cents wholesale for the best birds. Lambton, however, in the same area, reports that for the week before Christmas there are still a large number of turkeys on the farms.

Bruce County, in Western Ontario, reports poultry moving freely, except geese and ducks.

In Peterboro, which is in the central part of the province Saturday's market was said to have been flooded with turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens.

Some 32,000 box-packed, dressed poultry were shipped out from Bourget Poultry Pool in Eastern Ontario last week, and the Manitoulin Turkey Growers' Co-operative Association, in the north, has prepared, packed and had graded by the Dominion Department of Agriculture last week, more than two carloads of turkeys.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—The weather has become colder with light local snowfalls in the Western Provinces and it continues mostly fair and rather cold in Quebec and the Maritimes.

Lake Superior—Fresh winds, southerly at first; cloudy with light snow and turning colder at night.

Kenora and Rainy River—Fresh shifting winds with occasional snow; turning cold at night.

Manitoba—Fresh northeast to north winds; becoming cold with snowflurries.

France Demands Arms Inquiry

Paris, Dec. 18 (CP-Havas)—Demand for a national inquiry into the manufacture of and trade in munitions was sounded in French Chamber of Deputies by Pierre Cot, former Air Minister who spoke of the "intolerable scandal" of private arms manufacture.

Cot interpellated the fiand in Government as the Chamber discussed the War Ministry's bill for 800,000,000 francs, special appropriations for emergency defence materials, inquiring what measures had been or would be taken in establishing a national control of the arms industry.

Startling Array of Orders Come To Santa from Broadway People

By Gardner Bridge, Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—Broadway celebrities are giving Santa Claus some anxious moments this year with their Christmas wishes.

A casual survey by a report posing as Kris Kringle's representative last night disclosed a startling array of orders.

The superbly self-confident Dizzy Dean was one of the few who thought he could look out for himself. Dizzy qualified as a Broadway celebrity by virtue of having once tossed a baseball around with his brother, Paul, on a theatre stage here.

"It's no use to wish for Santa to bring me and the Cardinals next year's pennant," he said, "because me and Paul (the daffy one) are going to win it without benefit of wishes."

Kate Smith said:

"I will be satisfied if Santa Claus just fills my stocking.

And this is from Amos Nn' Andy: "What we would like is a new typewriter which, when you get an idea you go up to it and holler it. Then it goes Brrrr and lo, and Amos 'Nn Andy episode jumps out and says 'Here am I'."

"And then," added Andy, "I wish we could get another machine that would holler the idea at the typewriter."

Max Baer, the heavyweight boxing champion, wants a "decent contender who will draw a big gate next June."

The studious Rudy Vallee would like a complete set of Walter Pitkin's books.

Alexander Woollcott was not bashful.

"What I want," he said, "are first mortgage bonds and postage stamps, and I want them for obvious reasons. That's a suggestion that will fit my purse."

Neither was Christopher Morley: "I'd like two or three extra hours every day in 1935," he said. "I'd like someone to pay the next instalment of my income tax."

Alfred Lunt and Lynne Fontaine want a bumper crop of vegetables on their farm at Gennessee Depot, Wis.

Walter Huston, who has been playing in "Dodsworth" since last February, with a short break in the summer, would like two weeks' vacation.

MAN IS PINNED BETWEEN 2 CARS

Fixing Front of Car When Other Car Hits it Head-on

Hudson, N.Y., Dec. 18—(AP)—One Quebec man was killed and another injured early today when their stalled automobile was struck by another machine on the Mud Creek Hill, six miles south of Hudson.

The dead man was Romeo Ouillette, 21 of (876 First Street) Quebec. He was struck and pinned between the two cars as he alighted to investigate motor trouble. Omer Begin, 27, (275 Joseph Street) riding in the back seat of the stalled car was thrown into the front seat and pinned beneath the steering wheel and the door as the car overturned in a ditch. He suffered possible fracture of both legs. The other occupant of the machine, Roy, 40, also of Quebec, told police the other machine sped away after the accident. He was not injured.

The three Quebec men were enroute to New York City.

ADJUDICATE CLAIM TO RUNAWAY SHIP

Finder Claims Ship a Derelict And He Could Hold it

Detroit, Dec. 18—(AP)—A riverman, the Federal District Attorney's office and the coast guard checked up on the admiralty law tonight to determine, who has the best claim to a runaway steamship, which ended its spree on a sandbar.

The steamship, a floating night club, which once was a ferry, drifted into J. B. Bark's life today as Bark was idling about his houseboat on the shore of the Detroit River in suburban Wyandotte. Glancing from his window he saw the ship proceeding merrily down toward Lake Erie with not a sign of life aboard.

Bark hopped in a rowboat and went out to the ship to see if he could lower an anchor. When he got aboard he found the ship was empty and he managed to manoeuvre it toward a convenient sandbar.

While Bark was sitting in the wheelhouse considering the situation the coast guard showed up and hauled the ship to a nearby dock. Bark remained aboard, announcing that, by virtue of Maritime law, the ship was derelict and he could hold it on the basis of salvage rights.

Owners of the floating night club, who learned to their surprise, that the craft had somehow slipped its moorings, went into a huddle with their attorneys. Bark remained aboard pending the adjudication of his claim.

Tanker Requires Oil in Order to Smooth Waters

Standing by Crippled Ship Miles Off Azores

Valentia, Irish Free State, Dec. 18—(AP)—The British tanker Mobiloil sent a wireless plea for more oil today as it stood by the crippled S. S. Sisto and strove to smooth the waves battering the distressed ship.

The wireless station here picked up the following message from the Mobiloil at 9 a.m.

"Pumping oil to the windward of the Sisto. Any vessel with oil please communicate. Have been unable to get wireless reports from the Sisto for one hour.

"Weather bad. Approximate position Latitude 49 degrees 10 minutes north, Longitude, 23 degrees, 22 minutes west."

Lloyds estimated that the crew aboard the Sisto numbered about 20 men.

London, Dec. 18—(AP)—One of the worst storms they ever had experienced was described by officers and members of the crew of the liner Alaunia when the vessel arrived from New York today at Tilbury 24 hours later.

A great gale buffeted the liner for three days they related. Passengers were kept below decks the entire time.

The same fierce gale whipped the English Channel throughout last night. Several sailing barges reported themselves in distress and appealed for assistance from shore. There were no casualties, however.

Family of Late Editor Applies to Government In Escheat of Estate

Attorney General Roebuck Makes Announcement in Wilson Case

QUESTION OF ESCHEAT

Public Trustee is Asked For Report Upon Situation

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—The family of the late Donald H. Wilson of Port Hope, has applied to the Ontario government for favorable consideration in the matter of the disposal of the estate, Hon. A. W. Roebuck, Ontario Attorney General said today.

Wilson died in October and last month the bodies of his widow and child were taken from the waters of Lake Ontario near Port Hope. Disposal of the estate has been held up through doubt as to whether the child or mother died first. Possibility of the province escheating the estate has also entered into the situation.

"It has never been held by any court that the child died before her mother. If it is not so held the province has no interest. If it is so held and establish there are no other heirs the estate will then be escheated," Mr. Roebuck said.

If the property is to be restored to the Wilson family it must first escheat before the province has any control, the Attorney General stated.

Mr. Roebuck has asked A. N. Middleton. Public Trustee for a report on the situation and meanwhile the estate is being handled by an administrator.

INVESTIGATION HELPS PEACE

Detroit, Dec. 18.—(AP)— Father Charles E. Coughlin today termed the current munitions investigation "the greatest movement toward peace in 2,000 years," and said that because of its revelations the American Liberty League and the United States Chamber of Commerce have "folded up".

The militant priest, organizer of the National Union for social justice qualified his statement by saying the two organizations 'haven't actually folded up'', but that they are "through" so far as effectiveness is concerned. The statements were made at a meeting with newsmen.

Heavy Traffic Passes Over Ice

Steady freezing of the Bay of Quinte and lower harbor during the past week or so has resulted in a smooth and firm sheet of ice, permitting heavy traffic on its surface for the first time this season. Trucks were rumbling over the ice this week, while sail boat crews have little fears of crossing the whole width of the bay at present. A depth of from six to eight inches in the outside bay, and from ten to twelve inches of ice in the lower harbor has been measured.

All relief work this winter will be handled on a cash basis and all men must work out their time unless they can produce a doctor's certificate, declaring them physically unfit, Mr. Tackaberry said.

WELSH OFFICIALS HEAR OF HARBOR

Past Developments Are Brought to Attention of Britishers

Officials of the cities of Cardiff, Swansea and other important shipping points in Wales are being advised of the excellent work of harbor extension and reclamation being carried on at present by Belleville's Board of Harbor Commissioners.

A number of copies of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer with the reproduced diagram of the new dock extension and general reclamation work being carried on here are being sent by Mr. Wm. Schuster of this city to the Lord Mayors of the various important cities visited by Mr. Schuster during his recent trade mission to England, pointing out the harbor work and the natural benefits that will ensue following the completion of the local port and the resultant export trade that is expected to follow.

HEAVILY ARMED SUSPECTS HELD

Five Taken Into Custody After Bank Robbery And Long Chase

Montreal, Dec. 18—(CP)—Sirens screaming in a wild chase through streets in the northeast end of the city, the police patrol car squad captured five heavily armed suspects just 25 minutes after a holdup had been reported at the Banque Canadienne, Nationale branch at the corner of Desormeaux and Souligny streets at noon today.

The five men, who gave their names as Roma Jibeau, Donat Martin, James Murphy, Paul Marsan, and Olivier Peasant, offered no resistance to the police and were rushed to headquarters, where they were booked on charges of armed holdup.

The first report reaching the police was that bandits held up Manager Mederic Lamarre, cashier Arthur Dupuis, ledgerkeeper Maurice Chartrand, and two customers and fled with a few hundred dollars in cash, and police found the bandits' car abandoned a few blocks from the scene of the holdup.

A moment or two later Provincial Police reported to city police headquarters, that a milk delivery truck had been stolen in that district.

Detective headquarters quickly connected the two crimes. Police converted on Cote St. Michel Road.

Two cars roared along the road in pursuit of the speeding milk truck. The fugitives in the truck tossed milk cans over the tailboard to slow up the chase. Lurching from one side of the road to the other to dodge the bouncing milk cans the police cars closed up the gap. Other police cars headed off the fleeing truck and formed a blockade at the intersection of Cote St. Michel and Pie IX Boulevard. The truck slid to a stop and five heavily armed men quietly gave themselves up.

Bank officials could not say immediately how much money was stolen, but said it was in the neighbourhood of a "few hundred."

CHARGES LAID AFTER ACCIDENT

Two charges laid under the Highway Traffic Act followed a motor accident that happened at the corner of McAnnany and Front Sts. early last Saturday evening. The accident involved three automobiles and resulted in considerable damage being reported to two of the vehicles. Everett Nickolson, Sidney, and Roy Hogle of Belleville, both faced H.T.A. charges as a result of the accident. According to P. C. Evans, who investigated, Nickolson was proceeding southward on Front Street, and about to make a left-hand turn onto McAnnany Street as Hogle was proceeding northward through the same intersection. Hogle swerved to the left to avoid hitting the Nickolson car, in doing so, however, Hogle's motor car skidded on the icy pavement striking a parked car, the property of Jerald Anderson, Rednersville. The Anderson automobile was badly damaged as a rear wheel and both rear fenders were struck.

TUESDAY'S MARKET WELL ATTENDED

Tuesday's market was fairly well attended by gardeners and others. The chief products were fowls with turkeys predominating. They ranged in price from $1.75 to $2.50 each averaging about 20 cents per pound. A few dressed chickens were offered for sale retailing from 60 cents to 75c each. Christmas trees were plentiful selling from 25c to 50c each.

HARRY GARBUTT IS PROGRESSING

Mr. Harry A. Garbutt who has been a patient in the Belleville General Hospital for the past several days suffering from a fractured left leg, broken ribs and other internal injuries which resulted when he was thrown under the wheels and was run over by a heavily loaded dump truck on Victoria Park, is progressing favorably, it was reported today.

GULL'S RAID GARBAGE DUMP

Anything is food for the hungry gulls these days. With the greater part of the Bay of Quinte and the Moira River covered with ice for the past two or three weeks, the scores of graceful birds that soared above the upper reaches of the river and the bay have lately been concentrating their attack on the city garbage dump where they pick their meagre living. Many of them also have ventured far inland and instances have been reported of them robbing garbage cans at the rear of homes in the city. At night they find a cold sleeping place in the water near the bay bridge. During the day when not engaged in hunting for fodo, they huddle disconsolately on the ice.

FISH REPORTED CLEAR ASHORE

Thousands of plump perch and other smaller fish are reported by itinerant fishermen of the city to be congregating close in shore in the Bay of Quinte during the past few days greedily feeding on the weedy growth offshore. And since the fish have begun to shoal so close inshore the unemployed have been reaping a healthy harvest of the finny specimens. Although no shanties have been hauled on the ice so far, daily a number of fishermen congregate at the holes chopped in the ice and are hauling the wrigglin specimens forth with almost monotonous regularity. At the present time the fish are said to be perfect for eating.

SANTA CLAUS TO DISTRIBUTE CANDY

Santa Claus will be distributing candy to boys and girls after school Thursday on Front Street from the back of a truck.

HOMES BRIGHT WITH DECORATIONS

The individual efforts of many citizens to assist in brightening the city by decorating their homes are observed about the city. Strings of colored lights and scintillating decorations, with settings of evergreens and illuminated stars and beacons are plentiful on many of the streets. A few of the homes which deserve special mention are those occupied by Mr. Jack Norris Ann street, Alderman W. R. McCreary, East Bridge Street, E. T. Cherry, West Bridge Street, and Dr. Edwards, Trent Road.

THREE DIVORCE ACTIONS GRANTED

Fourth to Be Heard at Sitting Comes up Today

Four motions for divorce and three civil actions were entered for trial at the opening of Non Jury Sittings of the Supreme Court held before The Honorable Mr. Justice McFarland in Belleville yesterday. Three of those seeking divorce were granted a decree nisi while the fourth case was adjourned until today, the server of the motion in the case not being present. Two of the civil actions were referred to the local judge, it being pointed out by counsel, that a settlement out of court was quite possible and had virtually been agreed upon. His Lordship granted the requests of counsel, the matters subsequently to be presented before the local County Judge.

All three motions for divorce were uncontested and granted on the usual grounds. Mrs. Mary Gladys Abernethy, Marmora, obtained a divorce decree nisi from her husband, Russell Abernethy of Campbellford, naming Helen M. Trull as co-respondent. J. C. Birmingham, Cobourg bailiff, testified, that he had served the defendants with notice of trial. Mr. T. H. Kerr of Campbellford, testified, that he personally knew Russell Abernethy and had been informed of his procuring a divorce in the State of Michigan, subsequently marrying the co-respondent, Helen Trull in the United States.

Frederick Houser, Toronto, was granted a divorce decree nisi, from his wife, Elizabeth Houser who it was established, in evidence, had obtained a divorce at Reno Nev. last August and subsequently married Lorne Harris of Toronto. F. K. Higginbottum, Toronto barrister, swore he personally served the defendants, Mrs. Houser and Lorne Harris in a New York City hotel last October, with notices of trial. Hazel Ramsay of Belleville, was granted a divorce, decree nisi, after the usual evidence had been submitted, Mrs. Ramsay was granted the custody of her two children, while alimony to the amount of $80.00 a month was entered in the writ issued with costs attached the defendant.

The Parisien vs. Parisien and Rody divorce action was adjourned until today, when the server of process will be available. Vern Milvard and Mrs. Nellie McDermott were the sole witnesses in the Ramsay action, both testifying that the defendant and co-respondent had been living together at 32 Grosvenor St. in Toronto as man and wife.

GRANT IS MADE BELLEVILLE ARENA

No Open Air Rinks in The City But Children to Skate at Arena

Instead of the City Council establishing open air free rinks in the city this coming winter at a cost of approximately $1,200, the members instead made a grant at their meeting last night to the Belleville Arena in amount of their annual municipal taxes assessed against their property. The children will be given the same number of hours of free skating at the Arena that has been afforded in other years when this arrangement was in force. During the Christmas holidays the children will be given practically every morning with a couple of afternoons thrown in. The council was unanimous in their decision on this matter.

The session was one of short duration as little business was before the members for transaction. The civic employees will be paid on December 20th. as in accordance with precedent of other years in order that they may do their Christmas shopping. The Co-operative Workers attended in a body to request the use of the City Hall auditorium for charity purposes on the night of December 20th. This request was granted. The Workers will put on a concert on that night, the money to be used for kiddies in the city on Christmas Day.

Fred Rawson, owner of the Bus Line, was given until December 31 to pay his indebtedness to the city, which amounts to $100. The Quinte League was also given the use of the City Hall auditorium on December 26th. without charge, the money derived being used for charitable purposes. Alderman McCreary asked when the last council meeting of the year would be held and was notified by the mayor that it would take place on December 27th. after committee meeting.

A bylaw to provide for the issuance of $51,500.00 of debentures to take care of certain work in connection with relief in this city was given its first and second reading. The bylaw will be sent to Long and Daly in Toronto for ratification and then returned to be finally passed. Owing to the indisposition of the City Clerk, Alderman W. A. Woodley acted in that capacity. Those present were Mayor Tice, Aldermen Woodley, Hill, McCreary, Donahue, Brickman, Safe, Wills, Foley, Cushing, Harker, Marshall and Harvey.

Police News

The largest number of transients to grace the police cells so far this month was afforded warm sleeping facilities last night when 18 weary travellers signed the register at the night sergeant's desk.

Two local youths presented themselves at the police station yesterday afternoon after having been apprehended firing a .22 calibre rifle within the city limits. P. C. Evans confiscated the rifle over the week end and instructed the lads to report to the chief constable. Upon their arrival at the police station, Chief Kidd lectured the lads pointing out their folly and sent them to their respective homes after a severe reprimand. Residents in the Coleman Flats section of the city have complained to the authorities that mischievous lads have repeatedly been firing rifles, the bullets striking nearby houses and endangering the lives of citizens. More drastic measures will be taken if this practice is not discontinued, promised Chief Kidd today.

SCHOOL CONCERT MUCH ENJOYED

Pupils of Queen Alexandra School Put on Splendid Program

Last evening despite the slippery sidewalks, a large audience greeted the performers at the annual Christmas concert put on by the pupils of Queen Alexandra School. Long before the lights were lowered and the curtains drawn every available seat was filled by young brothers and sisters, parents and doting grandparents who were present to admire the performance so well given by the two hundred or more young people.

Such a large audience must be very gratifying to the principal, Mr. Anderson, the staff and the children. The waves of applause that greeted the various acts spoke well of the efforts of the young actors and urged them on to give their best. Youngsters of preschool age who attended with their parents stared goggle-eyed at the act which depicted Santa Claus laid up at his home at the North Pole with rheumatism and not able to get away. To them this was a real tragedy and it was easy to see what was passing in their minds. However, as the skit proceeded to a hilarious conclusion their minds were greatly relieved and all was well again.

Excellent Performance

The performance was over at ten o'clock and when the crowd broke up complimentary remarks were heard on every side for the efficiency and preciseness of the drills, the lovely and appropriate costumes —the girls with their short, dainty frocks and the boys for their manly appearance.

All credit must go to the teachers who prepared the children for the concert. No time was taken off from school hours but was done during recesses and after hours. It would seem from the way the children did their parts and the evident enjoyment that they got out of doing their share that there should be more of this work in the schools. The self-confidence that it gives them should be worth a great deal to them in later life.

There could be no singling out for individual mention any of the performers, for every one did his or her part so well. The drill "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town," the playlets, "Star of Bethlehem" and "Santa Claus, Junior" were particularly well done. The drill of "The Wooden Soldiers" was a marvel of precision and good timing.

Gordon Bankier Opens Concert

The concert opened with an address by Gordon Bankier who also did the same thing at last year's concert. Then followed a drill of sixteen little girls of the junior classes with a chorus of boys from the same classes. The girls won the hearts of everyone with the singing of this popular song and the appeal to the eye with their smart frocks, short socks and their eager faces.

In the number "Star of Bethlehem" Marie Duesberry came out and recited the story of Christmas night in Bethlehem—of Mary and Joseph seeking shelter, the birth of Jesus, and the Three Wise Men on their way to Bethlehem guided by the Star. Allusion was made to Jesus that he was known in other lands by names particularly appropriate to those places. Two children then came on the stage dressed in the native costumes of India bearing a segment of a star bearing the word "Wonderful" followed by Japan with "Councillor", Africa with "Mighty God", Korea with "Everlasting Father" and China with "Prince of Peace". These segments were placed in position on a curtain at the back of the stage to form "The Star of Bethlehem."

Principal Gives Address

Mr. Anderson then gave a short address thanking the audience for the interest shown and expressed his appreciation for the help given by Miss Smith and Mrs. Wallace. This was followed by formal acceptance of the doll sent from Poland more of which is given in another column.

Kathleen Monck gave a song and Georgia Scott a tap dance, which showed the good training they have had.

"The Wedding of the Painted Doll" was a scene of characters from the Mother Goose stories dressed appropriately and each singing a verse from the character. The "bride" and "groom", aged about five years, the girl dressed in a long flowing wedding gown and the boy in tail coat and top hat caught the fancy of the audience and received much applause.

Adele Couse did well in a recitation and after the number "Christmas Carols" had been given the concert was over for another year.

At intermission ex-Principal M. W. Mott made the presentation of prizes to the pupils who topped the list in general proficiency. The prizes were made possible through the generosity of the late Mrs. R. J. Graham who each year donated a fund to purchase prizes for this purpose. Since Mrs. Graham's death, her daughter, Miss Grace Graham has provided the prizes and Mr. Mott was particularly grateful for the thoughtfulness and kindness that makes this possible. Those awarded prizes were: Adele Couse, Marjorie Cook, Lois Bankier, Eugene Ilsey, Gerald Hyde, Esther Kroch, Robert Gibson and Dorothy Cockburn.

MOTOR CAR HITS CEMENT CULVERT

Miss Dalgleish, Campbellford Taken to Hospital For Treatment

Two persons sustained head and limb injuries when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a cement culvert some three miles north of Belleville on the Foxboro Road at 7.30 p.m. last evening. Motorcycle Patrolmen Sam Ervine investigated the accident and found Miss Muriel Dalgleish of Campbellford, a passenger in the car, suffering from head and limb injuries. Miss Dalgleish was removed to the Belleville General Hospital, where medical attention was necessary. The driver of the automobile, Clifford Cassan, Campbellford, sustained cuts and bruises about the head and face. Charges of reckless driving were preferred against the driver in today's police court.

Mr. Cassan was proceeding northward at the time of the accident and informed the investigating officer, that his automobile became uncontrollable on the slippery pavement, later skidding into the cement culvert. The vehicle dove nose-foremost against the culvert, badly damaging the steering apparatus, front wheels and front fenders. Both occupants sustained nasty cuts from flying glass, one of the windows in the car being broken during the impact. Miss Dalgleish was detained in the local hospital last night, but allowed to return to her Campbellford home at noon to-day.

CITADEL BAND TO SERENADE CITY

The Christmas Carol Season has now arrived and what a feast these familiar and ever popular melodies are to everyone at the Yuletide season. They spread cheer and sunshine everywhere.

The Salvation Army Citadel Band as in years past, will serenade the city, with the Festive Season melodies, and the desire is expressed by those in charge that the strains of consecrated music will bless all, with a special thought for the 'sick' and 'shut-ins'.

Official representatives will accompany the party and wait upon the public in the interests of the spiritual and musical side of the local mark.

CHEER BASKETS WILL TOTAL 150

Needy Children However Will be Taken Care of by Firemen

Santa Claus will have a number of assistants in this city who will wear not the conventional uniform of red and white, but one of blue, trimmed with brass buttons.

This Christmas, as they have done for the past several seasons, members of the Belleville Fire Department under Fire Chief Wm. Lynch will again take up the work of caring for as many of the city's needy as possible. This year, however, fewer families will be given the baskets. There are less funds to carry on the work. Last season a total of some three hundred families were cared for. This season the number may be reduced to some hundred or one hundred and fifty. But the main attack will be on the homes where needy children are known to exist. It is expected that some three or four hundred children will be looked after. They hold at present a list of some four hundred names of children between the ages of one and twelve years.

One hundred families who have been checked by the department as to their actual need will be sure of a Christmas basket. So far the department has this number of baskets made up for distribution on the day before Christmas. And the basket will not contain the wispy and airy season's delicacies, but will be made up of wholesome and needed food for the many who are in want.

A peek into one of the baskets discloses 1 peck of turnips, 1 peck of carrots, one half pound of onions, five pounds of beans, one five pound pail of honey, two pounds of candy, one small bag of flour. The gift basket will be accompanied by one regular size bag of potatoes. And for the children there will be a certain number of toys left at each house.

Had the dance held this season by the firemen been more largely attended there would have been more funds to care for more people. But with the many donations that have been received, it is expected that a good start toward relieving some of the city's misery will be made.

Chief Lynch and members of the department wish to express their appreciation for half a truck load of toys in good condition that they have received from Robert J. Wray and Son, of Wray's Home Furnishers, and to Mr. P. H. Wills for his generous cash donations.

Belleville Team Opens Season at Home on January 2

Four teams will face the barrier in the "B" series of Group No. 2 in O.H.A. competition this season with the Belleville juniors opening their current season locally on Jan. 2nd versus the fast Campbellford kids. A 12 game schedule was adopted by the four teams comprising the local junior group last night at the Queen's Hotel when Campbellford, Tweed, Napanee and Belleville convened with Eddie Thomas as the chairman.

Following the adoption of the group schedule it was decided that local referees would be used through out the loop, each club naming their referees. The officials named by the group were: Napanee, Roy Wilson and Fred Bentley; Campbellford, "Buster" Whitton and Ken Davis; Tweed, Jerry Quinn; Belleville, C. Frechette, W. D. Green and Ross Burtt.

In the matter of group play-offs it was finally decided, that the second and third finishing teams would meet in a home and home series, goals to count, the ultimate winner to meet the club finishing first in the group schedule. The second placed team has the choice of a possible home game in the first play-off round, while the team finishing first has the choice of games in the final group play-down. Tweed was represented by S. R. Curry, Napanee, Walter Gerow and Roy Wilson; Campbellford, Jay Ferris, while Convener Eddie Thomas looked after local interests.

The schedule for group No. 2 in O.H.A. hockey circles is:

FANCY SKATERS ELECT OFFICERS

Charles Spalding Will Head Skating Club For Year

The Belleville Skating Club that was inaugurated in 1931, held its annual meeting last evening at the Belleville Arena and elected Chas. Spalding as president for the ensuing year. A goodly number of figure and fancy skaters were on hand to usher in the current season and voiced their opinion as to inviting all local skaters, regardless of skating ability into the club. One of the prime suggestions entered was the introduction of a junior membership, whereby the younger skaters of the city may be taught the rudiments of ice skating. At the suggestion of the meeting a special low fee was struck for the 'teen age skaters.

The financial status of the Club was found to be in excellent condition when Secretary Machold tendered the year's financial statement which showed a small balance after a rather adverse year in 1934. The statement showed that the club had turned over a substantial sum to the Belleville Arena last year and had incurred no debts during operation. The various committees necessary were appointed and a working connection agreed upon with the management of the arena for skating hours. The yearly fee for membership was set at $3.

The officers selected were:
Hon. President—W. H. Hume.
President—Chas. Spalding.
Vice-President—S. R. Burrows.
Secretary—T. Machold.
Treasurer—B. Weese.
Executive—Mrs. P. H. Wills, Mrs. C. Spalding, Mrs. E. D. O'Flynn, Miss Davies, Dr. Blakslee, K. P. Smith.

Mr. G. T. McLaughlin was appointed chairman of the skating committee and has power to add six other members to his committee. The meeting was most successful and marks an advancement of skating in Belleville.

CAT AND RAT BUT NO SPAT

The cat and the rat, enemies since the beginning of time, are fast friends in the household establishment of Hellmud Loeschner of New York, the owner of "Taty" an alley cat, and "Max" a white rat. Here Taty and Max are seen in an affectionate pose as they prove, for the cameraman's benefit, that hereditary enmities may be forgotten in the friendliness induced by working side by side. Loeschner trains the animals for the stage and says the friendship between his cat and mice rivals the friendship between man and dog.

Trenton and District

Trenton Liberals Name Officers In Polling Divisions of 2 Wards

James Dillion and Sam Jenner Are Poll Chairmen

Trenton, December 18 (Special)—Trenton Liberals took the first step last evening in the organization work for the coming Federal election. The meeting was held in their committee rooms over Shurie's Drug Store on Dundas St. Wards 3 and 4 elected their officers. Dr. J. Farley of Trenton, Vice-President of the South Hastings Liberal Association, read the new Constitution as drafted after the election of the new officers at Belleville a week ago.

Ward 3 elected James Dillion as chairman. His nomination was moved by Alex Lamore and seconded by Pat Coe. Maurice Fecteau was elected vice-chairman on a motion of H. Hutchison and seconded by Pat Coe. The secretary's duties will be handled by Pat Coe after his nomination by Alex Lamore and J. Dillion.

Ward 4 elected Sam Jenners as chairman on the nomination of Mrs. S. Rowe and Stewart Grant. Horace Yateman, moved by Mrs. P. E. McAuley and seconded by Mrs. P. Rowe, and Mrs. Tom McConville, moved by W. McCue and T. McConville, were voted on for the vice-chairmanship with Mrs. McConville being elected. Mrs. P. E. McAuley was returned secretary on the nomination of Horace Yateman and Mrs. H. White.

The remaining four wards will elect officers during the week. After the six chairmen of the wards are chosen, they must meet before the 8th of January to elect from their ranks a president for the Trenton South Hastings Liberal Association.

Mayor Harry Cory was in attendance at the meeting. He has signified his intention of standing at the convention which is to be held in January, when the candidate to represent this riding at the coming election, will be chosen.

Rev. Campbell at the Rotary Club

President Tom Jarrett presided at the regular weekly luncheon of the Trenton Rotary Club at the Gilbert House last evening. The guest speaker of the night was Rev. G. D. Campbell, of Grace United Church. He gave a short and interesting talk on "Christmas". Rotarian George Astley, Secretary of the Whitby Rotary Club, was a visitor and delighted the local members with two fine solos. Earle Gray, of Trenton, also sang to the enjoyment of the club.

Arena Opens

The largest crowd to grace the local ice on an opening night in over five years, were on hand Saturday night to enjoy their favourite pastime. The ice was in excellent condition despite the rise in temperature.

Tonight Manager Harry Smith expects to have his charges out for practise in readiness for the teams opening at Belleville on Friday next, when the locals meet either the South End Athletic Club or the Stewart Warner A. C. The press read that the locals would meet the former team but Secretary J. F. Day was informed by letter from Belleville that the Stewart-Warner would be our opening adversaries. The certificates are nearly all signed and with a couple of practises the locals will be in fighting for a win on Friday.

The locals were sorry to hear that George Labrash had given up his hold on the team. Mr. LaBrash will be on hand at all times but since he has sold his gas station he has decided to drop the managership of the "Imperials".

Fred Burrows, local representative of the Canada Bud Breweries, may take over the team, which will then be known as the "Canada Buds". The answer to this may be known before the team takes the ice on Friday night.

LINDBERGH NURSE SAILS FOR U. S.?

May Testify at Trial of Bruno Hauptmann Next Month

Southampton, England, Dec. 18 — Betty Gow, who was nurse to the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, sailed today for the United States, unconfirmed reports said.

Her name was not on the passenger list, it was learned upon good authority, but rumors said she boarded the Aquitania at 11 p.m. last night under the name of "Taylor" and locked herself in the cabin until the ship sailed.

Although a number of women boarded the Aquitania after the arrival of boat trains from London, none of them answered the description of the former Lindbergh nurse.

Officials of the Cunard Line said there was no trace of her aboard the ship. There have been reports she was going to the United States to testify in the Bruno Richard Hauptmann trial in New Jersey next month.

Miss Gow returned to her mother's home in Glasgow, Scotland, shortly after the kidnapping in March, 1932. Her movements in Glasgow have been shrouded with secrecy in recent months.

Y'S MEN WILL RECESS UNTIL AFTER CHRISTMAS

Meeting Last Night Consisted of Club Singing Carols

Christmas carols and group songs constituted the entertainment at the weekly meeting of the local Y's Men's Club last evening. Following the usual banquet President Alex Weir turned the meeting over to Mel Blanchard, who acted as song leader in the rendering of Christmas carols and songs.

No business was entered into although Sergeant-at-arms Herb Muir fattened the club's Christmas offering by assessing numerous and heavy fines, all moneys collected going to the Club's Christmas Fund.

The meeting was the last of the year, the organization accepting a recess until Jan. 7th when club activities will once again be renewed. The meeting marked the end of the present semester and was celebrated as it was announced, that the club had achieved its objective in the matter of charities during the autumn term. Many past club presidents were on hand last night to usher out the year.

TWO MINISTERS LEAVE CABINET

Belgrade Again in The Throes of Government Upheaval

Belgrade, Dec. 18 (CP-Havas) — Foreign Minister Boguljub Yevtich and Minister of Agriculture and Justice Rovich resigned today, precipitating a government crisis.

The double resignations came dramatically on the heels of Yugoslavia's diplomatic victory in her dispute with Hungary before the League of Nations.

Yevtich earned considerable prestige in his handling of the affair and his resignation today surprised many.

While immediate official explanations were not forthcoming it was believed, that the cabinet would remain essentially along the same lines, with Prince Paul, senior Regent, taking an increasingly dominating part in national administration.

LATE E. H. LA ROCHE

A prominent figure in the city of Belleville has passed, ex-Alderman E. H. La Roche at the ripe age of 85 years. Born in Quebec he had lived continuously in Belleville for sixty years.

Mr. La Roche played a prominent part in the sporting life and in business as well as in municipal affairs. He had one of the longest periods of service of the municipality as an alderman on record. He was one of the most active men in the industrial and business life of the city from the time when he operated the Ox Point Quarries and afterwards when he entered the insurance and customs brokerage business.

To his latest years he carried all the zeal and enthusiasm of his younger days.

It was a propitious fate which brought him to this city two generations ago to lend a willing hands towards the development of the city of his adoption which his long service of the municipality proves he loved.

THE UBIQUITOUS BELL PUSHER

Housewives have a cause of complaint, a grievance for which a remedy should be found. It is all a matter of doorbells. A single unnecessary ring may not seem a matter of importance. Multiplied many times a morning it adds greatly to the burden of the ordinary home routine.

Doorbells are the housewife's bane—needless ringing at all seasons, imperative summonses that mean nothing, recurrent tinkles, push buttons almost driven into the wall that holds them—and all to no legitimate purpose.

There are a lot of things about which something should be done when the rectifiers of urban ills find time to attend to them. These include the housewife's special cross. She calls for first aid remedies in putting a quietus to all unnecessary door bell ringing. And those who have caused the sending out of her SOS include beggars with tales far slimmer than themselves, collectors with questionable credentials, sellers whose wares nobody wants, and last but not the least that persistent pest of humanity—the youth with a bag of advertisements to let loose on a helpless community. Long lists might be compiled of the intruders who seem in no need of a meal or the price of a bed. Widely divergent they have one thing in common—the doorbell ringing habit.

Kindness should be encouraged, charity praised—but the peripatetic pusher of electric buttons should be stopped for all time, and his persistency devoted to a better cause.—Ottawa Journal.

THE DANCE AND RELIGION

A barefoot young society lady in modest flowing robes danced in the chancel of the Union Congregational Church, South End, Mass., on Sunday evening to the flickering light of five candelabra, to give six dances portraying the coming of the Messiah. The minister of the church said he saw a definite trend towards use of the dance in worship. The first interpretation was to the organ music of Schubert's "Great is Jehovah".

Is this a sign that the church is seeking alliance with an art which has been largely divorced from religion, namely the dance? The great drama of Greece was religious at the beginning, and part and parcel of the Greek theatre were the dance and the chorus. Has the church too long failed to see an ally in the dance?

The dance staged in the Massachusetts Church no doubt will cause misgivings to some. For to some persons a dance is a dance and nothing but a dance. But there are dances and there are dances. That there are undesirable dance forms is generally admitted but that there are also some of the most desirable of dances which can play a prominent part in training is also to be taken for granted. Many children today are trained in interpretative dancing and in the theatre a vast throng follows the great exponents of the interpretative dance art.

How far in this case Miss Eleanor Schirmer can interpret "The Greatness of Jehovah' 'in dance depends upon the experience and the education and interpretative gifts of the chestnut-haired teacher. But it must be admitted that the Scriptures pay no end of note to the dance. Some of the most beautiful of the psalms record the dance as a part of the ritual of the Jewish Temple at Jerusalem. The sense of rhythm is marked throughout the Hebrew writings, there is the spirit of measured dance whether the dance is there or not. In the last of the psalms is the phrase "Praise Him with the timbrel and dance; praised him with the stringed instruments and organs." These words appear in the psalm which closes "Let Everything that hath breath praise the Lord."

There may be a slow trend toward the merging of all the arts as allies of worship. As civilization reaches its height, the arts find a larger place in worship than in less advanced ages. How recently it was before the opposition to the theatre disappeared, one has only to look back less than twenty years to find opposition. Today the churches and even the most sacred of places in some churches are used for drama. It was not always so. But the people today realize that drama can be made a potent teacher of life truths, if it is not the greatest of all. Outsides and interiors of churches are becoming more and more adorned as men seek to dress the place of worship worthy of the object of worship.

The church fostered the drama and all the arts in the early Middle Ages but in the later Middle Ages the drama slipped out from the portals of the church to the doorsteps of churches and then into the market places, when the subjects were of a kind which were not directed by the clergy. But the mysteries and the miracle plays of the early dramatic era were a powerful influence in educating the people. After the drama left the church precincts, some of the mightiest compositions of all time were created and these are marked by a spirit as truly religious as any spiritual composition could be.

How far the church can go in linking to itself the dance can not be known as yet. This instance may be an isolated case, or it may show a sign of relationship. The rapprochement of the church and drama was probably not so difficult as the forging of a link between dance and religion will be. And yet there are probably many who feel that the church is losing a valuable ally in not calling upon the dance to impress truths of life. In a rapproachement there may, no doubt, have to be great care exercised in order that only the purest emotions should be expressed in terpsichorean measures.

It does seem to prove that man is coming more and more to believe that the division between the secular and religious in life is artificial and that there is really little which cannot be made to play a part of great value in the spiritual and emotion training of a people, though there are doubtless some dances which cannot by any stretch of imagination be brought into the church.

ORATORY AND SLEEP

Some interesting stories of sleep under the influence of oratory are related in the Manchester Guardian. Asquith and Briand are said to have slept through each other's speeches. John Stuart Mill accustomed to go to bed at ten o'clock, could not keep awake in the House of Commons after that hour. Somebody one night arose to deliver a tremendous attack on Mill, and asked him a number of questions in rhetorical form. The House between amusement and curiosity watched Mill as his head jerked up and down in sleep.

There is at least one record of a politician sleeping through his own speech, or a good part of it. That was a French statesman who told his friends that on one occasion he had had a curious dream: "I dreamt that I was making a speech in the Chamber, and when I woke up—I was!" Hartington did not go quite as far as that, though he did yawn during a speech, and when told of it afterwards remarked that the subject had been "dull." In the "sleeping Cabinet" of Melbourne it must have been quite common for members to sleep through each other's harangues.

To these may be added the story of the Frenchman who slept during part of a discussion upon which he was required to make an important decision. He woke and promptly gave his vote. When he was asked how he could give an opinion upon a discussion which he had not heard, he said "sleep is an opinion."—London Advertiser.

THE OUTLOOK FOR LATIN

Latin as an entrance requirement has been abondoned at three women's colleges—Smith Mount Holyoke and Wellesley. The classics are not exactly frowned upon, but preference is extended to modern languages, meaning nearly always French and German.

On the other hand, the Latin department at Columbia University has just begun the publication of a dictionary of the entire body of existing Latin inscriptions. It is estimated that it will take 100 years to complete the job. Apparently the feeling prevails up on Morningside Heights that a century hence there will be people, or at least scholars, interested in the mother tongue of Virgil and the career of Julius Caesar.

Who should one say are in closer touch with the needs of modern life—the college authorities in ushering Latin out of the curriculum or the Columbia professors in settling down to write a Latin dictionary for the year 2035?. The answer is not so simple as one may think. —New York Times.

THE PRINCE OF PEACE

Awake! a King is born to you this day.
Arise! to the manger haste away.
And pay your homage to the Child,
Born of Mary, Virgin mild.
Amid the thunder of warrior drums,
A silvery note from Heaven comes.
King of Kings, Lord of Lords,
Now the music, now the words,
Peace on earth, good will to men,
The chorus echoes again—again.
There gleams the star of men,
To lead them on to hope again,
Live! O King, Hail! Prince of Peace.
Let love abound and striving cease.
The golden gifts of ancient men,
We cannot bring to you again;
But seek Thee like the men of yore,
And ask that war may be no more,
That in the hearts of men may dwell
The message of the first Noel.

—Harry Atkinson.

WHO HAT NOT HEARD of Bigger and Better Belleville, Better this and Better that—but here's a new one, discovered by St. Mary's Argus, "The Bitter Butcher." Here's the story as told by that veracious (not voracious) journal:

The bitter butcher was scribbling on a pieces of wrapping paper when we entered his quiet sanctum yesterday.

"Ha, ha! Figuring to beat the income tax?" we accused.

"Not this time," he replied. "I'm trying to shape up a letter; maybe you can help. You remember the woman who came in here quite a while back and wanted five cents worth of round steak cut thick? Well, she was in just now and bought two sausages and had them sent. So I'm reporting the matter to Ottawa, to the mass buying commission!"

"SCOTCH MEGGY," was a character of the good old days when men were men and women were even bigger and better than men, in many cases. Here's a yarn reprinted by the London Times from its issue of 1834, which tells of a woman with Amazonian qualities, who like "Popeye the Sailorman" could do everything that any man could do and more than most men could do. Here's the story:

> "Scotch Meggy," a powerful and muscular woman, who has obtained much celebrity by her skill and dexterity in rowing, and her having won several wagers in rowing matches on the River Thames, here stepped forward (during the hearing of an assault case) at Lambeth Street police office) and said that on seeing at least half a dozen men and women beating the policeman in the most savage and unmerciful manner, she threw off her bonnet and shawl and set to work in real earnest.
> In answer to the question of the magistrates, "Meggy" said that she had been 42 years on board a man-of-war, during which time she had been in nearly a dozen engagements and had a pension of 251. per annum allowed her by the Admiralty for her services.
> Several of the policemen whose faces were severely marked and heads swollen . . said that the conduct of "Scotch Meggy" was beyond all praise.

BELLEVILLE IS CALLED BEAUTIFUL with truth, but a far better name to earn is that of The Friendly City, which many have found it to be. We have friendly folks here, who do not hesitate speaking to a stranger, answering questions or being helpful in any way. Friendly policemen also help to create the atmosphere, and the business men are friendly, while the clerks in the stores are courteous and kindly—and Belleville has fine stores and progressive business men. well lighted stores and attractive show windows. People like to come to Belleville to inhale its friendly atmosphere and enjoy the sights and sound of a better and brighter city.

Soldiers—Then and Now

The B. E. F. France, was full of sportsmen—sportsmen in every sense of the word—the very best of every kind. Every man who did his duty in that expeditionary force was a sportsman of the highest order. But the sportsmanship demanded in the performance of military duties was of as wide an order as it was high; and it is of more particular aspects of sport and sportsmen that I write today.

Tuxford at Cricket

In our outfits from the Canadian West there were many Englishmen, and where you find Englishmen you will find cricketers without straining your eyes. Cricket was played in the 1st Canadian Division in the summer of 1915, between more dangerous games. But, played under certain unusual conditions, even cricket may have its perils.

Lt. Col. G. S. Tuxford, first O.C. the Little Black Devils, was a keen cricketer; and when he wanted a game it was a good idea, regimentally, to turn out and volunteer to wield a bat—to wield the good old willow and pursue the rock-like beef-hide ball of six seams. Many a lad who has smoked out hostile machine-gun nests has permitted his hand to flinch aside from a sizzling cricket ball.

They were engaged in a real match one fine day in July, 1915. It may have been between companies, or perhaps it was eleven handpicked Black Devils against the cream of another battalion of that same western brigade—but whichever it was, Tuxford captained one side. They played in a deserted field in which they had hammered a pitch that was very bad but not impossible. Regimental headquarters and billets (out of the line), a deserted farmstead, lay a hundred yards or so to one side of the playing-field. Other deserted farmsteads were in sight on every hand, some of them badly smashed. But it was a peaceful scene, with Lombardy poplars in lines and groves here and there, and hedges of brambles. The sky was blue, and larks sang in it. But for the thumping of none-too-distant guns, the war might have been forgotten. Colonel Tuxford and one of his sergeants were batting. The other side had two demon bowlers at work, but Tuxford was "set" and enjoying himself. He entertained a vision of "carrying his bat" for a century or more. He was slashing, cutting, forcing the runs and trying to keep the bowling to himself.

Suddenly a familiar sound filled the sunlit air, and a big one pitched in a neighbouring field, where a game of Soccer was in progress, and heaved aloft a cloud of smoke and earth and sods. The footballers dispersed, carrying two of their players. The batting colonel did not bat an eye but smashed a boundary to leg. Another shell railroaded in and made another hole in the deserted football field. The spectators of the cricket match wandered off, remembering home letters that should be written. The colonel ignored Fritz's unsporting efforts to put him off his game and cut a hard one. The quality of the fielding had fallen off in the past few minutes. The colonel ran and ran, crying "Again" and "Again" and all but running his partner's legs off. And then—Wot-ho! It landed fair in the middle of the pitch, fairly midway between the wickets, and heaved toes of good old Flanders sky-high. That was too much even for the batting Tuxford. He never forgave the unsporting Boche for robbing him of his century.

POLISH GIRLS SEND DOLL HERE

Presentation of Red Cross Gift is Made at Queen Alexandra School

While all the small performers at the Queen Alexandra Christmas concert last night played their parts exceptionally well and merited much applause, it must be admitted that the sensation of the evening was a young lady of international reputation who had arrived from abroad only yesterday and made a smiling appearance on the school stage last night. This young lady was the Junior Red Cross doll from Poland sent in exchange for the Canadian school girl doll dressed by a pupil of Queen Alexandra School.

Eight little Canadian dolls, it will be remembered, were dressed by the Junior Red Cross clubs of the local schools and within a few months were on their way to distant lands. The one for Poland was dressed by Kate Wilson and for Latvia by Pearl Argent, both of Queen Alexandra School. The doll which represented Canada at the International Red Cross Exhibition in Paris had the honor of a place at the Canadian National Exhibition before making the trip. This doll was dressed by Betty Moult of King George School. Three other dolls were dressed by girls of this school. Rhoda Moult's was the doll chosen to accompany a similar one from Vancouver to represent Canada at the Red Cross Exhibition in Japan, Margaret Trow's went to Rumania, and Kathleen Brown's to Czecho-Slovakia. From Queen Mary School, Elsie Buker's doll was sent to Italy and Jean Sherry's to Holland. A doll from each of these countries will be received by the clubs sending them, the first to arrive in the city being from Poland.

Packed carefully in tissue paper and a specially made wooden box, the Polish school girl doll, who as yet has no name, made her long journey from Lublin, Poland, to Warsaw, where the National Red Cross office is situated, from Warsaw to Paris, from Paris to the Provincial Red Cross Office in Toronto and hence to Belleville, the entire trip taking forty-seven days.

The doll was presented last evening at the concert by the principal of the school, Mr. W. G. Anderson, while Kate Wilson who dressed the Canadian School girl doll which was sent to Poland and Pearl Argent who dressed the doll for Latvia appeared on the platform, wearing costumes of navy blue skirts, white middies and berets, as their dolls were dressed.

The little miss from Poland was a blonde beauty, wearing a colorful costume similar to those worn by country girls there. A gay kerchief was tied about her hair, her black velvet bodice was embroidered in shining beads, and her white blouse had wide full sleeves caught with a tight band at the wrist. A skirt of red trimmed with contrasting rows of ribbons which also hung from her shoulder, and rows of beads as a necklace completed the costume, except for high black shoes decorated with red tassels, and a dainty white apron.

Accompanying the lovely doll was a letter written by a little Polish girl for the club sending the gift. The beautiful rounded hand writing was remarkable, each letter of the long Polish words being perfectly clear. A large red cross decorated the top of the double foolscap page and the words about it were:

"Polska - Kanada"
"Kochane Cztonkine A.C.K."

A translation of the letter was made in Paris and this was read by the principal. It is as fallows:

"Practice School attached to the Teachers' Training School for Girls, Lublin, Poland.

"Dear members of the Canadian Junior Red Cross Club—

"Our Club exists only since six months. It was founded at the Practice School of the Teachers' Training School in Lublin, Poland, and counts twenty-three girl-members from Grade Four. We are working in our club with great enthusiasm. We thank you very much for the beautiful doll which you sent us and which we all admire and love greatly. In return we are sending you a doll in a costume made by ourselves, according to that worn by our country girls living in the district of Cracow. As the head of the doll has not a typical face of a Polish girl, we are sending you a post card representing a Polish peasant girl from the other provinces of Poland and therefore she has a little different dress from that of the doll but the features and expression are those of all our country girls.

"We wish very much that this doll might be not only as an answer to your message but as a beginning of our friendly relations with you. In order to teach this aim, we should like very much to keep up an animated correspondence and ask you greatly to answer us as soon as possible.

"Yours very sincerely,
"Marjol Yaworowska.
"Members of the Junior Red Cross Club of the Practice School attached to the Teachers' Training School for Girls, Lublin, Poland."

Attached to the letter with a Red Cross pin in shield was the picture of a Polish girl, with serious thoughtful countenance. Her blonde hair was wound around her head in a braid.

The letter which was sent to Poland on behalf of the Junior Red Cross Club of Queen Alexandra School was read by Kate Wilson. It said:

"Dear Junior Red Cross Friends of Poland:

"I have enjoyed very much the dressing of this doll in the costume of the Canadian School girl. In some of our schools these are worn by all the girls but not in all schools. We wear this style of dress for formal occasions such as parades and concerts for chorus singing.

"I hope this doll has a safe journey to you. I also hope that the one that you sent to us will come before Christmas as we always have a Christmas concert at school and we would like to have your doll to show to our parents and friends when they come to our concert.

"This exchange of dolls should help us to get better acquainted with each other's country.

"Sincerely yours,
"Kate Wilson."

LIBERALS ELECT WARD CHAIRMEN

Organization Work is Carried Out in Orderly Manner

With a smoothness and despatch, that characterized the whole evening, Liberals of the city who met in the various wards completed the reorganization of their ranks in record time last evening.

Only two of the seven meetings scheduled to be held failed to materialize. In Murney Ward illness of hte chairman pro tem resulted in a postponement. A postponement was also made in Baldwin Ward when a minor discussion of the voters' list previous to the balloting arose. But in the remainder of the wards the work of preliminary organization was carried out with a minimum of argument or discussion.

Although the turnout of electors was expected to be large, the actual attendance at the homes was far larger than the most optimistic guess. In Coleman Ward a total of 87 votes were cast for chairman of that ward. In Bleecker Ward, where four names were nominated for the office of chairman, a total of 76 votes was reported. Other wards had a like representation.

The results of the election of ward officers is as follows:

Foster Ward Chairman: Joe Goyer; Vice-Chairman: Arthur Keegan; Lady Chairman: Mrs. Frank Keegan; Secretary Treasurer: Ralph Plumpton.

Samson Ward Chairman: Fred Temple; Vice Chairman, John Monk; Lady Chairman: Mrs. Harry Roblin; Secretary Treasurer: Sam Kroch.

Ketcheson Ward Chairman: Ray Carr; Vice Chairman: Harry Earle; Lady Chairman: Ann Hurley; Secretary: Leslie Pearsall; Treasurer: Wm. Thompson.

Bleecker Ward Chairman: Thos. Mason; Vice Chairman: Brock Burley; Lady Chairman: Mrs. A. Harrow; Secretary Treasurer: Isaac Stephenson.

Coleman Ward Chairman: O. D. Clapp; Vice Chairman: John Hurphy; Lady Chairman: Mrs. Jos. Healey; Secretary: Stanley Wilbur; Treasurer: P. Melchoir. Mr. Wilbur resigned from this office today and no appointment has been made.

The two remaining wards, where meetings were not held are expected to be called within the next week or so when election of officers will be completed.

Seventh Marriage In 12 Years is Now on Blink

New York, Dec. 18—(CP)—Mrs. Virginia Overshiner Paterson Stark Seeger Gilbert Kahn Cogswell let it be known today that her seventh marriage in 12 years has gone p-f-f-f-t.

Her advice to girls: "Don't ever marry."

Mrs. etc. Cogswell announced that if she can find her latest husband, for the service of papers, she will sue for divorce or annulment. Details haven't quite been worked out.

When she married Cogswell last June she bespoke great hope that her years of searching for marital happiness were at an end. She repeated yesterday, that the search was at an end, but the statement took on a different meaning.

"Never again," said Mrs. etc. Cogswell. "Marriage has lost its illusion for me."

She is 27. Her first marriage came when she was 15. None of them lasted a year. The shortest was closed out in three weeks.

Takes Oath to Truth

MRS. FLORENCE WILLIAMSON

For many years Mrs. Florence Williamson, 7420 Bloomfield Avenue, Montreal, suffered from constipation. At last she has found complete relief. Mrs. Williamson wants to help other sufferers so tells how she regained health in a statement made under oath before a notary so everyone can be sure of its truth. She says,—"Since I was twelve years old, I was ill with chronic constipation. I never felt good and could not do many things I wanted to. Then I started taking Fruit-a-tives. I can truly say they gave me wonderful relief. I strongly urge anyone who has the same trouble I had to try Fruit-a-tives."

Copy of Mrs. Williamson's sworn statement will be sent on request. Write Fruitatives Limited, Ottawa, Canada.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

LOVE FOR DAUGHTER OF FRIEND GIVES RISE TO DILEMMA

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I seem such a fool to myself that it's a comfort to write this letter to someone with whom I am unacquainted. These are the facts. I have been regarded as an incorrigible bachelor, but that was because I had to support various helpless relatives.

The most pleasant home, which was always open to me during these years of sacrifice, was that of an old schoolmate. I have been devoted to his daughter from birth. She has always called me "Uncle" though we're not related.

Lately, I've discovered that all the pent-up emotion of years has gone out to this girl. At first I was horrified. Then I became as recklessly happy as an adolescent with his first love affair.

Lately, there has been some evidence that the girl cares, too. She blushes, is self-conscious, and declines to kiss me. She is 20 and I'm 37. There—you have my story!

Malcolm R.

Why a man of 37 should take a Methuselah line is a mystery to me. Some of the happiest marriages are between people who differ in age. I advise you to be thankful for your belated romance.

WISDOM PROHIBITS LOVELESS MARRIAGE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last week a man who could give me a very nice home asked me to marry him. I live with friends and would love to have a home of my own. When I was 17, I went with a young man who was studying for a career. We went together for three year. Then I felt that our friendship might be a hindrance to him, and that it would be many years before he could marry.

At the suggestion of both our families we parted. Four years have passed and he has become very well known in his chosen field. He has never made any attempt to see me, though we live in the same city, nor has he been attentive to any other girl.

I've never been able to forget him. He always seems to be on my mind, no matter where I am. Therefore, I do not think it would be honest to say "yes" to this other man, because I continue to think of my first love.

What do you think of my case?

Doubtful.

You're very wise not to marry one man while you continue to think of another. Why don't you write this man with whom you went for three years a friendly little note and say you'd like to see him again. He has never been attentive to another girl, and it is probable that he still remembers you.

DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO MAKE FRIENDS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

It seems I can't get any farther than a general friendship with anyone. At times I am quite bashful, morbidly sensitive and not a very good talker. I'm sure I'm not bad looking; in fact, I've been called rather pretty. But I lack the pep and personality which a girl must have to be popular with either girls or boys.

I am not brave enough to take the initiative and start talking when I am in company. I'm sixteen and in high school. On top of all this, my mother nags me continually about not having friends. She wants so much to have me popular, and she can't see why I'm not. All this makes me perfectly miserable, and mother can't see how hard I try.

Desperate Marge.

At 16, my dear child, there are few brilliant conversationalists, and we'd be apt to fly from them, if they existed, as we do from most infant prodigies. The technique of living is like that of playing the piano or violin: you've got to be patient and learn the rules and not expect to be brilliant before you know the notes.

Your mother wants you to be popular. Good! Then get her to help you. Have a series of Friday night parties, to which you can invite small groups of girls and boys. Old-fashioned taffy pulls are coming back again. If you've got a nice big kitchen, try that for one of the Fridays. For another, you can roll back the rugs and give a little dance. Have chocolate and sandwiches, or you might start a cooking class. That's lots of fun.

But, please don't expect to have the world at your feet at 16. It's just not possible.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM HELD

Yuletide Season Theme of Missionary Meeting

Tweed, Dec. 18—Group No. 7 of the W.M.S. met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. T. E. Moffat with Mrs. M. Ardenne, the president in charge. A Christmas story was read by Miss H. Grindell, B.A., this was interspersed by the singing of Christmas carols. Mrs. C. E. Way read an interesting article on the author of the poem "The Night Before Christmas." Short Christmas thoughts were read by several members. How Christmas has been celebrated in other lands, down through the ages was the topic of interesting readings by Mrs. R. H. Purdy (France), Mrs S. H. Connor (England), Miss I. C. Campbell (German), Miss E. Stuart, B.A., (Russia). The election of officers resulted in last year's executive being returned to office.

The officers for 1935 are:
President—Mrs. M. Ardenne.
Vice Pres.—Miss I. C. Campbell.
Secretary—Miss F. Blaney.
Treasurer—Miss M. Logan.
Pianist—Miss L. Richardson.

Lunch was served at the conclusion.

The December meeting of the W.A of Tweed United Church was held on Thursday afternoon with the President, Mrs. M. Drinkwater in charge of the business part of the meeting during which reports of the groups were given by the leaders. Each of the four groups reported having raised well over the objective of fifty dollars. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. S. B. McGee who stated that considerably more than $500 had been raised during the year and that a fair balance was left on hand after paying all expenses. The thanks of the W.A. was conveyed to the treasurer who resigned after serving for seven years in this capacity.

The programme was in charge of Mrs. G. Gordon's group, and was suitable to the Christmas season. An interesting reading was given by Mrs. Ardenne. The story of "The Other Wise Man" was told by Mrs. McGee. A very pretty duet "Silent Night" was sung by Marion and Marjorie Tummon. Mrs. H. W. Clarke sang a beautiful solo "The First Christmas Morn."

Rev. R. R. Nicholson was present and received the reports of the committees. The Resolutions Committee report was given by Mrs. W. H. Richardson who said that the only resolution was "that the nominating committee" should in future be named at the October meeting instead of at the November meeting so that it might have more time to select officers for the coming year."

Mrs. S. G. Way read a beautiful poem in memory of the late Mrs. Patterson. A vote of thanks was moved expressing the appreciation of the W.A. of the work of the retiring president, Mrs. M. Drinkwater and the other officers.

Tweed Junior O.H.A. team had its first taste of hockey at Kingston on Friday night when they met the City Service juniors a crack organization coached by "Flat" Walsh a former goalie of Montreal Maroons. Though shut out by a score of 3 to 0, the boys played very creditable hockey for their first game, while their opponents had already played five league fixtures. This test gives indications of some splendid games this winter. The local mentor, S. R. Curry, gives his boys great praise for the brand of hockey they displayed, handicapped as they were by unfamiliar surroundings and a large ice surface, as well as lack of previous competition. After the game the boys were royally entertained and given a fine supper at the Students' Union. The local team was composed of Goal, Jack Reeves, defence, Herb Leal and Jack Arber, forwards, H. Prevost, "Tip" Tummon and Joe Courneyea. Subs F. Tummon, W. Leal, Stan Luffman and Dan Courneyea.

The rink was opened on Friday night with a good attendance. The ice was in pretty good shape for the opener. George Geraldi is in charge of the arena. The juniors will begin practices at the rink on Monday. The schedule will commence after the New Year. Tweed is grouped with Napanee, Campbellford and Belleville.

For showing the greatest increase in insurance business for the two months commencing September 15, Miss A. M. Rayburn won a beautiful table mirror and reading lamp. The contest was sponsored by the Pilot Insurance Company.

St. Carthagh's Church on Sunday afternoon was the scene of a beautiful ceremony when the following young ladies were received into the Sodality of the Children of Mary: Misses Nora Rashotte, Bernadette Quinn, Loretta Gaffney, M. Quinn, Leola Rashotte, Peggy Rashotte, R. Ryan, E. Mahoney, Patricia LeSage, Mildred LaBarge, Marie LaBarge, Norrine Quinn, Hilda Meraw, Corrine McConnachie, Edna Cassidy, Frances Meraw, Edna Cassidy R. Cassidy, Genevieve Courneyea, Celestine Courneyea, Marie Simmons, Genneth Akey, Catherine Shanque. Very Rev. Dean J. P. O'Riordan officiated.

After the ceremony the members repaired to the Sodality room where a dainty lunch was served by Misses Betty Akey, Marie Meraw, Margaret Rashotte, R. Doran, Bern Rashotte, M. Murphy, Pauline Quinn and Marjorie Quinn.

On Monday of last week there occurred in Carmel, near Brighton, the death of Mrs. Edward Morgan at the age of sixty-eight, following a lengthy illness. The deceased was a member of the United Church. She is survived by three sons and one daughter, Mrs. Harold Emerson to whom sincere sympathy is extended. The funeral was held on Wednesday.

CITY WEARS DRESS OF YULE SEASON

Business Men Report Good Trade Day by Day

With only a few days left for Christmas shopping, the city has blossomed forth in its full Yuletide regalia. Crowds fill the walks in the downtown section of the city from early morning until darkness. Harried clerks vainly attempt to fill the demands made upon their services at the overworked counters. Colored lights have been strung over the walks throughout the central section, lending a bright and appropriate setting for the many customers—a great number of them from points throughout a wide rural district—who are besieging in their numbered throngs.

According to several store managers, and even the clerks, business is good. Excellent. People are buying with a determined effort this season. The Christmas season of 1934 will probably go into the records as an eminently successful one. The real rush however, is expected to start at about the middle of this week when people suddenly realize that Christmas is finally here, it is pointed out.

LODGES, CLUBS

L. T. B. INSTALLATION

Installation of officers of the L. T. B. A. took place in their hall, Derry Lodge No. 30 and Chapter No. 4. W. I. Cole was in charge for the seventh time in succession, he being a member of the True Blue Lodge as the records show since 1899, or longer. He has also been a Past Master of the Blue as well as Past Grand Master, also a Past Grand Master of the Chapter No. 4, therefore it is very fitting that the honor of installing the officers for both are given as his charge, which we thank him very much. His duties were well performed and explained. His old friend and Bro. A. H. Harrow being elected again as Worshipful Master for Derry No. 30 filled this chair a number of years and we hope he will be able like Bro. Cole to continue for sometime to come as he puts his whole life in the work which is also a credit to him and the Lodge. Bro. Penn who has been treasurer for a number of years still remains treasurer and we feel he serves us well in his role of office and the Lodge gives him a hearty vote of thanks for his services.

The officers installed are as follows:

Derry No. 30

A. Harrow, W.M.; R. Crawford, Dept. M.; S. Foster, Re. Sec.; W. I. Cole; Fin. Sec., E. W. Fenn; Treasurer; John Dingman, Conductor; Benj. McConnell, Dir. Cer.; E. W. Fenn Chaplain; H. Emerson, Inside Guard; S. Colden, Outer Guard; S. Foster, R. Crawford, Auditors; E. W. Fenn, Benj. McConnell, A. H. Harrow, Trustees.

Chapter No. 4

Grand Master, Bro. J. Dingman; Grand Dep. Master, Bro. S. Foster; Grand R. Sec., Bro. A. Harrow; Grand Chaplain, Bro. R. Crawford; Grand Conductor, Bro. Ben. McConnell; Grand Inside Guard, Bro. W. I. Cole; Grand Outside Guard, Bro. S. Colden; Grand Auditors, Bros. Foster, Crawford.

After which all returned to the anti room where they were given a wonderful banquet.

Chaplain—Bro. Rev. W. R. Merrick.
Martial—Bro. C. Copeland.
Lecturer—Bros. F. Pound and E. Powers.
Committee—Bros. S. Pope, J. Smallhorn, G. Sharpe, E. Chambers and G. Reed.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were:— Cattle 380; calves 130; hogs 210; sheep and lambs 360.

Housewives Buy The Large Eggs

Ottawa, Dec. 18 — Canadian housewives, when they buy eggs, want the large ones. So universal is this demand for the big eggs that the markets are being clogged with the medium sizes, according to the complaints coming into the Department of Agriculture.

The present price spread between grade "A" large and grade "A" medium is much greater than the difference in size warrants, according to W. A. Brown, chief of the poultry services of the department. The minimum weight of grade "A" large is 24 ozs. a dozen. The minimum for medium is 22 ounces and for pullets 18 ounces. All are fresh and of good quality, the only difference being the size.

There is a fair demand for pullet eggs, but the spreads between least five cents more than the difleast fie cents more than the difference in weights would justify.

PUBLIC WORKS IS HALTED EARLY

Perfect weather and ideal working conditions in the city during the present season has resulted in little cessation of ordinary work being carried on by the Department of Public Works this year. Conditions have been all to the good for the department, it is reported by City Foreman John Henderson. So far the average depth of frost in the ground varies from a depth of six to eight inches in soft ground to a foot or more in the unprotected ground of roadways where excavation work must be carried on. This season so far snow plows have not been needed, the ordinary street cleaning being carried on by the city sweeper at a date far later than average.

FINANCIAL MARKETS
NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—The short interest having been pared down in the recent advance, mining shares turned easier today and losses were taken by leaders of the secondary gold group that were active on the up side in recent sessions. Senior golds were also a bit soft and slow.

The market paid little attention to metal prices, Noranda declining despite a better export copper price and other shares of the base metal group remaining almost dormant. Eldorado was the only point of interest in the silver group. It sold down to 1.13, partly recovered and steadied for a loss of 4 cents.

WALL ST. FINANCIAL

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—Dullness and indecisive price movements characterized trading in today's stock market.

Although the general run of news was not interpreted pessimistically, both buyers and sellers exhibited marked timidity in their dealings. The majority of the old-time leaders were content to mark time.

Apathy ruled among corporate bonds and U. S. Government securities were slightly better.

Among new highs for the year were McCrory Stores preferred and J. C. Penney, up about 2 points each and United States, Industrial Rayon and McCrory common with gains of small amounts. U. S. Smelting dropped 2 and Cerro de Pasco and Howe Sound about one each. Public Service of New Jersey was in supply at a point recession. Such issues as General Motors, U. S. Steel, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, General Electric, Kelvinator, Chrysler, Goodyear, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central and United Aircraft were about unchanged to a trifle lower.

Among Canadian issues, Dome and McIntyre were fractionally lower. International Nickel and Canadian Pacific ruled about even. On the curb, Lake Shore was narrow. Dominion Government bonds were steady. Montreal funds improved 1-32 of a cent at 101 1-32 cents.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—The industrial share market traced a drab pattern today as volume contracted and prices weakened small fractions in the early afternoon, following a rather firm morning display. Food stocks were slow and heavy and such recent leaders as Ford A. Distillers Seagrams and Walker's common forfeited fractions.

The tone held quite firm the construction, brewery and miscellaneous stocks. Gypsum was strong at 6¾ and higher prices ruled for Brewing Corporation common and Canada Bud.

AMERKS CAN GO INTO 2ND PLACE

Star-Spangled Crew of New York Playing Swell Hockey

By the Canadian Press

When the National Hockey League season opened a little more than a month ago the experts would have given juicy odds that New York Americans wouldn't be in second place in the Canadian section now.

Joe Simpson's team of veterans and youngsters, backed up by Roy Worter's splendid goal tending, have come so far since then that they are challenging Montreal Maroons for the spot next to Toronto Leafs and may tie Tommy Gorman's team for the position tonight.

While Maroons are idle, Amerks take on the luckless St. Louis Eagles in New York tonight and on the hockey they have played in Toronto and Detroit lately, Simpson's team are favorites.

While Toronto and Detroit keep Maroons company on the sidelines four other teams get into action. New York Rangers, who defeated Boston in New York Sunday take on the Bruins again in Boston and Chicago Black Hawks play Canadiens at Montreal in their first meeting of the season.

Howie Morenz the great centre who played all his professional hockey before this season in a Canadien sweater will make his first appearance in Montreal as a Hawk. For the first time in the years they have played hockey he will oppose his old team-mate Aurel Joliat who played left wing to Morenz' centre on Canadien teams when they were Flying Frenchmen.

SHIRK SIGNS CERTIFICATE

Played All His Hockey With Kitchener Except One Season

Kitchener, Ont., Dec. 18 (CP) — Stalwart of Ontario Hockey Association's playing ranks, the veteran Allan Shirk today viewed his signature on his 21st. O.H.A. certificate, recalling memories of ice fueds that extended back to the season of 1913-14 when he played with Berlin Union Jacks.

On the old Berlin Union Jacks was Frank Selke, now publicity director of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League. Shirk this year joined Freddie Jacks leader of the Twin City league, which operates as an intermediate O.H.A. group. He hopped over the ice last night with old-time vigor, gaining an assist on one of the six goals his team used to shut out Waterloo College.

The veteran has been a regular during his lengthy amateur career, starting at centre ice until he found his rugged legs stood up better on the defence position where he has been a bulwark with every team on which he played. All his hockey playing was done with Kitchener O.H.A. clubs until last year when he joined the Waterloo Hockey Club, which captured the city league intermediate crown but bowed in the playdowns to Oakville, last year's intermediate O.H.A. champions.

HIRSCH JACOBS LEADING TRAINER

Has Sent Out 124 Winners Since January 1st

New York, Dec. 18 (CP)—Hirsch Jacobs, who has shown old time trainers a thing or two the last few years, may not surpass the United States record for trainers but he'll be mighty close to the mark of 147 winners saddled by C. B. "Cowboy" Irwin in 1923, when the end of the year rolls around.

Only a youth as trainers go, Jacobs has sent out 124 winners since January 1 as compared to 116 last year, which was good enough to head the list. All told, Jacobs has saddled 474 since leaving the job of training pigeons to condition thoroughbreds in 1928.

Only two other trainers have passed the century mark in a single year. H. B. Bedwell turned the trick in 1909 and 1916 with 122 and 123 respectively. P. Ernest sent out 105 winners in 1910.

LONDOS IN A TOUGH SPOT AS SHIKAT APPLIES PRESSURE

Jim Londos, the Greek Adonis of the grappling game, is shown spread on the canvas of a New York ring as Dick Shikat his opponent, in a bout advertised as placing the Greek's heavyweight wrestling title at stake, applies a strenuous hold. Londos, however, wriggled out of his uncomfortable position and succeeded in pinning Shikat's shoulders to win the finish match and retain his "championship."

St. Louis Cardinals Voted Outstanding Team in U. S. Winning Over Minnesota 11

NATIONWIDE POLL

Toronto Maple Leafs Team Secures a Few Votes

By Alan Gould Associated Press Sports Editor

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—It seems to be highly debatable in this year's sporting roundup whether it was any harder to beat the celebrated Dean brothers on the baseball field than it was to tackle Pug Lund or Stan Kostka, the galloping Gophers, on the gridiron.

Whatever the feelings on this hypothetical issue, the fact today is that the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, featuring the Dean boys, emerge the winners over Minnesota's undefeated football champions in the Associated Press poll to determine the outstanding United States team of 1934.

The Cardinals are the third successive major league ball club to be acclaimed the best team of the year, in any sport, by vote of the sports editors and writers, who rate the finishing drive of the National League champions as the greatest in the history of the game.

As one observer expressed it: "You can't crack guys without nerves, like the Deans and Pepper Martin. They never think about losing. What putters those birds would be on the last green with the title at stake."

Compilation of ballots in the biggest country-wide response yet recorded in the annual A. P. poll disclosed a two-team race for votes from start to finish.

Asked to name the three leading teams, in order of preference, 60 out of a total of 109 experts cast their No. 1 vote for the Cardinals while 34 put Minnesota's Gophers at the top of the list.

The final standing on points was, St. Louis 241, Minnesota 215, because the Gophers ran stronger in second and third place nominations. Minnesota picked up 48 votes for second place and 17 for third, while the Cardinals collected 27 and 7, respectively.

Points were figured on the basis of three for first place, two for second and one for third.

The poll took recognition of the British Davis Cup team, which was mentioned on nine ballots and finished eighth on the list, with ten points. Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League got a third place vote.

Canadian Record Broken By N. Ontario Flying Ace

By CENTRAL PRESS CANADIAN

ETHAN CRANN

Hudson, Ont., Dec. 18—A very modest young man is Ethan Crann.

But an air ace extraordinary is he—a man who now ranks second only to the great "Punch" Dickens.

Ethan Crann is pilot for Northern Transportation Co. and does most of his flying in Northern Ontario. Though he has only been flying for three years, he has been in the air 1,102 hours this season alone.

Crann's outstanding feat is five mercy flights in one week—three in three successive days. A mercy flight is a flight where a pilot risks his life against any elements that nature cares to offer at the moment, for the purpose of bringing into civilization people in far-flung outposts who are injured or sick.

Five times in one week this winter, Crann has successfully made these flights, twice under almost impossible flying conditions.

Of these mercy flights, the modest flier says: "Oh, they are an everyday occurrence now."

Crann was born in Queensville, Ontario, 32 years ago. He and his family moved to Transcona, Manitoba, when he was 10. Later he moved to Sioux Lookout, and thence on to Winnipeg where he learned to fly.

He has made other flights in other seasons, but this season he has broken all existing records in the matter of saving of lives.

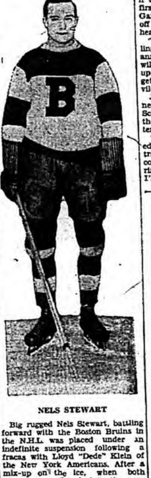
IN DISGRACE



NELS STEWART

Big rugged Nels Stewart, battling forward with the Boston Bruins in the N.H.L. was placed under an indefinite suspension following a fracas with Lloyd "Dede" Klein of the New York Americans. After a mix-up on the ice, when both players were thumbed to the penalty box, Stewart is reported to have broken his stick over Klein's head and knocked the Amerk star unconscious, but not before he himself suffered a nasty gash apparently from Klein's stick. President Frank Calder suspended Stewart pending an investigation.

FLIRTS WITH DEATH

South Brookfield, N.S., Dec. 18—(CP)—In placing a bucket of dynamite near the stove in his cabin to warm for use in blasting rock, J. B. McLeod, highway construction worker, found he was flirting with death. Turning around later he noticed the dynamite smouldering and seized the bucket, making for the door. Although he prevented an explosion his hands and face were severely burned.

Hamas and Schmeling to Fight in Germany March 10

Garden in New York Left Holding The Bag

By Eddie Brietz

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—Charlie Harvey, cagey old fight manager, chuckled behind his fierce moustachios today.

He had his old foeman, Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden maestro, squarely behind the eight ball.

By signing his boy, Steve Hamas, the collegiate heavyweight, to meet Max Schmeling at Hamburg, Germany, March 10, Harvey not only plucked the match right out of Johnston's lap, but thoroughly gummed up the Garden's well laid plans for a heavyweight elimination tournament.

It had been pretty generally accepted along Broadway that a Hamas-Schmeling joust was the plum with which Johnston and his colleagues hoped to attract a $150,000 gate to Miami next February.

Now with Der Maxie and the ex-Penn State star out of the picture and with Primo Carnera barnstorming in South America it is doubtful if the winter season will produce a first class heavyweight bout for the Garden, let alone take the blanket off a real contender for Max Baer's heavyweight title.

"Yep, we're all set to box Schmeling in Germany," Harvey glibly announced. "Walter Rothenberg will be the promoter and he'll put up a stadium seating 25,000. We'll get $25,000 for our end with the privilege of a percentage."

Johnston, who has been assuring newspaper men that a Hamas-Schmeling meeting was all but in the bag for Miami, fumed and sputtered when told of Harvey's coup.

"They can't do that," he stormed. "We have Hamas under contract for his next fight and the contract specifies he can't enter the ring without our permission. Why, I'll call up my lawyers."

RANGER NOW

DAVIE KERR

New York Rangers bought Dave Kerr, reserve goalie from Montreal Maroons to fill the Blueshirt cage in place of Andy Aikenhead after slumping far down in the N.H.L. standing this season. Aitkenhead was sent to Philadelphia Arrows of the Can.-American League. In his first appearances as Ranger goal custodian, Kerr turned in some sparkling work.

The 20-year-old "black panther" sent Ramage to the canvas four times in a Chicago bout before Ramage's seconds tossed in a towel.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

Hockey seems to be headed towards better times in Belleville along with the subjection of the junior and intermediate O.H.A. schedules this season. Last night the local junior loop convened and drafted a schedule, that gives the local kids six games. Napanee, Campbellford, Tweed and Belleville were all represented and all four clubs struck an optimistic air, insofar as the future of junior hockey is concerned in Central Ontario. One of the features of last night's meeting was the amicable attitude taken by the delegates present. As a matter of fact Convener Ed Thomas was confronted with a rather queer situation, all clubs present being willing to abide by his rulings, despite the fact he desired the clubs to draft their own schedule and adopt their personal controlings. As a matter of fact the group meeting lasted but a few minutes, that is after the schedule was drawn. When the subject of group rulings was brought up Convener Thomas was politely told, that he would be solely responsible for that end of the league business. A finely balanced schedule was drawn, that sees the local kids open at home on Jan. 2nd versus Jay Peris' Campbellford kidlettes., as Walter Gerow's juniors journey to meet Sam Curry's kids the same night at Tweed. On the whole junior hockey seems to be headed towards better times in the Central Ontario area this winter.

After enjoying two previous years success the Belleville Skating Club launched its way upon another season's activity last night with the election of officers etc. The most important item of business forcibly brought to the fore was the introduction of a junior membership by the club. The Belleville Skating Club has been a paramount organization in the uplift of the Belleville Arena in years past, but their attitude in the elevation of junior members last night at their annual meeting stamps the clubs as being one of the finest local sporting clubs in Belleville, that is in the interest of the future of Belleville's growing youths. The Belleville Skating Club showed no liabilities in the matter of past years' operations, but on the contrary presented statements whereby, that organization had materially assisted the uplift of the Belleville Arena. Their present drive for membership should be met with response from local sportsmen.

Apparently you can't keep a good scorer down. Both Bill Cook, for years a scoring leader in the National Hockey League with Rangers, and Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit, who led the scorer of his section in 1930-31, have been moved back on the defence, this season, for their respective teams. But recent statistics showed both of them apparently close to the leaders on points.

The Ottawa and District Hockey Association approved the request of the Brockville Magedomas to be permitted to play in the O.H.A. for this season, it was announced yesterday. The Magedomas now form part of Group No. 1 in the senior "B" series of the O.H.A., along with Gananoque, Queens, R.M.C. and the Kingston H.C. Already they are beginning to "squawk" in the Limestone City relating to the strength of the Magedomas. The Kingston sport scribe goes on to say that Peterson, Pete Morgan and Les Tice are not eligible to play in Brockville, they not having been bonafide and continuous residents since Jan. 1st. last. According to Tice, who was a visitor in the city recently, he was moved to Kingston by his employers during the summer months and therefore can qualify under the employment clause. Peterson is a student and will naturally receive consideration, while the question of Pete Morgan will naturally be thoroughly thrashed out. Pete was out of employment last spring and received a job in Brockville, where he is still working.

In order to protect the ice and and save it for tonight's gala hockey opening, the Belleville Arena remained closed yesterday. Manager Redner announced today, that the ice was holding up nicely and he looked for one of the largest opening crowds ever to grace the Arena. All of the four teams to face the barrier tonight, had strenuous workouts over the week end. The S.E.A.C. players worked out on the bay while the Aajmaa Club practiced at the Arena, as did the 20th Century Club and Walker Grills' "Mechanics". "Bouncer" Holway and Jack Truaisch have been named as the official referees for tonight's twin bill of city league hockey which incidently marks the opening of the current winter sporting season in Belleville.

An experiment in the use of basketballs, colored differently for each quarter of the game, marked the opening of the Brown college schedule when Varsity met the alumni five. Brown asked that this system be adopted by the rules committee and Arthur D. Kahler, coach, was requested to make a report to that body following the game.

The balls were colored black, white and orange, in addition to the regulation tan, and each was used for one period.

Spite Wife

by Ann Forester

"Oh, Patty's all right," said Nick easily. "She gives the women something to think about—new clothes and the latest trick from Paris—that sort of thing."

As though she felt their observation, Patty Warren now called across the table to Juby.

"Oh, Mrs. Carter, I understand that you're from Summerfield. Then you must know the Galways, The Bradley Gallways—the big flour mill people?"

The attention of the table focused upon her. Stan's black eyes watching her across the table—Stan who knew that shabby young librarians in the Summerfield Public Library had not been on social terms with the people who lived in the big stone Gallway house on the hill.

Her cheeks were burning. To her own inner anger Judy heard herself stammering as she answered that she did not.

"You DON'T!" Patty Warren's emphasis managed to make it seem rather stupid of Judy not to have known them. "They're charming people! You know—" she turned to the others animatedly, flinging out her hands, "when the Gallways were here on the coast last year, Brad Gallway threatened to kidnap me and make me go on their yachting party. You remember when they wrecked on Puget Sound—why the papers were full of it—"

The chatter of conversation about them. Stan had turned to Eunice and was speaking in a low intent murmur. Judy saw nothing but his handsome profile, for minutes at a time Eunice's beautiful blonde head was bent attentively close to the narrow dark one.

Judy found herself trying to swallow a very childish lump in her throat.

The man with the small mustache—Dart Towers spoke to her. She answered with brief politeness; turned her attention swiftly to her plate.

She felt rather than saw Nick Carter's keen gaze upon her and she knew that in some way he knew all about that choking lump. She raised her head gallantly, tried to smile.

"One SHOULD know the Gallways......"

Oh, always! There, how's that for a neat cap to a rhyme! Let's do better —One always, knows Gallways, one meets them in hallways!"

Judy laughed and felt that life was worth living again. That Gallways and Patty Warren and even Stan's displeasure did not seem to count.

Her eyes met the friendly grey gaze. "I'm glad they put you here. Beside me."

"I'm the one to be glad." Nick did not smile as he said it.

"I feel as though I'd known you for a long time. I've heard the rest of the family speak of you, of course, but you're so different than I expected—"

Judy stopped in consternation and felt her cheeks burn. What had she said! Oh, how stupid she had been to let that slip out! She was rattled——

The man grinned and there was a quizzical smile in his eyes. "Think not a damn thing of it, Judy! I'm glad you find me different. Shall I tell you what I find you?"

"Please."

"Well—I'm about to make a pretty speech, but I mean it, so don't hold it against me. When I first saw you tonight I thought you were like a flower. Like a tea-rose. But now I think you are much of what I spoke about a while ago. You are good brown earth, Judy."

There was such an undercurrent of gravity to his voice that Judy was confused. She was almost glad when the man on the other side of her claimed her attention.

When they rose from the table Nick spoke to her. "I'm going to say good-night. I'm not going on to the Club with you."

"You're not going to come and dance!" Judy was surprised at the strange little feeling of dismay in her heart. Of all the people gathered here, only this half-brother of Stan seemed to be a real friend.

"No, I have a heavy date to go on back and sit up with Eliza. She rather expects it the first night I get here." His keen grey eyes seemed reading something in her face, something more than she knew was there. "Goodnight, Judy," he said softly. "I hope you'll be very happy. Stan is a darned lucky man."

A strange little edge on the words that roused her quick loyalty. "And I'm a darned lucky girl, too. He's wonderful!"

He grinned. "I never dispute with a bride! But you're right—there's fine stuff in Stan. Shall I take you on over to him?"

"No. Vera just signalled me to go up and get ready. Goodnight—Nick".

Judy put on her silk shawl and joined the other women in Amy's bedroom.

Amy, Georgia, Eunice and Patty Warren crowding before the mirror. The air full of perfume and powder. As Judy appeared in the doorway there was a sudden hush in the conversation. Judy's cheeks burned. She realized that they had been discussing her. Then, with a little burst of defiance she unconsciously squared her shoulders and went on in, to stand coolly making up her lips by a small handmirror.

A tense moment, then with a burst of false animation Amy burst out, "Patty, where did you get that new make-up? It's a wow!"

For the first time Judy realized that what she had thought this woman's strange coloring, was only a cosmetic.

"Arabian, my angel!" Patty Warren's high metallic voice answering. "A new liquid powder. Like it? It's all the vogue on the Lido."

"It's fascinating"! came Eunice Wilson's cool drawl. "I want some. Get me some, Patty."

"Too dark for you, my child!" Patty retorted airily. "Gold for you. Come down to the shop tomorrow and I'll fix you up."

Amy seemed suddenly to remember her manners. She turned to Judy. "Patty has the most fascinating shop, Judy. I'll take you down there tomorrow.".

They left the room—Amy, Eunice and Patty Warren in an ejaculating little group. Georgia walked by Judy. As they went down the stairs, Georgia said in a voice so low it was almost an undertone.

"I think you're a very brave girl, Mrs. Carter!"

Judy turned wide eyes upon her. "I—brave?"

The other woman was watching her with a peculiar tense smile. Without knowing it, Judy had made an enemy. Georgia De Haas had long had a secret and hopeless love for Nick Carter. A love which not even her three intimates—which not even Nick's sister suspected. And Nick's attention tonight to his new sister-in-law; Nick's unfeigned interest in this other girl, brotherly though it might be, had stirred Georgia's jealous nature to the depths. She was striking out blindly now, filled with the desire to hurt.

To Judy's look of astonishment, she replied, a queer little catch in her voice, as though some part of her mind shivered at her own audacity!

"Yes. To throw Stan and his old love together in this way. Of course you know that he and Eunice have been sweethearts since childhood. That was why Stan was so broken up when she grabbed Wilson and his millions on a minute's notice. And why he lit out of his home town, I hope I haven't said anything I shouldn't!"

"Not at all .." Judy's voice sweetly cool. Judy paying careful attention to the fringe of her new shawl that it might not drag on the steps. "Of course Stan told me all about his foolish little boy infatuation—all boys have them, don't you think? And we laughed over it together. I think Mrs. Wilson is charming."

She stopped talking because she felt that her voice was about to break. But her lips were parted in a gallant smile and her eyes met Georgia's eyes squarely.

DEEPENING CURRENTS

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

It cost Judy a lot to keep that faint proud smile on—her lips for inwardly she was shaken by surprise, hurt—a new and fierce jealousy.

She was bewildered, by the suddenness of the attack. Her emotions were in a turmoil. Georgia's words, seeping through her blood—poisoning her heart paralyzing reason...... "Stan and his old love" ...."Sweethearts since childhood" .... "That was why Stan was so broken up—why he lit out of his home town...."

That queer sinking feeling of disaster within her.. and this new feeling of outrage..But paramount to everything the need of keeping her poise. "Saving her face," was what the Chinese called it—Judy had read it somewhere and now, rather oddly found herself recalling it. Save her face under the sly black eyes of Georgia.... Save her face before all these cruel watchful new people.

Keep that stiff little smile on her lips....never let them suspect.... Oh, if she could only get away and think. Away in some quiet corner where she could drop the mask and let her eyes fill and her lips tremble. A chance to think clearly ..After all—suppose Stan had been interested in Eunice Wilson before her marriage. .... Of course he'd known other girls, just as she had been friendly with other men.... Look, how Ken Baker had taken her to dances and parties since high school days.

It seemed to Judy that she had been in a daze since Georgia's words. That she had been walking in her sleep. Now she awoke to startled consciousness. They were standing in the square front hall waiting for the cars to be driven to the entrance. Georgia had walked away from her—she was standing talking with false animation to Billy Sumner.

Judy's eyes went to Stan. He was lighting a cigarette—the light played on his face and the girl felt her heart swell with a strange emotion, half pain, half pride. Stan....her husband.... Oh, she was a fool to let a woman's catty words hurt her like this! She was being a jealous fool.... Would Stan have married her if he'd loved some one else? It was gossip—idle gossip. Why should Georgia De Haas want to hurt her though? Judy asked of herself in astonishment. Just to stir up trouble, perhaps.... Some women were like that.

Stan was coming toward her—the sight of him drawing her heart like a magnet. She felt that all the world held only herself and Stan.. they were in a planet apart wrapped in the glorious sense of belonging to each other. Put apart —exalted by their love, far away from there shallow, inconsequential people,....

"How's everything going, Judy?" The question was trivial enough, but there was nothing trivial about the starry gaze she gave him. Stan's dark eyes, thrilling her, drawing her heart through her eyes. Georgia's poisoned words lost their sting.

"Lovely—lovely, darling—" She pretended to brush a fleck of lint from his sleeve because of the pleasure the little possessive gesture gave her.

Across the hallway a pair of eyes like blue sapphires saw the motion. Saw the long look which passed between the husband and wife.

Eunice Wilson was suddenly dominating the scene with gay insistence.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

REX MAXON

For a time, Tarzan hunted in the jungle's solitude, trying to forget. His mate had been the one strong tie holding him to civilization. Now that she was dead, he was through with mankind, considering himself no longer man, but ape.

Yet more and more he found himself thinking of the British soldiers fighting against such heavy odds. In the Red camp he had heard enough to suggest they were getting the worst of this war with the Red invaders.

It made him lower his head and growl, and it worried him—a little, perhaps, because he was finding it difficult to forget that he, too, was of English ancestry, when he wanted to be an ape. At last he could no longer endure the thought that—

The Reds were killing Englishmen while he hunted in safety with the great apes. Making his decision, he set off toward the Reds' camp. There he planned to harass the enemy at every chance, as he knew so well how to do.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and ma was starting to go downtown and Puds Simkins went passed, me making a fearse face at him without even giving him the saddisfaction of saying Hello, and ma said. Why Benny is that any way to greet a frend?

I wasn't greeting a frend, I was insulting a enemy, I said. Anybody that calls me a lob sided bannanna is my enemy, and that's what that guy called be this morning, I said, and ma said, Maybe so, but as far as you're concerned it's a golden opportunity with a silver lining. Insults are ony sticks and stones and it's more blessed to forgive than to receeve. So this is your chance to retern good for evil by ignoring his vulgar remarks and acting as if nothing had happened, she said.

But jimminy Christmas, ma, supposing some lady called you a lob sided bannanna, would you forgive her? I said, and ma said, No lady would give expression to any such sentiment.

But G wizzickers, ma, you mite of thawt she was a lady before she said it. I said. Everybody makes mistakes. Would you forgive her anyways? I said, and ma said, I'd forgive her, yes, but I'd never see her again.

But gosh, ma, holey smokes, I haff to see Puds Simkins because he's one of the members of the Mystick 3, I said. If he was some other guy I didn't haff to see it mite be diffrent, I said, and ma said, You dont haff to see anybody whose influence over you is bad.

O dont worry about that, ma, I'll make my influence on him just as bad and maybe werse, I said, I'll I'll give him something to forgive me for the ferst chance I get, and that'll be reterning good for evil, wont it, ma? I said.

No, certainly not, the ideer such an ideer, ma said, and I said, Well why wont it ma, give me one reason?

Hush, the incident is closed, here comes our trolley, ma said.

"Peck's Bad Boy"

Only Adults Will Truly Appreciate This Film, Says Hollywood

The Fox film presentation of "Peck's Bad Boy", which will be seen today and Wednesday, matinee and evening at the Belle theatre, was acclaimed by Hollywood critics at its preview showings as a "new American classic" and "a vital human document" for every man and woman."

That brilliant and appealing young player, Jackie Cooper, is the star of this human film story. Jackie is seen as a fine two-fisted boy who is nearly crowded out of his father's life and affections through the plotting of an unprincipled aunt and her no less unprincipled son. To judge from advance reports, no story of boyhood has brought to the screen a profounder understanding or a more touching situation.

Adults will find particular appeal in "Peck's Bad Boy." it is believed every mother will see in young Bill Peck her own son. Every father will see himself.

Notable Cast

In addition to Jackie Cooper, a number of notable players have been assembled for the picture. Thomas Meighan returns to the screen for a two years' retirement to play Jackie's father. Young Jackie Searl has an important role as Bill Peck's own especial demon. As his scheming mother, Dorothy Peterson contributes a performance that has already drawn "raves" from previewers and that fine actor O. P. Heggie is also in the cast.

Edward F. Cline has directed "Peck's Bad Boy" with what is described as a deep understanding of a boy's heartaches. In addition to the fine emotional quality of the film, it is said to abound in comedy.

Jackie's Best Role

Not even in "Skippy" or "The Champ" has Jackie Cooper had so good a role it is said. His performance as the younger Peck is certain to be remembered as a climax to all the young man's past achievements.

In the opinion of Hollywood, "Peck's Bad Boy" is in no sense a "kid" picture—that is, not the type of juvenile picture usually associated with that designation. It is an adults' story, told in an adult way. Which fact will in no way interfere with its enjoyment by children it is added.

"One Hour Late"

Joe Morrison, radio tenor who almost made "The Last Round-Up" our national anthem, appears in his first leading role for Paramount in "One Hour Late," the second feature attraction on the same program and displays charm and acting talent which, combined with his superlative singing voice, is destined to make him the favorite of film fans everywhere.

Supported by Helen Twelvetrees, Conrad Nagel, Arline Judge and Gail Patrick in "One Hour Late," Morrison sings a number of new songs by Sam Coslow, Lewis Gensler and Leo Robin.

Directed by Ralph Murphy, the picture blends comedy, melody and drama to tell the story of love and life behind office doors.

Two tunes which Morrison sings in his incomparable tenor voice "A Little Angel Told Me So," and "Me Without You" seem to be destined for hit success.

"Stolen Melody" a tuneful Pepper Pot Revue, and the Belle Latest News Flashes will be exhibited on the same program.

Performances commence daily at 2.30, 7.10 and the last complete show starts at 8.40 p.m. "One Hour Late" will be exhibited daily at 3.45 and 8.40 p.m. "Peck's Bad Boy" will be exhibited at 2.40, 7.20 and 9.50 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Power"

Dramatic Story of a Man's Lust for Power

The picturization of "Power," which has enjoyed such widespread popularity both here and abroad opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

"Power" is one of the most ambitious motion pictures yet attempted and offers such actors as Conrad Veidt, Gerald Du Maurier, Cedric Hardwicke, Benita Hume and thirty other principals as well as thousands of extras.

The story of "Power" has to do with the brilliant financial genius, Josef Suss Oppenheimer. Established in commerce in the year 1730, he is presented to Karl Alexander, the reigning duke of Wurttemberg. Suss' outstanding ability leads him to dizzy heights of power. He becomes the force behind the ducal throne. Beauties of the Court are at his beck and call. Intrigue, however, eventually threatens to undermine him. But there follows a perod of luxurious wealth and a life of extreme extravagance and lavishness with almost absolute authority over the State. Then, disaster.

Throughout the picture an amazingly authentic atmosphere has been produced. In one scene the producers had to specially dip 900 candles for use in the sequences, as no modern candle maker could be found who made them in the Eighteenth Century design. Each candle had to have two wicks as one wick did not photograph well. In one scene alone almost thirty thousand real flowers of nineteen different varieties were used to lend authenticity to the royal Garden at Hirsau.

In another scene, 4,500 fireworks units and 600 feet of fuse were fired in one of the largest outdoor displays of this character ever constructed. The scene represents the demonstration on the occasion of the Duke's accession to the throne as the first king of Wurttemberg. It took three days to build and a few minutes to burn up. When the match was applied, the great structure burst into full brilliance and the faces of Benita Hume, playing the Duchess, and Frank Vosper, playing the Duke, blazed out fifty feet high and forty feet wide.

This picture, made at a cost exceeding half a million dollars, is without a doubt the finest of its nature ever filmed.

Added Featurettes

A clever cartoon "Viva Buddy" and "Mirrors," a tuneful Melody Master complete the program.

Du Barry vegetable dishes tonight. Shows at 2.30, 7.15 and 9.15.

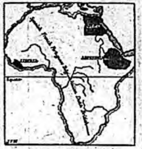
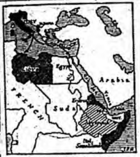
TENSION INCREASES AS ABYSSINIA AND ITALY CLASH

Street Scene in Abyssinia



Italy's African Colonies

King Haile Selassie



Abyssinia's Position

Saar Valley, Bolivia-Paraguay, Jugoslavia-Hungary, and now Abyssinia and Italy. No sooner is the world eased on one, than another crisis arises. In Africa, the kingdom of Ethiopia (Abyssinia) has dispatched a note to the League of Nations protesting against the aggression of Italian Somaliland. Already it is reported from the region that Italian soldiers have killed more than 100 Ethiopians in conflict. The whole African situation is clouded by complications; practically the entire nation is subdivided into states owned or controlled by some European power. Italy's three possessions are Libia, Eritrea and Somaliland. Abyssinia is, therefore, as map indicates, cut off from the Red sea by Italians, French and British. The French are now openly accusing Italy of an attempt to repeat, with Britain's consent, her attempt to invade Abyssinia. It will be recalled that Italy made an unsuccessful attempt in 1896. Both Britain and Italy are interested in the inland country since it gives them certain advantages on the Red sea, the Nile, Sudan and Liberia. (Maps from Atlas Current Affairs, Ryerson Press.)

SAAR INCIDENT GIVEN IN DETAIL

Responsibility Not Accepted by Britain Says Simon

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

London, Dec. 17.—"Very unfortunate" was the description used by Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, when he informed the House of Commons this afternoon of the incident in the Saar involving a British officer of the international police force.

At the same time the foreign secretary made it quite clear the British government accepts no responsibility for Britons happening to be members of the Saar police as they were not recruited by the government.

Captain James Justice, the officer involved, and a companion were beaten up by Saarlanders after Justice's car slightly injured a woman pedestrian and in the ensuing excitement Justice fired two shots from his revolver, one slightly wounding a Saarbruecken citizen.

Sir John outlined the incident and stressed the Saar international police of which Captain Justice was a member had no connection whatever with international military force organized by the League of Nations, to which Britain is contributing the largest contingent.

TICKET OF LEAVE FOR 'RED' RYAN AFTER NEW YEARS

Will Become Gardener to Chaplain of The Penitentiary

FOR GOOD CONDUCT

Escaped in 1923 But Was Later Captured at Minneapolis

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—Norman "Red" Ryan, notorious bank robber of a decade ago, who is serving a life sentence in Portsmouth Penitentiary, will be released on parole at the New Year, a special despatch to The Globe from Kingston today says.

Ryan, reported to have earned a reputation for good behavior will become gardener to Rev. Father W. T. Kingsley, Roman Catholic chaplain at the Penitentiary and parish priest of the Church of the Good Thief in Portsmouth, the despatch adds.

Ryan was regarded as the most daring and dangerous bank bandit of his time and once effected a sensational escape from Portsmouth. He was serving a 25-year sentence for robbery in Hamilton, when he and four companions set fire to the Penitentiary stables in 1923 and escaped over the walls.

The bandit was arrested at Minneapolis on December 14, 1923, and pleaded guilty at Toronto to a bank robbery staged there after his escape. He was sentenced to life and 30 lashes. He is reported to have invented and patented a new mail-bag lock while working at the Penitentiary and of late years has been an orderly in the prison hospital.

REVOLUTION IS FEARED IN CUBA

1,000 Soldiers Parade Streets After Night of Bombings

(By Edmund A. Chester)
(Copyright 1934, The Associated Press)

Havana, Dec. 18 (AP)— Nearly 1,000 soldiers patrolled the streets of Havana today after a night of bombing and talk of revolution.

Terror spread throughout the city shortly before midnight when more than 40 bombs were exploded. Three women and two men were injured by the blasts, which were set off in every section of the Capital.

Soldiers spent the early morning hours searching pedestrians, motorists, buses and street cars for bombs. Foreign persons were arrested on charges of placing the explosives or for having them in their possession.

The city became excited over the possibility of a revolutionary outbreak after police seized a supply of dynamite and arrested 90 passengers in buses where the explosives were found.

Extra precautions were taken by the army, when an officer reported he had detained three members of the ABC political society, opposed to the government of President Carlos Mendieta and his "strong man," Colonel Fulgencio Batista, Commander-in-Chief of the army.

Soldiers Ready

Sailors and police also were ordered held in readiness. The army officer said he had seen other men, presumably ABC members leaving the city in groups.

Tension had been high since a band of armed men allegedly secret police last week raided the plant of the newspaper Accion and ABC organ, and forced nine editorial workers to take castor oil.

ABC leaders denounced the raid as equivalent to a declaration of war."

Leaders of the ABC and other opposition groups, it was known, have restrained with difficulty "hot-head" members from violence since the raid, but their spokesman said today they had no knowledge of plans for a concerted outbreak.

Greatest of Race Says Mr. Meighen Of Shakespeare

Vancouver, Dec. 18 (CP)—William Shakespeare is the choice of Senator Arthur Meighen as "The greatest Englishman in history." A Canadian Club audience yesterday, curious as to whose name he would give to fit the title of his address, heard him speak on the great dramatist.

"I appeal to busy folks, not to study Shakespeare, but to read and enjoy him," said Senator Meighen. "You will find your interest in your fellow beings growing stronger and deeper.

"Although I have revelled in every thing, that Shakespeare wrote, I do not know of any doctrine, that he preached. But read and enjoy him. You may return a mystic but you will never return a cynic. I believe he expressed the inner and infinite harmony of the universe itself."

TWELVE YEAR TERMS, BANK ROBBERY SEQUEL

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

New York, Dec. 19 (CP)— A Brooklyn harberdasher's willingness to help a robber open his cash register last night saved his day's receipts and brought forth the holdup man's best wishes for a merry Christmas.

Murray Bernstein was alone in his shop when a young man entered with a pistol and tied him up.

Going to the cash register, which contained about $60, the youth pressed the wrong button and automatically locked it. After pressing various other buttons he gave it up a a bad job and asked Bernstein how to open it.

I've got a wife and three kids and I'm broke," he said. "With Christmas coming on it's going to be tough."

Bernstein, touched by the story, said:

"If you'll untie me I'll open it for you."

The youth released him and Bernstein started toward the cash register. Just then a customer entered, and the holdup man apparently underwent a change of heart.

Pocketing his pistol, he said:

"Listen, you're an all right guy Forget it."

Wish you a Merry Christmas.

"And you, too," he added, addressing the newcomer.

Then went out.

Chicago, Dec. 19 (CP)— The Lincoln Park Zoo menu is nearly as surprising as it population. The cuisine for the year, Director Floyd S. Young reported, required: 600 grapefruit, 22 tons of bananas, 100 crates of lettuce, 50 tons of beef, eight tons of Irish potatoes, 300 bushels of sweet potatoe, 1,000 pounds of grapes, 50,000 loaves of bread, 21 1-2 tons of fish. And though it costs from $12,000 to $13,000 a year to feed them, Young pointed out the animals entertain about 15,000,000 visitors annually.

Canton, Ill., Dec. 19 (CP) —It takes more than the urge, to make tame geese go wild.

A flock of the domesticated birds heard and responded to the call of their wild companions, but after a flight of several miles from the farm of C. M. Mason, had to give up. Their wings were not airworthy.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 19 (CP) — Pittsburg's magnificent new $6,000,000 post office was built after months of careful planning, but it took Mr. John Citizen only a few minutes to discover a troublesome defect in the granite giant.

The complaint made to Postmaster William M. Turner is that you can't find a "letter-drop." There are shiny, gilded depositories bearing bronze signs, "special delivery," "air mail" and "letters in bulk." But none apparently was designed for the fellow who has only one letter to mail. The plain truth, says Postmaster Turner, is that the architects forgot all about it. He promised to do something about it right away.

"This is your money I found a long time ago."

Mrs. Merancy said the money will come in handy at Christmas.

Los Angeles, Dec. 19 (CP)— There will be little danger of the wolf howling at the door of 8-year-old Jane Withers, screen player. She received approval of her contract with Fox Film Corporation in Superior Court today.

The little actress, who had to gain court sanction since she is a minor, will receive a graduating salary of $150 to $1,000 a week for the next seven years.

Avalon, Catalina Island, Calif., Dec. 19 (CP)—Constable T. A. Morisich was looking for a modern Indian here today who had turned primitive.

Two boys exploring Cape Canyon near Blackjack Mountain, discovered one of the bulls of the island Buffalo herd dead with an arrow in its heart.

"Looks like the Indians have broken loose again," said Morisich, who added however, he was going to look for a paleface with primitive notions.

ALBERT DORLAND WITH TWO OTHERS GIVEN 12 YEARS

Found Guilty of Participating in Armed Bank Robbery

SERVED TERMS BEFORE

Other Sentences Given But Will Run Concurrent

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)— Albert Dorland of Toronto, John Valkoff of Montreal and Ray Alderman, of Detroit, were sentenced to 12 years in Kingston Penitentiary for participation last summer in the $20,034 armed robbery of the Union Stockyards Branch of the Bank of Montreal.

In addition Dorland was sentenced to five years for theft of an automobile used in the holdup and Valkoff to three years for receiving stolen goods and retaining the car. The sentences will be concurrent with the major terms.

Alderman pleaded guilty to participation in the robbery and Dorland and Valkoff were convicted by a jury. The sentences were delivered by Judge Daniel O'Connell, who tried all three men.

The bank was held up last July and robbed by three men who threatened the staff with pistols and escaped with the loot in an automobile. Dorland was arrested near Toronto, Valoff in Montreal and Alderman in Detroit.

Dorland's Trial Long

Dorland's trial, longest of the three, lasted three weeks. Alderman claimed his companions the day of the robbery were neither Dorland nor Valkoff. Employes of the bank, however, identified Dorland as one of the men involved in the robbery, while another witness swore he saw Dorland using paint to change the numbering on license plates of a stolen automobile, the one allegedly used in the robbery.

All three men had served previous terms in penitentiary. Valkoff served 10 years in St. Vincent De Paul Penitentiary, Montreal, Dorland almost four years and Alderman three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Dorland was released in August, 1933, before he had finished his five year term following an investigation into charges he had been framed by police on a charge of attempting armed robbery of a Toronto Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

UNEMPLOYED MEN RIOT AT MONTREAL

75 Police Necessary to Disperse The Mob

Montreal, Dec. 19 (CP)—A group of 500 unemployed men, angry because Mayor Camillien Houde refused to meet them in a body, rioted about the city hall today and 75 police, mounted and on foot, were needed to disperse them.

The men marched to the city hall and demanded an opportunity to lay their grievances before the mayor. When he refused to see them in a group, they threw sticks and stones at the city hall windows. Riot squads were called out to disperse them. Several received bruised heads in the tumult. Reports were that several had been locked up and that charges would be laid against them.

MISHAPS, HARD LUCK PURSUE T. LEVEQUE

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 19 (CP) — Treffle Leveque was fined $21.50, including costs, in police court today, thus climaxing a week-end of mishaps and hard luck. The fine today was for reckless driving.

It all started Saturday when Leveque sponsored a dance at his garage. The crowd was so meagre he had to pay the orchestra out of his own pocket. He then broached a bottle of liquor from his Christmas supply and he and his friends sampled it. Later in the evening the car he was driving struck another vehicle, causing damage estimated at $100.

He was fined $10.00 and costs yesterday for having license plates on his car issued for another vehicle and in addition to his fine today, his permit was taken up and he will have to get somebody to drive him to work.

Tri-Power Naval Parley Ends After Two Months

Immediate Prospect of Resumption is Not Seen

LONDON, Dec 19—(CP-AP Cable)—The Tri-Power Naval conversations, in which Britain the United States and Japan sought unsuccessfully to lay the foundations for negotiation of a substitute for existing naval pacts, terminated today after two months' talks, without any immediate prospect of resumption.

The delegations met in Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's rooms at the House of Commons and formally ended the conversations, setting no date, for further discussions or for a Naval Conference next year. Japan will denounce the Washington Treaty within a few days, and unless new Parleys pave the way for a substitute, existing naval restrictions will be abrogated at the end of 1936.

"Although the three governments represented in these conversations" said the Communique issued at the close of the conference, "are in favor of a continuation of naval limitation with such reduction as can be agreed upon by all the Powers concerned, the principles of the methods for achieving this in the future remain to be determined."

The communique said the discussions "have served a useful purpose," adding: "every aspect of the naval problem has been discussed between the parties frankly, fully and amicably."

The communique added the British as hosts to the parley, will continue explorations for a basis for an agreement through diplomatic channels and will arrange further conversations or a conference "when an opportune moment arrives". "The governments concerned will keep in close touch with each other" it said.

RUMANIAN QUEEN PLAYING SANTA

Helping Members of Royal Families to Maintain Budget

(Copyright 1934 by the Associated Press)

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 19 — Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania is playing Santa Claus to the Balkans.

The beautiful Queen wears no long white beard and rides around in no reindeer-drawn sleigh, but she is helping make Christmas merry for many in this part of the world.

Not only has Marie provided tasteful Christmas gifts this year for all her friends and relatives, but she has also helped out bountifully her less fortunate royal relatives—erstwhile kings, queens, princes and princesses— who found the financial sledding hard after the Great War toppled thrones right and left.

Yesterday, for example, she sent her sister, the Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia, who will be the next Empres sof Russia if the Soviet regime fails, a Christmas present of $300 for the support of herself, her husband and her daughter who are living in reduced circumstances in a small Paris flat.

Marie's generosity is all the more remarkable, her friends say, because she is not, by royal standards, well off herself.

WAR-TIME REVUE IS MUCH ENJOYED

'Bing Boys' of War Years Again Seen at Alhambra

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 19.—A flood of memories was released today by the revival at the Alhambra Theatre for the holiday season of "The Bing Boys", the war-time revue seen by legions of officers and men on leave in London and whose title was adopted by the Canadian Corps as a nickname.

With George Robey, and Violet Loraine, back in their old parts the audience laughed with them and joined in singing "If You Were the Only Girl in the World" and other war-time song hits with much of the gusto of eighteen years ago.

The stalls however were filled with "boiled shirts" instead of khaki and there were no bombs and anti-aircraft guns to puncture the melody. Many in the audience occupied the same seats as on those nights of war darkness. Robey again gave his "Another Little Drink" but much of his other business was brought up to date.

Some of the critics however wondered rather dismally what the younger-generation thinks of it. "The evening to me brought a certainty there were times when I found myself reflecting how easy it was to make us laugh in those war years."

Six Men Paid $4 a Week or Less, Commission is Told

Ottawa Dec. 19.— (CP)—The average wage for all employees in the Canadian Woollen Industry was 29.37 cents in Feb. 1934, the parliamentary Mass Buying Commission was told today by G. A. Adamson, Toronto auditor. This was a decrease by 3.1 per cent. from the same month last year.

Eighty per cent of the Woollen employment is centred in Ontario where the average hourly wage is 30.51 cents. Quebec supplies 18 per cent. of the employment and pays an average of 24.71 cents. The average for New Brunswick is 26.83 cents; Nova Scotia 21.22 cents; Manitoba 36.63 cents and British Columbia 35.62 cents but there is only one mill in each province.

Adamson said the mill paying the highest wage in Canada was Porritts and Spencer (Canada) Limited of Hamilton, Ont., 40.74 cents. The lowest in Canada was Saguenay Spinners, Limited, Chicoutimi, Que., 13.54 cents. Other mills that paid comparatively low wages were Renfrew Woollen Mills, Renfrew, Ont.; Renfrew Textiles, Limited Renfrew, Ont.; Northern Textiles, Limited with Mills at Chelsey, Ont., and Owen Sound, Ont.; St. George Woollen Mills Limited, St. George Beauce, Que.; St. Johns Textiles Mills Ltd., St. Johns, Que., and Oxford Woollen Ltd., Oxford, N.S.

Adamson presented a report on the payroll records of four firms—Methot et Frere, Cap St. Ignace, Que.; Saguenay Spinners St. George Woollens and Northern Textiles. It showed six men paid $4 a week or less; 15 paid between $4 and $5; 13 between $5 and $6; 36 between $6 and $7 and a total of 138 paid $10 a week or less.

When the Woollen investigation was completed, E. J. Young, Lib. Weyburn, asked if the commission expected to call experts on production. The Saskatchewan member said the charge had been made to him that Canadian Textile Manufacturers did not use fast dyes and that colors ran in the wash. It was intimated by Chairman W. W. Kennedy that a decision on this question would be made later.

Hosiery Market

The commission then turned to an investigation of the Canadian hosiery business with Adamson presenting reports on 32 companies. 19 mills, with 50 per cent. of employment, are in Ontario; 12 accounting for 45 per cent. of employment are in Quebec and one in Nova Scotia, with five per cent. of employment.

Canadian hosiery companies, Adamson said, have increased their share of the Canadian market from 68.4 per cent. in 1930 to 97.6 in 1932 and 98.3 in 1933. Imports dropped from 31.5 per cent. in 1930 to 1.7 in 1933. Mill employment did not increase so fast, however, with the 1933 total less than in 1932, although higher than 1930. Sales in 1933 were down in dollar value from 1930 but up in volume.

Eight companies supplied 50 per cent. of Canadian hosiery sales in 1933. They are as follows: Julius Kayser Co., Ltd., Sherbrooke, Que.; Canadian Silk Products, Ltd., Sherbrooke; Weldrest Hosiery Limited, Mount Denis, Ont.; Butterfly Hosiery Co. Ltd., Drummondville, Que.; Chipman Holtin Knitting Co., Ltd., Hamilton, Ont.; Richmond Hosiery, Limited, London, Ont.; Holeproof Hosiery Co. of Canada, Ltd., London, Ont.

32.16 Average Wage

The average wage for all hosiery employees in Ontario was 32.16 cents; Quebec, 27.95 and Nova Scotia 24.82. The highest wage in Ontario, 40.41 cents was paid by National Hosiery Mills Ltd., Hamilton, and the lowest, 18.75 cents, by the Arkona Woollen and Knitting Mills, Arkona, Ont. The highest in Quebec, 36.33 cents, was paid by the Butterfly Hosiery Co., Ltd., and the lowest, 12.45 cents by Goodwear Hosiery Mills, Ltd., St. Hyacinthe, Quec.

ALL LIFEBOATS ARE SWEPT AWAY

Captain Reinersten Tells Story of Crew's Plight

(Editor's Note: The graphic story of facing death with his sturdy Scandinavian crew in a raging Atlantic storm and their rescue by the almost superhuman efforts of seamen from ships which plowed through mountainous waves in answer to his SOS is described in the following dispatch to The Associated Press from the captain of the ill-fated Norwegian freighter Sisto.)

By CAPTAIN REINERTSEN
Copyright 1934, by The Associated Press

Aboard S. S. New York enroute to Cherbourg, Dec. 19.—The Sisto bound from Pugwash to Belfast between Dec. 13 and 14 ran into a terrific hurricane and lost all its lifeboats.

The front part of the bridge was carried away and the doors of the saloon smashed in, allowing seas to wash in and forcing the crew to leave the forecastle.

There was great danger of the deck cargo covering the entrance preventing the crew's exit.

Crew In Stokehole

Wet and sleepless, they stayed in the stokehole. The officers and members of the crew who remained in the chart room were in extreme danger of being washed overboard.

Sunday night the storm again increased in fury. The hurricane lasted all day Monday and Tuesday with huge breakers rolling over the ship. Meanwhile, we were using oil, trying to ease the sea.

Finally, at 10 p.m. Monday, the ship refusing to obey its wheel any longer, we cast broadside toward the wind. The rudder appeared broken, but it was impossible to investigate on account of the high seas.

The deck cargo then shifted to the lee side, causing a heavy list. Expecting a break down at any time, we called steamers for help. They were standing by at first, for there was no chance of leaving the ship in the tremendous seas.

FUR COAT OVER GOWN

Woman Released This Week From Monterey Hospital

Carmel, Calif., Dec. 19 (AP) — The rugged country and beaches around Carmel were searched today for Mrs. Eliot Boke Schaffner, 39 year old member of wealthy clothing family.

Apparently clad only in night gown, bedroom slippers and a fur coat, she disappeared between midnight and dawn yesterday from her isolated home on the southern tip of this artists' village.

Released only Monday from Monterey Hospital where she was taken ten days ago for a rest, fears were felt Mrs. Schaffner may have wandered into the ocean surf of Carmel Bay or into the tidal mouth of the Carmel River, both close to her home.

After a day of secret though intensive search by the village police, bloodhounds were brought by plane from Berkeley to Monterey County during the night to join the hunt for the missing woman.

Her husband, Joseph H. Schaffner, a director of Hart, Schaffner and Marx, was flying to Carmel from Chicago.

DIAMOND RING IS TAKEN OFF COUNTER

The season's first report of shoplifting confronted the local police last night, when a diamond ring was removed from the counter of a downtown store. Sergeant Arthur Booth was notified of the incident and despite the fact, that certain clues were traced thoroughly, no information or signs of the diamond could be unearthed.

The diamond ring in question had been placed on the display counter of the Senate Cigar Store, Front St. by the proprietor of that business, Mr. G. L. Finch, earlier in the day. The ring was seen by customers and clerks at 9.00 p.m. last evening, but at 9.10 p.m. it had disappeared from its position on the counter. It was following this discovery that the police were notified.

The ring was a solitaire diamond and was to be given to the customer entering the store and giving the correct answer to a puzzle in the shortest possible time. Police are still investigating.

HILLSIDE SLIDE VERY DANGEROUS

Boy Has Narrow Escape On Cedar Street Road

Sliding down a hillside on Cedar Street between Bridge and Catharine Streets, a youngster narrowly escaped accident yesterday when he came out on the roadway before a motorvehicle. The driver was so interested in the fact that children were running grave risks at this place that he called the attention of the police.

When the police arrived at the scene there was no one to be seen, the boy who might have been a victim or others.

Constable W. Evans referring to the use which the children make of a vacant lot on the hillside, said that parents should be careful to warn their children not to use this or other places near the roadway lest serious accident or tragedy result.

JAMES A. ROY IS 90 YRS. OLD TODAY

Receives Congratulations From Many Friends in City

That fine old gentleman-citizen, James A. Roy, is today celebrating his 90th birthday and is receiving the congratulations of his many friends in city and district and hopes are being expressed that he may retain his vitality for many years to come. The name of "Jimmy" Roy is synonymous with the life of this city for 90 years, he having been born in this city on December 19th, 1844.

He was born in a little house on North Park Street back of the old Albert College and since that time has been identified with this city and his first love and solicitation has been for the welfare of Belleville. He has made many friends and has the happy faculty of retaining the same. His home on Victoria Avenue, where he has resided for the past half century has always been open and no more delightful way to spend an evening or afternoon was to visit this fine Scotch gentleman and talk with him of the early life of this city.

James Roy made a success of his business and he was ever ready to help anyone in distress. He subscribed and does subscribe to every worthy project, and during the war years his purse was ever ready to assist in the furtherance of the Allied cause. His love of the horse has never diminished and he would sit for hours to tell one of the pedigree of some standard breds, that he had owned. The horse and buggy of James Roy was for years a familiar scene on the city streets. Until ill health prevented James Roy could be seen at any horse meet, not up in the grandstand but over by the stables talking 'horse' with the owners and drivers.

For some years his health has not been of the best but he retains all his faculties, although his hearing is somewhat impaired. He is unable to leave his home at the present time but all classes of citizens will extend to James Roy, the best wishes for a happy birthday.

'13' Terrorless For Motorists

The number "thirteen" holds no terrors for the average car driver of today, but on the contrary the number which is proverbially held to contain the element of "hard luck" is being eagerly sought by car drivers applying for the new licenses now being issued.

Today Mr. S. E. Vermilyea, issuer for this district who commenced the distribution of the new 1935 license plates yesterday issued "W13" to Mr. F. J. Adams, a commercial traveller of Oshawa.

First of the series for local distribution, Nos. 1 and 2, went to car owners of Queen's Park, Toronto.

At present local car owners who are applying for licenses are receiving the low numbered plates. The issue being given out today was in the ten to twenty range.

This year, it is pointed out, a change has been made in the permit. The reverse side carries the application for the ensuing year, which will result in more care on the part of the car owner holding it.

MUSKRAT DARTS UNDER WALKERS

Feminine Screams Raised as Stray Animal Appears

A bewildered muskrat threw lower Front street, into an uproar just before noon today when the frightened creature darted from nowhere and scuttled between the legs of startled passersby who thronged the city's main avenue.

The fat rat had apparently found its way through some sewer from the river onto Front Street but as yet no explanation is given as to how it might have climbed through the closed gratings of a catch basin.

Feminine screams, blended in discord as the little animal wandered onto the main thoroughfare and sought refuge under the footsteps of the startled Front street crowds. Pointing wavering fingers at the frightened muskrat huddling in indecision along the curb, a small knot of women stood and vented their outraged feelings in nervous shrills. The attention of Isaac Barnhart, Tyendinaga, was attracted. He stepped to the curb scooped the frightened animal up by the tail and carried it away.

Soon after it was exhibited at the office of The Daily Ontario Intelligencer the little animal was liberated at the rear of the building on the ice of the river where it scuttled to refuge in the open water below the bridge.

FIREMEN HUNT FOR 'DANGERS'

Inspection Made by Chief Lynch And His Brigade

A checkup is being made by the members of the local fire department this week of city stores in an effort to halt the arranging of "dangerous decorations" for the Christmas season. In a few cases, store keepers were found to have hung highly inflammable decorations near electrical fixtures, creating what was said to be a dangerous condition. A warning has then been issued. In a few cases store owners have been using fireproof decorations which have passed all tests. The inspection is designed to eliminate any probability of fire in any of the crowded stores during the busy season.

Letters to the Editor

ANSWERS MR. BRUMMEL

Belleville, Ont., R. R. 7,
Dec. 13, 1934.

Editor of Ontario Intelligencer:
Dear Sir:

I have just read Mr. E. Brummel's letter in your paper of today which was letter headed "Farming and Dairy Industry." Mr. Brummel seems to get a great kick in ridiculing his neighbor, Mr. John Weese, M.P., and the Hon. R. B. Bennett and lays all blame on them for the low prices that have been paid for cheese in the last few years.

In the first place I think Mr. Brummel should brush up on his ancient history as he claims that in the early part of 1930 including May, June and July cheese was at a better price than in 1929. Where he got his information I do not know, but I do know that it is not correct and I am in a position to prove it to him. And as to electing a Federal Government similar to that of Premier Hepburn's I would like to ask him what the Hon. Mr. Hepburn has done for the milk producer except raise the price of fluid milk for a few producers that are fortunate enough to be supplying milk in that channel while the poor laborer has to curtail his consumption and deny his children the proper nourishment, while other farmers are selling milk at 50 cents per hundred weight.

One would think to read the letter that Mr. Brummel was deeply interested in the cheese industry and I would also like to ask him how much milk he has sent to the cheese factory in the past four years or does he just use the cheese factory as a place to dump his surplus milk when he cannot get sale for it in other channels? But he likes his neighbors to keep the cheese factory in operation.

I think Mr. Brummel should be man enough to come forward and take some of the blame unto himself.

The Federal Government or any other government in this country cannot control the price of cheese when we are selling it on a world market.

But Mr. Brummel and his fellow-farmers can raise the price of milk as paid by the cheese factory. How many producers in his locality are patronizing their own cheese factory? If his milk drawer drew all the milk on that route to the cheese factory instead of about 15 percent of it, could he not draw it for a lot less money per unit. If the whole locality supported the cheese factory 100 percent instead of 15 percent the cheesemaker could manufacture for a lot less per unit. The running expenses of the factory could be spread over a greater number of patrons and Mr. Brummel and his neighbors would receive a considerable more per hundredweight for their milk.

I do not think we should ask the government to do things for us until we do something for ourselves, some people do not want the cheese factories to close but they expect their neighbors to keep them in operation for fear that they should want a place to dump their surplus milk.

How many milk trucks are there running up and down the concessions of our townships wearing out our roads when one truck could draw all the milk? and who is keeping up these roads? It is not the creameries or condensories but the farmers. If all neighbours could get together and bury some of their old grievances and say we will all work together and either patronize our cheese factory or some one creamery, the cost of hauling would be lowered, the manufacturing cost lowered, the upkeep of the roads lessened and the farmer would get more per hundredweight of milk

Now if Mr. Brummel wants more money for his milk he could start right out to his neighbors and organize his fellow-farmers in such a way. If not his cheese factory as well as others in this country will be closed for all time. The British market for cheese will be lost and he will find out to his regret what price he will be receiving per hundredweight for his milk, but it will be too late. Perhaps he will have a Liberal Government by that time and he will find out what they will be able to do for him, but I do not think they will do any more than John Weese or the Hon. R. B. Bennett.

Thanking you for the space in your valuable paper. I remain.

Dairyman.

Christmas Trade In Canada Best In Last 4 Years

By The Canadian Press

While cash registers jingled merrily, merchants across Canada today stood ready for the final spurt of a Christmas trade widely regarded as the best the nation has seen since the onset of the world depression.

From Winnipeg came word that the west was having its brightest Christmas in five years, while Montreal merchants had experienced none to equal it since 1930. A statement from the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association was more qualified, while the Maritimes reported a slight general increase, which was expected to expand toward the end of the week.

A rising retail volume, particularly in lines of household necessities, which have reached the replacement stage, was reported by George S. Hougham of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association. In clothing and allied lines he heard from retailers that there was a steady demand for reasonably priced merchandise. In almost every line of consumer goods, he said, there was a larger turnover than in 1933 but a sustained increase awaited further activity in the construction industry, he thought.

In the Maritimes, a marked improvement was noted in the Cape Breton area, due to greater employment in the mines and steel works there. At St. John, N.B., sales were said to be better than last year and business volume gradually increasing to a level above that of the past few years.

Improvement in West

All lines of trade were reported showing a distinct improvement in Western Canada. Victoria, B.C., told of slightly improved business with jewelry stores registering the best sales in five years. Vancouver business was said to be fair with a greater volume expected.

In Calgary, activity was well ahead of 1933, one store noting a 10 percent rise in sales. Edmonton felt much freer spending with a good demand for higher quality goods. Regina sales were slightly higher than last year, while at Saskatoon there was concrete evidence that farmers had more money than they had last Christmas.

Henry Detchon, general manager of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association in Winnipeg, found business "much better" than last year. Particularly good, he said, was the business which the east was doing with Western Canada. This trade was "away up."

DOLLS AS NATION LINKS

From eight different countries there will come to Belleville school Red Cross groups no fewer than eight dolls as gifts from Red Cross societies of girls in those countries as appreciation of the eight doll gifts sent by Belleville girls.

The first has arrived here and featured a ceremony at Queen Alexandra School Monday night.

This work of the Red Cross is a gesture which cannot but avail greatly in building up interest among the various peoples as well as Red Cross work. It will put zest into the teaching of geography and history and it will give the girls in far-separated lands some others to think of whom they have not seen. These girls will understand one another.

This doll from Poland comes from a land where the work of the Red Cross cannot but be appreciated because over the fair land of Poland the surges of conflict raged during the Great War. The children who contributed the doll know not the war except through its results. It is encouraging to Red Cross workers to find their efforts spreading in organizations throughout the world.

These dolls will be a symbol of the sisterhood of women and girls of all races. These symbols will mean much to the young girls who figure in this exchange of gifts. The sisters of all lands are one.

RADIO AND TELETYPE FOR POLICE.

Probably the day is not far off when the police departments throughout the Province will be linked up with a medium of communication, either by shortwave broadcast or a teletype system. The short wave system is used in some cities for broadcasting to radio police cars but the teletype is more generally used.

Toronto police are aided in their work by a teletype system which brings every incident of any importance into every precinct. It is a system similar to that used in all modern newspaper offices and in brokerage offices.

Recently in an interview Crown Attorney Donnan expressed the belief that the date was not far off when there would be in the larger cities or perhaps throughout the province one or the other of these means of communication so that the forces throughout Ontario could be given notice of happenings at a moment's notice. One can appreciate how the teletype message entering every police office in the province would set on guard thousands of police on a moment's notice or how radio broadcast by short wave would reach police headquarters everywhere as well as police cars equipped with radio. The saving of valuable time in the quest of stolen booty or in the pursuit of criminals can easily be understood. At present where it is necessary to warn the province widely, time is lost through the fact that separate messages have to be sent out. With teletype or broadcast not only instantaneous news but continuous news of developments in cases could be sent out to keep police everywhere informed.

The initial cost and the maintenance cost would probably be quite heavy for either system but the systems would be ready for instant use without cost to police departments.

There is another factor which has to be considered—contact with other police departments through these systems would lead to stimulation of police interest and undoubtedly to the rapid strengthening of the individual forces, It would be a form of unification of departments.

One can understand how today if a person should disappear there is the possibility that all of the messages of inquiry may go to the places where the missing person has not been. With a system linking the departments there is a greater probability of one of the messages reaching the desired place than there is at present when only a limited number of messages are sent out after police have sorted out the places to which it is likely a disappearing person may have gone.

WASTE ON BUTTONS

A New Yorker has estimated that every morning a man has to accoutre himself with the following operations which mean the clearing of no less than seventy button holes. He adds 100 for buttoning and unbuttoning jacket and coat during the day time and vest after meals and disrobing at night, making a total of 170 operations a day, 1200 per week and 63,000 a year and 3,500,000 in an ordinary lifetime. Taking five seconds per button he figures that man loses two years of his life at this operation.

So the New Yorker picks the Russian moujik's blouse as the best bet in its line. "You allow it to descend on you, loop the business at the waist, hook the collar, and presto!—the job is done. You don't even have to tuck the tails in."

This man is just one of many who revolt at men's present day dress.

SAILORS WRECKED ON LAND

Sailors are good at sea but are poor motorists and poor pedestrians. The greatest peacetime hazard for men in the U. S. navy is automobiles, nearly one-sixth of all classes on the sick list were automobile injuries during shore leave, the Surgeon General reports. There were ten accidents to every thousand men in the navy last year, a rate higher than for those who inhabit land. This is partly to be laid to the complicated machinery with which the sailor has to work on ship, it being much more complicated than any factory machinery.

The reason for the large proportion of land accidents in the case of sailors is that they are fast drivers in cars and are not able to take care of themselves when out walking. They know not motor regulations and motor traffic, these men who plough the ocean wave where everything is free.

WORK AND PLAY

Business men need feel no qualms of conscience or fear of ridicule when they realize that one of their greatest figures, John D .Rockefeller, sr., the octogenarian who never is weary of work, once wrote:

> "I was early taught to work as well as play:
> My life has been one long, happy holiday.
> Full of work, full of play—
> I dropped the worry on the way—
> And God was good to me every day."

Here is an idea for a successful life. And yet most people while they are called upon to work most of the time, hope for the day when they will be able to "take life easy" as they say.

"John D." however knows the better way. And he has given it that others may have an opportunity of learning how to be happy.

SHEER PLEASURE

The pleasure of the choice of a gift is something that is available to every person at this time. That is the privilege which no one can take away for the gift may be little or large Christmas herein brings one of the satisfactions of life—as one tries to peer into the mind and soul of another so as to find what will suit him or her. Crossword and jig-saw puzzles have not such appeal as this, in giving satisfaction which endures.

WANNA BUY A DUCK?

Harry Spearing will now be able to ask "Wanna buy a duck?" for on Wednesday afternoon he took unto himself a new pet, a duck that had been rescued from sure death—but therein lies a story. The tug Progresso was steaming up the river on Wednesday about noon, plowing its way through cakes of drifting ice, when a large piece of channel width came along. The tug start through this, when Captain Chas. Hackett noticed a duck apparently in distress in the middle of it. The tug hove to and Captain Hackett got out on the ice, which was six inches in thickness, solid enough to hold his weight, ran across to the bird, which he found held fast, as one foot was frozen in the ice. He released the bird, brought it back to the tug, where it was placed in the engine room and after absorbing a little heat was as perky as if nothing had happened to it. Captain Hackett gave the bird to Harry, who no doubt will make it mascot of the "Vedas."—Amherstburg Echo

THE REAL DELINQUENT

Every so often some die-hard suggests that the trouble with our young people is that we have been too sparing with the rod. A sound thrashing every so often, we are told, would worker wonders with some of these youngsters whom we find exceptionally hard to handle.

Maybe so, but Father E. J Flannigan, head of a boy's home in Omaha, suggests that it is the fathers of delinquent children who need the licking He boldly proposes that when a child gets into trouble with the law, and is found to have been regularly neglected by his dad, dad be called in and given a dozen or so where he will notice them most.

Father Flannigan points out that parental neglect is responsible for juvenile delinquency in a tremendous proportion of cases. In such cases, obviously, it is the parent who needs correction far more than the child.—Guelph Mercury.

Did Dr. Dafoe pick up the word "swell" while in the United States or did he just start to use it from the memory of having heard Canadians talking of "swell joints?" joints"?

Did you ever try what might seem almost a miracle? Here's a way. Call to mind some unhappy friend, perhaps out of work and send him or her a personal gift at Christmas and see if the signs of worry and the sense of almost defeat do not disappear in smiles and perhaps happy tears.

AUNT FANNY HINTS in the above illustration one method of making this Christmas the best ever with blessings galore and the warm feeling of being the instrument to bring joy to others not as fortunate as ourselves. The illustration tells the story, no need to amplify it.

FAREWELL TO THE GOLF COURSE

To ditches and the rough goodby
  And to the traps at number three.
Until the birds begin to fly
  No longer will you bother me.
Henceforth my mashie shots will land
Upon the green as they are planned.

Tonight before my blazing fire
I'll hit a ball exactly right
And gratify my long desire
  To watch its well directed flight.
That long eleventh hole will be
An easy "winter" par for me.

When restless on my bed I toss
  I'll play a sweet and soothing round;
That yawning seventeenth ditch I'll cross
  For when the snow is on the ground
My dreaming spirit never makes
The careless body's sad mistakes.

I'm done with anguish and despair.
  I'm done with hazards and with traps.
All winter long I shall not care
  To wrangle over handicaps.
In dreams, although the course is hard,
There'll be no "sevens" upon my card.

EDGAR A. GUEST POET OF THE PEOPLE, who puts a song into the most trivial of everyday events, sings of golf as one who knows the joys, sorrows and majestic moments of that grand game. Golf enthusiasts, members of the Sidelight Family, will appreciate his lines, printed above. One thing we do not like about golf, it seems to have taken some of the enthusiasm out of that grand old game of curling, which is not as it should be—or is it the weather, or what? Referred to Bob Wray who does a bit of both and should know the answer.

WALT MASON WAS A PRINTER, one of the wandering kind in the old hand-set days when it took one man ten hours to put two columns of brevier into type. Like all travelling printers of that day Walt could sling type fast, so was frequently out of copy. Then he amused himself by putting into type quaint prose poems breathing a philosophy as pure and sweet as the great outdoors unspoiled by man. Walt's prose poems made him famous and were among the first literary effusions syndicated to a number of newspapers. Here's one which hits the bullseye:

"A hundred years ago and more, men wrung their hands and walked the floor, and worried over this or that, and thought their cares would squash them flat. Where are those worried beings now? The bearded goat and festive cow eat grass above their mouldered bones, and jay birds call in strident tones. And where the ills they worried o'er? Forgotten all, forevermore, Gone all the sorrow and the woe, that lived a hundred years ago! The grief that makes you scream today, like other griefs will pass away; and when you've cashed your little string, and jay birds o'er your bosom sing, the stranger pausing there to view the marble works that cover you, will think upon the uselessness of human worry and distress. So let the worry business slide; live while you live and when you've died, the folks will say around your bier: 'He made a hit while he was here'."

MOTOR CAR LICENSE PLATES for 1935 are now being issued with more or less competition for small numbers. Numbers one and two, generally much sought after, will go to Toronto, not having been purchased by local motorists early enough. At this writing No. 13 was still on the waiting list indicating that a touch of superstition may still linger here or hereabouts. Belleville's distinguishing number will be W and there may be a few V's if prosperity keeps coming around the corner and does not slip back into the doldrums again. Our friend, Pessimist Pete, says that if he had a car he would not care if the license number was 13 or 4-11-44, for if his luck changed favorably enough to put him in possession of a motor car he would be perfectly satisfied, no such hoodoo like number 13 could change it.

The 15th Regimental Band will hold a Christmas Tree entertainment and band concert in the Armouries Christmas afternoon. The programme will consist of music and drills especially for the children. Every child will receive a present. The management is endeavoring to get a complete list of the names of children who might not otherwise have a visit from Santa Claus. Citizens are earnestly requested to send the names of children not likely to be visited by Santa Claus to Charles Hanna, Manager 15th Band.

Pimlott, Belleville's star hockey player last season, will adderss the men's meeting at the Y.M. C.A. next Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. C. H. Elliott who has taught a class in Bridge Street Church Sunday School for thirty years, is retiring from the work and the girls of her class recently presented her with an address of appreciation of the splendid services she had rendered the Sunday School and especially those who have from time to time been members of her class.

30 YEARS AGO

DEC. 19TH, 1904.

At a few minutes after one o'clock on Saturday morning, December 17th, 1904, fire was discovered in St. Michael's Church and it had then gained such headway that nothing could be done to save the building which was a massive and imposing Gothic structure. From the rear to the front and in all parts of the building flames were belching out. The sight as the flames leaped from the tower was grand yet awful and the city was lighted as by daylight. An effort was made by those early on the scene to rescue some of the vestments, but their efforts were futile. The aged and worthy incumbent, Rt. Rev. Monsignor James Farrelly, who has been for years a faithful shepherd to the flock, was an eye witness to the destruction of his beautiful church and the shock has been a severe one to him, his condition today being such as to excite universal sympathy of all classes of citizens. A loss which Monsignor Farrelly keenly feels is that of the handsome golden chalice which was presented to him by the priests of the diocese upon the occasoin of the venerable Monsignor's golden jubilee. It was valued at $400.00. It was the first time that the golden chalice had been left in the church over night. The fire is thought to have been caused from a stove fire in the basement of the church. Monsignor Farrelly conducted Vespers in the basement Friday evening in the absence of Father Hanley. The loss is estimated at $75,000.00 and the insurance is reported to be only $20,000.00. In the morning following the fire Mayor Chown addressed a letter to Monsignor Farrelly, placing the city hall at the disposal of the congregation. The church authorities, however, have arranged to hold services in the Catholic Foresters' Hall. The erection of the church now destroyed began in the year 1886, the corner stone being laid on the 22nd of August of the same year. The edifice was blessed and opened for services on October 7, 1888. Monsignor Farrelly was then the pastor of the church. The seating capacity was 900. Everyone who entered St. Michael's Church admired the beautiful polished granite pillars, twelve in number. They were as shown by inscriptions upon them, donated by the following or by relatives of those whose names are given: Mr. and Mrs. John Doyle, Michael and Ellen O'Heron, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen O'Brien and Mrs. M. J. Grainger, Mrs. James Butler and family, James Grant, J. B. Murphy, M.D., Mary McCarty, James Mackie and family, Archie McDonnell and family, Walter Cahill and family, Francis Dolan and family. The beautiful memorial windows were donated by the following: Patrick Judge O'Horo, Maria O'Horo, Mrs. Mary Daley, J. P. Dolan, M.D., Mrs. Catherine Roach, Mary and Luke O'Neill, Michael and James Downs, Society of "Children of Mary", Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hanley, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Conway, Stephen Wade. The walls were adorned by handsome pictures of the "Stations of the Cross" in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Adamson, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brennan, Mr. John Callaghan, Mrs. Henry Deacon, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. William Power, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Lynch, Mr. James Grant, Mrs. James Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Richard O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McEvoy, Mr. Timothey Quinlan, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. William Deegan, Mrs. Denis Hanley. The above information regarding the furnishings of the destroyed church was obtained from an article published in the Intelligencer some three years ago.

William Brown has opened the bowling alley under the Hub Hotel for the season.

Capt. Frederick has opened a grocery store on Front Street in the shop formerly occupied by H. K. Smith, photographer, near the market.

Never before has Front St. had so many beautifully dressed show windows in the stores as there are at present. There seems to be a rivalry in this line and the result is indeed pleasing.

Mr. John Maclean, son of the Rev. M. W. Maclean, is home from school in Toronto to spend Christmas.

Mr. Alex Embury is home from Queen's University, Kingston, to spend the Christmas vacation.

Mrs. W. H. Dingle of this city is visiting her parents, Col. and Mrs. Cole at Brockville.

The Belleville Literary Club held a very pleasant reunion at the "Homestead" on John Street, last evening. The gentlemen entertained the ladies at an oyster supper. The lovely parlors of the "Homestead" are just the place for an evening's enjoyment.

Merchants in various places are discontinuing the old time custom of giving presents during the Christmas business.

Mr. Reddick, the ferryman crossed the ice bridge today with a horse and buggy. He states that the ice is three and a half inches thick.

Mr. John H. Thompson the founder of Stirling News Argus, has disposed of his property to Mr. James Currie of Cannington who will continue the business. Mr. Thompson is going to Western Ontario.

The stone work on the bridge on the Murray road and over the Murray Canal is completed and ready for the superstructure. Water was let into the canal on Monday. Work in all departments connected with the canal has been suspended until spring.

The advance agent for the Fisk Jubilee Singers was in the city yesterday.

Last night was extremely cold, the thermometer registering 17 degrees below zero at 8 o'clock this morning.

Herbert Redner Reports 11 Piglets Alive of Record Litter

What may be a Canadian record for the number of pigs in one litter was established this week at Centre, Prince Edward County when a Yorkshire sow owned by Mr. Bert Redner, gave birth to twenty-five little ones.
